"The Methodist preachers of this city (Atlanta) have fallen upon both a scriptural and a wise plan concerning a revival. They meet every morning, and spend one hour in united prayer for a revival. Up to this time the meetings have been marked by increasing earnestness and the manifest presence of the Spirit. Out of this waiting before God in prayer there must come, as there did on the early church, both an inspiration to and the preparation for great enterprises for God. Since when has the church of our Lord been in sorer need of these things? Great questions are to be solved, great revolutions in matters of creed are going on, and great populations are still to be told of the living Lord. No possible human equipment is sufficient for the work before the church of God—nothing less and nothing other than the conscious presence of a divine power and the inspiration and guidance of the Holy Ghost can make us 'sufficient for these things.' 'Our sufficiency is of God.' In answer to importunate prayer it will be given of him to us.

"While the preachers are getting this matter of a revival on their prayers and on their hearts, let the Official Boards and the leading members of the churches unite their prayers with those of their pastors until our God shall hear our prayers and come and save us."

A SPIRITUAL WORK.

It is a grievous mistake to suppose that raising funds for educational purposes has little or no religious significance. This might be the case if the church were engaged in giving merely secular education. Since, however, all our denominational schools are founded for the express purpose of imparting, not secular, but Christian education, the work of endowing them, and of enlarging their facilities and sphere of usefulness, commends itself peculiarly to all who are interested in the upbuilding of God's kingdom. It is by this means that the church is preparing most wisely for the successful and speedy evangelization of the world.

As Bishop Hendrix forcefully says: "Endowed colleges are more stable than dynasties and thrones. They number their years by centuries, but their usefulness can not be measured. Revolutions and wars have left Oxford and Cambridge unshaken on their solid foundations to send forth Wesleys and Whitefields and Keblas and Gladstones. The experience of the race has been that the best investments, both alike for security and usefulness, have been in the endowment and equipment of such Christian institutions."

DEATH OF A NOBLE WOMAN.

On Tuesday, March 13, Mrs. F. A. McLain, wife of Congressman McLain, of Mississippi, died in Washington City, after an illness of ten days. Her remains were brought for interment to Gloster, Miss., where for many years she and her husband have resided. It was the privilege of the assistant editor to be her pastor for three years, during which time he came to know her intimately and to esteem her very highly because of her splendid qualities of mind and heart. She was a woman of strong and noble character, bright in intellect, consistent as a Christian, conspicuously faithful to duty, beautiful in her devotion to her husband and children, and zealous of good works.

She was from young womanhood a devout and loyal Methodist. By her death not only has Gloster Methodism lost one of its truest, most valuable members, but the entire community where she lived suffers sore bereavement, and her native State has lost one of its brightest jewels. Besides her husband, she left three children, two of them grown, and a large number of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. May God graciously comfort the bereaved ones in this crushing sorrow! Our heart goes out to them in earnest sympathy.

The anniversary of the New Orleans Methodist City Mission will be held next Sunday evening, March 25, at Rayne Memorial Church. Dr. W. T. Boiling, of Shreveport, La., will deliver the address. A rare treat is in store for all who attend. By mistake, we, last week, announced the anniversary for the eighteenth instant. The correct date is March 25.

A NEW BOOK.

DWIGHT L. MOODY. HIS LIFE, HIS WORK, HIS WORDS. Containing a complete story of his remarkable career, sketches of his co workers, and of the institutions which he established. His sermons, his anecdotes, his best thoughts, etc. By Leigh Pell, D. D., author of several books on Bible study, notes on the Sunday-school Lessons, etc. 8 vo. 704 pages. Illustrated. Cloth. Richmond, Va.: B. F. Johnson Publishing Co.

No religious leader of this century has wielded a more commanding influence, or more completely won the respect and love of all classes, than was true of the late D. L. Moody, whose name is known and honored in every civilized land. The story of the life of this wonderful man, as sketched by Dr. Pell, is one of surpassing interest, and brings into clearer prominence the fact that this great modern evangelist was in every way worthy of the love and esteem of the public. Looked at from every standpoint, Mr. Moody, as the author shows, was a kingly character, a man whose words and deeds bore the stamp of a sublime faith, a quenchless zeal, perfect consecration, and ever abounding love. Few men who have achieved celebrity ever had to contend with greater hindrances and disadvantages than did Mr. Moody in his early years. Stirring, indeed, is the record of his struggles ere the world came to recognize that, though unpolished, here was a jewel of the rarest quality. The influence of Moody's mother, who was a woman of deep piety and extraordinary force of character, as the author points out, had most to do with shaping his character. Left a helpless widow with nine small children, this remarkable woman managed somehow to keep her children together, and provide for them until they reached the age when they could take care of themselves. So great were the straits of the family that for a year after the husband's death Moody's mother, it is stated, cried herself to sleep every night.

It would be well-nigh impossible to find a more instructive or inspiring biography than this. The more we learn about this marvelously useful man, the more we are impressed with the power and beauty of the religion of Christ, which was the secret of his usefulness and nobility of character.

This is a book that young and old, sinners and Christians, will read with unwearying attention. Not only is the subject-matter of great interest, but it is presented in very attractive form. Besides telling of Mr. Moody's work as a preacher and educator, the book gives us glimpses into his home life, describes his co-workers, and also cites a number of tributes paid to his greatness by distinguished Americans and Europeans.

The last four hundred pages are taken up with Mr. Moody's sermons (of which twenty are given), anecdotes, and sayings. The sermons, the best being given in full, are grouped as follows: (1) Sermons on Great Doctrines, (2) To Christian Workers, (3) Bible Portraits. The volume is elegantly printed and bound, and is profusely illustrated.

The author truthfully says of Mr. Moody in the preface: "Neither his common sense, nor his earnestness, nor his love, nor his zeal, nor all combined, will account for his life. There is no explanation except that he was one upon whom the Lord had laid his hand."

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION.

As there have been some rumors about small-pox being in Madison Station, perhaps it would be well for me to state for the benefit of those desiring to attend the Sunday-school Convention, that there has never been a case nearer the place than a mile and a half, and none anywhere around during the past five weeks.

H. G. HAWKINS, Pastor.

Madison, Miss., March 19, 1900.

IN BEHALF OF CUBA.

Bishop Candler writes us that over one hundred persons have responded to Bro. Scarborough's proposal to be one of one thousand to give $30 each for the purpose of buying mission property in Havana. The cash collected from various sources now amounts to about $6,000, and the subscriptions approximate $1,500. The cash represents collections before and since Bro. Scarborough's proposal was made.

It is evident that this great object can be achieved if properly brought to the notice of liberal men and women throughout the land. There are about six thousand followers

A MOVEMENT TO BE WATCHED.

An important movement is to be started in this city. There are sixty parochial schools in Manhattan and the Bronx, attended by more than forty thousand pupils. The schools are maintained by the contributions of Catholics, and they now invite all Christians and Jews to make common cause with them in securing a system of schools which will take in all the children of New York, securing to all secular instruction, yet giving opportunity and time to their religious guides and teachers to do their useful work with them; also so that they may not become clever unbelievers. The Catholics say they do not want help from the State in doing their spiritual work, but only such a plan of secular schooling as will not ignore religion.—New York Advocate.

NOTES.

We had a pleasant call one day last week from Rev. J. J. Kelley, the popular pastor at Slidell, La.

Rev. J. H. Bass writes that he has been kindly received by the good people of Winstonville (Miss.) charge, and that he has a fine field of labor.

We are sorry to learn of the sickness of Rev. T. K. Fannt LeRoy, our faithful pastor at Opelousas. Let the church pray for his speedy recovery.

We regret to learn that "Gilderoy" is down with la grippe. Not before in about forty years, it is said, has he been confined to his room for more than one day at a time.

Says Rev. Thos. J. Upton, writing from Amite City, La.: "We are moving along smoothly, and are being kindly treated by the good people here, and hope to be useful among them."

We are glad to learn that Rev. W. L. Blackwell, pastor on the Leakaville charge, Mississippi Conference, is getting on well in his new field of labor. He is being greeted by excellent congregations, and the people are endeavoring to improve along many lines.

Says the Brookhaven Leader, of last week: "Rev. T. W. Adams' sermon at the Methodist Church, last Sabbath morning, was one of the most helpful and forceful discourses to which we ever listened. Conviction and sincerity seemed to clasp hands over a firm belief that 'all things work together for good to them that love God.' The Methodist Church received three new members on Sunday.'

That zealous worker, Rev. H. M. Ellis, pastor at East End, Meridian, Miss., writes: "Our church is in better shape than it has been since my acquaintance with it began. The Woman's Home Mission Society got a thirty-dollar subscription Sunday to the Twentieth Century Educational Fund, and we had a good day generally. We have large things in prospect for the year, and we expect them to be accomplished this time."

Revival meetings are being held this week at the following churches in this city: Burgundy Street Church, Parker Memorial, and Louisiana Avenue. The pastors are, in the main, doing their own preaching. The meeting at Burgundy Street Church began a week or more ago, and has already resulted in several conversions and accessions to the church. May showers of blessings attend these special efforts for the extension of the Master's kingdom!

A card from Rev. J. A. Bowen, pastor at Columbus, Miss., dated March 14, contains the following interesting news: "To-day, in our Methodist Church, Rev. J. A. Poe, of the North Mississippi Conference, was married to Miss Annie L. McElroy, of Columbus. Dr. Sullivan and I performed the ceremony. This is one of the best-suited couples I ever saw married." We extend hearty congratulations, and wish this fortunate itinerant and his charming bride unalloyed felicity through life.

Bro. and Sister Matthews, of Gretna, La., have recently gone to Covington, La., owing to the sickness of Bro. Matthews. For thirty years, and more, this consecrated layman has been the Sunday-school superintendent of the Methodist Church in Gretna.

Rev. H. H. Ahrens has just closed a meeting at Opelousas, which resulted in a great revival. Bro. Ahrens is a master of the organ and in sacred song. He is at present in Crowley with Rev. Abe Mulkey, assisting Rev. P. R. Knickerbocker. A rice warehouse seating one thousand people has been engaged for the meeting.

Rev. A. J. Notestine, pastor at Zachary, La., writes: "My League made a new idea a pleasant success last Thursday night by holding a 'kitchen social.' After an enjoyable evening with music, games, and refreshments, the guests departed, leaving a very good supply of fine kitchen-ware, which had been needed at the parsonage. My second quarterly meeting was a time of unusual interest and benefit. Bro. Parker preached some searching sermons, and some were deeply stirred. There is promise of a better day at Zachary."

At five o'clock P. M., yesterday, in First Church, Jackson, Miss., Miss Clara Augusta Black, the eldest daughter of the editor of the ADVOCATE, was united in marriage to Mr. James Pugh Turner, formerly of Waynesboro, Miss., but now of Thomasville, Ala. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, a large company being present to witness the glad event. May unbroken sunshine and happiness ever attend this newly-wed couple! The bride and groom left the same evening for Thomasville, where they expect to reside.

Rev. N. B. Harmon sends us the following interesting item from Canton, Miss.: "The ladies of the Epworth League here are going to publish an Easter edition of the Canton Times, and have written to a number of distinguished women for answers to the following questions: '(1) What, in your estimation, is the strongest proof of the divine origin of Christianity? (2) The strongest proof of the resurrection?' The paper will be issued on Saturday before Easter Sunday—April 21. The editors are: Mrs. J. E. Turner, Mrs. Blanche Howell, Miss B. B. Ford, Mrs. Dora C. Cameron, and Mrs. N. B. Harmon." We wish these ladies great success in their undertaking. This special edition of the Times will, we feel sure, prove a splendid advertising medium.

A good sister sends us the following gratifying news from Yazoo City, Miss.: "Our church here is in a very prosperous condition, and the hearts and eyes of our membership will soon rejoice over some needed improvements, one of them being a new carpet. Our Sunday-school is larger, and we are doing better work, I'm sure, than ever before. The recent organization of a large class of young men is what Bro. Lewis calls one of the most 'interesting features' of the work. We have a good class of young ladies, besides Bro. Bennett's Bible class, composed of older folk. Our congregations are always large, and if Bro. Lewis is allowed to 'stay his time out' with us, we don't know but what we shall have to enlarge the seating capacity of our church."

Though new in the presiding eldership, that energetic and capable young itinerant, Rev. J. M. Henry, has taken hold of his work with a vim, and has splendid prospects before him. Under date of March 16, he writes us as follows: "The Delhi district promises well for the year; what the issue will be we must wait and see. All of the pastors are in favor with their people. I have not heard a word of complaint from either preachers or people. About half of the charges have made more liberal allowances for their preachers than last year. We mean to give attention to the Twentieth Century Offering on the second round. The Delhi district will not be in the rear rank when we come to Conference next Fall. Sister McClendon is sick. May she, with our beloved brother, be spared to us for many years! I have secured Bro. H. N. Brown for the Vidalia and Gilbert work. He has made a good beginning."

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION

The citizens of Madison and vicinity give a cordial invitation to all who will come to the Sunday-school Convention, to be held here March 27-29. Each school of the Mississippi Conference is entitled to a delegate, and the larger schools are entitled to a delegate for each hundred members, or fraction thereof. Pastors and superintendents are members. Also Madison will provide entertainment for visitors to the convention. Let me know that you are coming, if you can; but if you do not send your name, come on without warning. Get certificate from your railroad agent that you paid full fare coming.

H. G. HAWKINS.

Madison, Miss., March 27.

Mrs. Ricks, of Yazoo City, is going to erect in that town a $20,000 library building. The Yazoo Sentinel says that it will be the handsomest thing of its kind between Memphis and New Orleans. More than this, it will be the first and only public building in Mississippi erected solely for books. Our State needs to have attraction in the form of libraries, museums, and art galleries. There are in the State many individual students and some persons who appreciate the fine arts, but there is no combined expression of our love for these things. When we begin to honor learning and the fine arts, then will our youth begin to devote themselves to them. If we want poets, painters, sculptors, we must magnify poetry, painting, sculpture.

The dailies tell of a successful crusade against vice that is being waged in New York City. The crusade began with the suppression of the play "Sappho." At Kalamazoo, Mich., on presentation of a petition from twenty citizens, the city council adopted resolutions prohibiting the play, on the ground that the play offends public decency. The play proceeding, in the middle of the first act it was stopped by the police. Two attempts to raise the curtain, but each time the chief of police prohibited.

A special from Meridian to the Times-Democrat, March 13, says:

"The Boards reinstated the special policeman, Col. Thomas P. Brown, who is charged with the duty of suppressing the blind tigers. Under the provisions of the ordinance the special policeman is placed on equal footing with the chief of police himself, having the right and authority to command and direct the movements of the policemen."

On March 27-29 the Mississippi Conference Sunday-school Convention will be in session at Madison Station. If any of the delegates do not know exactly where Madison is, let it be told that it is twelve miles north of Jackson on the Illinois Central railroad. A fire burnt up much of the business portion last year; but those buildings are being replaced with brick structures. Madison has telephone connection with the neighboring towns and villages, and is the center of a great fruit and vegetable growing industry. Entertainment will be provided for all delegates and also all visitors who may attend. Each Sunday-school of the Mississippi Conference is requested to send a delegate, and large schools are entitled to one delegate for each one hundred members, or fraction thereof.

The officers of the State League Conference are bestirring themselves to make the annual gathering at Vicksburg, the first days of May, a great and useful meeting.

We are glad to hear that the Columbus District League Conference was such a fine success. We have received, too, a copy of the program of the Winona District League Conference, held at Carrollton, March 14. It seems that the North Mississippi Conference Leaguers are more industrious than those of the Mississippi Conference. The report of their Epworth League Board, made at Greenwood, was more aggressive than that adopted by the Mississippi Conference at Vicksburg.

Annie Estelle Boothe, of Sardis, Miss., State Junior Epworth League superintendent, has addressed a letter to her co-workers, and it has been published, making a folder of several pages. It has valuable directions and suggestions, and ought to do much good. We suppose that the State League Executive Committee had the printing done. We note on the title-page that there are in Mississippi 22 Junior Leagues and 690 members.

Columbus District League Conference.

MR. EDITOR: The Columbus District League has just closed a most profitable session. Papers and talks were practical, and to the point, and much information was gained. The Conference was conducted on the normal plan, and the three departments were most ably managed. Prof. H. A. Hayes had charge of the Devotional Department, and at the close of the business session a model devotional service was held under his leadership. The Charity and Help and Literary Departments were not less interesting.

Rev. R. Witkinson, of Aberdeen, charmed a large audience with an address on "The Twentieth Century Man," and Dr. W. B. Murrah, of Millsaps College, was at his best in an address on "The Twentieth Century Movement."

The Conference was a great success from beginning to finish, and much good was accomplished.

Very truly, ANNE SCALES,
Columbus District League Sec.

Macon, Miss., March 12, 1900.

Contribution to the Famine Sufferers in India.

MR. EDITOR: Enclosed please find ($5) five dollars for the benefit of the India famine district. I take this method of sending it, as I know of no other, and saw the notice of the famine in your paper.

Respectfully,

MRS. E. G. CALHOUN.

Beaumont, Texas, March 7, 1900.

[We shall take pleasure in forwarding the contribution sent by this kind-hearted sister to the authorities who are engaged in relieving the famine-sufferers.]

A CORRECTION.

MR. EDITOR: In justice to the charge, I wish to make the following correction: The Minutes of our Conference show that the Vossburg and Heidelburg charge, assessed $1,080, paid $887.56 for the support of the ministry. It should be: assessed, $855; paid, $887.50. I don't think I made that mistake in my report, though I want it corrected, whether the mistake was made by myself or the man who edited the Minutes.

A FRATERNAL REQUEST.

To the Mississippi Conference and Members of the M. E. Church, South:

We have been sent to a third charge without a parsonage or furniture.

The building of parsonages on these mission fields is proving disastrous to us, financially.

The parsonage built last year on Porterville circuit is valued at $500, while the pastor, with a family of seven, was paid $224.70.

We have had one set of furniture destroyed by moving, and now we must pay for and burn on account of small-pox part of the furniture bought for the Porterville circuit, which it failed to pay for.

I do not believe the Mississippi Conference is willing to permit a man's family to be thus crippled.

Now, brethren, these parsonages and our furniture are being used in your service, and if any of you feel interested enough to make a willing offering to relieve the situation, and enable us to go on with our work, please send your contributions quickly to me at Porterville.

We have been practically shut in since Dec. 15 by unintermitted sickness in family, including measles and small-pox.

Your brother,

ROBERT L. PHILLIPS.

WONDERFUL CURES BY SWAMP-ROOT.

TO PROVE WHAT THIS FAMOUS NEW DISCOVERY WILL DO FOR YOU, EVERY READER OF NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" MAY HAVE A SAMPLE BOTTLE SENT ABSOLUTELY FREE BY MAIL.

65th Police Precinct, Greater New York.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Nov. 11th, 1899.

Gentlemen:

In justice to you, I feel it my duty to send you an acknowledgment of the receipt of the sample bottle of Swamp-Root remedy you so kindly sent me. I had been out of health for the past five years with kidney and bladder trouble. Our best physicians prescribed for me. They would relieve me for the time being, but the old complaint would in a short time return again. I sent for a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and I found it did me a world of good. Since then I have taken eight small bottles purchased of my druggist and I consider myself perfectly cured. I do not have to get up during the night to urinate as I formerly did, three or four times a night, but now sleep the sleep of peace. My back is all right again, and in every way I am a new man. Two of my brother officers are still using Swamp-Root. They, like myself, cannot say too much in praise of it. It is a boon to mankind. We recommend it to all humanity who are suffering from kidney and bladder diseases.

My brother officers (whose signatures accompany this letter) as well as myself, thank you for the blessing you have brought to the human race in the compounding of Swamp-Root. We remain, Yours very truly, JAMES COOK
HUGH E. BOYLE
JOHN J. BODKIN

Officers of the 65th Police Precinct, Greater New York.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp Root investigated by the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE," the one which we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

So when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince you—and you may have a sample bottle free for the asking.

When your kidneys are not doing their work, some of the symptoms which prove it to you are pain or dull ache in the back, excess of uric acid, gravel, rheumatic pains, sediment in the urine, scanty supply, scalding irritation in passing it, obliged to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night to empty the bladder; sleeplessness, nervous irritability, dizziness, irregular heart, breathlessness, sallow, unhealthy complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes the feet, limbs or body bloat, loss of ambition, general weakness and debility.

Swamp Root is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by skillful physicians in their private practice; and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

To prove its wonderful curative properties, send your name and address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., when you will receive, free of all charge, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a valuable book by mail prepaid. This book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of this world-famous kidney remedy. Swamp-Root is so remarkably successful that our readers are advised to write for a free sample bottle and to be sure and mention reading this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

DON'T LOOK FOR FLAWS.

Don't look for flaws as you go through life;
And even when you find them
It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind,
And look for the virtue behind them,
For the cloudiest night has a hint of the light
Somewhere in its shadows hiding;
It is better by far to hunt for a star
Than the spots on the sun abiding.

The current of life runs ever away
To the bosom of God's great ocean;
Don't set your force 'gainst the river's course
And think to alter its motion.
Don't waste a curse on the universe—
Remember it lived before you.
Don't hurl at the storm with your puny form,
But bend and let it fly o'er you.

The world will never adjust itself
To suit your whim to the letter;
Some things must go wrong your whole life long,
And the sooner you know it the better.
It is folly to fight with the Infinite,
And go under at last in the wrestle.
The wiser man shapes into God's great plan
As the water shapes into the vessel.

FAMILY MANNERS.

Our manners in the family are very apt to be the sincere expressions, as they are the unconscious revelations, of our prevailing and dominant states of mind. Character is indicated by the tricks of speech and of gesture, the tones of voice, the politeness or the rudeness of daily deportment, and by a hundred small things which are automatic; things of which we take no note, perhaps of which we are quite unaware. Just as a habitually gentle and controlled person has a quiet and serene face, and as a tempestuous and unrestrained nature writes its record on the countenance, so the manners of a family set it apart as well bred or the reverse, and the family air stamps each individual of the clan.

When the overwrought and overtired mother scolds her fractious child, allowing her fretfulness to sharpen her accents and speaking with the stormy emphasis of anger, she does not mean permanently to influence her little one's manner, but she is doing so nevertheless. The child grows querulous, reflecting the nervous susceptibility to strain which makes the mother unamiable. Placidity, serenity, a tranquil calm of strength and sweetness in combination seem to have vanished from many homes wherein people are hurried and worried, distraught and careladen.

Family manners, apart from the relation of parents and children, which imply a reciprocal consideration, are apt to suffer from too much candor. We speak with great plainness in the circle of our own kindred; we comment too freely on foibles; we express the contrary opinion too readily and with too little courtesy. A slight infusion of formality never harms social intercourse, either in the family or elsewhere.

Beyond this too common mistake of an over-bluntness and brusque freedom in the manners of a household, in some of our homes there is a greater fault, even a lack of demonstration. There is the deepest, sincerest love in the home; the brothers and sisters would cheerfully die for one another if so great a sacrifice were demanded, but the love is locked behind a barrier of reserve. Caresses are infrequent, words of affection are seldom spoken. It may be urged with truth and some show of reason that in the very homes where this absence of demonstration is most marked there is complete mutual understanding and no possibility of doubt or misgiving, and, so far as it goes, this is well. But often young hearts long unspeakably for some gentle sign of love's presence—the lingering touch of a tender hand on the head, the good-night kiss, the word of praise, the recognition of affection. Older hearts, too, are sometimes empty, and many of us, younger and older, are kept on short rations all our lives, when our right, on our Father's road to our Father's house, is to be fed with the finest of wheat, and enough of it, just as those who ate manna in the wilderness had always an entire provision, not a stinted supply.

Another suggestion which should not be overlooked is the importance of politeness to the little ones. To snub a small laddie needlessly, to order about a child on errands here and there, instead of civilly preferring a request as one does to an older person, in each case is an invasion of the rights of childhood. The child to whom everybody practices politeness will in turn be himself ready to oblige and agreeable in manner, for the stamp of the family is as plainly to be seen on everyone as the stamp of the mint on the coin, and it is as indelible for time, and why not also for eternity?—Margaret E. Sangster, in The Young Woman.

"IF YOU LOVE ME, TELL ME SO."

There is a pretty story told concerning the late Dr. Dale. He was traveling, I think, in the colonies. Speaking on one occasion of the relation of a pastor to his congregation, and pleading for a freer reciprocity of feeling between them, he said that he often felt inclined to say to his own people: "If you love me, tell me so." The little speech reached England sooner than did the speaker, and when some months later the doctor entered the hall in Birmingham in which a "welcome home" had been arranged for him, almost the first object that met his eyes was a large scroll across one end of the building: "We love you, and we tell you so."

"If you love me, tell me so"—it is what multitudes are asking. Do not say it is a mean or vulgar desire; it is the cry of parched souls that are thirsting for love and sympathy. And perhaps there are none who utter that cry so often in the silence as our fathers and mothers. Let us love them, and let us learn to tell them so. Cultivate a free and spontaneous expression of your love. Mr. Barrie tells us that, reticent as the Scot may be outside his own home—in fact, "a house with all the shutters closed and the door locked"—once at home he is self-revealing in the superlative degree, and the feelings so long dammed up overflow; he has not more to give than his neighbors, but it is bestowed upon a few instead of being distributed among many; he is reputed niggardly; but for family affection, at least, he pays in gold.

Perhaps this is true of more homes than we think. Nevertheless, it is an undoubted fact that in England and Scotland alike we are too much ashamed of the signs of emotion, till often, for lack of demonstrativeness, the feelings themselves are starved. I have never once—if I may speak for myself—reproached myself that I have spoken too freely, but a hundred times I have done so because the gratitude, the love, the regret that were at the heart did not find the right word in which to utter themselves; and the opportunity passed and the word was never spoken.—Selected.

A STATESMAN'S SABBATH.

When John Quincy Adams was minister to the Court of Holland he joined a society of learned men, who met once a week for mutual improvement. Mr. Adams, though one of the youngest members, soon became a great favorite; his finely-trained mind and delightful conversation won him many friends, and receiving as much enjoyment as he gave, he was always punctually present.

On one occasion, however, so the story runs, the meeting was adjourned to Sabbath evening. Mr. Adams was not there. It was appointed on the next Sabbath evening. Mr. Adams was not there. His fellow-members noticed and regretted his absence. On the third Sabbath evening it met, Mr. Adams' chair was still vacant. Many were surprised that he who was formerly so prompt and punctual should thus suddenly break off. How did it happen? The press of business, it was supposed, kept him away.

At last the meetings were returned to a week-day evening, and lo! there was Mr. Adams in his place, brilliant and delightful as ever. The members welcomed him back, and expressed their sorrow that press of business, or the duties of his office, should so long have deprived them of his company. Did he let that go as the reason?

"Not business engagements hindered me," replied he; "you met on the Lord's Day; that is a day devoted to religious uses by me."—Selected.

UNDISTURBED BY DEATH.

When John Quincy Adams was eighty years old he met in the streets of Boston an old friend, who shook his trembling hand, and said: "Good morning, and how is John Quincy Adams to-day?"

"Thank you," was the ex-President's answer, "John Quincy Adams himself is well, sir; quite well, I thank you. But the house in which he lives at present is becoming dilapidated. It is tottering upon its foundation. Time and the seasons have nearly destroyed it. Its roof is pretty well worn out. Its walls are almost shattered, and it trembles with every wind. The old tenement is becoming almost uninhabitable, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out of it soon; but he himself is quite well, sir; quite well."

With that the venerable sixth President of the United States moved on with the aid of his staff.

It was not long afterwards that he had his second and fatal stroke of paralysis in the Capitol at Washington.

"This is the last of this earth," he said. "I am content."—Christian Endeavor World.

TAYLOR—Mrs. SUSAN E. TAYLOR (nee Turner) was born Dec. 15 1838, and died the "death of the righteous" Nov. 8, 1899. She was happily married, Dec. 2, 1858, to Mr. Swepson T. Taylor, who preceded her only a few years to their home above, "where their full hearts melt and flow in heaven's dissolving rays."

Sister Taylor joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and in "Her sweet communion, solemn vows,

Her hymns of love and praise,"

she was actively employed until the day in which she heard that "still, small voice" saying, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." She reared a large family of children, and her devotion to them was transcendently beautiful. She lived to impress them with her great desire to have them share with her the communion of her church, the peace of her divine Lord, and the felicity of her heavenly home. Her heart being anchored to the throne by the faith of the gospel, her life was invested with a lustrous purity as touching as it was holy. Her calm and serene faith, her gentle and impressive sympathy, her inimitable cheerfulness under affliction, and her disinterested thoughtfulness of others ('or she seemed to live for others), made her life an undying inspiration to all who came within the circle of its influence. The last few years of her earthly life were made memorable by affliction. A stroke of paralysis took from her the power of speech and the use of one hand, but it did not estrange her from her "loved employ" of helping those who were in need. Frequently, without any solicitation, she made valuable contributions to various benevolent causes. Truly we may say a mother in Israel has fallen, and her "works do follow her." As she retired gracefully from the scene of her labors of love and its fulness to rest in the bosom of our Father, we could not help but feel that "her dear touch has stamped a value on toil, and hallowed all within our homes." "Why weep we, then, for her who, having won the bound of man's appointed years, at last, life's blessings all enjoyed, life's labors done, serenely to her final rest has passed, while the soft memory of her virtues yet lingers, like twilight hues, when the bright sun is set?"

To the bereaved family we tender our deepest sympathy, and pray that her beautiful life may be remembered and imitated by each one. J. T. LIGGETT.

WHITE—Mrs. JANE E. WHITE was born Oct. 18, 1833 and died Feb. 13, 1900.

These dates truly mark the life of one of the best women I ever knew. It is always sad to come face to face with death, come when it will, and to whom it may. This visit of the dark angel is a personal grief to myself as well as to the members of the stricken family.

Five years ago, when I was made pastor of the Simsport circuit, Mrs. White was one among the first with whom I became acquainted. I was impressed with her pure, godly life, and through the four years that I was her pastor she was a faithful and true friend; and as I learned more and more of her, I grew to respect and admire her more. She was verily a womanly woman, of that noble type produced by the Southland, and for which the Sunny South has been famous for a century. Unobtrusive and modest, refined and gentle, she was a veritable queen of the home circle. She was a model mother. With seven or eight sons and daughters, rearing them to men and womanhood, the perfection of her motherhood is seen in the children she has trained for the church and the country.

I have had many talks with Sister White. She loved to talk about heaven and the glorious reward awaiting the faithful. Many times have I seen her dry the flowing tear. I never felt nearer to God and better prepared to do my pastoral duties after talking with her. The last book she read was one on heaven. She was taken in a few days with pneumonia, and died in five short days. She suffered intense pain, but without a murmur. Her son writes me, "Mother died praising the Lord." She heard the angels singing several hours before the end. She said, "They do not sing like we do," and with the words, "All is well," breathed her sainted spirit away.

Thank God we have hope of meeting her one sweet day. God bless and comfort the sorrowing ones. W. T. WOODWARD.

GATHINGS—Mrs. MARY LESLIE GATHINGS, daughter of Mr. John and Mrs. Winnie Williams, was born in Green county, Ala., March 29, 1826, and died at Prairie, Monroe county, Miss., Feb. 6, 1900. In March, 1846, she was married to Mr. S. D. Cullon, and moved to Aberdeen, Miss. Several years later, her first husband having died, she was married to Mr. J. M. Gathings, of Monroe county, Miss. When quite a child her father pronounced her a born Methodist. The date of her conversion and of her uniting with the church are not known. She was for many years a zealous member of the Southern Methodist Church at Prairie, Miss., and every good cause found in her a friend. She was a veritable "mother in Israel," in whose hospitable Christian home the preacher and his family always received a cordial welcome. Ten or twelve of her immediate family are members either of the adult or juvenile missionary societies, and are left to carry on the good work her weary hands have laid aside. Besides her husband, she left five children and a brother and sister to mourn her loss. A saintly woman has passed to her reward.

"Oh, it is hard to say 'Good-bye,'
No more on earth to meet;
But may we meet beyond the sky,
In heaven's homo so sweet."

Resolutions adopted by the "M. L. Paine" Missionary Society, of Prairie, Miss.:

Whereas, On Tuesday, Feb. 6, death removed from us our oldest and most highly esteemed fellow-member, Mrs. Mary L. Gathings, who was a devoted Christian, a kind neighbor, a true friend, a liberal supporter of the institutions of the church, and a zealous worker in the missionary cause; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we bow in reverent submission to the will of Him whose ways are above all others, and who is too wise to err, we recognize that in the death of Sister Gathings our church and community, and, above all, our missionary society, of which she had been made the first life member, sustain an irreparable loss.

Resolved, That while our hearts are filled with sorrow over the removal of this dear fellow-worker from us, yet we are comforted by the realization that she has been translated to the home above.

Resolved, That her noble life will ever be held in fond remembrance, and that we will faithfully cultivate the good missionary seed sown by her sister until they blossom and bear abundant fruit.

Resolved, That to the bereaved husband, children and relatives we tender our deepest sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the distressed family, and also to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE for publication.

STEVENS—In their parsonage home in Lake, Miss., Thursday morning, Feb. 1, 1900 Bro. and Sister W. M. Stevens were called upon to give up their baby boy, JAMES AUGUSTUS, who stayed with them one year six months and one day, and then went to join his twin brother, David Newton, who died when only three months old. Both of the little bodies were brought to Magnolia and laid away in the same grave, while many friends and relatives stood by weeping.

The length of human life is not always the measure of its fulness, nor its brevity an evidence that its mission is ended. The coming of a little child into the home gladdens, refines, and elevates. The buried body, the mossy mound opens the fountains of sympathy, and the soul goes into eternity often draws the thoughts and affections thitherward as naught else can.

May the consolation of our dear brother and sister be greater than their anguish! May the gospel we preach prove sufficient!

FRANK M. KERN.

PRICE—Little EMMIT SMITH PRICE, son of T. B. and M. A. Price, was born in Liberty Church neighborhood, Lafayette county, Miss., May 5 1897, and died Jan. 18, 1900.

"Little Emmit" was a bright, promising child, jolly and playful, yet a little more serious than children usually are. While he is greatly missed by fond parents, loving brothers and sisters, and many relatives and friends, yet it is a source of rejoicing that the Master said, "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Little Emmit has gone to the home of saints and angels, where cherubs are safe for evermore. One by one we are crossing the river. Some sweet day we trust all will safely reach that home where partings are no more.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Power in prayer may be acquired by a wise and reverent use of the means which purify and strengthen the convictions and emotions from which it springs. Desire, submission to God's will, and faith, are integral elements of genuine prayer. All these may be cultivated, and its efficacy thereby increased.—Exchange.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Stated seasons of quiet and retirement are demanded for the nurturing of the spiritual nature. It is in such times that we realize the littleness of the feats and annoyances of the way, and are with fresh incentives for holy duty.—J. R. MacDuff

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is without an equal for swiftness to cure.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to March, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

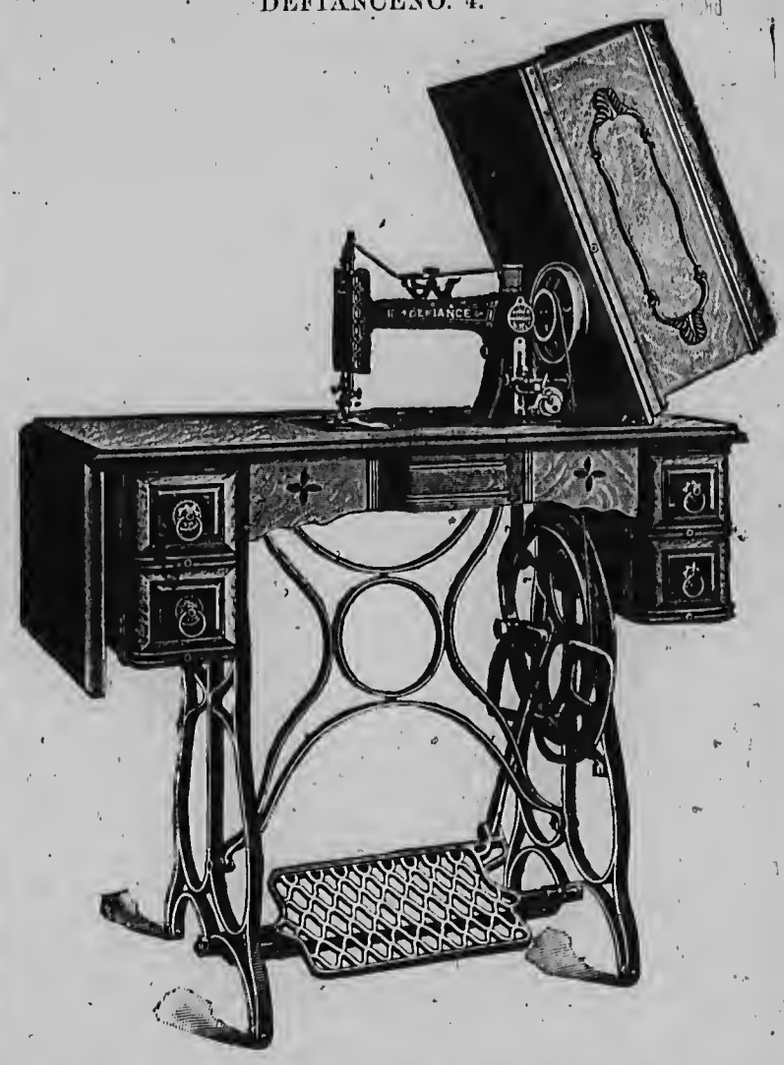
For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.



The Defiance Machine is the perfection of simplicity, durability, speed, strength and ease of operation.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

The Arm is large and roomy, 8x5½ inches in the clear.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The Needle is absolutely self-setting. No screwdriver is required in setting, a winged thumb nut being used instead.

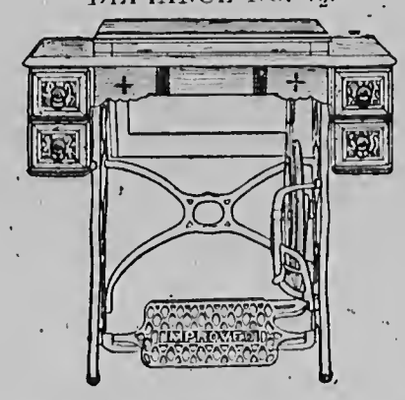
The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbins without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stoppage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on a spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Bradley (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter Additional Accessories. Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, Cloth Guage and Thumb-screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.



This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34 Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

No. 7½ Machine, Drop head cabinet, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $38. Our price, $23.

All the woodwork is of the best quality, either Light Antique or Golden Oak Finish. For Walnut Woodwork add $2 to above list prices.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

NO crop can grow without Potash. Every blade of Grass, every grain of Corn, all Fruits and Vegetables must have it. If enough is supplied you can count on a full crop—if too little, the growth will be "scrubby."

Send for our books telling all about composition of fertilizers best adapted for all crops. They cost you nothing.

At the Capitol.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, the disease assuming a more severe and dangerous forms. I became very weak, and lost flesh rapidly, I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I gained twelve pounds in three months. My strength and health, my appetite and my digestion were perfectly restored, and now I feel as young and vigorous as I ever did in my life.

The Sweet Toned Steel-Alloy Bells.

The C. S. Bell Co., Hillsboro, Ohio, one of the largest American bell-founding concerns, have built up a great reputation upon their casting formula, a mixture of pure steel with the well-known Crystal Metal mixture. Their bells have a beautiful, clear tone, perfect pitch, and are much stronger than the ordinary bell. Though the quality is high, the prices are very low, there having been no advance in their price list, though materials have steadily appreciated in value for several months. The Bell Company gives a substantial donation to churches buying their bells and send, free, subscription lists to be used in the congregation or community in collecting the purchase price. All their bells are fully warranted and thirty days' trial allowed if desired. If any of our readers want a bell for any purpose, the Bell Company will send, postpaid, their large illustrated catalogue.

THE LIFE OF MOODY.

The Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., of New York, is engaged in writing the life of D. L. Moody for John C. Winston & Co., Philadelphia. Dr. Chapman was one of Mr Moody's most intimate friends, and was closely associated with him in his evangelistic work. He is Vice-President of the Bible Institute of Chicago, of which Mr Moody was President, and desires that this Institution shall receive a share of the profits from the sale of this book. The publishers promise that the work shall be profusely illustrated. It will also contain an introduction by the Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Christ Church, London, and personal reminiscences from others who were intimately associated with Mr Moody in his work.

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

The March number of the Critic has as a frontispiece a double-page portrait in color of Mark Twain, by Everett Shinn. The usual interesting literary notes by the editors are well worth perusal. Among the more important articles may be found: Some Treasures of the Daly Library, by Carolyn Shipman; Two Glimpses of Blackmore, by Henry T. Bailey; John Ruskin (illustrated), by Roger Riordan; Behind the Scenes at Ben Hur, by W. W. Ellsworth.

The Forum, for March, contains its usual array of interesting articles. Among the twelve papers to be found in this number are Government Deposits in Banks, by George E. Roberts, director of the United States Mint. Mr. Henry O. Dwight discusses Our Muhammedan Wards; George F. Becker, United States Geologist, portrays Rights and Wrongs in South Africa; F. Cunliffe-Owen writes entertainingly of Englishmen in the United States; William Ordway Partridge, the celebrated sculptor-author, contributes an article on The True Relation of Sculpture to Architecture; Ho Yow, Chinese Consul-General to the United States, gives his views concerning Western Benefits through China's Development; and Prof. W. P. Trent furnishes a review of Mr. Stephen Phillips' Play.

Prof. N. S. Shaler, dean of the scientific department at Harvard, contributes the leading article in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly, for March. Nelson P. Lewis, engineer of highways for the Borough of Brooklyn, is the author of an illustrated article entitled, Modern City Roadways. The much-discussed question of the typical criminal is taken up by the Rev. S. G. Smith, LL.D., chaplain of the Minnesota State Prison, and dealt with from the "common-sense" point of view. A series of photographs adds much to the clearness of the article. Prof. Joseph Le Conte's valuable papers, giving a history of the geology of the century, are concluded in this number. The final article in the series, What Makes the Trolley Car Go? by William Baxter, Jr., appears in this number. Prof. E. P. Evans is the author of a very interesting paper entitled, A Survival of Mediæval Credulity, which brings to light a most surprising state of superstition and almost barbarism which exists to-day among some of the peasants and priests in certain portions of Europe.

From the beginning of the Spanish war to the present the total expenditures on account of that war and the hostilities in the Philippines amount to about $355,000,000, as follows: On account of the War Department, $255,000,000; on account of the Navy Department, $69,000,000; paid to Spain for the Philippines, $20,000,000; interest on war loan to date, $9,000,000. Increased expenses in departmental service in Washington, $2,000,000.—Exchange.

A godly man's comforts and grievances are all hid from the world.—Sibbs.

What to Read.

Do you read the leading monthly Magazines, are you a lover of books, do you care to be posted on literary matters?

An up-to-date idea is the "Magazine Circle." Members having the privilege of reading eight of their favorite Magazines each month at about the expense of one. This is the 20th Century. The World is moving rapidly. To keep up you must be in touch with Progress. The thoughts of great men are portrayed in the leading monthlies. The "Magazine Circle" supplies just what you require.

Over one hundred thousand ambitious men and women throughout the United States are already enjoying these benefits. The cream of current literature is obtained at so trifling an expense in no other manner.

A "Magazine Circle" should be organized in every church, society, club, community and neighborhood interested in literature and self culture. Some Towns have several "Magazine Circles" running successfully. The plan is endorsed by clergymen, doctors, lawyers, teachers, professional and business people everywhere.

Our booklet "Magazine Circles and How to Organize," will be mailed to any address upon request, Address,

Geikie's Life of Christ AND Sheldon's "In His Steps,"
TO BE HAD WITHOUT COST.

You can get these two great books free by sending a year's subscription to The Atlanta Semi-Weekly Journal. If you prefer Farrar's "Life of Christ" to Geikie's, you can have that, but Geikie's is the one most studied.

During this season, when the whole world is studying the life of Christ in the Sunday school lessons, Geikie's great book will be of incalculable value. It is a monumental work of 800 pages, which brings before the reader a complete picture of the life and times, manners and customs of the Holy Land in the days of the Messiah.

Mr. Sheldon's books are more widely read than those of any man in America. If you have read "In His Steps," you can have "The Crucifixion of Philip Strong" or "Robert Hardy's Seven Days."

The Semi-Weekly Journal gives the news of the world twice a week for one dollar a year and has the best agricultural page in the south, edited by specialists in farming, horticulture and live stock, dairying and poultry. It has fine home, juvenile and book departments, with many eminent contributors, including Sam Jones, Mrs. W. H. Felton, John Temple Graves, P. J. Berckmans, C. H. Jordan, B. W. Hunt and other well known writers.

You cannot find a better investment for a dollar than The Journal, and with it you get two great books freee.

FAITH, HOPE, AND CHARITY.

I. CORINTHIANS XIII, 13.

ere are three lessons I would write;
hree words as with a burning pen, tracing of eternal light
pon the hearts of men.

ve hope. Though clouds environ now, nd gladness hides her face in scorn,
t thou the shadow from thy brow,
o night but hath its morn.

ve faith. Where'er thy bark is driven,
The calm's disport, the tempest's mirth,
ow this—God rules the hosts of heaven,
The inhabitants of earth.

ve love. Not love alone for one,
ut men, as men, thy brothers call,
d scatter, like the circling sun,
hy charities on all.

us gave these lessons on thy soul—
Hope, Faith, and Love—and thou shalt find rength when life's surges rudest roll,
Light when thou else wert blind."

A VISIT TO CENTENARY COLLEGE.

MR. EDITOR: On Tuesday last I t the city, in company with the siding elder of the New Orleans strict, Dr. S. S. Keener, and visited ntenary College of Louisiana. returned on Wednesday. For-nately for us, the weather was ar and bracing. As I had not the college for the last two rs, you can imagine what a sure it was to me to view all that transpired in my absence, and can make all due allowance for extravagance in this account of visit.

Two years ago there were 56 dents on the roll; now there are 6. Two years ago the buildings re in a sad plight, the centre lding needing repairs inside and t, both roof, walls, and chapel; the iron chains in the walls, and extensive and beautiful ceiling the chapel and of every room, and rway, meet the eye, and give dence of the wise, tasteful, and ul labor of President Cooper, had charge of the entire work. o years ago there were two pro rs' buildings connected with the ege; now there are five, and two these are new and elegant modern ctures inside of the campus. o years ago the fences and unds of the large campus were, y say, out of doors; cattle and elers had free access to the cam , and even to the buildings of the t and west wings. The galleries, rs, ceilings, windows and doors these wings were out of repair, they were almost uninhabitable; columns were chipped and pidated; now these structures repaired. Their long lines of ty columns each add greatly the imposing beauty of the ex ive front of the college. The y double facade of the centre ding, with its twelve 60-feet mns and bases, is now as perfect it was the first year after its inal completion.

he president drove us over the unds—outside of the extensive ours of the college, some 68 s. All the undergrowth had n cleaned up, and the growth of , willow, oak and magnolia s, in their early Spring-life, were ring to one who delights in the sty of the native forest. The s for the classes of the institu- had been greatly enlarged; the ngement for kitchen and restau- were on an extensive scale, and cient to provide for many ents. In fact, when I saw the kitchen and the large cooking e, big enough for an Atlantic ner, and the two experienced standing by, my wonder and iration culminated—the half had been told me. It was the der, of bringing Aladdin's lamp ar upon Centenary College, that lived to see.

l that is needed is, Mr. Editor, you and the public should see at see it. We now have the imposing and permanent col- in the Southwest; out of debt, with a venerable and honorable prestige—one where, for seventy-five years, first the State of Louisiana, and then the Methodist Southern Church, have upheld the interests of education. Judge McGehee and Mr. Edward J. Gay may be mentioned among its many friends and patrons as the two to whose generosity it has been most indebted. The ministers of Mississippi and Louisiana, they and their sons, have here reaped the fruit of those godly and noble spirits that long ago laid the foundation of this college in their gifts and prayers.

We have a faculty of seven pro fessors; all graduates; men of more than ordinary ability in their several departments; Methodist men of cul tivation and genius, of industry and prayer. It was to me a great pleas ure to be with them at the morning roll-call, and to see such a number of young men, the hope and wealth of our church in this Southwest land.

Dr. Cooper, the president, has been the inspiration of all this sud den and great success. He is ca pable of large conception and minute detail. We waited long for him, and now rejoice in his presence as the man for the place. In the gifts of the twentieth century we expect our people to specify Centenary College by name. Very truly yours,

J. C. KEENER,
President of the Bd. of Trustees of Centenary.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Representative Gront, of Vermont, president of the society, presided over the sixty-eighth annual meeting of the Congressional Temperance So ciety, which was held in the Luther Place Memorial Church, and which also commemorated the ninety-sixth birthday anniversary of Neal Dow, the father of statutory prohibition in the United States. Representative Littlefield, of Maine, the gentleman who has made a reputation in a sin gle session of Congress as one of the ablest constitutional lawyers in pub lic life, followed Rev. F. D. Power, the secretary, who spoke on Neal Dow and his life-long fight for tem perance, with a manly address in favor of prohibition, in which he said: "I believe in total abstinence, and practice what I preach. I be lieve in prohibition, and I am always willing to enlist in its cause. There is no good American citizen but be lieves the liquor traffic must in some way be regulated or prohibited, but there is a wide difference in opinion as to the best methods to be pursued. Some believe in moral suasion, and some believe in legal suasion. I am a believer in legal suasion. I have seen its operation in my native State, and I know it succeeds. It is not sufficient for those who oppose the Maine method to point out what liquor is yet sold in Maine. We ad mit that it is. But because the laws against murder and theft do not ab solutely prevent the commission of those crimes, would you set aside the laws? The laws are good; they re duce crime to the minimum and pun ish the criminals. That is just what the Maine prohibition laws do, and whenever they are honestly adminis tered, they are unqualifiedly a suc cess." Representative Lloyd, of Mis souri, said: "If every man who be lieves in temperance will abstain from the use of liquor, and will pre vail upon his friends and neighbors to do likewise, the question will eventually solve itself." Represent ative Talbert, of South Carolina, de clared that the dispensary law of his State had proven to be a healthful regulation of the liquor traffic, and crime and drunkenness had wonder fully decreased under its operation. Representative Greene, of Massachu setts, said stringent license laws and their rigid enforcement had decreased the number of saloons in his State, and Representative Dahle, of Wis consin, said there had been a most remarkable decrease in drunkenness among the Norwegians of his State during the present generation; that there was not one drunkard to-day among them where there were ten a few years ago. Mr. Gront was unan imously elected president of the soci ety for the coming year, and Rev. F. D. Power, secretary, and a number of Senators and Representatives, and Secretary Long, were elected vice presidents.

Misleading statements have been published during the week as to the reason the Navy Department ordered a warship to be sent from Manila to a Chinese port. The action was taken at the request of the United States Minister to China, not because there had been any attack upon American missionaries, but because the United States Minister thought the presence of the American war vessel would have a good effect upon the "Boxers," one of the most numer one and most turbulent of the anti-foreigner secret societies, and would be likely to prevent any attack upon the persons or property of American missionaries.

An attempt to secure legislation from Congress giving the Commis sioner of Indian Affairs authority to compel the Indian children on the reservation in Iowa occupied by the remnants of the once powerful Sacs and Foxes has drawn public attention to a state of affairs on that reserva tion that is a disgrace to civilization. These Indians own their land and live in the most primitive fashion. They have refused to allow either school or church to be built upon the reservation, and have given scant courtesy to missionaries sent to them by various churches. Miss Estelle Reel, superintendent of Indian schools, who has just returned from a visit to them, says in her report: "The Iowa Sac and Fox School was erected upon land purchased by act of Congress, and was primarily in tended for the benefit of Indians of this reservation. The school is lo cated about five miles from the res ervation proper. It is an excellently well-equipped plant for from 75 to 100 pupils, and was opened last year, the average attendance for the past year being thirty pupils. The Indi ans of this reservation have been and are still bitterly opposed to the edu cation of their children, and although this reservation is situated in sight, practically, of two of the most thriv ing towns in the State of Iowa, they are said to be in as primitive a con dition as when Columbus landed in the Western world. The agent and superintendent have made most vig orous efforts for the past year and a half, or two years, to overcome this bitter prejudice, and had at one time as many as fifty pupils enrolled. A recent decision of a Federal judge says that this school is not on an Indian reservation, and, therefore, under the law, as at present existing, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs can not force these children into school." The legislation proposed authorizes the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to place every healthy child on the Sac and Fox reservation of Iowa in the school established for their benefit. The principal objec tion the Indians have raised is that their children will be taught to work if they send them to school.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CANVASS IN THE BATON ROUGE DISTRICT.

Hon. I. D. Wall and Rev. Harry W. Rickey have been appointed to serve with the presiding elder as a commit tee to canvass the Baton Rouge dis trict in behalf of the Twentieth Cen tury Thank-offering. Mr. Wall will act as treasurer for the district com mittee, and will attend to receiving and forwarding all collections. Re mittance should be made to him by all preachers in the district by check, postoffice order, or express order. No exchange will be charged in collect ing these remittances. In case of special direction being given to any offerings, let this be clearly stated. Correspondence should be addressed to Rev. F. S. Parker, Jackson, La.; remittances to Hon. I. D. Wall, Clin ton, La.

It is desired to make a vigorous canvass of the whole district within the next three months. A series of mass meetings is being arranged to cover as nearly as possible the terri tory. The co-operation of preachers and people in advertising and work ing up these meetings is earnestly solicited. Speakers will be appointed to present the great interests in volved, and subscriptions will be opened at each meeting. Credit will be given each pastoral charge for subscriptions made at the meetings within its bounds.

July 15 has been appointed for the Twentieth Century Offering Day, and on that day it is expected that the program prepared by the Board of Education for the thank-offering serv ice will be used in every pastoral charge in the district. It is desired, as far as possible, to complete the subscriptions on Twentieth Century Day in every pastoral charge. On circuits the Sundays succeeding will be used consecutively until the sub ject has been presented to every so ciety upon the several circuits. These meetings on and following July 15 are to be conducted by the pastors, as it will be impossible for the assisting speakers to be present at more than a small number of places. Where mass meetings have been held it may not be necessary to reopen the sub scription on Twentieth Century Day, but in most cases the subscriptions will not have been completed even where meetings have been held, and it is desirable that the thank-offering be pressed to a successful conclusion, so that on this day there be recorded a subscription opposite every name on the rolls of the churches within the district. Whatever deficiency may remain is to be made up by per sonal solicitation by the pastors in all charges as soon as possible after Twentieth Century Day. Of course, any pastors who desire to open their subscriptions earlier are at liberty to do so. It is hoped, indeed, that there will be a general movement at once; but let no work fail to have as nearly as possible a complete subscription on July 15, at latest.

The committee desire that each pastor send in the names and ad dresses of all members of his charge who will be likely to read the New Century Education, if sent to him. The paper will be sent, and the com mittee will look to the pastor to col lect the subscription price of ten cents. Send in the names at once.

Literature will be sent out for dis tribution. Let the pastors see to its immediate use among the people. Don't put it aside for a convenient time. The convenient time is rapidly slipping away. The work of educat ing in the idea of the movement must be done at once. You have no more important work, no farther-reaching interest, than this.

If any pastor has not a Twentieth Century Roll-book for making up his subscription list, let him write me, and it will be sent him.

Let each pastor report at once to the committee what has been done on his work thus far, so that we may know where we stand, and may pub lish for the encouragement or stimu lation of others our results, or, it may be, see more clearly the neces sity of bestirring ourselves.

The Thank-offering programs will be furnished at twenty-five cents a hundred by Barbee & Smith. Let each pastor procure a supply, to be used on the appointed day, or earlier. Let no pastoral charge, no church on any circuit, fail to observe a Thank offering Day. Careful preparation and full information will insure suc cess when the subscriptions are opened.

It is hoped that the whole subject will be explained fully to every con gregation at the earliest opportunity. Don't await the time for a formal presentation of the subject in sermon or address. Make a beginning now, so that the idea may have time to work; so that gratitude and obliga tion may begin to move.

Selections.

THE GREAT THANK-OFFERING.

The Twentieth Century Movement is assuming such proportions in all branches of Methodism in Europe and America and the mission fields as has never characterized any other in the history of that church.

The amounts proposed as a thank offering by seven of the leading branches of Methodism are as fol lows:

Methodist Episcopal (North)	$20,000,000
British Wesleyan	5,000,000
Irish Methodism	500,000
Australian Methodism	500,000
United Methodist Free Church	500,000
Canadian Methodism	1,000,000
Methodist Episcopal Church (South)	1,500,000
Total	$29,400,000

This movement, suggested by an English Methodist layman, a member of Parliament, was begun last year. The above amounts are to be in hand by Jan. 1, 1901. The Southern Meth odist Church will devote its one mil lion and a half of dollars to the cause of Christian education, strengthen ing, equipping and endowing her schools and colleges. Ten per cent of the amount will go to Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.; the re mainder will be retained in the State where it is contributed. Nearly one million dollars has been secured, and there remain yet nine months in which to secure the balance.

The Methodists of Carrollton have claimed for themselves the privilege of contributing at least $1,000. Last year they paid in cash four hundred dollars, and they anticipate no diffi culty in securing six hundred more; indeed, they have already secured nearly one hundred dollars of this amount. They will, in the near fu ture, give a special Sunday to this work—probably the fifth Sunday in April. They have a splendid pro gramme for "Twentieth Century Rally Day." Adequate preparation will be made and due notice given. This is to be a thank-offering, in ad dition to the regular annual contri butions. They ask the good-will and assistance of friends and adherents of Methodism, and the prayers of all Christians, for their success.

An address in colloquial style will soon be placed in the hands of each individual member, explaining more fully the nature and method of the enterprise. The purpose is to have every member, rich or poor, great or small, give something, no matter how small, and, certainly, no matter how large. "Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver." This is the measure for a thank offering. METHODIST.

RESCUE WORK IN DARKEST NEW ORLEANS.

OUR FIFTH YEAR BEGAN MARCH 2, 1900.

It is true that one-half the world does not know how the other half is living, and it is equally true that it does not care. "Am I my brother's keeper?" asks many a respectable member of society and of our churches, and Christianity answers, "Yes, you are." Nature and society agree in downing that which seems unfit to survive, but the very mission of Christianity is to take the appa rently unfit, and, by the power of Love, to make it fit to survive.

From all parts of the world the wrecks of humanity seem to wash upon the shores of our great cities, and form, in addition to the cities' own product of vicious and degraded men and women, that dangerous class which is a constant menace to society.

Only one power can transform such lives into lives of sobriety, morality, and good citizenship, and that is the power of the gospel of Christ. They must be reached by the mighty arm of the love of Jesus, or they are lost forever. This fact was recognized by Mr. J. Henry Haag, of this city, who himself had been graciously saved from sin by the power of the cross, and who at once set to work to reach with the gospel the abandoned, reck less, and vicious classes of the slums of New Orleans.

At 608 Bienville street the gracious work commenced four years ago, and night after night men deep in sin and misery have come out to seek and find salvation. No less than 291,685 per sons have attended our meetings, and 8,225 professed conversion since the opening of the mission.

The work is carried on along lines suggested by consecrated common sense. The homeless are sheltered, the hungry are fed, and the naked are clothed, and when men show a sincere disposition to lead God-fear ing and sober Christian lives, they find in the mission a home, where they are taken care of, until some suitable position or employment can be found for them.

Not only the homeless men are the beneficiaries of the mission, but hun dreds of the poor families in that part of the city have been aided sub stantially by the mission with food and clothing. Many have been sent to the Charity Hospital, or have been furnished medicine, while the mission has also furnished lodgings for the Charity Organization. The actual number of meals furnished by the mission is 103,600, while 27,425 per sons have been lodged and 63,200 sheltered right in the Mission Hall.

A gospel wagon is now being run in connection with the work, by which means thousands of people will be brought under the influence of the gospel who never see the inside of a church. Thus literally is heeded the Master's command to go into the highways and byways, and proclaim the blessed invitation to come to Christ.

Of course, the work is absolutely unsectarian, and is as broad as the need of humanity and the love of God, the one great object of the mis sion being to make men right with Christ, knowing that Christ will them set them right about everything else.

In every city to-day rescue work has become an established institution, New Orleans having, perhaps, been the last to take up this practical Christian work. It is acknowledged by every philanthropist and every close student of sociology to be the only way of solving the great ques tion of how to reclaim the submerged classes, and this being an indisputa ble fact, it follows as a logical conse quence that it is our duty to sustain this work to the utmost of our abil ity. The work is of God, and is here to stay; but we earnestly invite those whom God has blessed with means, and in whom there is a sin cere desire to see our city purified and human lives reclaimed, to come up and help us, with personal inter est in the work, if possible, but, at any rate, with your means. Every cent donated to the work is strictly accounted for, and is expended di rectly in the interest of the work.

The mission has the unqualified endorsement of the Mayor and Chief of Police of the city as having proved itself of great practical value to the city.

THE URGENT NEED OF ENDOWING OUR FEMALE SCHOOLS.

The Germans have a proverb that runs, "A beginning is always difficult." Multiple experiences have taught us all how much truth this proverb contains, and yet we assay new enterprises, as new exigencies arise, that we know in the ontset will be difficult even after the beginning is long since passed, though by no means forgotten. For conscience sake we toil and suffer when we can only see by faith even a partial consummation of some great work that presents itself to us as a duty.

To thoughtful men of the North Mississippi Conference it is apparent that we have come, at the beginning of a new century, to the parting of the ways where we must, as a church, make ample preparation for the higher education of our girls, or abandon them to other denominations or to the State. (No church can afford to let her educational interests lapse even for a season.) We have no longer a choice in the matter. Times are changing too rapidly for us to even hope to stand still and hold on to what we now possess in the hope that our primitive schools of the unendowed class will still force themselves into recognition. Once they served a noble purpose, when we were more isolated and provincial, but they can no longer fit our women for the cosmopolitan citizenship of the coming century. This being a fact, it is plainly our duty, as individuals and as a church, to make haste to prepare ourselves for this great work.

Time was when the idea that only our boys needed a collegiate education might have been defended, but that is an ancient order of things at the present day. The new order places, as it should, the girl, intellectually, right along beside her brother. She has been forced (some call it by the absurd name of emancipation) by the exigencies of the times to become a "bread-winner," and who shall circumscribe her sphere while her brother has the whole world to draw from, to say nothing of his superior physical strength to begin with? Since she must work for her living the way must be prepared for her fullest development, so that she may have at least no intellectual disability thrust upon her in her struggle for a livelihood. Beside the bread-winners, there is a large class who are destined to become the future mothers of our State, and it is conceded that the child reflects the mental and moral qualities of a mother very much oftener than that of a father, especially so since the early education of the child falls to the mother.

At present our case stands thus: Our boys are well supplied with training-schools both in and out of the State that nearly all can reach if they wish to (and, by the way, their sex makes the distance no object), and they have Millsaps College, that is unrivaled in Mississippi, for higher mental equipment. But our girls have nothing except schools maintained at a fearful cost of energy by private individuals, with no permanent financial backing whatever. If the girls wish real collegiate education, they must go either to Virginia or to the North. Even the schools we have for our girls must depend at present solely upon the tuition fees paid in. Of course, to any one who has made a study of the subject it is manifest that nothing like a consistent line of progress can be pursued with such an unstable source of income. To be a college at all a school must maintain a certain standard in spite of a fluctuating patronage. This is only possible where an adequate income is provided by endowment.

Then beside the fact that an unendowed school is not and can not be a college, we have the additional drawback that anything that approaches college work or an accomplishment must be paid extra for, so that it often happens that the girl who most needs a liberal education is too poor to pay for any but the "staples," so to speak. Nor can the best instruction be had in these higher branches when the instructors' pay is so uncertain. To do the work that our State and times demand we need a college so endowed as to offer an education to our girls at a tuition fee that will be in the reach of all and that will admit all to every department at the same price, excepting, perhaps, music and art. Our boys are so provided for at Millsaps. Note well the present disadvantage of our girls.

What are we to do about it? Simply this: As our boys are well provided for now, we can and must turn our attention to the girls, nor may we bate one jot until they have an endowed college in every respect the equal of Millsaps. Of course, we would be most grateful to find another Maj. Millsaps to help us in this herculean task, but such a thing is not likely to occur. So we must take up the matter boldly in spite of the difficulty of beginnings, and in spite of the fact that the collection of money for such enterprises is a dead weight to the end, and go forward with the movement. We may not see the consummation but by faith, but we will have the consciousness of doing our duty. Further more, we will know that every dollar of endowment not only lightens the burden of those upon whom the school's very being now rests, but makes a better and more permanent school—raises it more surely to the college class, and places it in reach of more girls.

How are we to manage such an undertaking? At Grenada we have the nucleus, and in the Grenada people we have determined friends who will provide the most ample grounds and buildings. This is an assured fact. Now, it remains for us to provide an adequate endowment. This can be done, and if the women of North Mississippi could only awake to the fact of their fearful disadvantage in educational facilities, the endowment would be raised by them alone.

My personal opinion is that one hundred thousand dollars could be raised for this purpose in the next four years, thus placing Grenada College at once on a footing with Millsaps. This to be done by subscriptions of one hundred dollars, or more, to be paid in four equal annual payments. One thousand such subscriptions would make the amount needed. If one thousand such individuals could not be found in the Conference, then several could club together for such a gift. Every Ladies' Aid Society in the Conference could contribute one hundred dollars upon these terms by a little extra work and devotion to the cause of higher education for women.

More conservative friends of this movement think my aims too high. They may be right. But certain am I that nothing but perfect equality in educational advantages between Mississippi's sons and daughters will ever satisfy me. Therefore, I stand for equal endowment. What do Mississippi women say to making this best of women's movement their crusade?

W. P. BARTON, M. D.

FOREST DISTRICT.

To the Preachers, Traveling and Local, and All the Members of the M. E. Church, South, in the Forest District, Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: With souls burdened with the weight and worth of immortal souls, with vision made larger and clearer, and minds comprehending the greatness and the grandeur of opportunities now presenting themselves to us as a church in the great Empire of China, Bishop Wilson and Dr. W. R Lambuth have written me urgent letters of recent date, to which I would rejoice were I able to respond favorably.

Bishop Wilson writes to Dr. Lambuth: "China is the point of prime importance to us now. You saw the conditions, and, I doubt not, felt your blood stirred in you at the marvelous concentration of this world's forces upon her coasts. That God's hand is in it all, we can not doubt. What the issue is to be, no one can tell. But that all things move towards the establishment of his kingdom we must be sure, and it behooves us to take advantage of all openings and opportunities to hasten the result. You have seen the changed attitude of the Chinese—the better classes—toward us and our work. You know what a field we have before us in every direction, especially in the educational department."

Dr. Lambuth says: "Bishop Wilson is right; China is moving. The conservatism of forty centuries is giving way. . . . The young men of the empire have committed themselves irrevocably to progress. There is no turning back. . . . The American represents neither opium in trade nor option on territory, and the American missionary is the trusted friend of the Chinese. . . . The most thoughtful men of the New China have concluded that their sons must be educated upon their own soil, and, at this juncture, turn to the missionary to aid them in working out the problem.

"The most remarkable meeting I have ever attended was held in the home of Dr. W. H. Park the night before I left Soochow. Eight of the most influential men of that great literary center met to consult with him, Dr. D. L. Anderson, and myself. . . .

"These men spent two hours discussing the founding of a Christian university in Soochow under the auspices of our church. Not that they were Christians, but they had faith in the ability and administration of Christian men and missionaries. As a guarantee of their faith, they agreed to secure a grant of public land, and pledged liberal subscriptions to the educational fund. Some of these pledges have already been made good, one gentleman, a patient of Dr. Park's, having given $1,000, and another $1,500. . . . A total of $4,000 has already been secured. . . . This is but the beginning of large and generous gifts when it becomes safe for wealthy Chinamen to avow their adherence to a more liberal policy of education as well as government.

"In the meanwhile no time is to be lost. We must assume the responsibilities God has put upon us. . . . Opportunity never offered like this. We must enter 'The Open Door,' or forever stand aside as unworthy of the wonderful heritage which has fallen to the lot of our China Mission.

"It will require $50,000 to build and equip the university, and $100,000 more to endow it. . . . The first amount is needed at once. Delay will be fatal to the success of the enterprise. The whole province awaits our action. In the name of our missionaries, Allen and Parker, Anderson and Park, who stand committed to this work; in the name of Bishop Wilson, who has given his strength to this cause, and in behalf of the redemption of China's millions, I appeal to the church to furnish us with the $50,000 within ninety days. . . . I would remind my brethren that Christly giving is unselfish, touching the rim of every continent and enriching the life of every nation. Your missionaries are building an empire beyond the sea. Hold up their hands for Christ's sake."

Again Bishop Wilson writes: "We have a hundred presiding elders in our church who could raise one thousand dollars each in their districts for this work. Some could get even larger amounts. Are there not fifty, or more, who will do it? May God move them and all our church to consecrate their service to him in the prosecution of this vital undertaking!"

Again Dr. Lambuth writes me: "You have already received a communication concerning the unparalleled opportunity which offers in China. I would hesitate to mention the matter again in so short a time, but the urgency of the case must be my justification. A letter from Bishop Wilson received to-day expresses an intense desire for the consummation of the plans which have been laid for the enlargement of our work in China. He knows the situation and realizes the grave responsibility which rests upon us. If we fail now, when pledges of our purpose to offer them the advantages of a Christian education have been given the Chinese, we had as well close up our work. In yesterday's mail [March 12] there came a letter from Dr. W. H. Park, Soochow, China, which said that the Toc-tai, or governor of the province, had sent word through the district magistrates to the owners of the property that he expected them to sell eligible sites for the university buildings at a reasonable figure. The Buddhist priests have been notified that old temple property which has not been used for years is to be placed at the service of the missionary for educational purposes at a nominal sum. The Doctor remarks, 'Truly we have cause to be thankful, for when did any Chinese officials ever go out of their way to help missionaries buy land before?'"

Dr. Lambuth further writes me: "Two presiding elders—one in Georgia and another in Missouri—have agreed to raise $1,000 each on their respective districts towards the $50,000 we require for building and equipment. Bishop Wilson and I are trying to secure ten who will undertake to raise $1,000 each. May we not count on you to be one of the ten?'

Brethren, how will you help me to answer that question and those soul-stirring appeals? How help me respond to the forceful eloquence of facts?

There are not less than six (possibly more) members of our church in this district who could each contribute the $1,000, and suffer no financial embarrassment; there are not less than a score who could pay $500, and several score who could pay $250—and would if they only loved the Lord and his coming. There are two thousand who easily offer $10 unto the Lord for this great work, and be the happier for doing a duty and exercising a privilege.

How good the Lord has been unto us! How the fields have brought forth abundant harvests, and the harvests have brought good prices! Why should we not, in our gratitude, "honor the Lord with our substance"? Why should we not work together with God in saving the world that Jesus died to redeem? Shall we receive his grace and his gifts in vain?

How shall I answer the appeal, brethren of the laity and of the ministry in the Forest district?

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

EQUAL LAY REPRESENTATION IN THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE A NECESSITY.

To anyone who intelligently reads my article on lay representation, "Cui Bono's" (so-called) reply is a riddle—an interrogation.

The first paragraph utterly perverts the meaning I gave to "It can be done." Of course, I meant the creditable solution of our "perplexing financial problems." Then why use it as if I meant securing equal lay representation? Of course, any philosophical reader of Methodist history knows that this can be done whenever the exigency of the progressive movements of our divinely guided Zion calls for it. Not before. And I am among the number of those who think the time near for such a move, for reasons assigned in the previous article.

"Cui Bono" also gives great emphasis to the word "agitate." He says, "Let him agitate, and please let me help him." Now, this sarcastic insinuation against the idea of agitating a progressive reform savors of a musty, stagnant origin. There is no harm in healthy agitation. It lets in air and light. Of course, it would be folly to turn loose "the little foxes" among your tender vines and goslings (such as some of our modern critics) just to show them the fun of recapturing them; but our law-makers and students of church polity are a sturdy company, and will not be taken off their feet by every wind of proposed reform, as if the great sine-qua-non of the ages had unquestionably been discovered, recently, to be "some new thing under the sun."

I have a deep, abiding consciousness of peace in the fact that I belong to an ecclesiastical community that is not afraid of truth or discussion. Whenever my church becomes so Romish as to assume the infallible, and thus stifle all discussion and mark it with the ignominious brand of anarchical "agitation," I subscribe as one who will seek spiritual associations in a more congenial clime. But I'm not on the run yet, mind you. I feel that I can stand on the broad basis of Methodist Christianity and meet any issue, without fearing harm from the combat, either to myself or the church that gave me birth.

"Cui Bono" proposes a very unequal idea when he says, "Why not as many preachers as laymen in the Church Conference?" We all know that the very constituency of the church composes this Conference from which our representative bodies take their origin. As well ask, Why not just put one man to run each ship, one general to each private, one star in each system, or one angel for each heaven? as to ask, "Why don't God call half his children to preach to the other half?" The Church Conference is the working force who send up representatives to transact the business of the church, practically, if not theoretically. The separate church, though, is not a working ecclesiastic unit, of itself, in our system, unless it be a station. That dignity is reserved for the "charge." From this point should go into that Conference which takes notice of the work of all the charges and plans the administration for all the charges for the succeeding year, an equal number of laymen and preachers. Mind you, I don't contend for an equal ratio, as does "Cui Bono" in his bright proposition on behalf of Church Conferences.

There is no other Conference in our economy where so much work of vital interest to the whole as at our Annual Conferences, yet it is greatly in disparity, considering all this, with other Conferences in the matter of lay representation. No, there is no sadness and no crime in all this. Only a bit of inconsideration for the intelligence and piety of our laymen unworthy the high character of the Methodist ministry, and a clogging, plodding policy something like the preacher trying to pull a stage coach at the end of the tongue, while the membership, instead of pushing at the wheels, climb in and ride through the mud.

Our readers are aware that I have made no demand for proportional representation in all the Conferences of the church. All know that impractical. What I do ask for is that the Conference from which our church life receives the pulse-beat of its inspirations and aspirations, governmental and spiritual, shall be made up of at least an equal number of clerical and lay burden-bearers.

How can the preachers effect a revival in anything without the laymen? My experience is, the more laymen, the greater revival. Bring those minds and hearts surcharged with "diligence in business" in contact with others surcharged with "fervency in spirit" under the brooding, fructifying warmth of the All Father's presence, and from this union will flow divine grace, as alchemic nectar, which will season and save the world of mankind, soul and body. And all without disturbing "The stars in their courses."

Mrs. J. B. Stone, of North Miss. Conference
Conference Officers of Mississippi Conference
Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, of Louisiana Conference

The eighth annual meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the Louisiana Conference was held in Texas Avenue Church, Shreveport, March 8 to 11. Unfavorable weather and an unusual amount of sickness prevented many of the delegates from attending, but the power and presence of the Holy Spirit was manifest from the opening hour of the meeting.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. E. Russ, was unavoidably detained at home, and the recording secretary, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, sustained a painful injury on her journey to Shreveport, and had to return home. Mrs. C. C. Henderson was elected secretary pro tem. The address of welcome was delivered by Miss Sadie Demming, of Shreveport, and the response by Mrs. C. C. Henderson, of Ruston.

Rev. R. J. Harp was present, and rendered much appreciated service. His earnest talk on the "need of the W. H. M. Society" will not be forgotten. It was regretted that illness prevented Rev. J. T. Sawyer from participating in the exercises of our annual meeting.

The Committee on Entertainment and Committee on Music had faithfully performed their duties. The beautiful motto, "Our Country for Christ," formed in letters of living green, and placed back of the pulpit, on the pure white wall, attracted the attention of all who entered the church.

The president's address included a brief history of the thirteen years of work, and especially emphasized the need of more homes, and better homes, for our preachers and their families. The corresponding secretary's report represented a year of faithful, earnest work. Thirty-seven auxiliaries, including seven Juvenile, on the Roll. Some of our Juvenile members have became Epworth Leaguers. The corresponding secretary reports that more applications for aid in building parsonages have been presented the past year than ever before. The Week of Prayer had not been observed by all the auxiliaries owing to quarantine restrictions and other causes.

Able papers were read on "Work among Foreigners in Our Own Land," The Twentieth Century Fund, Our Educational Work, "Helps and Hindrances," The Baby Roll and Loan Funds, etc., by the following ladies—Mrs. L. B. Baynard, Miss Carrie Schwing, Miss Sadie Demming, Mrs. Robert McGimpsey and Miss Emma Monroe.

A half hour at noon each day was devoted to a consecration service, which proved to be a means of great spiritual help and strength to the workers.

Fraternal greetings were received from the Woman's Foreign Mission Society of Shreveport, and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Louisiana. True sisterly responses were given to the representatives of these organizations.

A letter from Mrs. W. C. Ratcliffe, superintendent of Systematic and Proportionate Giving, was read. She recommends that the second vice-president in Conference Society and auxiliaries be made chairman of this department. The discussion that followed proved that a number of Home Mission workers have adopted the scriptural plan of tithing their income, and are greatly encouraged with the results.

Mrs. W. H. Johnson, of Dallas, Tex., editor and publisher of The King's Messenger, gladdened all by her arrival and hearty co-operation in every line of work. She spoke eloquently of Our Homes and its gifted editor, Miss Mary Helm. An agent was appointed to secure subscriptions during our meeting.

Our city mission work was reported by Miss Demming for Shreveport, and Mrs. Lillie Meekins for New Orleans. The labors of these faithful missionaries can not be over-estimated, conducting sewing schools, cottage prayer meetings, feeding the hungry, securing physicians and medicine for the sick, reading the Word of God in the homes, and leading the sin-sick soul to Christ—this is only a part of their daily rounds. We ought to give them generous support and hearty co-operation.

The report of Conference treasurer, Mrs. S. A. Montgomery, indicates a healthful advance in many instances, but in order to grant the aid asked for in applications, we will have to multiply our auxiliaries during the coming year. Four preachers were made patrons of the Educational Endowment Fund by the payment of fifty dollars for each one: Rev. J. E. Dawson, Texas Avenue, Shreveport; Rev. W. T. Bolling, First Church, Shreveport; Rev. C. C. Miller, Alexandria; Rev. H. W. May, Jackson.

Mrs. Robert McGimpsey, of Alexandria, rendered invaluable service and contributed to the enjoyment of all by singing a number of beautiful and appropriate selections during the meeting. The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: For president, Mrs. F. A. Lyons, New Orleans; first vice president, Mrs. L. S. Crain, Shreveport; second vice-president, Mrs. W. H. Carre, New Orleans; third vice president, Mrs. W. H. LaPrade, New Orleans; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Florence E. Russ, New Orleans; recording secretary, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, Lafayette; treasurer, Mrs. S. A. Montgomery, New Orleans. Organizers—Miss Mary Werlein, Miss Sue L Lyons. Superintendent Baby Roll Mrs. Robert McGimpsey. Solicitor of Our Homes, Miss Mary Werlein.

District secretaries—New Orleans district, Mrs. R. H. Wynn, New Orleans; Baton Rouge district, Mrs. C. V. Schwing, Jackson; Opelousas district, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy; Alexandria district, Mrs. J. D. Harper; Delhi district, Mrs. M. E Carr; Natchitoches district, Mrs. F. E. Pitts; Shreveport district, Mrs. J. T. Sawyer.

The annual sermon was preached on Sunday morning by Dr. W. T. Bolling, from Luke xxiv, 47. It was a very eloquent and able discourse. The music was furnished by the talented organist and choir of First Church. At the conclusion of the sermon Mrs. W. H. Johnson, financial agent of the Rescue Home and Training-school, and editor of The King's Messenger, presented the claims of this most delicate and Christ-like work. It was evident that she had the sympathetic attention of that large audience from the beginning of her talk. She told of its origin, of the call to Southern Methodist women to take up the work; assured them of its constitutional relation to our W. H. M. Society, and then appealed for material aid. In about fifteen minutes one hundred dollars in cash was contributed, and all joined heartily in singing, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

On Sunday afternoon, at four o'clock, a service was held at First Church. By special request Mrs. F. A. Lyons gave a brief account of the work of the W. H. M. Society. Mrs. Robert McGimpsey then sang most impressively the "Ninety and Nine," after which it was resolved to reorganize the auxiliary at First Church with the following results: President, Mrs. L. S. Crain; first vice-president, Mrs. Henry Youree; second vice-president, Mrs. Robert J. Harp; third vice-president, Mrs. Wm. English; recording secretary, Miss Anna Howell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. H. Wise; solicitor for Our Homes, Mrs. Walter Currie; treasurer, Mrs J. D. Lee.

In response to the unanimous wish of all present, Mrs. W. H. Johnson continued the talk of the morning on the Rescue Home and Training-school. So thoroughly had she enlisted the interest of the people of Shreveport that at the close of the meeting the ladies agreed to give one hundred dollars cash to the support of the Rescue Home in Dallas—Mrs. Hoss, Mrs. Sloan, Mrs. Henry Youree, Mrs. J. Shuttleworth—making a total of $100 on our Twentieth Century Fund, secured in cash and pledges at the annual meeting.

Sunday night, at 7:30, found all assembled at Texas Avenue Church for our closing service. The sermon was preached by Rev. J. E. Dea[n]. A collection was taken for expenses incurred by Texas Avenue Auxiliary in printing programs, etc. A beautiful solo was then rendered by Miss Helen Harp Frater—"How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" The consecration service was conducted by the president. Those in the congregation testified that the eighth annual meeting had been a personal blessing. Then the closing prayer, and doxology by the [a]ll:

"When we asunder part it gives us inward pain
But we shall still be joined in heart
And hope to meet again."

Rescue Work in Darkest New Orleans.

Elberfold, Germany, Feb. 14, 1898.

Mr Haag—

DEAR SIR: You will kindly admit that a stranger addresses a few words, dictated by thankful hearts, to you, whom we love as the instrument in God's hand of rescuing our dear son from a life of misery and disgrace. God bless you and your work, and let the words of life-giving gospel reach many a wandering, weary soul at your house of mercy. You can not think how thankful we are, dear sir, that God's hand has led him near you, and has given him work to do, as it were, under your eyes, for it is not the first time we had good hopes of his being saved, and would abandon his bad habits and serve his heavenly Master. Again and again the enemy claimed him, and compelled him to his service. More than twenty-five years we are praying for the deliverance of his soul from these dreadful chains, fully trusting the Lord would hear us in his own good time, and we believe he has heard us now; but we, too, know that, more than ever, we must pray now that God's grace and powerful hand may keep him from new temptation, and if it comes in his way, he may be enabled, by God's help, to overcome it, and then be made an instrument in his hand to his glory. You can understand how much sorrow and pain it caused us to see Satan take hold of him and force him to his service.

My husband would have been happy to express his gratitude himself, but he is not able to write in English; so you will accept my poorly-expressed thanks in his name, too. We both wish we could press the hand of the kind friend of our son, and also of your dear wife.

When we received our son's letter, with the joyful news of his salvation, on Saturday, the twelfth, it was a blessed day to us. We felt a heavenly-given joy, and the angels of heaven rejoiced with us; seemed to fill the room so that we hardly dared to speak, and contend to let the tears of gratitude flow, and lift our hearts in praises to God. Now, we beg God's blessing to rest upon you, and your dear ones and friend, who help you in your work.

Yours respectfully,

This man is to-day teaching school, and preaching the gospel of our Savior, who so wonderfully raised him from a drunkard's grave. Glory to God!

Brooklyn, New York, Sept 12 —.

MY DEAR FRIEND, MRS. HAAG: I can not find language to express my gratitude for thinking of me, knowing that there is nothing nearer to a mother's heart than her children, especially a wayward son, away from home and rescued from sin through the efforts of your dear husband and yourself. May God bless you both! Also the good work of the mission. You mention that he was saved by prayer. I believe he was, as I believe in prayer, and prayed for many years continually that he might become a righteous, good man.

Dear Mrs. Haag, there could not have been a more obedient, kind, and good boy to his mother than he was, until he got into bad company, and was led off; but still I hoped for him to come back to what he was when a boy. God is good, and full of his promises to those who believe in him. I do not know whether you have any children of your own, or not; and if you ever have, I hope they will never leave or forsake you, and if they ever should, may some good Christian woman point them to the Savior, as you have done my boy! I know there is no better life than that of a Christian. God bless you and yours! is the prayer of a happy MOTHER.

This brother was a bar-keeper in one of the lowest dives in this city. He came into our meeting one night, drunk, but God saved him, and he never went back to his job. He is now at home with his mother, after being away from her for eighteen years. He has been all over the world looking for peace, but found it not, save in the blood of Jesus. He is now praising God for saving him from all manner of sin. Hallelujah!

Many such letters have been received from all parts of the country, from mothers, sisters, and wives, who have been made happy through the conversion of those dear to their hearts. Mother, father, where is your boy to-night, and your sweet daughter? Are they within the fold of our Lord Jesus? If so, praise God. But some mother's boy or girl is away from home, out in sin. Is no hand extended to help? Can we let them sink and die? God forbid. We must help them. They have never a dying souls. Will you help in this great work for souls? If so, send us your money which God has blessed you with, and your old clothing, and if you have neither, we ask your prayers.

THOUGHTS ON THE LAST SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON OF THE FIRST QUARTER.

We have spent three months with Jesus. Nicodemus was with him one night, and it changed his life; the Samaritan woman spent an hour with him, and that hour began a great revival in Shechem; the paralytic lay before him five minutes, and walked away healed and pardoned. The thousands who attend our Sunday-schools have spent eleven Sundays with Jesus; why should we not look for great results? Souls awakened, churches revived, zeal rekindled, lives set on fire, great movements begun—all this, and more, might have resulted if each teacher had tried to bring his class truly into the presence of the Savior about whom he taught each Sunday, and expected great things from the contact.

Three months to come to be spent in the presence of Jesus in all the Sunday-schools throughout the land. Wake up, teachers; you are missing opportunities! Expect three months more of Jesus to mean an awakening in your own soul; expect it to mean conversions in your classes. Try with your might and God's help to accomplish your expectations. But expect something. Once one of Spurgeon's students came to him discouraged; he thought that he had made a mistake in entering the ministry; he had preached six months, and had not had one conversion.

"Why, man alive," said Spurgeon, "you surely do not expect conversions every time you preach?"

"Oh, no!" replied the young man, "of course, I do not expect that."

"Well," replied Spurgeon, "that is just your trouble; you do not expect enough."

The last lesson of the quarter falls into three parts: Jesus and the multitude, Jesus and Matthew, Jesus and the critics.

JESUS AND THE MULTITUDES.

Verse 13: "The multitude resorted to him."

The strongest attraction for the people a church can have is the presence of a living Christ. "And he taught them." Jesus teaches all who come to him: By his word (precept); by his life (example); by the Holy Ghost. His commission to the church was to make disciples—"teaching them." But they were not to teach arithmetic, or logic only; they were to teach them what God's will was, and to observe and to do it. The church is, or should be, the school of the world's conscience.

Verse 14: "And he saw Levi." He saw: A man (Matthew); Levi, son of Alpheus (Mark); a publican (Luke). Each of the evangelists speaks of the person he saw in different terms; yet he saw but one person. Into the formation of each person's character enters his personality, his parentage, and his environment. Jesus altered the name and changed the trade, but kept the man. "Follow me." Jesus did not ask Matthew to a sociable, or invite him to a lecture; he said, "Follow me." "He arose." Matthew, Mark and Luke each mention that he rose up to follow Jesus. Satan said to Jesus in the temptation, "Cast thyself down; fall down and worship me." Jesus said to the sick and to the sinful, "Arise." Saul cast himself down in the dust, but when Ananias came, bearing the message of love from the heart of Jesus, it was, "Brother, arise." Luke mentions that he forsook all to follow Jesus. If your business interferes with your following Christ, you had better give up your business. A saloon-keeper said, "I'll join the church if it will recognize my business." A shallow young girl said, "I'd join the church if it would let me dance." They showed that they loved these things of the world more than Jesus. You must love Jesus more than all. Matthew, in his gospel, does not tell us that he made any sacrifices to follow Jesus. When a Christian begins to tell of want, to tell of the sacrifices he has made for the church, it begins to be time for him to watch and pray.

Verse 15: "Publicans and sinners sat down with Jesus." They were friends of Matthew. Luke tells that, after his conversion, Matthew made a great feast in his house to show his gratitude, and to introduce his friends to Christ. When men got religion then, they wanted everyone to know it; now they seem to fear that some one will find it out. When sinners love to attend a church it is no sign that church has the power of Christ, unless they are converted.

JESUS AND THE CRITICS.

Verse 16: "Why does he eat with publicans and sinners?" The scribes had a right to ask the question. A church member is doing wrong, and in grave danger, if he associates with sinners because he enjoys their society. A physician goes among the diseased to cure them, not because he would like to catch the disease. "They that are whole." The reason the whole have to be physicked so much is because they slip off the handle, and fly all to pieces, and then they need to be made whole again. No man is fit to come to Jesus unless he realizes that he is a sinner. No sinner can come to Jesus unless he believe that Jesus can save him from his sins.

Verse 18: "Why—fast not?" The world does not understand Christianity, the flesh can not, the devil will not. John fasted; they said he had a devil. The Savior ate and drank; they said, "Behold a wine bibber and a glutton." The devil is shocked if a church member enjoys innocent sports, and disgusted if he wears a long face.

Verse 19: "Can the children of the bride-chamber fast?" We should not fast, but rejoice, when we are conscious of the presence of Jesus in our lives; we should fast when we have sinned and wandered away from his side. Saul, in his own room in Damascus, fasted because he was without Christ; Paul, in chains in the dungeon at Philippi, rejoiced and sang praises because Christ was with him.

Verse 21: "No man seweth new cloth on an old garment" You can not graft renewing grace on an old life. The old nature will not contain the new wine of God's kingdom.

Luke adds, "No man, having drunk old wine, desireth new." A man who has really tasted and fed upon the old gospel will not be tempted by flat new theories.

BIBLE STUDENT.

They are only bubbles, those maiden fancies of love, marriage and motherhood. But what beautiful bubbles they are! Who does not wish that all these fancies could end as did the old fairy stories, "and they lived happy ever after." Pain soon pricks the bubbles; and nothing remains of all the hope and gladness of the bride but a bridal veil and a piece of stale wedding cake.

The only way in which happiness can be realized in marriage is by being forearmed against its dangers. Most young women are ignorant of the fact that irregularity means a derangement of the womanly functions which may have far reaching consequences after marriage. With this derangement at the start there often follow the drains, ulcerations and inflammations which make life one long misery.

A certain cure for irregularity and other diseases peculiar to women is found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It contains no alcohol neither opium, cocaine nor other narcotic.

"I was so weak I did not have breath to walk across my room," writes Miss Isibell Miller, of New Providence, Calloway Co., Ky. "My periods occurred too often and the hemorrhage would be prolonged and the loss of blood very excessive. I also had spells which the doctor said were fainting fits. My stomach would cramp until I could not straighten. I did not gain strength from one monthly period to another; was very weak and nervous all the time. The doctor told me he did not know what was the cause of my trouble and that I would never be any better. I lived in this way from sixteen years old to twenty-three, when the doctor dismissed my case. After this I was advised by a kind friend to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did and before I had taken two bottles of it I could work all day. I took in all six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and about five vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. I used no other medicine. I have never had a return of this trouble since."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

The Golden State is seriously considering the necessity of quarantining against consumptives. This means that God's fresh air and sunshine, nowhere more entrancing and beautiful than on the Pacific slope, may be denied to the unfortunate sufferers. THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 1900.

THE GREATEST OF ALL DELUSIONS.

If sin always appeared in its true colors, if its fearful consequences were clearly perceptible at the beginning, how few would be guilty of the infinite folly of yielding thereto? Who would be so unwise as to walk in "the broad road that leads to destruction" unless, at the outset, it seemed safe and inviting? If Satan always came in his true character, and announced himself as the hater of God, and the great enemy of souls, where is the man who would not flee from him in terror?

Countless thousands, however, listen to the tempter's voice, and yield to his solicitations, because he pictures sin as harmless and extremely desirable. Knowing full well that only by misrepresentation and deception can he continue to lead men astray, the wicked one is careful to come disguised as an "angel of light."

On account of Satan's skill in making sin so fascinating and deceptive, how supremely important it is to be on our guard against its innumerable allurements! Was God trifling with the human race when he caused his inspired servants to picture the devil as the father of lies, the prince of darkness—yea, as the great deceiver? Was the sacred penman but jesting when he wrote the impressive warning, "Exhort one another daily while it is called to-day, lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin?" Are not the shores of time strewn with the wrecks of those who have listened to Satan's siren song?

The devil offers large rewards and splendid pleasures, but he never fails to disappoint, and at last ruin. He tells not of the bitter dregs at the bottom of the cup of sinful indulgence, nor does he point to the black and bottomless abyss at the end of the road of unrighteousness. He covers vice with a sugar coating, and lets the sinner at last taste the indescribably bitter gall of remorse and despair.

How frequently Satan represents the service of God as a grievous yoke, as devoid of pleasure and present desirableness; yet, after tasting all that the tempter has to offer, the poor, deluded sinner, in disappointment and anguish, cries out, "All is vanity and vexation of spirit!" Realizing at last that he has been mocked, and feeling the awful weight of the chains of sin, he exclaims, "O wretched man that I am: who shall deliver me from this body of death?" Again and again the wicked one whispers in the ears of the simple: "Enjoy life while you can. There's time enough for repentance." Thus does he lull vast multitudes into fancied security, and lure them on to everlasting destruction. The devil says to those whom he would entice to neglect and disobedience, just as he said to Adam and Eve, "Ye shall not surely die." Yet, in flat contradiction to his lying words, our Lord declares that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The whole history of the race proclaims in unmistakable language that "the wages of sin is death."

How oft professing Christians engage in questionable or forbidden practices because they permit Satan to delude them into believing that the harm is insignificant, or only imaginary. When it comes to temporal enjoyment, money-making, ease, and worldly honor, how wonderfully successful Satan is in deceiving men, putting evil for good, and in "making the worse appear the better reason." "No harm," whispers the tempter, "in taking a little wine, or beer, or champagne, occasionally." Yet thus is the taste for strong drink formed, and thus have tens of thousands begun the course that led to a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's hell. "No harm," says Satan, "in playing cards at home or in somebody's parlor." Yet in this way scores of young, as well as older, men form a fatal fondness for games of chance, and end by becoming gamblers. "What could be more innocent," suggests the evil one, "than the entertainment and instruction furnished by the theatre, where art does her utmost to amuse, and where fashion makes a pleasing show?" Nevertheless, according to indisputable evidence, most of the plays there presented are coarse, lewd, and debasing in tone, and strongly inimical to high ideals of life and morality. When were ever the most devoted patrons of the theatre noted for fervent piety or self-sacrificing philanthropy?

What could be more attractive, or apparently more innocent, than the saloon, with its music, its merriment, its oftimes costly furnishings, and its exhilarating intoxicants? Yet, for all that, it is a drunkard-maker, a mighty breeder of poverty and crime, and a monstrous destroyer of home and happiness. Satan says to the money-lover: "Business and religion can not be mixed. Get gain first, and do good afterward." Thus does the devil put "darkness for light," and lead men captive to perdition.

How strikingly true it is, as some one has said, that the "pleasures of sin are like a drop of honey in an ocean of gall." Like the wine cup, sin at first has a lovely glow and sparkle, but "at last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." Well do the Scriptures say, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." Who, who of us can be too careful to remember that iniquity ever seeks to hide its true character and mask its own ugliness with false goodness and beauty?

DEATH OF EX-GOV. STONE.

All Mississippi is in deep mourning over the death of one of her worthiest sons and most useful and highly honored citizens. At 6 o'clock A. M, on last Monday, March 26, at Holly Springs, Miss., the spirit of ex-Gov. Stone, president of the A. and M. College, passed away to its final reward.

For twelve years he filled the office of governor with great credit to himself and to the State, and to the entire satisfaction of the people, whose rights and welfare he ever had deeply at heart. At the expiration of his third term he was made president of the Merchants' Bank in Jackson, and last April was elected to succeed Gen. G. D. Lee as president of the A. and M. College at Starkville. He proved a faithful, capable servant in every position with which he was honored by the public, and to him the citizens of Mississippi owe a lasting debt of gratitude. He was a man of sterling integrity, great modesty, remarkable courage and conscientiousness, and broad statesmanship.

He was born in Dyer county, Tenn., April 30, 1830, but moved to Mississippi during his twenty-fifth year. He was a self-made man, his early life being full of hardships. His remains were laid to rest on the twenty-seventh instant in Iuka, Miss., his old home. He left no children. To his heart-broken wife and sorrowing relatives we tender sincere sympathy.

AT JACKSON.

The assistant editor having gone up to Jackson, Miss., last week to attend the marriage of his eldest sister, took occasion while there to visit Millsaps College. He was very cordially welcomed by both the students and the faculty, several of whom have a specially warm place in his heart because of their being his former colleagues. He found things in splendid working order, and rejoiced at numerous signs of progress. He was also gratified to find the enrollment so large in spite of recent hindrances. A high moral tone pervades the entire student body. The courtly and spirited Dr. Murrah is greatly beloved by the students and is making his mark as a preacher and college president. Having remained over Sunday, through the courtesy of the pastor we had the pleasure of preaching both Sabbath morning and evening to the Methodist congregation at First Church. We never preached to a more attentive audience.

MEETING OF AN IMPORTANT COMMITTEE.

The Programme Committee of the Western section, to arrange for the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, which meets next year in London, had a session in Washington, D. C., on Wednesday of last week. Bishop Hurst, Bishop Galloway, Dr. A. Carman, of Canada; Bishop Walters, of the A. M. E. Conference; Dr. H. K. Carroll, Dr. J. J. Tigert, Prof. Van Vlek, of Wesleyan University; Rev. Dr. Tagg, of Baltimore, and Rev. Dr. Mason, of Brooklyn, were present. The Committee, it is understood, agreed upon the final draft of the programme of subjects to be discussed in the Ecumenical Conference, and distributed the same between the Eastern and Western sections.

The Conference will be composed of five hundred delegates—three hundred from the Western section, and two hundred from the Eastern section. The M. E. Church will have 129 delegates; the M. E. Church, South, 74; the Methodist Church in Canada, 24; and the smaller bodies their due proportion.

The Committee called in a body on President McKinley at one o'clock, who gave them a cordial greeting. The President showed much interest in the great Conference, and expressed pleasure in meeting and greeting the Committee.

A NEW BOOK.

JAPAN: COUNTRY, COURT, AND PEOPLE. By J. C. Calhoun Newton, M. A., D. D. 12 mo. 432 pages. Cloth. Price, $1. 1900. Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn., and Dallas, Texas.

This splendidly written and charming history of Japan by Dr. Newton, who for a number of years has served as a missionary in that land from our church, is full of valuable and trustworthy information concerning the Japanese and their country, and ought to be read by every one who wishes to obtain a clear, comprehensive view of the present status of that singular, but progressive people. In the opening chapters the author describes the physical characteristics of this "island empire," its fauna and flora, its products and resources. In Part II. he traces the civilization and political history of the country down to 1854, which, by reason of Commodore Perry's action, was the beginning of a new era for Japan; graphically describes the customs, occupations, and modes of living of the people, and discusses the religions, past and present, of the country, particular mention being made of the long and terrible persecution of the Catholics, who several centuries ago were strongly intrenched there. The last five chapters tell of the "New Japan," with its radical changes, its wonderful development, and its promising future. The author is firmly convinced that on account of the progressiveness and aggressiveness of the Japanese, their conversion to Christianity is bound to have a tremendous influence upon China and Korea. Hence, the speedy evangelization of Japan, where just now atheism, infidelity, and rationalism are finding congenial soil, is of strategic importance.

Dr. Newton significantly says in the last chapter: "The truth is that Japan is now neither Christian nor pagan, neither oriental nor occidental, but it is in a state of mixture and transition. It can not be a Christian empire when the Emperor still has eleven or twelve concubines in the palace; it can not be a Christian nation when so many of the people are still idolaters, worshiping gods and goddesses, and even the sun and moon, or the fox. The whole question of Japan's future depends upon her acceptance or rejection of the Christian religion." In the "Introduction," written by Bishop Wilson, the purpose of the volume is thus stated: "It is designed to bring all that is essential to a right understanding of the country, court, and people of Japan in comparatively small compass within the reach of all who take interest in the future of the race, and establishment of the kingdom of God." Aside from its value in other directions, this volume is a splendid contribution to missionary literature.

Most readers, we think, will find it a fascinating book. It is adorned with a goodly number of illustrations, among them being a picture of the grave of the sainted J. W. Lambuth, and contains a large and excellent map of Japan. An index is also appended.

DON'T DODGE THIS LETTER.

I am not a good writer, and I may not interest you, but I am sure I have something good to say, if I only knew how to say it. What am I going to write about? Well, I may do like the preacher who arose and said: "Brethren, I am going to do three things. First, I will take a text. Second, I will leave it. Third, and I may not get back to it." But I rather think I will adopt another preacher's course. He said: "Brethren, I am going to do three things to-day, and I will do it under three heads, to-wit: First, the world is wrong side up. Second, it ought to be right side up. And, third, we are the fellows to do it."

Have you heard anything about the Twentieth Century Thank-Offering? You haven't, eh? Where have you been? Don't take the ADVOCATE? Well, what do you take? Your county paper? How do you expect to know when quarterly meeting day comes if you don't take the ADVOCATE? Hasn't your pastor said something about this great movement to you?

Brother, are you awake, or only dreaming? Where do you expect to be when the twentieth century begins? And where will your children be? If your great church is not wide awake, and does not make the most of her great opportunities, where will she be at the end of the twentieth century? Do you know that our colleges need this help very much? Millsaps College and Grenada College are our special points of interest just now, and I do hope that when we enter the new century we may be glad that we did something worthy of our great church in North Mississippi. What did you say? You don't believe in this movement? Why? Because you are poor, and your children will never share in the benefits? You have given two good reasons for helping this fund to the full extent of your ability. This appeal is to the poor as well as the rich. An average of one dollar per member. I do not know a Methodist in all North Mississippi out of the poor-house and not physically disabled that can not give his dollar. And the good part about it is, it becomes a permanent benefit to the struggling boys and girls who want an education. Long after you are laid to sleep beneath the daisies your dollar and mine will go on like an ever-flowing stream to bless the worthy children of somebody. Your children will share in the blessing, though they may never see Grenada or Millsaps, for no blessing can come to a country through an educated, consecrated young man or woman that does not bless all the people. It is like a light in a dark place, or a spring in a dry, thirsty land.

There is one man—a layman—who is intensely interested in this movement. He is a busy merchant, but during the past three days he has addressed and sent out over 500 letters to the superintendents of Sunday-schools, urging them to look after this matter. Brother preacher, the diligence of this man ought to make us feel ashamed of our meagerness of service. Yes, you have seen the name of J. R. Bingham, have you? What did you think of it? Thought he was crazy on the subject? I expect he might say with all due modesty and humility, "The love of Christ constraineth me." Forty-five thousand Methodists can give forty thousand dollars. When the elders go up to West Point, may all the money be in sight!

T. W. LEWIS.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The Spring season has returned, when "the flowers appear on the earth, the fruit trees are budding, the birds are singing, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land." All nature is manifesting renewal of life and vigor, after months of hiber nation. So it is time for the church to awake and shine; to put on her strength and go forth with renewed zeal and activity in the fulfillment of her earthly mission. The time is at hand for renewed diligence in Sunday-school work; the "set time" by many of our pastors and superintendents to revive dead schools, to resume suspended ones and to improve the perennial ones. Now, let these good purposes be carried into effect directly. By the first of May let there not be a church within our bounds without a Sunday-school in operation. If, at that date, any pastor, after due effort made, has failed in any instance to establish a Sunday-school, will he please to inform me, giving name of the church, number of members, difficulties in the way, and the names and post-office addresses of the superintendent and stewards. Do this, brother pastor, and we will help you all that we can. Let us no longer report fewer schools than churches in the Conference.

The various general meetings of the church are now the order of the day. For several months Missionary Institutes, District Conferences, Woman's Missionary Meetings, Epworth League and Sunday-school Conferences will be in evidence. These are all important convocations and should not be neglected by those whose business it is to attend them. May they all be occasions of great spiritual refreshing and uplifting!

Rev. W. J. Burt has been forced by failure of health to give up his charge of Tyro circuit. He has the hearty sympathies and prayers of his brethren, with the hope that with rest and care he may ere long be able to resume his "loved employ."

Rev. W. N. Duncan, a young man and student at Millsaps College, has been engaged by the presiding elder to supply the work vacated by Bro. Burt.

"Children's Day Programmes" will be sent to the pastors, as heretofore, without order. They may be expected by April 15, and it is hoped that timely attention will be given to their distribution among the Sunday-schools. Should any pastor be neglectful, let the superintendents call on him for their programmes, so that there may be no failure at any place.

I have recently visited Sardis, Batesville, Como, Coldwater, Love's Station and Pope's Station, and did good work in supplying song books, church papers and Sunday-school literature. I am yet in the field.

The delegates to the Mississippi State Epworth League Conference, which will be held in Vicksburg, May 10-13, inclusive, are requested to send their names at once to Miss May Bell Lewis, 725 Grove street, Vicksburg, Miss.

The commencement sermon at Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., will be preached this year by Dr. E. E. Hoss, editor of the Nashville Advocate. The date is June 10. Those who attend may count on something grand and good.

A note from Rev. Robt. Selby, pastor at Rolling Fork, Miss., says: "I have a delightful charge in many respects, and prospects are good for a prosperous year." May abundant success attend the efforts of this energetic and worthy itinerant!

We are in receipt of an invitation to attend the thirteenth annual convention of the Mississippi and Louisiana Young Men's Christian Associations, which will be held at Natchez, Miss., April 5-8. The opening address will be delivered by Rev. Beverley Warner, D. D., of this city. We regret our inability to be present.

Dr. Boiling remained over to the Preachers' Meeting, Monday morning. He reports that his work at Shreveport is moving forward encouragingly. He has had thirty, or more, accessions to the church since Conference, and is now rejoicing over the liquidation of a $1400 church debt, which has for some time acted as an incubus.

A mass meeting in the interest of the Twentieth Century Education Movement will be held at Carondelet Street Church, Sunday morning, April 8, at which time that matchless pulpit orator, Bishop Chas. B. Galloway, will deliver an address. The Southern Methodist congregations in the city will unite in the service and we predict that it will be a great and memorable occasion.

Bishop Galloway reached home last Friday from an extended trip through North Carolina. He was everywhere greeted by large and responsive audiences, and during his tour succeeded in raising over $3,000 for the Twentieth Century Fund. In spite of the heavy drafts he has made upon his time and strength, the Bishop is looking well, and will take little about resting.

We are very sorry to have missed a call one day last week from Bishop John C. Keener, who had just returned from a trip to Centenary College. The whole church will rejoice that our beloved senior Bishop shows such evidence of continued vigor, and we feel sure that his sprightly and inspiring account of his visit, with which he has honored our columns, will be read with great interest.

Rev. George N. MacDonell, one of our missionaries to Cuba, sends us the following interesting note from Havana. He says: "We have found it necessary to close our reading-room in order to give more space to the growing Cuban school work. It has been a success, and the ADVOCATE has contributed to this result. Accept our thanks for the paper, which has been coming regularly. Keep Cuba before the people."

Dr. W. T. Boiling, of Shreveport, was greeted by a large and very appreciative audience at Rayne Memorial Church, last Sunday evening, the occasion being the anniversary of the New Orleans Methodist City Mission. At the conclusion of the Doctor's address, which was highly spoken of, a collection was taken for the church extension cause, which amounted to over $135. In the morning Dr. Boiling occupied the pulpit at Felicity Street Church.

That whole-souled and successful itinerant, Rev. W. S. Shipman, sends us the following church news from Water Valley: "Methodism here," writes he, "is in fairly good condition. R. O. Brown, of Main Street, is in great favor with his people, and in fact, with the entire town. There are some signs of encouragement on Wood Street. The splendid parsonage, almost completed last year by Bro. Lagrone, is now receiving the last strokes of the painter's brush."

The sad news has reached us of the death, at Keachie, La., of that godly layman, Bro. J. Tatum Fuller, who passed away on March 15, at the advanced age of eighty-nine years. He was the last of a large family of brothers and sisters. He lived near Keachie for fifty years and was beloved by all. He died as he had lived—in the faith of the Lord Jesus Christ. Having long borne the cross, he now wears the crown. An obituary of this grand old man will be furnished in due time.

Rev. T. H. McClendon, pastor of the Harrisonburg charge, Louisiana Conference, is passing through deep waters. A letter from him, dated Sicily Island, La., March 20, 1900, says: "My dear wife fell on sleep in Jesus to-day at 2 o'clock P. M., after about five months of severe illness. Her suffering during the last five or six weeks of her life were great than tongue can tell; but [her faith] in the special providence of God never faltered. She said her way was clear and bright." Bro. McClendon has our prayers and heartfelt sympathy in this sore bereavement.

Rev. Ben P. Jaco, pastor at Pleasant Grove, Miss., writes: "Measles and small-pox are prevailing in this section, and there is much general sickness as well. My own family has just now encountered measles, and I am the only one of seven that has had it. Our first Quarterly Conference was a decided success in every particular. We took position in favor of advancement. Bro. Lagrone, as new presiding elder, counts things as he goes. This church is not only pleased, but has received new inspiration from his presence and administration."

The Mississippi Orphans' Home.

MR. EDITOR: I have just returned from a trip to our Orphans' Home at Water Valley, which is my first since Bro. Harrison has had charge of the Home. On account of sickness in his own family, and among his assistants, and many of the children, who suffered from colds or la grippe about the time he assumed control of affairs, he was taxed to an extent that would have almost crushed many of us who are much younger.

I am glad to report that all are now well except his good wife, who is able to be up, with fair prospects of soon erjoying her normal good health.

I desire to congratulate Bro. Harrison on having Miss Longmeyer, Mrs. Jones, and his daughter, as his assistants, coupled with the advice and guidance of Sister Harrison. I am sure few, if any, children are more fortunate than those now of the Home, whose every word and action is watched by these sweet-spirited women. There have been seventeen children received into the Home since our last report to Conference; six withdrawn by parents, and four have been placed in homes, or adopted, which leaves a balance of fifty-nine in the Home at present.

From all I could see and learn, Bro. Harrison now has everything pretty well in hand, and is moving along nicely. He succeeded in getting thirty-nine out to Wood Street Church last Sabbath, and as the Spring opens I hope he may be able to materially increase this number.

With this Home now reflecting its rays into nearly every nook and corner of this grand old State, I believe it has already accomplished more for our blessed Lord than many of us have yet realized.

May the good work go on, for the time will not be far distant when this Home will be sending out soldiers to do battle for our Lord, who will be soldiers indeed.

FROM SHREVEPORT.

Through with my first round, I am free to report all things moving on well on my district. Owing to sickness, I was unable to be at five or six of my Conferences; but, as the Discipline directs, the preachers in charge presided in my absence, and with credit to themselves. A Methodist preacher ought always to be able to fill acceptably any place in the church when the occasion calls for it, even that of an absent Bishop. It is well to keep in mind that a Bishop with us is, after all, only "primus inter pares," and simply part of our Methodist machinery. As I took the train at Benson yesterday, a meeting of leading citizens was being held in a store. Called and presided over by Rev. J. B. Williams, our Pelican pastor, they were taking steps to drive from their midst a blind-tiger man, who, under the screen of a drug store, was selling whisky against the law. It seems that some of the fiery liquid had somewhat to do with the killing, on Thursday last, of a lad of fifteen by another lad slightly his senior. This was the immediate occasion of the uprising of the citizens against the blind-tiger man. From this on that town will be free from the illegal sale of liquor. This is an incident of many where a Methodist pastor is found equal to the occasion. The preachers of this land, seconded by the good women, if all solidly and actively engaged against this iniquitous traffic, could shut up all saloons and drive away forever the whisky devil. Pity of pities, is it not, that all Christians do not unite for the destruction of this monstrous evil!

RESOLUTIONS.

REV. C G ANDREWS, D D.

Whereas, It has pleased our heavenly Father, in his wise providence, to take unto himself the soul of our deceased brother, Rev. C. G Andrews, D. D.; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we lament the death of Dr. Andrews as a personal bereavement; as one of the noblest sons and truest friends of Centenary College, to whom the college is indebted for many years of faithful service and unselfish devotion; as a safe counselor and fearless advocate in his beloved church, and as a citizen above reproach.

Resolved, That we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family, and commend them to Him whom the husband and father so faithfully trusted and preached.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased; that they be spread upon our college Minutes, and that a copy be forwarded to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE for publication.

MAJOR PETER C JAMES.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take unto himself the spirit of our esteemed and beloved friend and brother, Major Peter C. James; And, whereas, In his death we feel a personal bereavement, in his demise Centenary College has lost a loyal son, whose philanthropic spirit and substantial aid has for many years enabled her to dispense Christian education to the youth of the South, which he loved so much; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we sympathize most deeply with the grief-stricken family, and hereby tender to them expression of this love and sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family of the deceased, spread upon the Minutes of Centenary College, and published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

DOLLAR DAY.

When and where the day originated I have not learned, but it is an institution or invention of our colored friends for the raising of church finances. On this day—previously announced—every member is expected to bring not less than one dollar for the special cause presented. Talking with a colored man a short time since, I learned that one church had collected on Dollar Day more than all the white churches in the bounds of which that church was located, raised for the support of their pastor.

At the recent Conference of the M. E. Church, held in this city, a strong paper on education was enthusiastically adopted, and it was resolved to turn the Dollar Day collection into that channel.

Naaman learned wisely and profited exceedingly from the advice of his servant. May we not act as wisely and profit as greatly by this lesson from those who serve us? Why could not every pastor appoint a Dollar Day for every church for the great Twentieth Century Fund? Impress by frequent announcement and persistent advertisement. Make the day a great day by special and extra services at the church. Dinner on the ground, if you please, and take up the dollars which have been accumulating for the occasion.

Brethren of the Jackson district, may I not insist upon this? By every argument we should lead every district in the State in this great movement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Pastors of the Louisiana Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: At the meeting of the Conference Board of Missions, held in Mansfield, March 21, Revs. Jno. T. Sawyer and J. B. Cassity were elected delegates, and Revs. C. D. Atkinson and W. B. Thomson, alternates, to the Ecumenical Conference of Missions, to convene in New York, April 21.

We were appointed by the Mission Board as a committee to raise funds sufficient to pay the expenses of delegates. They are to represent Louisiana Methodism at New York, and, therefore, our Conference Board of Missions consider that it would not be fair to have the burden fall on the delegates alone. We, therefore, most urgently and respectfully request that you take a collection for this purpose at once and forward the same to A. F. Jackson, Mansfield, La. The cost of sending our delegates to said Conference will approximate two hundred and twenty-five dollars for the round trip, including hotel bills, etc.

In the absence of this contribution we fear that Louisiana Methodism will not be represented. The twenty-first of April is close at hand, and prompt action and liberal responses on your part will put our people, through our representatives, in close touch with the aggressive spirit of the age by which millions are to be brought to Christ.

Fraternally yours,
A. F. JACKSON,
J. B. WILLIAMS,
Committee.

Mansfield, La., March 23, 1900.

Notice.

To the Preachers of the Brookhaven District

DEAR BRETHREN: Please send me at once the names of the delegates from your charges who expect to attend the District Conference. By promptly complying with this request you will contribute largely towards obviating possible inconveniences or embarrassments to your delegates or their host.

Come praying and expecting the Conference to be the occasion of a mighty spiritual uplifting to our people here and the district at large. Magnolia will give you a most cordial reception.

Fraternally,
F. M. KEEN.

Dedication Date Changed.

At the request of Bishop Galloway, we have changed the date for the dedication of the Magnolia Methodist Church from April 1 to April 15, at which time the Bishop will be with us and preach the dedicatory sermon. There will be a Twentieth Century Educational rally at the evening service addressed by the Bishop.

TO LOUISIANA LEAGUERS.

CALL TO PRAYER.

The State Conference will be held in Arcadia, April 12-16, and it is hoped that there will be a large delegation. The program is complete, the committee having spent much time and thought in its preparation; the railroad rate of one and a third fare for round trip, on certificate plan, has been secured; the Leaguers and the good people of Arcadia are prepared and waiting to give a hearty welcome, and everything indicates a successful session: but the object of the Conference, which is to deepen the spiritual life and to increase the number and efficiency of "workmen that needeth not to be ashamed," will not be reached unless the Leaguers throughout our State unite in daily prayer for the power and presence of the Spirit in our assembly. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." "Let us advance upon our knees"!

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Dr. Alonzo Monk will be present at the State League Conference and give an address on Missions and also on the Twentieth Century Movement. Some years ago, when this associate-editor was a student at the University of Alabama, Dr. Monk was the pastor. He was strong and eloquent in those days, and, doubtless, has grown in power with the years. By the way, he is a native of Mississippi, if we mistake not, his childhood days having been passed near Rose Hill, in Jasper county.

Our State corresponding secretary writes: "Announce the date of State Conference to be May 10-13. Another change had to be made on account of meeting of 'Daughters of Confederacy' in Vicksburg, May 2, 3, 4. All pastors of circuits regret the change from the last week of April, because that would have given them the 'fifth' Sunday to spend in Vicksburg. A circuit rider can not conveniently be absent from his charge any other Sunday than a 'fifth;' and to make a date suitable to the country pastors ought to be considered in fixing the dates of such gatherings."

All the railroads have agreed to give one and one-third rates to Vicksburg on the certificate plan. A great meeting is expected. The editor of the Epworth Era will be there, and many loyal, enthusiastic Leaguers.

Our State secretary complains that she finds great difficulty in getting the directory of Jackson and Natchez districts. "Those people—secretaries and all—are as silent as the tomb."

When answering advertisements please mention the ADVOCATE.

See our offer on another page.

Most people like an enclosure about the home. They like the delicious sense of exclusion, security, and ownership, that comes from being free from intrusion of men and animals. Many of us have been troubled in the past in the selection of an appropriate fence for surrounding the home. The board and wood picket fences are objectionable because of their great cost, because they decay rapidly under shade, because they are expensive to keep in repair, and, above all, because they obscure the beauty of the surroundings, and add nothing in attractiveness. A modern, up-to-date fence, which is free from all the objections, and which is superior from every point of view, is the Hartman Steel Rod Picket Fence, manufactured by the Hartman Mfg. Co., of Elwood City, Pa. It is strong, durable, and long-lived, and when accompanied with the Hartman Ornamental Steel Gates, adds very materially to the beauty of an enclosure. It is ideal for all kinds of public enclosures, as cemeteries, school grounds, public squares, parks, church-yards, etc. The cost is inconsiderable when you take into account the beauty and utility of the fence. Write these people for illustrated catalogue. Address them at Elwood City, Pa., or 309 Broadway, New York.

Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

The Royal is made from the most highly refined and wholesome ingredients, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is cheaper at its price than any similar article.

Samples of mixtures made in imitation of baking powders, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food, and in many cities their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a corrosive poison, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.

A Few Days Brew Of Deadly Uric Acid.

In a few days you may brew enough uric acid in your body to produce death.

Your kidneys are your only salvation.

Because when they are well, they filter out this deadly poison.

So, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

Uric acid poison irritates the nerves, and causes rheumatic pains in joints, muscles and limbs, catarrh of the bladder, headache, backache, stomach and liver trouble, shortness of breath, heart trouble, dizziness, nervousness, irritability, lassitude, loss of ambition, weakness and wasting away.

Red brick dust and similar sediments in the urine are also caused by various salts of uric acid.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy.

It instantly relieves the congested, overworked kidneys, and gradually brings them back to health.

Healthy kidneys keep down the excess of uric acid, and you soon feel the benefit in new health and strength.

Swamp-Root should at once be taken upon the least sign of ill-health. It will make you well and is for sale the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices, fifty-cent and one dollar.

Swamp-Root is used in the leading hospitals; recommended by skillful physicians in their private practice; and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney and bladder troubles.

To prove its wonderful efficacy, send your name and address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., mentioning this paper, when you will receive, free of all charge, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a valuable book, by mail, prepaid. This book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured.

THE TOUCH OF A VANISHED HAND.

BY JOHN TROLAND.

We sigh for the touch of a vanished hand—
The hand of a friend most dear,
Who has passed from our side to the shadowy land—
But what of the hand that is near?

To the living's touch is the soul inert
That weeps o'er the silent urn?
For the love that lives is our hand alert
To make some sweet return?

Do we answer back in a fretful tone,
When life's duties press us sore?
Is our praise as full as if they were gone,
And could hear our praise no more?

As the days go by, are our hands more swift
For a trifle beyond their share,
Than to grasp—for a kindly, helpful lift—
The burden some one must bear?

We sigh for the touch of a vanished hand,
And we think ourselves sincere;
But what of the friends that about us stand,
And the touch of the hand that's here?

—Youth's Companion.

SPURGEON'S FIRST AND LAST DEBT.

The first volume of the long-expected "Autobiography of Spurgeon" has just appeared in London. It promises to be a great work when completed. One of the incidents of the preacher's childhood he rehearses autobiographically:

"When I was a very small boy in pinafores and went to a woman's school, it so happened that I wanted a stick of slate pencil and had no money to buy it with. I was afraid of being scolded for losing my pencils so often, for I was a real careless little fellow, and so did not care to ask at home. What, then, was I to do?

"There was a little shop in the place, where nuts and tops and cakes and balls were sold by old Mrs. Pearson, and sometimes I had seen boys and girls get trusted by the old lady. I argued with myself that Christmas was coming, and that somebody or other would be sure to give me a penny then, and perhaps even a whole silver sixpence. I would, therefore, go into debt for a stick of slate pencil and be sure to pay at Christmas. I did not feel easy about it, but still I screwed my courage up and went into the shop. One farthing was the amount, and as I had never owed anything before and my credit was good, the pencil was handed over by the kind dame and I was in debt! It did not please me much and I felt as if I had done wrong, but I little knew how soon I should smart for it.

"How my father came to hear of this little stroke of business I never knew; but some little bird or other whistled it to him, and he was very soon down upon me in right earnest. God bless him for it; he was a sensible man, and none of your children-spoilers; he did not intend to bring up his children to speculate, and play at what big rogues call 'financing,' and, therefore, he knocked my getting into debt on the head at once, and no mistake. He gave me a very powerful lecture upon getting into debt, and how like it was to stealing, and upon the way in which people were ruined by it, and how a boy who would owe a farthing might one day owe a hundred pounds, and get into prison, and bring his family into disgrace. It was a lecture, indeed; I think I can hear it now, and can feel my ears tingle at the recollection of it. Then I was marched off to the shop, like a deserter marched into barracks, crying bitterly all down the street, and feeling dreadfully ashamed, because I thought everybody knew I was in debt. The farthing was paid amid many solemn warnings, and the poor debtor was set free, like a bird let out of a cage. How sweet it felt to be out of debt! How did my little heart vow and declare that nothing should ever tempt me into debt again!

"It was a fine lesson, and I have never forgotten it. If all the boys were inoculated with the same doctrine when they were young, it would be as good as a fortune to them, and save them wagon-loads of trouble in after life. God bless my father, say I, and send a breed of such fathers into old England to save her from being eaten up with villainy, for what with companies, and schemes, and paper money, the nation is getting to be as rotten as touchwood! Ever since that early sickening, I have hated debt as Luther hated the Pope."—Exchange.

WHAT DO YOU READ?

A detective in Detroit, Mich., was called in by a defranded company to secure the arrest of the manager, who had absconded. There was no clue to his destination that the company could furnish, and as he had had three days' start, there was some fear that he would not be caught. The detective searched the missing man's house in hope of finding a clue. Among other things he found was a ticket entitling him to borrow books from a certain library. He went there, and obtained a list of the books the defaulter had obtained. He found that they were all books describing the Central American States. He drew the inference that the man was going there, and immediately telegraphed a description of him to New Orleans, asking the police to watch departing steamers. The next day the fugitive was arrested in the office of a steamship line, to which he went to purchase a ticket for Nicaragua.

Suppose we should apply the detective's test to some of our Christian people! Would we infer that they wanted and expected to go to heaven, by what they are reading? The sensational novel and the daily newspaper, with its Sunday edition, are emphatically "of the earth, earthy." How, then, can they interest one who is trying to spend eternity in the society of God and angels?

John wrote in his introduction to the Apocalypse, "Blessed is he that readeth . . . the words of this prophecy." Why? Because their interest in it would show that they regarded the New Jerusalem therein described as their future home. But how many read that Book as they read the will in which an earthly home is devised to them?—Herald and Presbyter.

SUNDAY READING.

Keep your Sundays free for earnest reading. Burn up the Sunday newspaper. It is an indefensible, intolerable curse. It exists simply and solely to swell the income of wealthy and greedy newspaper proprietors. A Christian ought to be ashamed to have it in the house. Is not a man sufficiently secularized by six days' contact with the world without dipping his mind on Sunday morning once more into the muddy stream in which he has dipped himself on the preceding six days? What can be expected of a Christian in public worship who comes to church with a newspaper stuffed into his mind? He is cold as a clod to the touch of the preacher, and lowers the spiritual temperature of the entire congregation. William E. Gladstone was an ideal worshiper in God's house. He consecrated all his great powers upon the sermon. He was interested because he was informed. He was informed because throughout life he had made diligent use of his Sundays. He declared in old age that he would not have lived so long had he not always kept his Sundays quite apart from his political life. It was pure refreshment to him to turn to holier things on that day. It enabled him to learn more of religious subjects than perhaps any other layman of our country. It gave him that firm and splendid ground which ennobled and hallowed all his actions. "Go thou and do likewise."—Chas E. Jefferson, D. D., in the Congregationalist.

HOW CHARACTER IS MADE.

A purpose of the heart is a determination which embodies the full force of one's moral character. It is a fixed, full, indestructible alliance of one's self with the cause which he espouses, or it may be of a nature to cover only a solitary course of conduct, or even a single act, but is, even then, of the same quality. Determinations based on character are as far above ordinary volitions as the spirit of a man is above his intellect. Indeed, in all well-rounded manhood the intellectual faculties are mere instruments of the higher, spiritual nature, so that the purpose of the heart carries with it the purpose of the head. This Daniel-like type of manhood is the kind needed in this day. There is no treasure of the Church or the State equal to the young man of indomitable integrity who can say "No" to the enticements which attack his character, and say it with such firmness and force that it can be heard above the clamor of passion, above the allurements to self-indulgence and the dangerous voice of mere ambition. The shame of our times is in an order of young men who constantly ask, "Will it pay?" or "What will come of it?" in a worldly and selfish way. The young man who in his innermost heart prefers to do right and be poor, rather than to do wrong and be rich; to be clean and obscure, rather than be tainted and famous, is not only an honor to his generation, but is, more than likely, in the long run, to be honored by it.—Sunday-School Magazine.

PRICELESSNESS OF CHARACTER.

Boys, and even young men, do not appreciate the high value of character—though they may think they do. It is only when one gets further along in life that its pricelessness is perceived. It brings immediate respect, honor and prosperity. The boy who is known to be truthful, known to be faithful and trustworthy in every place, is looked upon with warm friendship and admiration by people whom he does not suspect of such sentiments toward him. He holds the key to the homes and to the business houses of the best people. He is in the line of first promotion, wherever he is. A cigar will place him under distrust; a glass of beer will condemn him as a counterfeit coin. So will a lie. So will disrespectful conduct toward his parents. Any of these is a fatal mark of discredit. Nothing is so admirable, nor anything so much admired and prized, as a pure, honest, honorable boy or young man. Character is the most precious thing in the world.—Chicago Interior.

MAKE HOME "SWEET HOME."

A great singer had just finished singing "Home, Sweet Home," and many of the audience were in tears.

"It is a beautiful song," said a girl to an older woman who sat next to her.

SUPPRESSED

G. F. P.
(Gerstle's Female Panacea.)

Mary A. Hunt, of Marion, Ark., writes:—
Your G. F. P. was recommended to me, so I tried one bottle and it has entirely cured my complaint. It is the best medicine in the world for suffering women and I use it regularly as a tonic. May God bless L. Gerstle & Co., MARY A. HUNT.

Try G. F. P. at once. It will make you strong, vivacious, regular and cure you of any form of female weakness.

L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

"Yes," was the reply, "and the sentiment to which it moves all these people is beautiful. How much happier the world would be if everyone had as much principle as sentiment on the subject, and followed out a plain, every-day rule of making home sweet."

The girl turned thoughtfully away. She hardly heard the next song. She was acknowledging to herself that, in spite of her love for her home, she made it unhappy every day of her life by her willfulness and quick temper. How many of us really do our best to make home happy?—Selected.

A LOVING WORD.

"I had rather have a loving word said about me behind my back than any other gift or favor on earth," said a woman whose pathway in life had been made difficult by a cruel slander which had its origin in the thoughtless criticism of a friend. The careless speech, having unusual power, as coming from such a source, had been repeated and garbled until it assumed a form which the speaker never intended. "If you can say nothing good of another, keep silence," is a golden adage. Another as excellent is: "If you say a good word for another, say it" generously, freely. A genial influence follows the man or woman of kind and prudent speech; and a very uncertain one follows the malicious or careless talker.—Selected.

FALSE PRIDE.

When you see a youth who will do any sort of work, no matter how menial it may be, rather than be idle, you can make up your mind that he amounts to something. The young man who would starve before he would do anything beneath what he conceives to be his dignity, is not made of the right kind of stuff to cut much of a figure in this life.

All honest toil is honorable. There is nothing so morally degrading as that aversion to manual labor which is usually a combination of laziness and conceit.—Journal and Messenger.

TAKE NOTICE

That we are now handling two different styles of the Holman Bible in Bourgeois type. One we sell to paid-up subscribers at $1.50, the other at $1.30. The $1.30 Bible is substantially the same we have hitherto sold at $1.50. The one we sell at $1.50 is a far better Bible than has ever been sold at such a price. It is a marvel of cheapness. See our offer.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE AND "MISSIONARY INSTITUTE,"

AT MAGNOLIA, MISS., APRIL 25-29.

As this date includes a fifth Sunday, the preachers on circuits can spend the Sunday at District Conference without disturbance to the order of their appointments. Preachers on the railroad can leave Magnolia, Saturday, at 8:21 P. M., or at 10:28 P. M., where they are compelled to be in their pulpits on Sunday. Let as many as can arrange to stay over Sunday. Let us make this the best District Conference we have ever had.

PROGRAM.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25.

9 A. M.—Opening service and organization.

9:30 A. M.—Consideration of Item 1, Par. 71, of Discipline. The preachers in charge will please be ready with written statements giving: 1. Number of prayer meetings; 2. Number of other social meetings; 3. Average attendance on preaching; 4. Number of communion services; 5. Per cent. of membership who take communion; 6. Do you conduct public worship according to the Discipline (Pars. 216, 217, 218, 219, and 220)? 7. What is the general "spiritual state" of your charge? Four minutes allotted to each preacher.

11 A. M.—Opening sermon by H. B. Trevillion, followed by the Lord's Supper administered by C. McDonald.

2:30 P. M.—Opening service of afternoon session.

2:40 P. M.—Consideration of Item 5. Written answers by the recording stewards of the various charges to the following questions: 1. Has your charge adopted any system, as permitted in Par. 322? 2. If not, has your charge put into operation the plan laid down in Par. 323? 3. Do you get payments from every member, women and children included? 4. What salary has been fixed for your pastor? 5. How much of it has already been paid? 6. What are prospects for paying the whole? Four minutes allotted to each recording steward. If the recording steward can not be present, let him write answers to stove questions, and send by some one else, or by mail.

4 P. M.—Written statements by the preachers in charge: 1. Number and condition of houses of worship and parsonages; 2. Will your charge pay assessment for American Bible Society?

7:30 P. M.—Sermon by J. T. Leggett.

HARRIS—Mrs. WILHELMIN HARRIS was born in Franklin parish, La., Dec. 28, 1876, and died Feb. 8, 1900. She was married to Mr. Willis Harris, April 23, 1899. Her maiden name was Osborn. When in her seventeenth year, while attending a Free Methodist revival, she was convicted of sin, and a few days later united with the Magnolia M. E. Church, South. From this time there was a decided change in the manner of her life, for she gave up all worldly amusements and did what she conceived to be right, but, no doubt, was not converted until the following year, while attending a revival at Magnolia. Of this event she wrote in her diary, "I was sorely troubled of my hardness of heart, and wept and prayed earnestly at the altar for religion and the forgiveness of my sins." A later entry is, "I joined the church at Oakley, Sept. 20, '92; got religion, July 27, '93."

All who knew her testify to her noble Christian character. One young lady said: "When I was with her I could always be good. If I could be with her all the time, I would be a good Christian." Many other young people claim that she had great influence over them for good.

Thus, by her firm, consistent life and Christian example, she did much good, and now she's greatly missed by the church and community; but, her work ended, her suffering and sorrows o'er, she has fallen asleep.

"As'eep in Jesus, that blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

Farewell, dear blossom, to heaven flown,
Forget us not upon thy flight;
Forever will thy dear name shine
Like polar star on darksome night.
In the department long shall you live
Wherever heart-beats are sincere,
While all your sons and letters shall give
New glories with each passing year.

SCARBOROUGH—Sister SARAH ELISABETH SCARBOROUGH, daughter of Bro. and Sister Powel, was born near Pearl River, in Washington parish, La., Oct. 15, 1867, and was married to Bro. Charles Scarborough, Feb. 10, 1887. She joined the M. E. Church, South, August, 1895 and has lived a consistent member thereof since that time. She was not demonstrative, but lived a simple Christian life. She was a devoted wife and mother, and discharged faithfully the duties of these relationships. She leaves her husband, with seven children. She gave expressions of satisfaction and assurance during her last moments. She was sentient to the last.

WINE OF CARDUI

How a Woman Suffers.

HOWELL, IND., Nov. 26.

I will always praise Wine of Cardui. It has done me more good than all the medicines I have ever taken in my life. Please send a book about female diseases to the ladies whose names I enclose.

Mrs. MINNIE STODGHILL.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It isn't necessary for a woman to give particulars. When she says she has "female troubles", other women know what that means. It means days and nights of endless suffering. it means headaches which no tongue can describe. it means that terrible bearing and dragging down in the lower abdomen. It means agonizing backache, and shoulder ache, and arm ache, and aches in the lower limbs. It means nerves on edge—the blues—despondency and loss of hope. it means debilitating drains that the doctors call leucorrhœa. it means martyrdom—sometimes even death seems preferable. And still Wine of Cardui will utterly put those diseases and pains to rout. It has cured thousands of cases when nothing else on earth would. To the budding woman, to the bride, to the wife, to the expectant mother, to those going through the Change of Life, this Vegetable Wine is a blessing.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to April, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

Furnished Free with every machine are the following named accessories: One Foot Hemmer, One Screw Driver, One Wrench, One Oil Can and Oil, One Gauge Screw, One Extra Check Spring, One Package of Needles, Five Bobbins and One Instruction Book.

Columbian No. 4.

EXCELLENCE OF THE COLUMBIAN.—All wearing parts are of case-hardened steel possessing great durability, and by the turning of a screw all lost motion caused by wear can be taken up. All parts are fitted so accurately that the machines are absolutely noiseless, and as easy running as fine adjustment and best mechanical skill is possible to produce. No expense or time is spared to make them perfect in every respect, as every machine passes a rigid inspection by competent men before leaving the factory.

NICKEL PLATED.—The balance wheel and many of the fine parts are nickel plated, with other parts finely enameled and ornamented, giving it a rich appearance.

A Self Setting Needle and Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle are used in the Columbian High-Arm Sewing Machine. They are so simple that any one can easily operate them in a few minutes' time, as our Instruction Book is fully illustrated, showing how to do all kinds of fancy work with attachments.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

ADDITIONAL ACCESSORIES.—Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screw Driver, Oil Can with Oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb Screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated, and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

No. 3—Drop leaf, Bent cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $29. Our price, $17.

No. 4—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $31. Our price, $17.75.

No. 5—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making a seven-drawer machine. Dealer's price, $33. Our price, $18.50.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

At the Capitol.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, the disease assuming a more severe and dangerous forms. I became very weak, and lost flesh rapidly, I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I gained twelve pounds in three months. My strength and health, my appetite and my digestion were perfectly restored, and now I feel as young and vigorous as I ever did in my life.

L. J. ALLDRED,
Door-keeper Ga. State Senate,

Arcadia District Conference.

The District Conference for the Arcadia district will convene at Minden, Wednesday morning, May 23, at 8 A. M. The opening sermon will be preached the evening before, at 8 P. M., by Rev Myder B. Thomason.

I have fixed the above date so as not to take the eighteen pastors in the district away from their charges in the months of either July or August, when most of the churches in this district hold their revival meetings.

And now a word of exhortation to the local preachers, recording stewards, and delegates elect: You have been chosen by your brethren to represent them in this Conference, and I hope you will feel that you can not fail to do your duty I know that May is a busy time with farmers, but there are the fewest number of the sixty-three members of this District Conference that can not arrange to attend, if they will work to that end, and make a little sacrifice of time for the good of the church.

The Conference will close on Friday night, the twenty-fifth, with a love-feast and sacramental service B. T. CREWS.

Arcadia, La., March 20, 1900.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is without an equal for swiftness to cure.

Notice.

A home wanted with a good Christian family by a widow and one child; willing to do house work. For further information address R. L. WEBB.

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

In the April Delineator there are sixteen portraits of the fair and patriotic daughters of the South. The article that they illustrate deals with The Patriotic Work of Southern Women. It is a testimonial to the ability of Southern women for public organized work. Waldon Fawcett is the author. The fourth and last article by Cornelia Atwood Pratt regarding The Young Girl appears in this number.

Dr. John Watson gives us, in the March McClure's, an impressive and illuminating account of the beginning of Christ's active earthly ministry. Cleveland Moffett tells how Rostand wrote the most popular play of recent times, Cyrano de Bergerac, and gives an interesting account of him in his own home and at his work, along with some characteristic passages from his conversation. Captain Joshua Slocum tells how he sailed the most heavy and unwieldy of torpedo-boats, the "Destroyer," from New York to Brazil through a succession of the fiercest storms. And Cy Warman describes his ride on a locomotive over the new railroad through the White Pass into the Klondike, and gives some fine stories from the experiences and adventures of the hardy builders of the road.

Other contributions are: a pathetic story of New England life by M. Grace Pope; the story of a remarkable rescue from prison, by Tighe Hopkins; and the story of a great reaping contest between Judy Brady and Anne Daly, by Shan F. Bullock.

START right. In painting, the first or priming coat is important. It is the foundation. It is a mistake to think anything is good enough for it. If a mixture of Zinc, Barytes, etc., is used the paint will surely crack and peel.

The only safe paint for priming is Pure White Lead. It combines with the oil, forming a tough, elastic coat that penetrates and will adhere to the surface. The brands in the margin are genuine.

FREE For colors use National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors. Any shade desired is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving full information and showing samples of Colors, also pamphlet entitled "Uncle Sam's Experience With Paluta" forwarded upon application.

Free to Inventors.

The experience of C. A. Snow & Co. in obtaining more than 20,000 patents for inventors has enabled them to helpfully answer many questions relating to the protection of intellectual property. This they have done in a pamphlet treating briefly of United States and foreign patents, with cost of same, and how to procure them; trade marks, designs, caveats, infringements, decisions in leading patent cases, etc., etc.

This pamphlet will be sent free to anyone writing to C. A. Snow & Co., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Hon. F. M. Eddy, of Minnesota, delivered the principal address at the annual meeting of the Washington Congregational Club, held this week, his topic being, "Corner-stones of the Republic." He said, in part: "The American Republic is a quadrangle, a perfect square, and it towers above the other governmental structures of the world as the Washington monument towers above the other buildings in this city of statesmen. Under each of the four corners is a cornerstone, shaped by the Divine Architect of the universe, and they rest not on the sandy soil of superficial opinion or the substratum of error, but deep in the everlasting bed-rock of virtue, so that the building never gets out of plumb. And these four corner-stones are the church, the home, the school, and the press. All of these are of equal importance, but all are not of equal honor. Each is separate from the other, yet they are inseparably connected, for without the church we would have no civilization. The theologians tell us, 'No cross, no crown,' and I tell you that the cross is, always has been, and always will be, the advance agent of civilization. No barbarous or savage land in all the world was ever civilized until the church plow upturned the soil on which to sow the seed of enlightenment. Without this civilization we could have no home; without the home it would not be possible to uphold the school, and without the school the press could not exist a single day. So you see that while each of the corner-stones is separate and distinct, there is mutuality between them, an inter-dependence of one upon the other." Mr. Eddy's concluding words were, "Then come what will, come what may, let the rain of adversity fall, the winds of misrule blow, and the floods of war sweep against it, as long as God reigns our house will stand and fall not, because of its firm foundation."

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the American Tract Society was celebrated by a well-attended afternoon meeting at the Church of the Covenant. Dr. Judson Swift, of New York, secretary of the society, after pointing out that the society was evangelical, but not sectarian, its mission being to spread the teachings of Jesus Christ, told of the work of the past year, which included the wide distribution of 2,700,000 volumes and pamphlets, many printed in Spanish. Dr. Wynkoop, who was a missionary in India for some years, told of the far-reaching effects of the work of this society and the kindred organization, the British and Foreign Bible Society of London. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, of Brooklyn, who was the principal speaker, told of the work of the society during its seventy-five years, and what had been accomplished, and concluded by saying: "In the language of our patriotic President, we owe a 'plain duty to Porto Rico,' but it is a duty more than that of relief from physical want; it is a plain duty of more than commercial and financial aid we owe to Porto Rico. It is our plain duty to give to the island a school system, and all the benefits and blessings of our Christian religion. This the American Tract Society stands ready and willing to do, and only appeal to you for your aid and support in undertaking the great work."

The new Philippine Commission met in Washington this week, and organized and talked over its work. The commission will start for the Philippines shortly.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus, made to the United States Supreme Court this week, involves the vexed question of whether the Constitution extends to the island possession of the United States. The writ is asked for in behalf of a Porto Rican, who claims to have been sent to prison without processes provided for by the United States Constitution, which he claims was extended over Porto Rico when the island became the property of the United States. It is hoped that the court, in passing upon the application, will settle this constitutional dispute, which threatens trouble in Congress.

Officials who conscientiously perform their own duties are plentiful in Washington, but officials who, in addition, have the moral courage to compel those over whom they have jurisdiction to do what is right and proper, are rare enough to cause regret when one of them retires from the public service. Hon. A. P. Greeley, who has resigned after sixteen years in the United States Patent Office, during which he has filled many positions of responsibility, including that of Commissioner of Patents, to engage in the practice of patent law in Washington, is one of the latter class. His work in purifying the practice before the Patent Office by disbarring such swindling attorneys as John Wedderburn, gave him a high place in the esteem of all honest attorneys, and earned more recognition from the government than he received. Congress should see to it that provision is made to pay such men as Mr. Greeley salaries large enough to keep them in the public service. The Patent Office especially always need the services of such men.

Secretary Root has ordered that ministers designated for appointment as chaplains in the army shall pass a rigid examination, physically and mentally, before being commissioned. The physical examination is the same that applicants for lieutenants' commissions are required to pass. The mental examination has been especially prepared, and deals largely with history, sacred and profane, ancient and modern.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY MOVEMENT IN METHODISM.

What is known as the Twentieth Century Thank-offering Movement among the Methodists was the magnificent conception of a distinguished layman, the Hon. R. W. Perks, the worthy son of an historic Methodist minister, an able lawyer, and an influential member of the House of Commons. He originated the idea, outlined the scheme, and, in the United Kingdom, has been its capable and enthusiastic leader. The suggestion found ready and eager acceptance. That the birth of a new century would be a fitting time for spiritual rededication, and the grateful recognition of the signal mercies of God during the past one hundred years, appealed eloquently to the imagination of every English Methodist. The ablest and oldest ecclesiastical statesmen and connectional leaders united with the younger and more enterprising in hailing the movement as clearly providential and almost infinitely potential for good. And already the wisdom of the daring scheme has been abundantly vindicated. The suggestion was eagerly caught up by other members of the large ecclesiastical household, and is to-day stirring the heart and quickening the step of world-wide Methodism. . . .

Emphasis is laid upon the fact that this is to be a Thank-offering Fund. It is not an obligation to meet current demands of the coming and growing kingdom of Christ, but an expression of gratitude for blessings received and results achieved. And surely we have much to inspire that deepest and holiest sentiment. We live in a glorious time. Ours is a magnificent heritage. Referring to the blessing of civil liberty achieved by our fathers beyond the sea, and transmitted to this grateful generation, the Quaker poet of America exultantly exclaimed, We, too, are heirs of Runnymede! Yea, more—we are heirs of all the ages. But the most marvelous contributions to our princely inheritance have been made by the wonderful century now drawing to an eventful close. The story of its dazzling triumphs in the world of the material alone—in science, discovery, and invention—reads like the gorgeous dream of some Hebrew lad on the starlit plains of Judea. All great discoveries and inventions that have added to our comforts, and speeded our travel, and brought into close neighborhood the nations of the world, belong to this single century.

But it is in the realm of the spiritual that we find greatest occasion for joyful thanksgiving. Even more wonderful than the achievements of mind are the triumphs of righteousness. Through these hundred years God has moved in a mighty and mysterious way. Since this century was born the map of the world has entirely changed, and every locked part of earth has opened to the heralds of the King of kings. We have seen "the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God."

Mighty movements have been projected during this now dying century that mark the redemptive triumphs of the Holy Spirit. Others have been enlarged and strengthened, indicating the speedy fulfillment of glorious prophecy. Marvelous have been the results of a hundred years. . . . As Methodists, we have occasion for great rejoicing and generous thanksgiving. This century, with an affluent hand, has poured upon us the blessings of Heaven. It has vindicated the providential mission of Methodism, and reauthenticated its credentials as an institution of God. It has seen us grow from a few thousands to many millions, and from a little company to a great army. This single century has brought to us millions of members, multiplied millions of wealth, mighty influence, wonderful facilities, vast opportunities, almost exhaustless resources, and the weightiest responsibilities. The whole number of Methodists in the United States at the beginning of the year 1800 was 61,351, with only 272 traveling preachers. To-day there are 5,809,516, with 36,424 traveling preachers and 53,023 houses of worship. In 1800 there was not a single college owned by Methodists in America; now there are more than two hundred and forty colleges and universities, attended by multiplied thousands of young men and women. In 1865, after a four-years' war, there were only 400,000 members in all Southern Methodism; now we stand 1,500,000 strong. Surely we have occasion for giving praise unto the Lord of the harvest.

Methodism is a large and grateful debtor to endowments. We are fortunate beneficiaries of great foundations. Without scholarships and fellowships the Wesleys could never have been the learned leaders of a great spiritual revolution, and, in all probability, there never would have been the Methodist Church. To the endowments at the Charter House School, Christ Church College, and Lincoln College, Methodism owes the culture and remarkable scholarship of John Wesley. Nominated to the Charter House by the Duke of Buckingham, he was sent to that school in January, 1714, and left in 1720, when "he took up to Christ Church with him a school exhibition of £40 a year, and was reckoned a very promising classic, with a great turn for Latin verse." And it was the fellowship in Lincoln College that gave him modest support while the Spirit-baptized young collegian was organizing one of the mightiest ethical and spiritual movements in the history of the world. But for these ancient and liberal foundations, the impecunious rector of Epworth would never have educated his gifted sons, and Methodism, as a great ecclesiasticism, might never have had a history. This is also to be a Preparation Fund.

We are facing a wonderful to-morrow, and must prepare for it. The church can no more go into the next century with the crude implements and meager equipments of a hundred years ago than a nation can wage successful war with the wooden navies and flint-and-steel battalions of the time of Cromwell. And the best preparation for the new century is the strengthening of the educational strongholds of the church. There is our great and increasing need, and there is the church's most imminent danger. The almost fabulous wealth of some great institutions of learning is increasing the embarrassment of church colleges. They are forced into fatal competition. However vital to the stability of the nation and the growth of the church, their efficiency is seriously menaced and their very existence imperiled. I would not arrest the flow of liberality into the treasury of any college, but those gifts are an appeal to the church to strengthen her foundations, and that right speedily. . . . A liberal share of our thank-offerings should be devoted to educational work in foreign fields. Schools in heathen lands are a necessity. After all our evangelistic efforts, the speediest way to the regeneration and reconstruction of benighted peoples is through the home and school. Those acquainted with conditions in heathen countries know that the weakest point in every mission is an untrained native ministry. And that training is not best secured by the coming of choice young men to the United States. While much is learned from contact with our Christian civilization, there are positive disadvantages which, in many cases, have proved an absolute disqualification for efficient missionary service. New social ideals are adopted and habits formed which alienate them from the national, racial, and social sympathies of their people. The only way to secure a well-trained, efficient native ministry is to equip and endow schools and colleges in the several mission fields. There is a striking illustration in the remarkable history of Robert College.

Results have already attested the sublime wisdom of this magnificent movement. Not for a half-century has there been such nervous energy and divine impatience in the step and spirit of Methodism. There are many tokens of abundant blessing, many indications of substantial progress.

1. A more intelligent church life. The attachment to all the essential principles of Methodism will be stronger and dearer than ever before. There has been a rereading of church history, a restudy of essential doctrines, and a replighting of spiritual faith. Out of this great revival of the study of Methodist history will come a generation of more loyal and intelligent Methodists.

2. A general spiritual awakening. The new century's call for a deeper consecration of the church and ministry is already bearing fruit. There has been much and earnest prayer. The preaching has been direct, spiritual, and powerful. Everywhere the indications point to a sweeping continental revival. Down the long line of militant hosts marching orders have been given, and the battle is joined. Notes of victory are in the air. A mighty triumph is near. With millions of money for work, may God give us millions of redeemed souls to work!

3. The offerings are encouraging and gratifying. Those from whom least might be expected are doing most generous deeds. God alone will know what many names on the historic roll really mean. In England, where the canvass has been systematically conducted, the giving has been liberal and general. The stories of some gifts make a spiritual romance worthy to be mentioned with the widow's two mites so generously praised by the Lord of the human heart. On a London circuit an old Methodist of very limited means, by rigid economy, was able to give a guinea for each member of the family. But that did not suffice the dear old saint. The pastor writes: "I called upon him with the historic roll, so that the three might sign. To my astonishment he said, 'Three lines must be left for the children gone to heaven.'"

And scores of such pathetic and inspiring incidents are being reported on both sides of the sea. . . . The movement is broadening the spirit of benevolence. Interest in all great enterprises is deepened and enlarged. This is specially true in England, where the movement had its providential birth, and has been so efficiently and enthusiastically conducted. The Hon. R. W. Perks, in a recent address, made this cheering statement: "The principle of the fund is spreading the incidence of liberality over a far wider area than has ever been covered before by any of the great connectional funds. Thousands of people are contributing to this fund who have never given, except very slightly, or, perhaps, not at all, to any other connectional effort."

And the same can be said for those sections of Southern Methodism where the movement has had intelligent and large-hearted leadership.

I advise a rigid adherence to the original idea out of which this mighty movement was born: that every Methodist, every friend of Methodism, should have opportunity to make a thank-offering. The watchword among the Methodists in England has been, "One person, one guinea." So on this side of the sea it is hoped that every name will be on the historic roll, and opposite each name at least one grateful dollar. . . . My final word is to the presiding elders and pastors. Upon them most heavily rests the success of this movement. What they decree the church will do. I plead for their enthusiastic leadership. And as a motto for this last year of the world's greatest century, I commend the burning words of William Carey, "Attempt great things for God; expect great things from God."—Bishop Galloway, in The Methodist Review.

EX-GOV. STONE, OF MISSISSIPPI.

FUNERAL ADDRESS BY BISHOP CHARLES B. GALLOWAY.

Gov. John M. Stone, of Mississippi, died at Holly Springs on March 26, and was buried on the twenty-seventh at Iuka, his old home. The following address on the occasion was delivered by Bishop Galloway:

I have come to join with all the people of Mississippi in paying some fitting tribute to the memory of one of the greatest and most distinguished sons of our State. Tenderly loved for his many personal virtues, confidently trusted because of the heroism and sturdiness of his character, and universally admired for the splendid and stainless patriotism of his public career. He goes to his grave full of years and honors, but amid the lamentations of a bereaved commonwealth. Mississippi may have had statesmen of more brilliant gifts and conspicuous attainments, but she never had a braver leader, or sturdier citizen, or purer patriot, or wiser counselor, or more incorruptible official, than John Marshall Stone. He was distinguished not so much for the brilliancy of his genius as for the even balance of his faculties and almost perfect poise of his character. He was remarkable not so much for the depth of his learning as for the breadth of his knowledge and the strength of his convictions.

Before the grave is forever closed over our honored dead we may well pause to recall and enforce some of the lessons of his noble and useful life. I would do this, not to praise the majestic sleeper in that silent coffin, but to hold up lofty ideals for the emulation of our young manhood. I counted it a happy circumstance, if not a gracious Providence, that Gov. Stone should have closed his public career as the president of an institution of learning—as the counselor and instructor of youth. There was so much in his life to command the admiration and emulation of young ambition.

A few of the characteristics that distinguished him as a man and a representative of the people I crave the privilege of recounting. To trace the history of his public career as soldier and citizen, and legislator and governor, would be a patriotic pleasure, but the hour will not allow.

He was a man of unaffected modesty and simplicity. Without pretense in manner or arrogance of spirit, he bore himself with the quiet dignity of refined and conscious strength. There was never any effort either to conceal his presence or make himself known, and never any nervous fear that he would not be recognized and duly honored. Singularly free from any disposition to attitudinize, he despised the bizarre methods often employed to advertise and attract attention. He was courteous without obsequiousness, dignified without austerity, and friendly without familiarity.

Gov. Stone was a man of singular sincerity. He was almost as transparent as the light. There were not enough shadows in his great soul "to hide a sinister motive." He was never diplomatic in manner or statement, and never attempted by indirection the achievement of any purpose. There was no mistaking his position on any question, or his attitude toward any movement. Hence he commanded universal and absolute confidence, and those who differed with him most widely in opinion honored the man and admired the transiucent splendor of his character.

He was a man of rugged honesty and unfaltering integrity. In public, as in private, life he was the same upright, forceful, manly man, as unwarped and majestic as a royal palm of the tropics. Among many others there was one magnificent illustration of this distinguishing feature of his character, and it alone is sufficient to exalt him among the noble examples of American patriotism. When a vacancy occurred in the United States Senate by the resignation of Gen. Walthall, and the Legislature, then in session, was called upon to elect a successor, it was generally conceded that the glittering prize was within the easy grasp of Gov. Stone. But the several candidates for that high office were publicly interrogated as to their attitude toward a then test question in party politics. Fearing that any seeming modification of his views might be made to secure a personal end, he was the more positive and emphatic in statement, and announced his withdrawal from the contest. Never in life, not even when he led his brave regiment in the storm of battle, did John Marshall Stone appear so heroic and majestic as he did that day. No wonder the old capitol thundered with applause and strong men could not conceal their tears. Though party exigency seemed to demand that one with other financial views should be selected, Gov. Stone withdrew from that contest crowned with the admiration and benediction of the State and nation. Such lofty courage can never fail of its due meed of praise. In the coming years of our great commonwealth, when the heroic deeds of the fathers are told with eloquent tongue, that splendid act of Mississippi's ideal governor will be held up before young Americans as worthy of all emulation.

His lofty and unselfish patriotism commanded universal admiration. While not without strong personal and political ambitions, these were conscientiously subordinated to the highest good and glory of the commonwealth he so ardently loved and so faithfully served. In dispensing patronage and exercising the constitutional power of appointment inherent in the chief executive, he displayed consummate wisdom. While many may have differed with him in opinion, I have never heard it faintly whispered that he ever made an appointment to accomplish a personal or political end. His judgment may at times have been at fault, but his purpose was always pure and patriotic. He never trafficked in executive patronage or made political commerce of his high office.

Another fact characteristic of the manly man and the conscientious Governor was the wholesome caution and wise discrimination he displayed in exercising the pardoning power. Often he had to appear stern and unsympathetic in order to uphold the majesty of the law and conserve the highest good of the commonwealth. I have known him to turn aside his face to conceal the tears in his eyes when some broken-hearted wife or mother was pathetically pleading for a pardon. While his tender heart melted with pity for the unfortunate, his rugged sense of official duty girded him with power to stand for the enthronement and UNTO THE LEAST.

BY MARGARETTE W. SNODGRASS.

There are heathen in the distance,
There are heathen at our doors,
Who have come a weary journey
From the far-off foreign shores.
O America, the chosen,
Where the gospel is proclaimed!
Shall they stand in pagan darkness
While your lips a Christ have named?

Shall we pass them by unheeding
In the busy marts of life,
And no heart-throbs beat within us
To a better, nobler strife?
Shall the garments of his chosen
Guiltless of their life blood be,
If their eyes are never pointed
To the Lamb of Calvary?

Oh, those souls in prison fettered,
Bound by superstition's chains,
Tell them of a Christ, a heaven,
Of a "rest" that there remains,
Lest he some time whispor sadly,
When his glory we shall see,
"To the least of these ye went not,
So ye came not unto me."

THE BAPTISM OF POWER.

NO. I.

When our blessed Savior was about to ascend to his mediatorial throne, he commanded his disciples to "tarry at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high." Ten days of expectant waiting followed, and then came the rushing tide of the promised Spirit. The disciples were to have great tasks to perform, a great revival to inaugurate, a great conflict with the powers of evil intrenched in Church and State to wage, and the first of the ecclesia of the dispensation of grace to gather out of the world. Thus the power!

This writer does not think it presumption to claim Pentecost as the divine flood-tide of this age of gospel preaching, for the "world-rulers of darkness" are still strongly intrenched "in high places," and even the Word of God can accomplish nothing unless directed by pentecostal power and driven by divine energy into the very citadels of the human life. From a careful and prayerful reading of the Acts of the Apostles it is evident that the church can as ill afford to depend upon temporal equipment as in the days of old. To assume this position is to claim the all-absorbing force our subject possesses in a series of revival papers. I wrote at the beginning of this paragraph that Pentecost was the divine flood-tide. This was not intended to limit the operations of the greater works and power of the Spirit to the apostolic age, but simply to assert that Pentecost is the mark of the highest expression of the divine power in this blessed gospel age, and may, with reasonable variations of extensiveness and intensity, come again and again until the "end of the age." We propose to honor the truth by holding it precious, and to delight in the gift of power, which may be had to-day by every Christian worker if the conditions of blessing and endument are fulfilled.

I.—WHAT IS THE BAPTISM OF POWER?

The word "endued," used by Luke, means "clothed." Other expressions contain the same metaphor, as "clothed with zeal," and the apostles speak to us of "putting on Christ," and being "clothed with him," and of being "clothed upon" with our house which is from heaven. Dr. McLaren says: "The ideas of abundant fullness of qualities, of a gift that is visible on the outside, and of something that wraps and veils and dignifies the naked humanity, lie in that great word, 'clothed with power from on high.'"

It is, first, a baptism of the Holy Ghost. The prophet, Joel, looking, no doubt, to the Christian age, wrote: "I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy." In strong and forcible language another writer exclaims, "Not by might, nor by power (temporal force, authority, or dominion), but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." Hear the blessed Savior himself, in his parting discourse to his disciples prior to the crucifixion, utter words of promise and security: "And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter (Advocate), that he may abide with you forever; even the Spirit of truth; whom the world can not receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." The historical account of Pentecost, as narrated by Luke, confirms the identity of the baptism of power with the gift and filling of the Holy Ghost, "And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance."

It is evident that all the followers of Christ do not possess the power of the Holy Ghost, and it is just as plain that no man is equipped and panoplied without this divine spirit-baptism. It matters little to us by what terms this necessity is expressed. No man or church can fear the Word of God if honestly desirous of being led by the Spirit, for "As many as are led by the Spirit, they are the sons of God." This writer holds to no factitious classification of the children of God, and does not get his terminology from any theologian; but it seems as clear as the noon-day sun that the baptism of power is an additional gift of the Holy Spirit, or, to be still more true to reason, and that we may not do violence to the Word of God: It is that gift of the Holy Ghost which may be repeated again and again, adding power to the spiritual life within. The apostles possessed spiritual life before the day of Pentecost, but did not possess the power. Peter's restoration took place between the resurrection and the ascension of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ; but he did not preach the famous gospel sermon until the day of Pentecost. Paul received the Holy Ghost at his baptism. The gift of power may be contemporaneous with the gift of spiritual life; but there is yet at least a technical distinction between the two gifts of God, and there certainly is a sharp distinction between the practical expression of spiritual life on the part of the Christian multitude, and the force and strength of the worker "endued with power from on high." Let us keep in mind these distinctions, and we shall pray according to knowledge when we petition the Father for the Holy Ghost. We shall avoid pitfalls if we emphasize the fact that every gift of God is bestowed for definite purposes.

The second marked characteristic of the baptism of power is the complete equipment for service. The church must not now, after the history of nineteen centuries of effort, expensive establishments, organization, and an army of ministers (a "cloud of witnesses" to the failure of all humanizing methods), and the record of a host of witnesses to the simple and singular power of the Holy Ghost, turn back to the lower forms of divine gifts by which men are adapted for various types of Christian service. These lower gifts are of no avail in revival efforts without the higher gift of power! Dr. McLaren says: "Our natural gifts are heightened into spiritual gifts when there dwells in our hearts the Spirit of God. And anything that we bring of eloquence, of genius, of perseverance, of diligence, of scholarship, or anything else, is, by that gift, kindled into tenfold brightness, and exalted to an unreckonably higher power and efficacy. Plunge a candle into oxygen, and it will flame the brighter. Our natural gifts and opportunities, of whatever kind they may be, are reinforced and 'clothed' with this Divine Spirit, making them a thousandfold more than ever they were before."

It has not been a decade since some people tried to bring down rain over in the State of Texas by exploding gunpowder, and it proved a blank failure! This illustrates the methods which are used with the hope of superseding the Divine Spirit in many places! Away with these poor, feeble, human makeshifts! Let us rely upon the only source of power in our service. The band of Gideon was stronger because of the motive force that impelled them forward to the fray than the mighty host with which he started forth to war against the enemies of Israel! They were panoplied with God! So must we soldiers of Christ go forth with the dynamo of Christ in our souls. This will make us bold as Peter, loving as John, courageous as Paul, eloquent as love, tender as Jesus, irresistible as our Lord and Master, and as "wise as serpents, and as harmless as doves."

DISTRICT DOTS.

There are some people who are always on the lookout for onrious things. Their minds run after things that nobody on earth can explain. If they read the Bible, they are certain to find puzzles which pester them out of their senses. And they frequently bring these puzzling questions to their preacher. Of course, that is what he is for. What business has he to be preaching the Bible if he can't explain every thing in it? The favorite query is, "Where did Cain get his wife?" These people are very bothersome, and about the only way to get rid of them is to answer their questions with the most elaborately-constructed phrases of verbal prestidigitation that you can devise. This will cause them to stare so that Cain and his wife, too, will fade out of their memories. This recipe is furnished gratis to those preachers who are troubled by these questioners about curious things.

In regard to curiosity, one of our prominent writers has observed that it is that 'quality which pre-eminently distinguishes and segregates man from the lower animals." While this is true in general, I am sure I have seen a good deal of it displayed by horses. In men and women it is exhibited in trying to find out everything concerning their neighbors. In a manner quite unique they illustrate the saying of an old heathen, "Nihil humanum a me alienum puto." We have had a fresh manifestation of it recently in New Orleans, when three hundred women and men, uncounted, called at the prison to see the scoundrel who posed as "Capt. Clarke, of the 'Texas' battleship," and who thus imposed upon a silly girl and married her. If curiosity is a quality of our nature, like every other quality, it must be used under the strictest discipline, and for good purposes. We all know that it was unrepressed curiosity which "brought death into the world and all our woe." Under the right tuition, and guarded by proper conservatism, it may become a great blessing, for it is the motive power back of the acquisition of all knowledge.

It has seemed to me lately that some of our preachers have become somewhat pessimistic. Their talks with me have the tone of discouragement. I noticed something of this in our Bishop's talks at Conference, and I fear it has had a depressing effect upon some of the brethren. There is nothing that runs so quickly from one to another as the spirit of discouragement. If our leaders pitch the tune in a minor key, it will not be long before the whole church will form itself into a funeral procession, and march to the grave of our dead hope to the mournful strains of 'Naomi." I am satisfied that nothing worse than this spirit of discouragement can come to a preacher. It is one of Satan's favorite temptations, for he knows that a discouraged man is shorn of his power. This spirit, coming through the threat of a wicked woman, entered the soul of the bravest of the prophets, and sent him upon a forty days' journey into the wilderness to mourn in solitude over the mistaken idea that he was the only true follower of the Lord left in the land. The story shows that the prophet had been thinking too much of himself, and that is enough to discourage any man under the sun. The line of march the church has taken down the centuries is strewn with the bones of men and women who martyred themselves upon the altar of egotism. It is the self-forgetters who never know discouragement. Their sun is always bright, and their sky is always blue. If there ever was a person who had cause for discouragement, it is he who is trying to do Christian work in the slums of a great city.

For a number of years Jacob A. Riis has been working in the slums of New York. Gov. Roosevelt's testimony is that "he has done more for New York City than any man that ever lived in it." He has sounded its iniquities to the bottom. He has explored all "the depths of Satan." Yet the testimony is, "He is the sunniest, sweetest, most optimistic man in New York, buoyant with faith and radiant with tender charity." The spirit of the man is shown in one sentence from a letter of his, "Either the world is very full of good men and women, or I have had the rare good fortune to meet and know them all." Such a spirit of self-forgetfulness is the best insurance against discouragement, no matter how difficult the work may be, nor how unpromising the prospects of success. The man who has found his work, and is prosecuting it with energy and zeal, and in the spirit of entire self-surrender to its demands, has no time to throw away thinking about that smallest of all things, called self. His whole being is too much absorbed in "doing the work of Him that sent him" to allow himself to be allured from that work by considerations of selfish ease. The refrain, which he sings in a joyful tone and with a glad spirit, is:

"But right is right, since God is God;
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin!"

P. E.

I HAVE HAD MY SAY.

The brethren are having some good exercise over my article, and as it may do them good to continue on that line, I will add a little inspiration by giving the following from the pen of Dr. B. Carradine in The Pentecostal Herald, of March 14:

"Much has been said lately about Chas. M. Sheldon's editing a secular paper for six days. Of all comments upon the strange enterprise, none have struck me with such force as those made by the Rev. J. M. Weems, of Meridian, Miss., in a letter to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

"One point he makes is that the question, 'What would Jesus do as an editor of a secular paper?' is a most impossible conception and question, for under no circumstances would Jesus be an editor of such a journal!

"My heart at once said, Amen and Amen! to this over and over. We can not believe that Jesus could and would be anything but the Teacher and Preacher that he was. Working in a carpenter shop with Joseph for daily bread, as a boy and youth, before being allowed by church law to enter his public career, is, as we can see, not a parallel thought with that of the editorship. Bro. Weems went on to say that one could take charge of a paper with this thought and moral standard, 'What would a Christian do?' but never, 'What would Jesus do?'

"Before concluding, he added this tremendous thrust: 'Does anyone believe that Mr. Sheldon would allow any other minister to run that paper three days out of the six in which he was given control? And if not, why not? Would it not be that he feels that he can do it more like Jesus than any other man; and are we not brought face to face here with some thing which Jesus never had, and that was spiritual pride?'

"The picture here, according to the ADVOCATE correspondent, is this: 'Here am I—Charles M. Sheldon—let everybody look at me; I am going to show the world a living reproduction of Jesus Christ. Look at me for six days, if you would see Jesus.' Here is spiritual pride with a vengeance, and some would say folly, and others blasphemy. In a word, the man is doing on a small scale what the Pope does on a larger plan. Truly, Jericho was left too soon. But let it be remembered that in addition to a beard, a longer suit of clothes is to be obtained, these to hide that confusion which comes from the failure of a big enterprise. Both, however, are needed in many cases."

But as this approval of my article is from the brain of a "doctor of divinity," I will give the following from the editor of the Springfield Republican: "When a man has the colossal egotism to make himself Christ's mouthpiece on subjects concerning which Christ was silent, there is no limit to the absurdities involved. The spectacle is both ridiculous and repulsive. To prostitute the great truths of Christianity to a week's flamboyant self-advertising is a degradation of religion."

J. M. WEEMS.

CHURCH EXTENSION IN LOUISIANA.

The spirit of church-building is abroad in Louisiana. Some fourteen or fifteen applications for aid have been sent to the Board of Church Extension at Louisville within the last four months. At the recent meeting of our Conference Board at Shreveport ten applications for churches and two for parsonages were considered. Evidently there are modern Nehemiahs among us, by virtue of prophetical or apostolical succession. Perhaps metempsychosis, heredity, or evolution, might give the reason for the reincarnation of the sturdy shade of this prophet of that elder day. However you may account for it, an era of church-building is upon us.

We beg space in the most valued columns of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE to send a word of cheery good-will and hearty encouragement to the brethren engaged in this great work. We are asking a larger share of money held in trust for distribution by the General Board than ever at any previous time. Modesty has hitherto characterized our approaches to that worthy body; but our horizon has widened. Having an enlargement of vision, there is a corresponding growth of activity and enterprise. With a zeal born of faith and noble purpose, the average Louisiana itinerant goes forth building and to build. With majestic forests of soft and hard woods about him, he naturally yearns to convert these into places where "God's honor dwelleth." With whirling saws and humming planers making the very air resonant with the whir of industry, he asks himself the question, Shall all this be devoted to material interests alone? He knows that all this, and more besides, belongs to his heavenly Father. He answers these questionings by seeking to give some noble expression in permanent, enduring form. Hear me: A man that builds a church on a poor circuit, or in some little hamlet hidden among pines, where men are thinking about everything else save God and eternal life, is a hero. Sometimes he is more; he is a martyr. The latter is greater than the former, for the tide of battle, or the plaudits of millions, may make heroes; martyrs stand or die alone. These men shall not fail. Such pluck, vigor and imagery combined are sure to win. The fellow-workers who, by appointment, hold the important trust of executive officers in the Church Extension Board of the Louisiana Conference, have done their best for you. We will endeavor to expend every shining shekel contributed wisely, justly, and judiciously. We most sincerely hope that the fifteen churches now being built, or rebuilt, within the bounds of our Conference will be ready to catch on tower and steeple the first rays of the morning sun that ushers in the twentieth century.

To the noble women engaged in building homes for their preachers we extend a cordial greeting, and bid you God-speed.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions adopted by the faculty of Centenary College on the death of Dr. W. H. N. Magruder, of Baton Rouge, La.:

Whereas, It has pleased God, in his wise providence, to take to himself the spirit of Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, LL.D, of Baton Rouge, La.; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the faculty of Centenary College, that in the death of Dr. Magruder we have sustained a great personal loss, which we deeply deplore, and that Centenary College has lost a true friend and loyal supporter—one who has had her interests at heart throughout the whole of his long and useful life, having served first as a teacher in Centenary College, and then, from the time he gave up his chair in the college until his death, as a member of the Board of Trustees.

Resolved, That we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of Dr. Magruder, a copy spread upon the Minutes, and a copy forwarded to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

Mrs. J. B. Stone, of North Miss. Conference
Conference Officers of Mississippi Conference
Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, of Louisiana Conference

The sixth annual meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Society of Mississippi Conference was held at Brandon, March 9-11, 1900. The attendance was better than ever before in the history of the organization.

The Conference was called to order Friday morning by Miss Addie Purnell, the president, who conducted the devotional exercises. There were present delegates from thirteen societies; also several visitors. We were glad to have with us Miss Sallie Smylie, fraternal delegate from the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. Much regret was expressed that the Conference corresponding secretary, Mrs. Clara Cope, and the treasurer, Mrs. T. B Holloman, were unavoidably detained at home. The corresponding secretary's report showed an increase of eleven societies. Eight of these new societies were organized by our faithful president. The great need of the work at present was shown to be [illegible] secretaries, who have the work at heart, and who are willing to spend and be spent for the Master. The beautiful words of welcome spoken by Mrs. Jayne, of Brandon, made us feel entirely at home. An appropriate response was made by Mrs. Ball, of Jackson.

All present were charmed with Mrs. Blevins, State organizer, who, by her wit, humor, and valuable advice as to ways and means of working, added a great deal to the interest of the meeting. She is a consecrated, zealous worker, and we feel sure she will do much for the cause in Mississippi.

Friday evening Mrs. Walker read an interesting and helpful paper, showing the varied opportunities for work afforded in the Home Mission Society. Mrs. Drake's paper, on "Importance of Home Mission Work among Young People," was much enjoyed, and by special request was read again on Sunday evening.

The election of officers was held Saturday afternoon, and resulted as follows: Miss Addie Purnell, Jackson, president; Mrs. Brashear, Port Gibson, first vice-president; Mrs. Ball, Jackson, second vice-president; Mrs. C. H. Cope, Paulding, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. B. Holloman, Jackson, treasurer; Miss Inez Watts, Meridian, recording secretary. District secretaries: Vicksburg district, Mrs. E. D. Jones; Jackson district, to be supplied; Forest district, Mrs. D. S. Harmon; Meridian district, Mrs. M. A. Guice; Seashore, Mrs. L. B. Turner; Brookhaven, Mrs. Purnell; Natchez, Mrs. R. A. Breland.

The annual sermon, which was delivered by Rev. J. A. B. Jones, was from the story of the Shunamite woman who made a room for Elijah, the prophet—the first record of parsonage work by woman. His faith in the ability of woman to plan and work for the Master is unbounded, and inspired us with new zeal. Mrs. R. R. Parker's talks to the children, both in the morning and afternoon of the Sabbath day, will never be forgotten. May God continue to bless her in this work for his little ones!

A juvenile society was organized by Miss Purnell. They adopted the name of "Brandon Sunbeams." May they learn that, "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever"!

An excellent paper, "Where Are the Nine?" was read by Mrs. Lee Brame. Our hearts were stirred as we were led to see what could be done in this Home Mission work if the "nine" were interested. Let us each do our part toward enlisting those who have not realized the opportunities afforded them in this society for using their talents, which have so long been hid in a napkin.

An article written by Rev. T. L. Mellen, "Our Choctaw Neighbors," read by Miss Purnell, showed us another open door for work. As light is given, let us walk in it.

The Brandon congregation and delegates responded liberally to the collection taken.

The delightful weather and the bountiful hospitality of the good people of Brandon combined to make the delegates glad of the privilege of attending this sixth Annual Conference.

Natchez was chosen as the next place of meeting, a most cordial invitation being given by Miss Kern. Time for the meeting to be decided by the Executive Committee.

Applications for aid to needy parsonages were granted as follows: Pachuta, $50; Lauderdale, $27.80; Homo Chitto, $25.

We are indeed grateful to our heavenly Father for the success of the meeting. We feel that it was both interesting and profitable, and we enter upon the seventh year's work with the prayer that the Lord of the harvest will send forth more laborers into the harvest, for truly the field is white and the laborers still few.

WINONA DISTRICT PREACHERS' INSTITUTE.

On the fourteenth of March, Rev. J. H. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Winona district, called a meeting at Carrollton of the pastors and Epworth League workers of the district, for the purpose of discussing the work of the Epworth League, and organizing a Winona District League. Quite a number met, and we had a good time, and the work done will tell in the future. Rev. H. T. Cunningham, corresponding secretary of the Winona district, did much for the success of the meeting in arranging the programme and speakers of the occasion.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, of Pickens, Durant district, was present, and delivered a speech on the "Epworth League a Methodist Training-school." Bro. Gladney's speech was full of strong suggestion and wisdom.

The presiding elder of the district was elected president; first vice-president, R. B. Pollard, of Greenwood; second, Miss Lizzie Lester, of Black Hawk; third, C. L. Simpson, of Carrollton. R. Thayer, of Greenwood, was elected treasurer, and W. H. Sanders, of Indianola, secretary.

The Conference committed itself to work on the "Holston Plan" to raise the missionary collection in full this year.

On the next day, March 15, the first session of the Missionary Institute of the Winona district met, and was organized. Rev. J. H. Mitchell, P. E., in the chair, and W. H. Sanders was elected secretary. A very interesting programme was discussed during the day, and quite an interest was shown in the mission work of the district. We look for the district to pay out the mission assessment this year. In fact, the district will make the best showing, on all lines of work, than for many years.

Our faithful and untiring presiding elder is pushing things, and his report this Fall will be equal to the best. W. H. SANDERS, Sec.

FROM THE WORK.

M'COMB CITY STATION.

Three months have elapsed since our reappointment to this charge and although we had one year's acquaintance with its work and its needs, yet we find more work to do than can be done by one preacher. We began our work as earnestly after our return from Conference as we knew how, losing no time except that we devoted to the Sunday Bill, and also about seven days' absence from the work for recuperation of health. I became so depleted under the work I undertook that I became wholly unfitted for anything. Bro. Golden came in, and, seeing my alarming condition, immediately informed some of my brethren, and it was not long until he and they were in the parsonage with money, and insisted that I should leave on the first train for Stafford Springs for rest and restoration of health; but when I reached Jackson, I was informed by some brethren that Brown's Wells was the place for me, and to that place I went. After drinking that water, and resting six days, I felt sufficiently restored to resume my work again, especially the visiting and other lines of work that are the least draining upon the nerves. Bro. Golden and those brethren I shall never forget, for in a sense they have prolonged my life. They and Bro. Golden are true brethren.

Since Conference I have made 441 pastoral visits; had 49 accessions to our church, and baptized 14 children, and will baptize 8 more next Sunday, the Lord permitting.

Everything is moving on, with a better showing than last year, but still there is great room for greater things. Excepting a few of our members, the spirituality of our charge is lacking. There is not that daily rigid religious living that insures readiness to meet God at any moment. We are hoping, working and praying for our charge to become truly spiritual. Pray that people and pastor may become more spiritual. ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

MELVILLE AND BIG CANE.

Through the mercy of God we have passed safely through our siege of small pox, or, rather varioloid, as the doctors here pronounced it, for it was very mild, and might not have been recognized as such by any other than a physician. We have mild and malignant small-pox both in St. Landry and Point Coupee, but there is no dread of it here.

We are now moving off nicely in a material way, in spite of the difficulties here mentioned, and we are praying for a revival all over the work, and are going to put forth an earnest effort for such a blessing. We have an excellent work, and are serving a people who excel in kindness and love to their pastor. I was most vigorously pounded by them last Spring, and they poured another one into my larder last Friday; so you see, Mr. Editor, my needs in a temporal and material line are remembered by my flock.

Since my appointment to this charge we have built a very elegant parsonage, which, when complete, will be ahead of anything in the district. The Home Mission (Ladies') Society has just made us a donation of $100, which will prove a good lift in the direction of completion, as every dollar of it will be spent in farther improvement, for we do not owe anything. We intend leaving some preacher an excellent home when the Bishop gives us marching orders. We have set out fruit trees, and a variety of roses and other ornamental shrubs, and these people will look to my successors to protect them instead of turning the horse or cow in on them, as some preachers are in the habit of doing. DO YOU ATTEND THE PRAYER MEETING?

Faithfulness in attending the mid-week prayer meeting is generally regarded, and rightly so, as one of the very best evidences of true piety. On the other hand, neglect of this important means of grace is an almost unfailing sign of lukewarmness, if not of a backslidden condition. We are aware of the fact that many church members are prevented by pressing duties and necessary occupations from regular attendance upon this service. It is often, for instance, out of the power of clerks, bookkeepers, railroad men, and others, to be present at prayer meeting, even when they wish to be, because their time is not their own, and not until their tasks are performed can they leave the office, the shop, or the store. Mothers with small children, the aged and the infirm, are also, for the most part, denied the precious privilege of meeting with the saints in the weekly prayer meeting.

But making all due allowance for those who are thus providentially kept from the place of prayer, it is, nevertheless, a deplorable fact that not a few professing Christians who could attend the prayer service regularly are seldom seen at it. Shame to tell, in some places the official members, including stewards and Sunday-school teachers, are nearly always conspicuous for their absence, and yet some of them do not find it impossible to make social visits, or to attend places of amusement frequently on week-nights. It is largely true of prayer-meeting attendance, as well as of some other things, that "where there's a will, there's a way."

We wonder how any church member who persistently neglects these social meetings of the church, when he could attend them, can hope to enjoy religion, or develop into a robust Christian. Not the least of the reasons why so many church members are lame and lean in soul is, that they attend lodge and club meetings with far more regularity than they do church and prayer meeting. Most business men, whether Christian or non-Christian, are very scrupulous about keeping their engagements with each other; but how about our engagements with God? Is His service contemptible? Is the reward He offers mean and unworthy?

While we would not affirm that every regular attendant at prayer meeting is a model of piety and consistency, yet it is extremely unlikely that any Christian who keeps himself under such gracious influences will backslide. Nor is such an one likely to remain long in spiritual babehood. Who ever heard of a spiritual declension that was traceable to regular visits to the place of communion with God? Where is one more likely to have his faith and strength renewed than in the assembly of the saints, in a fervent prayer service,

> "Where friend holds fellowship with friend;
> And heaven comes down our souls to greet,
> While glory crowns the mercy-seat."

Fellow-Christian, are you in the habit of going to prayer meeting? If not, what sort of excuse can you plead? You say you are too busy to attend? Others who are equally busy find time somehow to go; why not you? The service, you think, is dull, dry and unedifying? Possibly that is, because you have lost your first love; but if you still enjoy the peace of God, why not help to make the prayer-service more helpful and cheerful by your presence and voice in song, supplication, and testimony? Is it not your plain duty to seek the spiritual edification of others as well as your own good? Is not your habitual absence from the place of prayer an encouragement to other and weaker Christians to remain away? Are there but few who visit the place of public prayer? Then there is the more reason why you should be faithful. Your pastor needs you, and the cause of Christ demands that you go not after the faithless, careless, world-loving, God forgetting multitude.

One of the best things that can be said about any church member is that he or she is always to be found in place at prayer meeting. To say of such and such an one, however, that he is a neglecter of this blessed privilege, is to utter a sad thing indeed.

SHELDON'S EXPERIMENT.

The Christian Daily published by Mr. Sheldon for one week, as an experiment, is now a thing of the past, and all sorts of opinions and criticisms are coming from the secular and religious press as regards the venture. It is generally admitted that, as a news journal, Mr. Sheldon's paper was very disappointing, too little space being given to the record of current events and matters of present interest that the public imperatively demands to know about. Hence, after glancing over the first one or two issues, many subscribers, who were under the necessity of keeping up with current affairs, had to depend upon other dailies for the news. It was hardly to be expected, however, that a man with little or no experience in journalism could avoid making some mistakes in carrying out such a great undertaking as the one attempted. The editor of Zion's Herald makes the following just criticism of Mr. Sheldon's daily: "It has been a clean, fair—but only fair—religious weekly published daily. In later issues it seemed to become, more and more, an organ for the expression of the peculiar religious views and ideas of reform held by Mr. Sheldon." It should be borne in mind, however, that Mr. Sheldon has made no claim to infallibility, and that he did not expect his paper to be absolutely perfect. Several days after entering upon his work as editor, he said: "I know I have made blunders, but if I have accomplished one good thing, if I have suggested one good idea to any editor for the bettering of his paper, I shall be satisfied."

We are not so uncharitable as to attribute to Mr. Sheldon any sinister motive or itching for notoriety in making this experiment. On the contrary, we believe that he was actuated by a sincere and unselfish desire for the promotion of righteousness. While the venture may be counted a failure so far as giving the public a satisfactory Christian daily is concerned—several other dailies already established measuring much nearer the ideal of what a daily should be—the experiment will be by no means devoid of good results, for it has given strong emphasis to the demand for cleaner, purer dailies, and has helped to educate public sentiment in favor of such journals. The average daily, as we all know, is far too sensational, and too much given to parading crime and its corrupting details, to be harmless and elevating.

It looks as if nothing good was ever attempted but that the devil sought to give it an evil turn. It is stated that since the experiment has been made, the stockholders of the Topeka Capital have gotten into a wrangle over the future policy of the paper. Some wish it to be continued according to the Sheldon model, while others are bitterly opposed to such a policy, claiming that it will ruin the paper.

NOT ENTIRELY NEW.

Some have supposed that no attempt was ever made to publish a religious daily until Mr. Sheldon began his experiment. This is a mistake. The Montreal Witness has for a number of years been published as a Christian daily, while the New York World, which now looks a good deal of answering to that description, was originally established as a religious daily, its first editor being the accomplished and scholarly Manton Marble.

A NEW BOOK.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE. An Exposition of Mrs. Eddy's Wonderful Discovery, Including Its Legal Aspects. A Plea for Helpless Children and Other Sick. By William A. Purrington, lecturer in the University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, and in the New York College of Dentistry upon Law in Relation to Medical Practice, one of the authors of "A System of Legal Medicine." Small 8 vo. 194 pages. Illustrated. Cloth, $1. 1900. New York: E. B. Treat & Co., 241-243 West 23rd street.

The author's articles appeared originally in The North American Review, and were so well received that they have been put in permanent form for the good they might accomplish on educational and prudential lines. These papers deal chiefly with the expositions of Mrs. Eddy's teachings, her own account of herself, and the status of her cult before the law. These, with much other unpublished matter pertinent to the general subject, are here collated, and display its fallacies.

Many people look upon Christian Science, magnetic healing, etc., as harmless delusions. This book is an eye-opener as regards the horrible cruelties often perpetrated upon children and helpless invalids by pretended "healers" and "scientists." The frontispiece exhibits a photograph of a gangrened foot of a child treated by a Christian Scientist, amputation having afterwards to be performed by regular physicians. We heartily agree with the author in saying that "it is horrible to think of cases, as the object-lesson seen in the frontispiece, of contagious diseases, of severed arteries, and fractured limbs falling into the hands of such ignorant and audacious 'scientists.'" Even when the sick are willing to be treated by such persons, it does seem that the law ought to protect them from such malpractice.

The author points out the fact that from the earliest times, not merely the ignorant and weak-minded, but also persons of judgment and intelligence, have often been grossly deceived by shameless impostors in religion, medicine, and finance.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The New Orleans District Conference convened in the Carondelet Street Church, March 29, 1900, Rev. Dr. S. S. Keener, P. E., in the chair. Bro. Jno. F. Foster, of Felicity Street Church, was elected secretary. There were in attendance all of the pastors in the district save one, one or two of the local preachers, and quite a number of laymen. The usual work of a District Conference was gone through with, and, judging from the different reports from the varied pastoral charges, all the charges are doing well.

The pastors were all hopeful, seemed to be well paid, and church finances generally were reported in good shape. Several churches are being repaired, parsonages are being remodeled, and one or two of our houses of worship practically being rebuilt. Several charges gave evidence of marked spiritual growth, with conversions at the regular services, while other charges had enjoyed gracious revival seasons.

The Twentieth Century Thank-offering Movement, as judged by reports, is being earnestly stressed by the pastors, and the responses are encouraging.

The NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE was represented by Bro. M. M. Black. A resolution offering our pulpits to Bro. Black, and requesting him to occupy same in the interest of the ADVOCATE, was unanimously adopted.

A resolution was offered by Dr. LaPrade congratulating Dryades Street Church, and thanking Bro. J. H. Keller for canceling the mortgage of $2,700 upon said church, was adopted by a rising vote of the Conference.

The reports of the officers of the Seashore Camp Ground were very encouraging, showing quite a decrease in the indebtedness, and giving early promise of its complete liquidation. The grounds were reported in fine order, and the outlook for this year is quite encouraging. The following were elected trustees for the ensuing year: H. W. Spear, W. B. Thomson, A. S. Daniels, J. A. Woodville, S. H. Meyer, Dr. J. W. Adams, Dr. R. L. Riley, Dr. E. L. McGehee.

The following were elected lay delegates to the Annual Conference: W. B. Thomson, W. W. Carre, David Zabic, A. S. Daniels; alternates, T. J. Ferguson and H. W. Spear.

On Sunday, as usual, there was an exchange of pulpits, and in the afternoon a union communion service at Carondelet, which service was quite enjoyable. This is a new feature in New Orleans Methodism, and one which, from the interest manifested, will, no doubt, become a custom among us. This ended a very pleasant service of our Conference, with a general reconsecration of ourselves to the work of our Master. ROSTER.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM BRO. WILKINSON.

MR. EDITOR: Last Sunday Dr. W. B. Murrah, former pastor of this church, filled my pulpit here at Aberdeen while your scribe went to Okolona. Dr. Murrah preached two powerful sermons. Of course, he could not be otherwise than inspired with the two large congregations which came to see and hear their "old shepherd." Aberdeenians are in love with him still, and say he "beat himself" last Sunday. In the morning his sermon was on Christian education, preparing the way for our Thank-offering o're the year closes. The sermon at night was an "old-fashioned gospel sermon." We are doing all we can on the Century Fund, and will not be behind at the "roll-call." Everything is progressing nicely. Bro. Woollard, the presiding elder, is pushing the century offering with all his might on the district. Sincerely,

RICHARD WILKINSON.

THE GIBBS-WAGNER AFFAIR.

The celebrated injunction case of the Yocona Mills against Mrs. Carlotta H. Gibbs, which was appealed from the Chancery Court of Yalobusha county last September, was affirmed by the Supreme Court yesterday. The origin of the legal action and subsequently the personal difficulty was the publication of a series of articles in the Water Valley Itemizer by Rev. H. P. Gibbs, pastor of the Main Street Methodist Church of that city. The motion to dissolve the injunction was sustained, and the plaintiffs appealed. Chief Justice Woods, in delivering the opinion of the court yesterday, said the injunction could not be made perpetual, by reason of the death of the man enjoined, and that the articles complained of were not libelous, nor of a libelous character. Soon after the death of Mr. Gibbs damage suits amounting to $25,000 were brought by Mrs. Gibbs against the proprietors of the Yocona Mills. The case will be heard at the June term of the Circuit Court in Water Valley.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal, March 21.

NOTES.

The Vanderbilt theological students have contributed forty dollars apiece to the Twentieth Century Fund.

Columbia, La., has recently been blessed with a sweeping revival. A full account of the meeting will appear next week.

The commencement exercises of Mansfield Female College will embrace June 10 to 13. Rev. Jas. L. Pierce, pastor at Monroe, La., will preach the commencement sermon.

The commencement sermon of the Forest District High School, located at Montrose, Miss., will be preached on May 20 by Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D., president of Millsaps College.

Rev. C. C. Evans writes: "Satartia charge is thoroughly alive. Our stewards made a fine report at our first Quarterly Conference. We hope to make this year the best of the four."

All delegates to the approaching Mississippi State Epworth League Conference are requested to send their names at once to Miss Bertha E. Clansman, 103 Randolph street, Vicksburg, Miss.

The Epworth Era, of March 22, was a Mississippi edition, and contained excellent portraits of a number of leading League workers and officers in Mississippi. Editor DuBose evidently knows how to make his paper both attractive and edifying.

Dr. Hoss' leader in the Nashville Advocate of last week, on "Fungi of a Diseased and Dying Faith," was a strong and magnificent utterance on a topic that needs fearless handling just now. The Doctor is in the habit of getting off fine things, but this time he outdid himself.

Rev. T. S. Randle, of the Louisiana Conference, informs us that though he has rather a difficult field, he is meeting with a good deal of encouragement. He is having good and attentive congregations at most of his appointments, and expects, by the help of the Lord, to succeed.

Rev. J. A. B. Jones, the popular pastor at Brandon, Miss., observed March 25 as "Veteran's Day," and as the result raised sixty dollars, the entire amount of the assessment on that charge for Conference claimants. We congratulate both preacher and people upon their faithfulness and liberality.

We are glad to learn that that consecrated and persevering young itinerant, Rev. J. T. Abney, pastor of the Roxie (Miss.) charge, is getting on well with his work. He writes that he expects to begin a meeting at Roxie on the fourteenth instant, and will be assisted by Rev. W. T. Griffin. May the gracious power of God be evident in the meeting!

Every Methodist in the city should attend without fail the Twentieth Century Educational mass meeting to be held at Carondelet Street Church next Sunday morning. Bishop Galloway, whose fame as an orator is international, will deliver the address, which will be of interest not only to Methodists, but to people of all denominations.

The protracted meetings held recently at three of our churches in this city resulted as follows: At Parker Memorial, twenty-five or more conversions and nineteen accessions, twelve being on profession; at Louisiana Avenue, eight or ten conversions; at Burgundy Street Church, a number of conversions and five accessions to the church on profession of faith.

In another column will be found a note from our good friend, Rev. T. J. Norsworthy, who is in the local ranks, mentioning the fact that he is now ready to assist in revival work any of the brethren who may desire his services. Bro. Norsworthy is an earnest, forceful preacher, and has had considerable success as a revivalist. The pastor who engages him to help in a meeting may count himself fortunate.

We are deeply pained to learn of the death, which occurred on the twenty-eighth ultimo at Meridian, Miss., of Col. J. B. Deason, father-in-law of Rev. H. M. Ellis, of the Mississippi Conference. The deceased was a high-toned Christian gentleman, and was universally esteemed. His remains were carried to Brookhaven, Miss., for interment. The bereaved family have our heartfelt sympathy in this sore bereavement.

We had the pleasure last week of attending several sittings of the New Orleans District Conference, and we take this occasion to thank the brethren for the marked courtesy and kindness shown us. The reports, on the whole, were quite encouraging, and indicate that Methodism is not only holding her own in this city, but is making substantial progress. We were glad to grasp the hand of those earnest workers from outside the city, Revs. J. J. Kelley and J. B. Kent.

We are in receipt of a brief note from Rev. W. T. Griffin, agent of the Mississippi Orphans' Home, in which he says: "Our Sunday-school Convention at Madison was well attended and proved to be quite an interesting meeting. Henry Spence, of Nashville, led the singing. The papers read were of high order, and the discussions were very helpful, and new life was put into the Sunday-school work. The people of Madison entertained us royally and attended the sessions in large numbers."

We are in receipt of a circular sent out by Rev. B. F. Lewis, the enterprising pastor at Ellisville, Miss., announcing a "Missionary Protracted Meeting" at that place, beginning April 1, conducted by Rev. T. L. Mellen, presiding elder of the Forest district and Conference Missionary Secretary. The purpose of these special services is not to raise the missionary assessments, but to enlighten the people upon the subject of missions, and enkindle missionary zeal. Such a meeting is sure to be productive of great good.

We are very sorry to learn that Rev. C. A. Powell, of the Mississippi Conference, is in such ill health as to be confined to his bed a good part of the time, and is scarcely able to meet his appointments. Let general and fervent prayer be made for his recovery.

On last Sunday, Bishop Galloway dedicated a new Southern Methodist Church at Anniston, Ala. The next day he left for New York City to attend a meeting of the trustees of the Slater Fund. He expected, on his way home, to look in on the Baltimore Conference, which met in Washington City yesterday, Bishop Candler presiding. The Bishop is booked for a speech at Mobile on the Twentieth Century Movement some time this week, and on next Sunday morning will address the mass meeting at Carondelet Street Church.

Our young friend, Rev. H. R. Singleton, Jr., continues to do well. A recent note from him says: "Ruston Church is in splendid spiritual and financial shape. Entire foreign mission assessment sent to Bro. Thomson in January. Preacher's salary raised $200, and paid up to date. Fifty net additions since Conference. House too small to seat congregations. Fine class meeting every Sunday. Penitents at the altar every Sunday night, and conversions at the regular services. Parsonage to have $500 worth of improvements next month."

Dr. E. A. Schell, late General Secretary of the Epworth League of the M. E. Church, has sprung a new sensation in that body. He has brought suit in the circuit court of Cook county, Ill., against Drs. Chas. H. Parkhurst, editor of Zion's Herald; H. C. Jennings, of the Western Book Concern, and J. F. Berry, of the Epworth Herald, for alleged conspiracy to defame his character and deprive him of his secretaryship. He claims damages to the amount of $25,000. This is indeed a deplorable method of settling church troubles, and seems to us to indicate a sad lack of piety, if not of good judgment.

We wish to express our thanks for an invitation to attend the seventh anniversary exercises of the Galloway Literary Society of Millsaps College, which will be held in the college chapel, Friday evening, April 13. The anniversarian, Mr. J. T. McCafferty, of Chester, Miss., will deliver an address on "The Making of the South." The audience on that occasion will also be treated to two orations—the first, by Mr. E. H. Galloway, of Jackson, Miss., on "Stumbling Blocks Along the Road of Life—Their Help;" the second by Mr. E. A. Clark, of Kosciusko, Miss., on "America and the Close of the Nineteenth Century."

As the General Board of the Woman's Home Mission Society of our church will hold its annual meeting at Carondelet Street Church, in this city, April 11 to 18, inclusive, the Methodists of New Orleans, especially the good women, are looking forward to its sessions with much pleasure. About one hundred lady delegates and visitors from all over the South are expected to be in attendance, and there will be a number of addresses and papers on important topics by distinguished speakers of our church, both male and female. We would advise all who can do so to attend the sittings of this splendid society.

A pretty home wedding took place yesterday at noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Noble Moore, 1426 V street, northwest. The contracting parties were Miss Harriet Letitia Smith, sister of Mrs. Moore, and Mr. J. L. Enochs, of Jackson, Miss. The impressive marriage ceremony was performed by Dr. Radcliffe, of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The bride was given away by her cousin, Representative Thomas C. Catchings, of Mississippi. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for a trip North, amid a shower of rice, old shoes, and good wishes. They will reside permanently at the capital city of Mississippi, where the groom holds a prominent position in business and social circles. The bride, a very popular young lady, was the recipient of a number of beautiful and handsome gifts from her friends.—Washington Post, March 27.

The groom is a nephew of the editor-in-chief. We extend this newly-wed couple our warmest congratulations, and wish them long life and much happiness.

impartial enforcement of law. He did not cheapen and degrade the courts of the country by a lavish and indiscriminate release of criminals. Sympathy is divine, but sentimentality is evidence of personal and official weakness.

If asked to suggest two words that would most fittingly characterize this great man, I should say "strength and trustworthiness." He was absolutely reliable, never failing in any duty, never faltering in the presence of any danger and never betraying a trust. His whole life was formed on the ethics of the Man of Galilee, and throughout his long career he obediently followed the teachings of an all-wise Providence. He trusted in the Son of God for his salvation and died with a prayer on his honest lips.

Gov. Stone occupies his own niche in our temple of fame. He made for himself a place among our heroes and statesmen, and he will have a large space in the history of the times in which he lived. He was not an echo, but a voice, clear, distinct and authoritative as the silver trumpet of a Hebrew prophet. Those were stormy times that brought him to the front, and no heroic commander ever led his brave battalions with more consummate skill and splendid courage. When other hearts failed, his proud spirit never quailed. When other banners were ready to furl, every fold of his flag was made to wave. Those sad and bitter days of reconstruction might well be forgotten but for the opportunity they gave of disclosing and immortalizing the heroic qualities of some of the purest patriots and grandest statesmen that ever adorned the history of any land or time. And high up on the canonized scroll of the century will be the stainless name of John Marshall Stone.

SPLENDID MEETING AT CROWLEY.

MR. EDITOR: Rev. Abe Mulkey has been with us for the last ten days helping in a revival. The results have been good. A conservative estimate of the conversions and reclamations would be, at least, 100; 65 accessions to the various churches of the town, and 38 accessions to our church. This makes 60 members that we have taken in since Conference.

Bro. Mulkey took up a collection for our Methodist Orphanage at Waco, Texas, and got $135. The church has raised since Conference, for all purposes, between $1,300 and $1 400. The stewards have raised our assessment to $1,000, and feel confident that the finances of the year will be brought up in good shape. I expect to take a collection of $500 for various causes (Conference collections) on Easter Sunday.

Rev. Henry Ahrens did us splendid service in charge of a choir of about 75 voices. Abe Mulkey is loyal to Methodism, preaches sound doctrine, and there is every indication that the work done is a permanent one. There have been a number of acts of restitution and the paying up of old debts all over the town. We believe that our town and churches are in better condition than they ever have been.

The meeting was held at W. W. Dyson's warehouse, with a seating capacity of 1,000. The house was full every night, and sometimes overflowed. All of the churches of the town co-operated in the best spirit; hence every church has felt the influence of the meeting from center to circumference.

Notice.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: Will you please say to the brethren through the columns of your paper that I am ready to assist in revival work any of them who may desire my services? I have a large "gospel tent" which can be used where desirable. I would be pleased to correspond with any of the brethren who may contemplate having a meeting soon.

Yours fraternally,
T. J. NORSWORTHY.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

LOUISIANA.

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Morgan City, La. EDITOR.

Arcadia!

Seat of coming Conference.

Louisiana Epworth Leagues.

Thursday to Sunday inclusive, April 12-16.

Send in your names at once to Miss Gussie B. Tooke, Arcadia, La.

Pay full fare going; secure a certificate from the agent, and return at one cent per mile.

In order to secure this rate, however, there must be at least fifty persons present at the Conference holding certificates.

Let the Louisianians turn out en masse, and make it the best Conference ever held in the State. Prayer also should be made with this purpose in view.

The "Mississippi Edition" of the Epworth Era was interesting and attractive. There are many active and efficient workers in that fertile field.

In the account of the State Conferences, on first and second pages, there are several errors to be noted. T. B. Clifford was elected secretary of the first Conference, and though, perhaps, neither "worthy nor well qualified," nevertheless he was elected, and served in that capacity to the best of his ability. R. W. Bailey was elected corresponding secretary and treasurer.

The names of Bro. J. C. Cavett, of Meridian, and Rev. J. A. Randolph were omitted entirely in the record of the second Conference. J. C. Cavett was elected third vice-president, and J. A. Randolph, corresponding secretary and treasurer.

Rev. J. A. Randolph, as first vice-president, called the "Crystal Springs Conference" to order, and presided until the election of new officers.

May God abundantly bless the efforts of the loyal band of Leaguers in Mississippi, and, as worthy sons and daughters of that Christian commonwealth, may they continue instant in season and out of season, and ever prove workmen that need not to be ashamed!

We are in receipt of an invitation to address a mass meeting of Epworth Leaguers in Wilkinson county, Miss., during the merry month of May. We thank those concerned, and promise (D. V.) to be present and do our best.

TO THE LEAGUERS OF LOUISIANA.

DEAR FELLOW-LEAGUERS: We are especially anxious to have the greatest gathering of Epworth Leaguers ever known in the State at our State Conference, April 12 to 16, 1900, at Arcadia, La. To this end we earnestly ask you to send one, or more, delegates.

On Thursday evening, the twelfth, a reception will be tendered the delegates by the Arcadia League. We hope to make this evening very pleasant, and, if possible, get the Leaguers personally acquainted. On Friday, at 8 P. M., "Twentieth Century Rally." Address by Bishop Galloway and Dr. H. M. DuBose. Saturday, at 8 P. M., "Missionary Social," "An Evening in China," given by Arcadia League at private house. The services each day will be interesting and profitable.

The programme, as a whole, is splendid. How can the Leaguers of Louisiana afford to miss it?

We extend a hearty invitation to you all, and bid you welcome into our town and into our homes.

Let me ask that each of you pray that the Conference may result in great spiritual good for the Leaguers and all those who attend.

Do not neglect to send delegates, and send me names at once.

Yours, "All for Christ,"

GUSSIE B. TOOKE,
Pres. Arcadia League, and State Sec.

Arcadia, La., March 20, 1900.

Notice.

Leaguers will please bring up to Arcadia the amounts subscribed for missions at the Crowley Conference last Spring. The New Orleans District Epworth League will overpay their subscription, which amounts to over five hundred dollars. Let the other districts pay up in full.

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Notice.

To the Pastors and Epworth League Presidents of Meridian, Seashore, Forest, and Brookhaven Districts:

Please refer to the Minutes of the fifth Conference of the Epworth Leagues of Mississippi, and you will find on page eight the following:

"Committee on Organization submitted the following report, which was adopted:

"Resolved, That we recommend the appointment of a committee of seven members of the State League Conference, to whom may be referred the recommendation of the acting president embodied in his report to this Conference, relating to bi-annual sessions. That said committee, by correspondence with the individual Leagues of the State, ascertain their wishes in regard to this question, and to report at the first business session of our next State League Conference.

"We recommend the following committee:

'Rev. A. F. Watkins, Vicksburg; Rev. T. G. Ramsey, Booneville; W. D. Hawkins, Meridian; W. F. Lagrone, West Point; Miss Mabel Stegar, Greenville; W. H. Mallory, Jr., Natchez; Rev. H. G. Hawkins Madison."

'And I would ask the pastors to call the attention of Leaguers to this request, and urge them to give it, immediate attention.

W. D. HAWKINS,
Meridian, Miss.

March 21, 1900.

The above committee were to get an expression from the Leaguers of the State as to whether it would be advisable to change our present plan of holding the Conference annually to holding it once every two years, and having a Conference the year between the State Conferences in each of our Conferences, viz.: Mississippi and North Mississippi.

As a member of the committee, the districts named in the heading of this article were assigned me by the chairman, and in order that I may get this information, I would ask that the president of each League in these districts ascertain from their Leaguers (by vote in business meeting, if possible) their views on the subject, and report same to me at once. Please let me have the information by the twenty-fifth of April.

The Meridian Epworth League-Union will issue on April 14 an "Easter Edition" of the Evening News of that city. Dr. H. F. Tatum and Mr. W. D. Hawkins will be editors. Those desiring copies may obtain them at five cents each by communicating with either of the editors.

The third annual session of the Mississippi Conference Sunday-school Convention, held last week in Madison Station, was greatly enjoyed by the citizens and by the delegates. The attendance and interest were greater than that in 1899, and steps were taken looking to a still greater attendance in the future years. The utility of this convention is always evident to those who attend and participate. The 1901 meeting will be in McComb City. The Conference Sunday-school Board was requested to offer two prizes to the students under seventeen years of age who would stand during the next convention the best written examination on the Book of Matthew.

It is in order for the Leagues and Leaguers to be preparing for the Conference at Vicksburg, May 10-13. It is likely to be a great meeting, and we trust that the fruits of it will be conserved and used.

The Mutual Life Insurance Com'y
OF NEW YORK.
RICHARD A. McCURDY, PRESIDENT.

Is the oldest active Life Insurance Company in the United States, and the largest and strongest Company in the world. It is purely mutual—belonging exclusively to its policy-holders, for whom it has accomplished results in excess of those of any similar institution.

SINCE ITS ORGANIZATION IN 1843

It has paid to living members	$283,157,627 64
To beneficiaries of deceased members	204,591,282 42
Total paid to members, both living and dead	$487,748,910 06
And now holds for the security of its present members	277,517,325 36
Paid to and invested for its members	$765,266,235 42

THE POLICIES OF THIS COMPANY

are remarkable for their liberality, large guaranteed values, and entire absence of all technical terms or phrases. Being practically incontestable, they provide a legacy and not a lawsuit.

Persons desiring policies in this Company can secure them from the Company's nearest agent, or if no agent is convenient, by writing to the General Agent, giving date of birth and stating what amount of insurance is desired.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS OF MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

For reasons we think good, we have decided not to hold our District League Conference until after the State Conference at Vicksburg, May 10-13.

Let me again urge you to forward your five-cent assessment. Only a few of the Leagues of this district have paid yet. Send to D. G. Patton, Jackson, Miss. Your delegates will not be entitled to a seat in the State Conference unless you pay your assessment.

You are entitled to delegates as follows: "Each League shall be entitled to one delegate. Leagues with membership exceeding 15, an additional delegate for each 15, or fractional part thereof." [Article III, Constitution.]

Each League should send a full delegation. We expect to have a special car, as we had to West Point last year. The Conference will be the best we have ever had. All preachers and presiding elders who have Leagues in their respective charges and districts will be admitted as delegates. Credentials of delegates must be signed by the president and secretary of their Leagues, and forwarded with their names to the local committee at the place where Conference meets.

Please send me a report from your League as soon as you can, giving me the names of your officers and number of members, and also what work you are doing in each department, including in this report the names of your delegates to the State Conference. Who will be the first to answer the above request?

W. D HAWKINS Dist. Sec.

Meridian, Miss., March 20, 1900.

RESOLUTION.

A resolution passed by the Winona District Missionary Institute:

Resolved, That we, the pastors and laymen of this Winona district, do, during the month of April, make a mutual effort to raise the entire assessment for missions, and forward the same to the treasurer of the Board of Missions; that the secretary of this Missionary Institute notify the pastors of the district who are not present at this meeting.

R. A ELLIS,
R. A. BURROUGHS.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

The Sunday-school Board has ordered Children's Day programmes sent to each pastor in the Mississippi Conference, free of cost. The number sent is based upon the number of Sunday-school scholars on the roll. It is to be hoped that every pastor and Sunday-school superintendent will give this matter the necessary attention to make this, the children's day, a success in its truest sense. It belongs to them, and lasting good will be done if properly observed. There never was greater need in the home mission field for the money raised by this day. Let us have a Sunday-school rally all over the Conference.

W. T. GRIFFIN,
Chairman S.S. Bd.

Summit, Miss.

Important Notice.

The railroads east and west of the Mississippi have agreed to give rates of a fare and one-third on the certificate plan to all attending the Woman's Board of Home Missions, which convenes in New Orleans, La., April 11 to 18. All delegates and visitors must be careful when purchasing their tickets to ask for a "standard form certificate" from the agent, as it constitutes a receipt for the full fare paid going, and, when signed by the secretary of the meeting and vised by the Special Agent at New Orleans, it is available for the one-third rate returning. If this is not done, there will be no reduction.

MRS. R. K. HARGROVE,
General Secretary.

NOTICE.

MR. EDITOR: Please announce through the columns of our ADVOCATE that I am in a position to assist in revival services. Should any pastor anywhere desire to secure my assistance for the present year, they should correspond with me at once, so that we can fix the dates.

Yours in the fullness of the gospel of Christ,

WONDERFUL CURES BY SWAMP-ROOT.

Deacon Pollard Finds Swamp-Root Present Help in Time of Trouble.

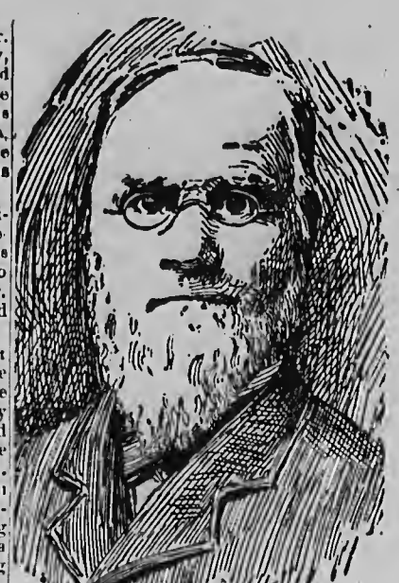
Among the many famous cures of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy investigated by the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE," the ones which we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great remedy.

Deacon Charles F Pollard, a prominent Baptist deacon of Lynn, Mass., residing at 74 High Rock Street, adds his testimony to the wealth of others, as to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Deacon Pollard on Jan. 2nd writes:

"For years I had kidney and bladder troubles, and was also a victim of acute rheumatism in my arms and legs. The pains from the latter affection were very hard to bear. I tried many doctors and medicines without benefit. Some time ago I commenced to take Swamp-Root. It has entirely cured my rheumatism and has greatly helped my other troubles. I should not think of keeping house without having Swamp Root as a conspicuous feature of the housekeeping utensils.

"I can only speak in the highest praise of its health-giving properties."

C. F. POLLARD.



DEACON C. F. POLLARD.

What a Woman Says of Swamp-Root.

Mrs. H. N. Wheeler of 268 Boston St., Lynn, Mass., writes on Dec. 11th, '99: "About 18 months ago I had a very severe attack of grip. I was extremely sick for three weeks, and when I finally was able to leave my bed I was left with excruciating pains in my back. My water at times looked very like coffee. I could pass but little at a time, and then only after suffering great pain. My physical condition was such that I had no strength and was all run down. The doctors said my kidneys were not affected, but I felt certain that they were the cause of my trouble. My sister, Mrs. C. E. Littlefield of Lynn, advised me to give Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a trial. I procured a bottle from my druggist, and found it a very pleasant medicine to take, and inside of three days commenced to get relief. I followed up that bottle with another, and at the completion of this one found I was completely cured. My strength returned, and to-day I am as well as ever. My business is that of canvasser, I am on my feet a great deal of the time, and have to use much energy in getting around. My cure is therefore all the more remarkable, and is exceedingly gratifying to me."

MRS. H. N. WHEELER.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince you—and you may have a sample bottle free for the asking.

When your kidneys are not doing their work, some of the symptoms which prove it to you are pain or dull ache in the back, excess of uric acid, gravel, rheumatic pains, sediment in the urine, scanty supply, scalding irritation in passing it, obliged to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night to empty the bladder; sleeplessness, nervous irritability, dizziness, irregular heart, breathlessness, sallow, unhealthy complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, loss of ambition, general weakness and debility.

Swamp-Root is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by skillful physicians in their private practice and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

Sample Bottle Free.

To prove its wonderful curative properties, send your name and address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., when you will receive free of all charge, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a valuable book by mail prepaid. This book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of this world-famous kidney remedy. Swamp-Root is so remarkably successful that those of our readers who have not already tried it are advised to write for a free sample bottle and to be sure and mention reading this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere.

LONG LIFE.

BY H. BONAR.

He liveth long, who liveth well;
All else is life but flung away.
He liveth longest, who can tell
Of true things truly done each day.

Then fill each hour with what will last;
Buy up the moments as they go.
The life above, when this is past,
Is the ripe fruit of life below.

Sow love, and taste its fruitage pure;
Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;
Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor,
And find a harvest home of light.

—Selected.

SUNSHINY WOMEN.

The sunshiny woman, who always greets you with a smile that warms you to the heart, is one of the divinest gifts of God to man. Her name is not legion, neither is the priceless gem found in vast numbers, but, like the diamond, she scintillates the more brilliantly amid dark and gruesome surroundings. The sunshiny woman as a girl is the particular star in the circle of classmates who in after years, perhaps, forget the others, but who always dwell lovingly on the name, even in memory, of the gentle being who turned away the shadow and made the presence of the sun more evident. In the home she is the one to whom mother looks for joyous sympathy and in whom father finds a restful delight after the fatigues of the day. If cook is cross, the children fretful, or the financial bureau in a state of depression, the sunshiny woman can always find even in such a doleful trimvirate something of a cheering character, something which, once brought to light, raises the spirits of the household in proportion to their depression heretofore.

When the sunshiny woman becomes a wife she brings into her husband's life an element of joy that no future calamity can entirely eliminate. She is a helpmate in very truth, though she may not be able to make a loaf of bread and has the most extraordinary ideas on the subject of domestic economy. She is a sort of mental bracer, the effervescence of the sunbeam brightening all within the radius of her influence. Life to her is never so gloomy but that it could be gloomier. She revels in the very joy of living, and even when physical misfortunes pursue her the beautiful soul smiles forth from the patient eyes, until we inwardly remark, "God bless her," and know that the world would be better if there were more like her.—Christian Observer.

USE PRESENT OPPORTUNITIES.

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak cheering words while their ears can hear them. The things you mean to say when they are gone, say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If a sermon helps you, it will do the preacher good to tell him of it. If the editor writes an article you like, he can write a still better one next week if you send him a note of thanks.

If my friends have vases laid away filled with perfumes of sympathy and affection, I would be glad if they would bring them out in some of my weary hours, that I may be cheerful and refreshed by them. If we would fulfill our mission, we must anoint our friends beforehand for their burial. Tears falling on the icy brow make poor and tardy atonement for coldness and selfishness in long, struggling years. Flowers piled on the coffin cast no fragrance backward over the weary years.—J. R. Miller.

"ABUSED" PEOPLE.

Of all disagreeable people to live with, the "abused" man or woman is the most trying, and the lot of one doomed to such association is anything but enviable. Always on the alert for slights or neglects; so very sensitive as to imagine the condemnation of any act or circumstance an indirect thrust at themselves; crushed if their friends presume to look through other spectacles than theirs, and jealous if their full confidence is not in all instances bestowed, although they think nothing of betraying that confidence.

Sadly enough, this trait is sometimes fostered in the most unexpected places, even in the Christian home, where selfishness and distrust should find no resting-place. There is a certain mother who thus makes her home almost unendurable for herself and family. Although there is no doubt of her love for her children, yet, possessing and indulging this unhappy disposition, and demanding the respect and confidence of which she has never shown herself worthy, she blights her home by unceasing laments over imagined slights.—The Housekeeper.

THE IDEAL FATHER.

Writing of the ideal father and ideal home-training, in the Ladies' Home Journal, Frances Evans refers to the home life of a well-known writer "who considers no affair of greater importance than the direction of his four boys' minds. His boys run in age from ten to seventeen, but even the little lad of ten is admitted to the family talks, which are teaching these boys to think for themselves. Instead of telling the children to 'keep quiet' at the dining-table, both parents, with wise kindness, promote and direct the natural talkativeness of youth into fruitful channels. The father brings home the news of the day, and each boy is encouraged to express himself on these current topics when they dine at night, provided he is willing to think about what he is saying, not deliver some careless, ignorant opinion, then obstinately stick to it. Argument is encouraged, and frequently started by the father. Each boy may give free rein to his opinion as long as he keeps his temper and argues his best. No slovenly habits of thought or expression are permitted in this family. The topic in hand may be anything from football to the latest scientific discovery."

THE REAL TOUCHSTONE.

The highest achievement of charity is to love our enemies; but to bear cheerfully with our neighbors' failings is scarcely an inferior grace. It is easy enough to love those who are agreeable and obliging—what fly is not attracted by sugar and honey? But to love one who is cross, perverse, tiresome, is as unpleasant a process as chewing pills. Nevertheless, this is the real touchstone of brotherly love. The best way of practicing it is to put ourselves in the place of him who tries us, and to see how we would wish him to treat us if we had his defects. We must put ourselves in the place of buyer when we sell, and seller when we buy, if we want to deal fairly. Francis de Sales.

FRIENDS.

It takes a great many new friends to make one old friend. Friendship is not like asparagus—a plant that shoots up in a night and is then ready for the knife. It is rather like the hickory or the oak, of gradual growth and solid fibre. As it is the wood which has been "seasoned" by long exposure to wind and weather that emits the hottest fire, so the friendships that have been seasoned by many years of sun and storm produce the warmest glow. An eccentric old man in London hung out an auctioneer's red flag over his front door; he said that he did it to "weed out the false friends who would make off if they thought that he had come to bankruptcy." A rather sharp stroke of humor was that device; and there are quite too many who are ready to halt their carriages before the door of a fine mansion, but who have very few by-streets and back-lanes on their visiting lists. Prosperity breeds friends; adversity tests them.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

There is a mistaken idea of culture prevalent. Culture does not mean merely committing to memory a great number of facts out of text-books, but it does mean a careful and thoughtful assimilation of every bit of knowledge that comes our way for the purpose of making ourselves more intelligent, more noble, more helpful human beings, and where can be found a better school for the development of these attributes than in a wisely and properly conducted home?—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

MISS ARRIE TUCKER.

Miss Arrie Tucker was born Aug. 17, 1880, near Olive Branch Church, in East Feliciana parish, and died Jan. 28, 1900, at Meridian, Miss.

Sister Arrie was a promising young woman, possessing all the traits of character and Christian graces that go towards making a pure and noble life.

As a daughter, she was kind and obedient. Parents never had more reason for being proud of a child than had hers. She had never given them any trouble, but, on the other hand, had made home so cheerful and bright. Her life was given, not for self, but for the good that it might do others. Therefore, it is no wonder to us that her parents feel so sorely bereaved.

What a loving sister she was! So affectionate and kind. She seemed so fitted to be the eldest in the home. And how natural it was for her two sisters, who were younger than herself, to look to her for counsel and advice.

She joined the church under the ministry of Bro. George D. Anders at the age of eight, and was converted under the ministry of Bro. J. T. Leggett at the age of nine. She lived a consistent Christian life from the time that she identified herself with the people of God until the day of her death. She had placed her all on God's altar, which was proven by her life and work. Many members from Deerford Church will rise up in the judgment and call her blessed for the sweet Christian life that she lived before them. Blessed be God, she is not dead, but she is living in the hearts and lives of her pastor and brethren, and the extent of her work and influence will only be known to us in eternity.

Miss Tucker is a daughter of J. H. Tucker, of Zachary, La., and niece of our former presiding elder of the Baton Rouge district.

By her pastor, W. H. BENTON.

MISS ARRIE TUCKER.

As her teacher, I am asked to write something in memory of Arrie Tucker as to her college life and last days. She came to us in the Fall of 1898; was a sweet, modest, retiring Christian girl, noble, and loved by all. After remaining with us a while she was convicted of inbred sin, or of the need of a deeper work of grace in her heart. She knew she was a true child of God; had the witness of the spirit to her conversion, living up to all the light she had, but she was not satisfied; was feeling out after something higher. She had life, but wanted "life more abundant." She had peace with God, but wanted the peace of God that passeth all understanding. One day she made the complete consecration; put her whole life on God's altar, and he sanctified the gift, and she entered into the blessed experience of entire sanctification. From that day she wore a brighter face. The Bible seemed a new book; she loved it as never before. This was a new life to her, and it opened up a new world. She not only professed this blessing, but she lived it, as her teachers, college mates, home folks and pastor can testify. One said of her: 'Say what you will about sanctification, but she lived it. Her life is worth all the arguments.'

On July 22, 1899, she wrote me as follows: "As you have often said your first thought of one of your girls was about her spiritual welfare, I suppose you will want to know about mine. I am glad that, like Paul, I can say I have kept the faith. The tests have come, and still come; but I thank the Lord that he has sustained me in them all. I am not only feasting on hidden manna myself, but I am trying to offer some to others. I have attended several good meetings; just came home from one yesterday. Lela" (her sister, who was with her in college) "and I have organized a Bible class, which I am sure will do good."

This extract is a sample of her writing. It shows where she lived. When she returned last Fall and brought her two sisters, she still wore the same bright face and gave the same bright experience. When in her sickness, suffering so much from the abscess in her head, she realized that it was impossible for her to get well, and that it was the Lord's call, she still had the joy in her heart. She said she was ready to go or to stay, for sacrifice or for service. It was beautiful to see a sanctified child of God cross over the river. She asked to be buried in her uniform, and that her sisters be educated here, where she got so close to God. She sent for Bro. L. P. Brown, in whose Bible class she had received so much help, and told him of her conversion at the age of eight or nine, and of her sanctification last year. She said the way was bright and clear. While lying on the bed of suffering at one time she sang, all alone,

"When Jesus shows his smiling face,
There is sunshine in my soul."

"But I am too sick to sing," she said. At another time she sang:

"We shall sing on that beautiful shore
The melodious songs of the blest,
And our spirits shall sorrow no more,
Not a sigh for the blessings of rest."

"In the sweet bye-and-bye," etc. At another time she said sweetly, "Dying in the Master's use." Again she said, "The way is bright; everything looks pretty." She also referred to her self-conscious state to her white robe, and asked if they did not think it pretty. She prayed several times during her sickness, and asked God to give her grace and strength to bear her suffering, being ready to go or to stay, only waiting his strength. Her father and two sisters were present at her departure. A short while before she breathed her last she called all three and kissed them good-by, as if she were going off on a journey; was too sick to talk. All the latter, with her eyes closed, she called on, "Bye-bye," "Farewell," and soon God took her spirit home to live with him. She has gone to prepare a place for us.

"And is this death? It has no fears for such a life. It is only crossing over the river. Let us live the Christ-life, and then cross over to her. (Read II. Sam. xii. 22 and 23.)

It is something wonderful that this is the first death we have had among the boarders in this college in its history of thirty years. She was sick only a short while, and died of blood poison, caused from an abscess in her head. It was His call, and we know that all things work together for good to them that love God. We don't understand it now, but "there, up there, we'll understand."

The dictionary says success means prosperity; good fortune; a wished-for result. The success of Pearline means more. It means that Pearline has proved itself the easiest, quickest, safest, most economical thing to use in washing and cleaning. It means that women have found this true, and haven't been slow to tell others the truth about it. There's nothing odd about the success of Pearline. It does so much and saves so much. 595

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is without an equal for swiftness to cure.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to April, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

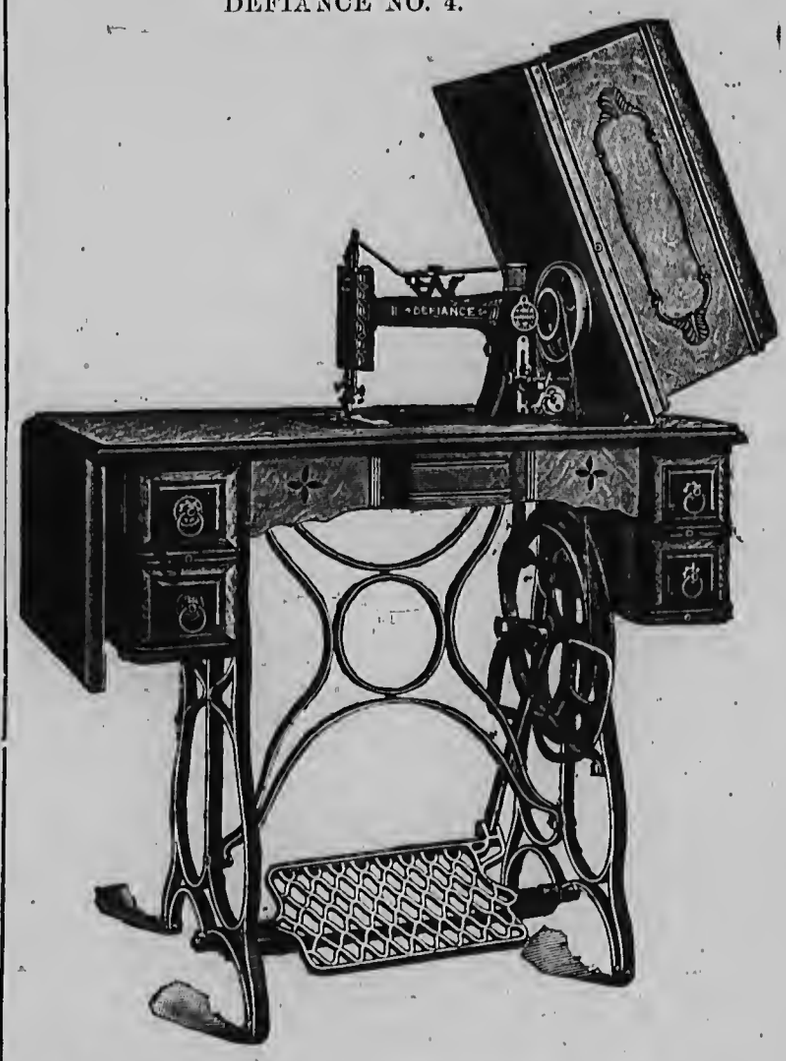
For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.



The Defiance Machine is the perfection of simplicity, durability, speed, strength and ease of operation.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

The Arm is large and roomy, 8x5½ inches in the clear.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well-oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The Needle is absolutely self-setting. No screwdriver is required in setting, a winged thumb nut being used instead.

The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbins without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stoppage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on a spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

Additional Accessories. Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 8 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, Cloth Guage and Thumb-screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.

This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34. Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

No. 7½ Machine, Drop head cabinet, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $38. Our price, $23.

All the woodwork is of the best quality, either Light Antique or Golden Oak Finish. For Walnut Woodwork add $2 to above list prices.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address

REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

CHOICE Vegetables will always find a ready market—but only that farmer can raise them who has studied the great secret how to obtain both quality and quantity by the judicious use of well-balanced fertilizers. NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Archibald Forbes, the noted war correspondent, died in London on March 30.

The naval bill, carrying approximately $61,000,000, has been reported favorably to the House.

The postmaster at Trevort, Utah, has been removed on the ground that he is a polygamist.

Thousands of foreigners have crossed Portugnese territory to enter the Transvaal and join the Boer armies.

There is little news from Gen. Roberts. His silence is interpreted as presaging an early movement of the British forces.

It is the President's intention to make the civil government of the Philippines, represented by the new commission, superior to the military.

Secretary Gage is of the opinion that the government revennes are now sufficient to permit of a reduction in the present rate of taxation.

The Boers, Friday night, drove the British garrison ont of Thaba Nchn, twenty miles from Bloemfontein, and captured their convoy in retreat.

The postoffice appropriation bill has been finally agreed upon by the House committee on postoffices and post roads. It carries a total of about $155,000,000.

A negro brought suit for $5000 damages against a Pittsburg restaurant keeper who refused to serve him and a companion. The jury awarded plaintiff 6 1-4 cents.

The treaties commission of the Italian Chamber of Deputies has approved the reciprocity arrangement made by the Italian Ambassador at Washington with this country.

The three new battle-ships, whose designs have been accepted by the naval authorities at Washington, will cost $7,000,000 each, and be able to cruise 7000 miles with one coaling.

Gen. James B. O'Beirne, who represents the Transvaal Republic, had an interview with President McKinley and Secretary Hay concerning affairs connected with the Boer government.

Webster Davis, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, who went to Pretoria on a secret mission, is going to resign in order to be free to tell the American people the true state of affairs in South Africa.

The New York grand jury completed its labors by handing in a report which arraigns the police department and the city government, the Third Avenue wreckers, the district attorney, and the newspapers.

Workmen in California are becoming alarmed at the steadily increasing number of Japanese immigrants. Since Jan. 1 last 3420 Japanese laborers have arrived in this country, and 1400 more are due by April 7.

Representative Hay, of Virginia, who is chairman of the Democratic caucus, has proposed a bill, which will be introduced on April 2, to create the militia of the several States a reserve volunteer army for use in time of war.

Twenty-four thousand Pittsburg and Irwin district miners and some seven thousand or more carpenters, painters and journeyman plumbers in the cities of New York and St. Louis and elsewhere in the States of Illinois, Indiana and New Jersey quit work on April 2 in order to enforce their demands for higher pay and shorter hours. The Chicago builders' strike was called off.

Lord Roberts reports that Col. Bradwood lost 350 killed, wounded and missing in the ambush at Mielie Spruit. The British fought stubbornly and the slaughter was correspondingly great. The mules stampeded. One correspondent says nothing but the arrival of reinforcements prevented the annihilation of Broadwood's force. Plumer is reported from Pretoria to have been driven back.

The Chinese government has settled the controversy arising out of the murder of the Rev. Mr. Brooks, an English missionary. Two of the murderers will be beheaded; one imprisoned for life, one for ten, another for two years; a memorial chapel will be erected upon the site of the murder, and a tablet will be placed in Canterbury, England, at the expense of the Chinese government.

In the Far East, Russia has massed a large force of troops at Port Arthur, a strategical position in easy striking distance of both the Chinese and Corean capitals. The Russian fleet has been recently at Chemulpo, and Corea has been told that she must grant Russia a small port to use as a coaling station. This attempt to coerce Corea is the more serious, as it is well known that Japan would resent any attempt to Russianize the Hermit Kingdom.

At the Capitol.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, the disease assuming a more severe and dangerous forms. I became very weak, and lost flesh rapidly, I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I gained twelve pounds in three months. My strength and health, my appetite and my digestion were perfectly restored, and now I feel as young and vigorous as I ever did in my life.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Bishop Walden is presiding over the Baltimore Conferance of the M. E. Church, and Bishop Candlar is presiding over the Baltimore Conference of the M. E. Church, South, both of which are holding their annual sessions in Washington. This is the first time since 1861, when these two Conferences divided at Staunton, Va, that they have met in the seme city and on the seme date. These two Conferences did not divide nntil abont eighteen years after the split in the Methodist Church over the slavery question, and both held on to the old name after the division. On Snnday there will be a reunion of the old Baltimore Conference, presided over by Bishop Bowman, of the M. E. Church, et which Bishop A. W. Wilson, of the M. E Church, South, will deliver the principal eddress. The personal relations of ministers and members of these two branches of one church are entirely cordial, as shown by the joint reception tendered the members of both Conferences by the M. E. Church Union of the District of Columbia, in the Corcoran Art Galiery, which the trustees of that institntion kindly placed at the disposal of the Union for that purpose. There has been some talk of a joint reception to the two Conferences by President McKinlay, but that hes not been fully determined upon, althongh it is known that the President wishes to hold receptions to both, and, would, doubtless, be willing to combine them.

After discussing the matter for a long time an orgenization has been perfected of a Woman's Interdenominational Union of the evangalical churches of the District of Columbia. The objects of tha organization are conference and united help and sympathy along missionary lines, and to secure concerted action. In other words, instead of having the missionary societies of the several churches working as rivals, as they have unfortnnately sometimes done, to have them work as associates banded together in a common cause. The new organization will be directed by an Executive Committee composed of its president, the president of the Central, Home and Foreign Mission ary Societies in all of the denominations, and two delegates from each denomination in the Union. This committee is now arranging to hold a public meeting to explain the objects of the organization and increase in terest in them.

The War Department has issued a warning to Americans against going to Cuba in search of employment. The matter was brought to Secretary Hoot's personal attention by Gen. Wood during the secretary's recent visit to Cnba. There are a number of Americans, in addition to those who went as members of alleged "colonies," who are in Cuba without money or employment, and with no prospect of anything better than free transportation back to the United States. According to Gen. Wood, Cuba is no place for a man without money. With some capital there is large opportunity for returns, but otherwise even willing working men and clerks can not secure employment, and must soon come to grief.

United States Indian Agent Beard, of the Santee Agency, Nebraska, is in Washington. He came East to bring fourteen Indian children to the Carlisle Indian Institnte. The Santee Sioux Indians, who number about 1,000 are the most civilized of their tribe. Each of them has an allotment of land; they wear civilian clothes, follow industrial pursuits, and have accumulated much property since abandoning tribal customs. They are regarded as living object-lessons of what the land allotment system can do for the Indian.

A testimonial was tendered Dr. Luther B. Wilson, whose term as presiding elder of the Washington district of the Baltimore Conference of the M. E. Church has just expired, by the congragation of Hamline Church, of which Dr. Wilson has several times during his six years' term as presiding elder acted as pastor. The meeting was presided over by Judge A. D. Lynch, of the Metropolitan Church, and was an interesting affair. The Home and Missionary Society presented Dr. Wilson with two handsome Rockwood vases, the Deaconess' Home and Training-school presented him with a silver urn, and Hemline congregation with a tea set. Mrs. Wilson was presented with a hnge bouquet as a token of appreciation of her valuable assistance in the good work done by her husband.

The Spring meeting of the Presbytery of Washington was held this week. Dr. Asa H. Fiske, the retiring moderator, preeched the sermon at the opening session from the text, "There was a man sent from God, and his name was John." Rev. George P. Wilson, pastor of Assembly Church, was elected moderator for the coming six months. Reports read show all the Washington churches to be in flourishing condition.

The W. C. T. U. of the District of Columbia held its regular quarterly meeting this week. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. Helen L. Bullock, of New York, national organizer; Mrs. W. S. Crafts, world's superintendent of Sunday-school work, and Mrs. M. L Welles, of Tennessee.

Washington, April 4, 1900.

A FEW ADDITIONAL THOUGHTS ON A MUCH-DISCUSSED SUBJECT.

The Twentieth Century Thank-offering. Yes, numbers have written about it, and a great many people don't know anything about it yet. It takes "line upon line, precept upon precept," to awake most of us to a realization of the importance of a suggestion or movement; and about the only way to succeed with an undertaking is to keep it constantly in sight and hearing. The instant this Twentieth Century banner is lowered, loss of interest will set in.

And "Jesus sat over against the treasury." Sat in full view of the receptacle for offerings, and "beheld how the people cast money into the treasury." "The treasury" was in reach of all the people—rich, poor, learned, unlearned. In that it seems typical of the thank-offering box, basket, or membership roll now extended to the Christian world. Jesus still sits over against the treasury; he still beholds what each casts in. His precepts, his commands have lost no power in the lapse of ages. He taught "with authority;" he spake as never man spake, and in one word he gave his followers a whole sermon. "Watch," said he, and still that word, with all its pathetic warning, its tender solicitude for the welfare of his followers, comes to our ears. While watching hands and head and heart, we must watch lest neglected opportunities rise up like spectres to mock us.

The last year of the nineteenth century is passing, and with it will slip from our grasp one of the grandest, most glorious opportunities that is vouchsafed to mortals. Are we heeding its admonitions? The gathering in sums, small and great, will mark an epoch in Christian progress, and make its impress for all coming time.

As individuals, as families, as communities, our causes for thanksgiving are as the stars for multitude, and our grateful hearts should make liberal thank-offering to our Lord for his manifold benefits. The present opportunity means this and more. It opens to the church an avenue through which it, as a body, may offer thanksgiving for God's abundant blessings during the past one hundred years.

See Methodism in the beginning of this century, and note its progress. "It lodged roughly and fared scantily. It trampad up muddy ridges; it swam or forded rivers waist deep. It slept on leaves or raw deer skin; it bivouacked among wolves or Indians. It was hooted and it was pelted; it was fined, maltreated and imprisoned, but it throve." Through trackless wildernesses, guided by the dim light of some backwoodsman's blaze, Methodism pursued its noble mission.

See it now become a power in the land. The little one has become a host. For such evidences of God's care our hearts swell with love and gratitude, and in all our ranks we rejoice in willing offerings to our Lord.

Sisters, are we, as a Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, trying to keep abreast of this long procession of willing workers? During the few decades of our organized existence the Lord's approval of our service has been manifest in various ways. Our borders have enlarged; our avenues for reeching and rescuing the perishing have multiplied; our faithful missionaries return most encouraging tidings from their work in home, in chapel, in school, and in hospital. In acknowledgment of such signal blessings our society is asked to make a thank-offering that will increase our facilities for effective work in those fields where we have sent our beloved friends and sisters, promising to help them by our means while they give themselves to the Master's business. Shall we not, with Nehemiah, say, "The God of heaven, he will prosper us; therefore, we, his servants, will arise and build." Resolve that the amount asked by the Woman's Board of Missions shall be raised, and that every member of every auxiliary shall fulfill her part of this obligation and privilege. There are princely givers among us whose liberal gifts go to swell the amount, but the chief object of this movement will fail of accomplishment unless every member, even the poorest, is reached, and small sums shall mingle with the great in this Twentieth Century Offering to our Lord.

To our own North Mississippi Conference Society I would urgently appeal. In this noble cause let your liberality abound. Easter will soon be with us. Let me press upon you the importance of its observance in the interest of the matter in hand. The programmas prepared for that occasion are beautiful, instructive, and impressive. Use it, doing your very best in God's name, praying him to crown with large success. Surely every pastor will lend his help to "those women who labor in the Lord," that an Easter offering worthy the cause it represents may be secured. You know what is thus collected does not lessen the aggregate; only turns it into a designated channel.

There seems to have arisen in the minds of some a misconception of the use of this offering and the manner of securing it. Hear Mrs. Trueheart on the subject: "The Twentieth Century Fund is for educational purposes in Cuba, Juis de Fora, Mexico City, and Soochow, China, and is intended as a thank-offering. Thank-offerings can not be made of pledge money, Bible woman money, scholarships, day schools, or specials of any kind, any more than of dues or life members. Please do not mix up the amounts, but state clearly the object of every special, as well as the object of whatever is intended as a Twentieth Century Thank-offering. Remember, this thank-offering will never be called for in another hundred years, and is no thank-offering if taken from the amount needed to maintain the work already projected."

In conclusion, please give ear to this admonition. Time is short, and shortening with every setting sun. Arise, be quick; let not the causes to which we have pledged our support suffer by our sloth or negligence.

MRS. J. F. EVANS.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

OUR SUNDAY-SCHOOL YEAR BOOK.

A copy of this publication has been sant to each presiding elder, pastor and Sunday-school superintendent in the Conference. If anyone of these has failed to receive his copy, we will gladly duplicate it on notification. The one purpose of the Sunday-school Board in sending forth this little book is the promotion of the Sunday-school cause within our bounds. To this end let it be carefully read and used. Several encouraging notes concerning it have already been received. One pastor writes, "The book is well gotten up, and will do good." A presiding elder writes: "Your book is quite a success. It is a valuable publication. You have done our Conference a splendid service. For one, I tender you my sincere thanks." Thanks to all who have thus written. Help us, brethren, to carry out the plans and suggestions contained in the "little book."

"CHILDREN'S DAY."

The time for this annual celebration is near at hand. Let everybody get ready for it, with a view to making it in this last year of the century, at every church, the best service of the kind ever held. Pastors, superintendents, and teachers, please study the matter prayerfully, and read carefully the two last pages in the "Year Book," and act accordingly. See to it that no pastoral charge reports blank this year on "Children's Day collection." What wa conceived to be an adequate supply of "programs," "supplements," and "addresses," have been sent to each pastor for his charge, according to the amount apportioned for this purpose by the Conference Sunday-school Board. The pro rata was based on number of Sunday-school scholars reported in each charge. Should there really be need for more than have been sent, we will supply the want on application of the pastor and specific statement of the case.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Rev. R. A. Meek, Starkville, says: "We are in the midst of a meeting here, which will likely continue through next week. Rev. Theo. Copeland, of the North Alabama Conference, is doing the preaching, and Rev. J. A. Leech is conducting the singing."

Rev. R. S. Lawson, Cascilla, writes: "We are making some progress since Conference. We have bought and nearly paid for a neat parsonage at Cascilla. I am at work on my Conference collections."

Rev. G. S. Sanders is supply for the third year on Tremont circuit. He is now having built the third new church during his term, and is working up the Sunday-school interest, selling books, etc. Rev. R. T. Nolen, supply, is doing good work on Cumberland circuit. Rev. J. A. Leech reports that there is advance all along the lines in Okolona.

There is increased interest in church work at Pickens. The Sunday-school there has recently purchased a forty-five-dollar library. Their pastor, Bro. Gladney, is a wise and tireless worker. He and his people are in love with each other, and that insures co-operation. I enjoyed the privilege of worshiping with them last Sabbath, and of partaking of the generous hospitalities of the parsonage and other Christian homes. It is ever a delight to visit Pickens.

I enjoyed very much my visitation to the session of the Mississippi Conference Sunday-school Convention at Madison Station last week. Those brethren of the sister Conference know how to treat a fellow-worker and to make him feel at home. I hope to meet with them on other occasions during the year.

GOOD NEWS!

Letters from presiding elders and pastors assure us of interest in and work for the Thank-offering. Faithful effort "now" will count "twice."

Rev. W. W. Woollard, P. E., Aberdeen district, says: "I have to tell you whereof you will be glad. So far on my second round I have held two Quarterly Conferences, and canvassed both appointments with good success. At Okolona we have secured one hundred and fifty dollars, and can safely count on seventy-five dollars more. At Prairie we have secured one hundred and five dollars, and I will underwrite them for another hundred. Next Sunday I will be on Houston circuit, and will go with Bro. Bell into the work. He is interested in this cause, and we can count on a good showing there. Our preachers and people are all talking the matter, and I look for good things from this district."

He will get "good things" from the district "because he goes after them."

Rev. J. A. Leech, pastor, in writing of the successful effort at Okolona, says: "Our work here is in fine shape. Prayer meeting and Epworth League doubled in attendance. Good congregations. Pastor's salary increased one hundred dollars. More than one-third assessment for support of the ministry has been paid."

Good for Bro. Woollard, Bro. Leech, Okolona; Bro. Tucker and Prairie. Next! There is no time to lose. Let everybody help now.

J. R. BINGHAM.

OPEN LETTER TO BRO. J. R. BINGHAM.

DEAR BROTHER: When I received your card stating that "several presiding elders and many pastors are devoting the second round to the great Thank-offering," I said, "Surely great minds do run in the same channel," for I had already written several of the pastors on the Jackson district to know if we could not magnify this "great cause" at their second quarterly meetings, and either do something then, or appoint and plan for rallies and collections later.

The more I read the more I am aroused to the necessity of some positive action, and the more I am impressed that the time is shortening. I can not believe that our people will remain so indifferent to this matter if informed. Why should we not have some specially appointed day? Why not celebrate the great Fourth of July, for instance, with a grand rally on every work, and then and there take up our Dollar Day collections and subscriptions for greater amounts?

A time fixed, a definite amount announced, and a big day. Yes, agitate! agitate! agitate! on the missions, on the circuits, in the stations, before the Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues. Fraternally,

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND MISSIONS.

DEAR BRETHREN: We are in earnest about the cause of missions in our Conference. The present state of things does not indicate the interest we ought to have, and that which the cause demands. Four months of the Conference year have passed, and what have we done? If we are to make any improvement in the collection this year over the past, at least half of the assessment on every charge should be in the hands of the treasurer in the next few weeks.

Early in February we kindly asked the co-operation and help of the presiding elders, and asked them to urge the pastors to take the collection for missions as early as possible. Only two presiding elders acknowledged the receipt of the request, and up to a few days ago only two districts and four charges had made any report to the treasurer. There is less excuse for delay in taking the collections early this year than there has been for years past. The financial condition of the people makes it possible, and this evidently produces a better spirit of giving, and we have confidence enough in our people to believe that if the appeal is made in the spirit of our Lord, they will respond. If we, who claim to be going in obedience to the command, "Go ye into all the world, and preech the gospel to every creature," fail to keep this prominent in our work, what can we expect of our people?

In our system we require at least quarterly payments on the preacher's salary. If it is not paid, we feel like the church and the stewards, to say the least, hed neglected us. We have learned, most of us by sad experience, that if it is put off to the end of the year, it will not be paid, or if it is paid, it leaves such a state of things that it takes three months of the new year to get over it. We, under the law of the church, are made the stewards in charge of this interest, and until some one else is appointed, we are responsible for the collections.

Now, I venture to say there is not a Board of Stewards in the Conference that has not done better for us than we have done for the church and our brethren in the home and foreign fields, whose stewards we are. We ought to set them a worthy example by taking these collections early in the year. It will not do to put it off until the end of the year. We set a bad example for the steward and get in his way, and if we get the collections, it is by the hardest work, and we neglect our brethren and increase our interest debt. The church is able to pay every cent that is assessed for the pastor and the collections, and the Twentieth Century Fund, and it will be paid if we will get our heads and hearts together.

The Board of Missions has arranged a meeting for the twenty-second and twenty-third of May, at Winona. The presiding elders, and officers of the Epworth League and Sunday-school Boards, are earnestly requested to meet with us. The object of the meeting is to plan for the full payment of our assessment for missions. We want by this meeting every charge in the Conference to report to the treasurer, Bro. F. P. Jinkins, at Aberdeen, Miss. The treasurer's report, showing the districts and charges that have paid and the amounts, will be published in the ADVOCATE. Let every preacher see to it that his charge is in that report.

Every mission charge should report the assessment for domestic missions paid in full if they expect us to help them in full payment of the amount asked for. The pastor in this is his own steward, and he ought to get it. May the Lord stir us to do our best!

MILLSAPS COLLEGE NOTES.

Messrs. L. F. Magruder, C. N. Guice, R. A. Clark and some others represented us at the State Y. M. C. A. Convention, held in Natchez, last week.

The college has been exceedingly fortunate in securing the services of Prof. D. H. Bishop for the chair of English. The students have become very much attached to him.

Dr. Murrah, our honored president, is much in demand for commencement occasions this year. He has accepted several invitations in the State.

We have two strong speakers in Messrs. J. B. Mitchell and T. W. Holloman, and feel sure that they will reflect great credit upon the college and upon themselves at the next meeting of the State Oratorical Association. We confidently expect that they will come off victors.

Another quarter is ended and we are now on the home stretch. The boys are workingly earnestly, and we hope that their last report will be most satisfactory to them and to their parents.

Quite a good deal of interest is being displayed in baseball and tennis. In a match game between the college baseball team and a team from Jackson our boys easily came off victors. We expect to have some good tennis games in a short time and are sure that our men will be easy winners.

The indications are that our Commencement exercises will be much better this year than usual. The students who are to take part in the contests for medals are working hard and some good speeches may be expected.

Communications.

TO THE PREACHERS OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

DEAR BRETHREN: The appeal of our Missionary Secretaries in behalf of our educational interests in China has been heartily endorsed by Bishop Wilson and Dr. J. D. Hammond, our Secretary of Education.

In the March-April number of the Methodist Review, Bishop Galloway, who is president of the Board of Education and leader of our forces in the Twentieth Century Movement, says: "A liberal share of thank-offerings should be devoted to educational work in foreign mission fields. Schools in heathen lands are a necessity. After all our evangelistic efforts, the speediest way to the regeneration and reconstruction of our benighted peoples is through the home and the school. Those acquainted with conditions in heathen countries know that the weakest point in every mission is an untrained native ministry. And training is not best secured by the coming of choice young men to the United States. While much is learned from contact with our Christian civilization, there are positive disadvantages which, in many cases, have proved an absolute disqualification for efficient missionary service. New social ideals are adopted and habits formed which alienate them from their national, racial, and social sympathies of their people. The only way to secure a well-trained, efficient native ministry is to equip and endow schools and colleges in the several mission fields."

Soochow University, which is to be the centre and head of our correlated system of schools in China, is in need of $50,000 within three months, and $100,000 by the thirty-first of December. Drs. Lambuth and Pritchett say: "The conditions are such as to admit of no delay. Prompt and vigorous action is necessary." Under date of March 12, they say to Southern Methodists: "Nearly all subscriptions thus far have been directed to home and local institutions. So general has this been that the Board of Missions will not be able to meet the hare exigencies of our missionary educational work, to say nothing of enlargement. Inasmuch as we have heard from only three Conferences which have determined to set aside five per cent. for this work, we earnestly request that, in taking your educational collections, you will see that a fair proportion is directed to the needs of our foreign work, and especially to the University at Soochow."

At a called meeting of your Conference Board of Missions it was resolved to send out an urgent appeal to our preachers and members throughout the Conference to remember and provide for when this Twentieth Century collection is taken; this special call for five per cent., or more, of the amount to go for educational work in China.

Let us, by prompt and liberal thank-offerings in that direction, make permanent the splendid work of our toilers at the front—Drs. Allen, Parker, Park, Anderson, Miss Lochie Rankin, Miss Laura Haygood, and others.

Our Missionary Secretaries do not too strongly state the case: "The making of a Christian empire in the Orient is within the reach of the men and women who stand for truth and righteousness."

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

The doctor tells me "la grippe" is a French word, "influenza" a German word, and "bad cold" an English word. He says I have a bad cold in French. I do not want to have one in French any more. It is ten times worse in French than in English. I am not a foreigner, but native to this country. I wish the French would keep their bad colds at home. Any way, I have been shut up in my room for three weeks, and not yet able to go abroad. However, I have not been idle; indeed, idleness is the hardest of all hard work. I have had a fuss with the doctor about reading. He has urged me to sit and lie here perfectly idle. I have not been too sick to read in forty-two years. I feel best with a book, paper, magazine or review in my hands. If interested, I cough less. I cough all the time when I have nothing else to do. My limitations are often my greatest enlargements. When I can't do this, I try to do that. When hemmed in on one side, I try to get out on another. If I can't milk one cow, I try to milk another. When I can't go, I put in the time filling up.

In December, Hon. G. D. Shands handed me a book, and said, "Read this." What a favor it is to put a good book in the hands of a live preacher! It is better than a coat, a hat, or a pair of boots. Most preachers need inside filling more than outside dressing; mental pabulum more than bodily food. Bro. Shands knows a thing or two; he knows me and what I need most. I did not find time for this book till the grip shut me in doors. It is a good one. I have devoured it. Every live preacher, both old and young, particularly the young preachers, ought to read it. It will enlarge their view of Christ, of the ministry, of preaching, and of the importance of personality in the preacher. The author takes Christ to be the Word, the Logos, the speech, the articulation, the eloquence of God; hence the Master "spake as never man spake." I am free to confess that I never before had such exalted views of Christ as an orator. He stirred men and moved men as no other orator ever has done. This system of divine oratory is to bring the world to Christ. It is God's ordained method of saving the world. Preaching, preaching the gospel is the greatest power now on the face of the earth. It is the power of God unto the salvation of everyone that believeth. It is God's lamp of divine heaven in the world's barrel of meal. Nothing, nothing will save men from sin but this. There is no higher or nobler work on earth than preaching the gospel of the Son of God.

This book that stirred me so is "Ecce Orator. Christ the Orator," by T. Alexander Hyde. It is a small book, but "multum in parvo." The character of the messenger, the personality of the speaker vitalized by the Holy Ghost, is indispensable to the efficiency of the message. This is not true of law and lawyers, of teachers and teaching, of philosophy and philosophers, but it is true of preachers and preaching. Others may get along and do fairly well without the Holy Ghost, but preachers must have the Spirit of God. There is no preacher and no preaching, in the true sense, without the unction of the Holy One. This divine anointing makes genuine orators of God of the commonest of men. The man of the closet finds the pulpit a throne of mighty power. The weakest saint is a giant on his knees.

The oratory of Christ was highly sensational in the best sense. Thousands and tens of thousands flocked to hear him. The press was often very great—so great the "people trode upon one another." Often the throng went wild, and they wanted to take him by force and crown him king. Often they got mad and wanted to kill him. Wherever and whenever Jesus spoke, he stirred the masses. If they tried to entrap him in his talk, he made them convict themselves. When they went to arrest him and to kill him, if they stopped to listen, they slunk away and said, "Never man spake like this man." What power, what consummate oratory that! It is worth while to study Christ as an orator.

This limitation of body by la grippe has been the occasion of great enlargement of mind and spirit by a new study in the character and ministry of our Lord. I've gotten good out of confinement.

METHODISM ON TRIAL.

The Twentieth Century Movement is the child born of the wedlock of two robust ideas: a revival in every charge, a thank-offering to God from each member of the church. It is the church coming to itself, and taking an inventory of its losses in the far country of sin, and the yearning cry surges out of her penitent heart, "I will arise and go to my Father." It is the heaven-sent inspiration to get back to the power-house, where she may illuminate a world and supply re-enforcing energy to exhausted vitality exhibited on every hand. It is her confession of faith, "I believe in education; I believe in more of the right kind." It is the masterful struggle of the church to reveal to the nation that Methodism is a foe to ignorance and the enemy of superstition. She walks in the light because He is in the light, and "is the light that lighteth every man which cometh into the world." It is the supreme attempt of the followers of John Wesley to declare in dollars, not words, in deeds, not in resolutions, that it is their purpose "to study to show themselves approved unto God, workmen that need not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." It is Methodism consecrating herself for the highest service to the living present. Therefore, the strength, ability, willingness of her people is on trial. If covetousness be the sin of the age, the opportunity has been opened to prove the love of God overpowers the love of money in the heart of believers. Shall it be written in gold, "We trust," instead of, "In God we trust"? The windows of heaven are never lifted at the call of greed of gain, and the showers of blessing are not sent at the vociferous bombardment of the heavens by the thunder-voices of men who love money more than their Maker. The open door to a revival is a purse pulled out wide and turned upside down. Those who rob God can't get their hands on a big grace-blessing.

The presiding elders are on trial. Their fitness or unfitness will self-evidence itself. Are they driving-wheels, or simply to be trundled along by something else? The smallness of the man for the largeness of his office can not be hidden, if they faint by the wayside.

Bishops and presiding elders declare the pastors are the key-stone in this noble arch of triumph. If the pastors fail in this Herculean effort to recover lost ground, they will be marked men. Their standing will be impaired irrecoverably. The soldier loves the bugle-call to battle. Wind it over hill and dale, "The fight is on." Rally round the flag of Methodism in earnest.

REPORT OF CORINTH DISTRICT.

The Corinth district has eighteen charges—one more than any other in the North Mississippi Conference; but the district parsonage is near the center, so that the work can be done in due time. I have held all the Quarterly Conferences up to the present at the time and place appointed. I have had most excellent health most of the time, but many of the preachers and their families have been sick; some with la grippe, some with measles, others with mumps.

Bro. F. A. Whitson died with pneumonia early in the Winter. A good and useful man gone, besides the great loss to his family. His death is a real loss and affliction to our district. It would be difficult to find a pastor more loved and honored by the people of his charge than was Bro. Whitson.

Bro. J. M. Bradley has been very much hindered in his work and kept uneasy by the sickness of his wife. Sister Bradley has had quite a protracted sickness, and at one time thought to be dangerously ill, but is about well, we hope.

Some of the preachers have been hindered in their work by personal sickness, but all are well and at work now.

The financial reports of the charges are better than usual for the first quarter. This should be expected. Six out of fourteen charges have increased the assessment for pastor's salary over last year. The spiritual condition of the district, with a few exceptions, is not good. The morals of the people seem good and encouraging, but I judge the spiritual by the lack of interest in the enterprises of the church. There are but few religious papers taken, and when pressed to take the Conference organ, the usual reply is, "It costs too much money."

We could hardly have a Quarterly Conference in some communities but for the pastor keeping it before the church; then some officials forget it.

I go into some communities where there are many intelligent young people out of the church. Oh, the need of an old-time revival throughout the district! The preachers see it and feel it, and we are praying and working to this end. So far many of these young people seem impervious to preaching. Just why this is so is a question of more than ordinary concern.

The Twentieth Century Fund is certainly before the preachers, and they will make an honest, faithful pull. They are all very busy just now taking the collections, reorganizing Sunday-schools, and trying to organize some Epworth Leagues, and resuscitate others; but our first need is more religion, else we will do but little.

THE HOME MISSION SOCIETY.

It is a law of nature that to every demand there should be a responsive supply, and the origin and growth of the Home Mission Society is an instance under this rule. Church extension by building houses of worship soon developed the fact that parsonages were needed as much as churches. Wherever there was need of help in building a church, there was almost sure to be a lack of shelter for the preacher and his family. Here, then, was a demand for the cause of Christ, to supply which the Woman's Department of Church Extension was created.

Statistics show that during the next eight years one-half as many parsonages were built as had been built in the whole one hundred years prior to this movement. Since then, under the name of Parsonage and Home Mission Society, 823 parsonages have been wholly built or aided from the general fund at a cost of $104,200. These are built by donations, if the church has nothing to invest in a house, and by loans, at a low rate of interest, from a loan fund of about $18,000, when the church, by borrowing for a time, can build.

The agitation of the parsonage question called attention to the home parsonages, and many new ones were built, old ones repaired and refurnished as a consequence. Though, for convenience, the word "parsonage" has been dropped from the name of the society, the building and care of parsonages continues to be emphasized; and wherever you find a live Home Mission Society, you are very apt to find a comfortable home for the preacher.

Early in the movement the leaders saw great possibilities of well-organized efforts in home mission work, and began to shape much of the benevolent and religious work done irregularly here and there. Various mission fields have been entered and work successfully carried on. City missions are supported in a number of cities, doing great good among the destitute and those lost in sin.

Missions and education must always go hand in hand. So a number of schools are conducted by the society, prominent among which are schools for mountain whites in Tennessee and Kentucky, for Cubans in Florida, and Japanese and Chinese in California. Such is the connectional work done by the society. But of more interest to us is that done in the North Mississippi Conference and Winona district.

The amount of money raised in the North Mississippi Conference Society for general work has gradually increased from $150 the first year to nearly $1,000 last year—the eighth year since organization. This represents but a small per cent. of the amount actually raised, being only that which passes through the hand of the Conference treasurer. Much more has been collected and spent in building and repairing parsonages at home, in doing any home mission work that called for the expenditure of money. Much of which is never reported to Conference society.

But the work done by auxiliaries does not deal alone with dollars and cents—those merely material things so dear to some hearts. We are not merely a collecting agency that proposes to do good with the money obtained. We realize that the salvation of souls is the end sought in all mission work. To that end each meeting is opened with devotional exercises. Practical Christianity is encouraged by each auxiliary having a committee to visit sick and strangers (one auxiliary in this district reported 200 such visits made last quarter), a committee for distributing church literature (another reported 600 papers and magazines given to those not able to pay for them). The needy poor are looked after, and many are induced to come to church and Sunday-school that would not otherwise attend. In this district there are eight auxiliaries, with 123 members—a very small per cent. of the women and girls whose names are on the church rolls.

Dr. Hoss has said: "There is in the Home Mission Society a volume of power which the careless and unobservant little understand. It means a deeper piety in the home, a more thorough withdrawal from those diversions that can not be taken in the name of the Lord Jesus, a more vigorous and aggressive effort to bring the wicked and wandering back to God."

Think what a revival of religion, what a wave of good works would sweep over this district if all the women in the Methodist Church were enlisted and were true workers! The pastors would not have to spend so much time looking after the Christians, but would be leaders of bands of active workers. They would have more time for Bible study, more time for prayer, more time for waiting before God for his message. Will not those present help us in developing this latent force? Whatever the preacher endorses and earnestly works for will succeed: without your help, it will be hard to convince them of the importance of the work, of the great possibilities within their reach.

You can help us by your prayers. The Lord tells us to pray one for another, and promises to answer intercessory prayer. By studying the work, getting in full sympathy with it, and stirring up your members to organize societies where none exist. By encouraging those already organized to greater activity by talking about it in your pastoral visits, and urging the women to become members, not so much for the money they will contribute, but for the good of their own souls.

May the time soon come when every woman's name found on the church roll may be on the register of the Home Mission Society, and pastor and people work together in this great labor of love!

MRS. E. T. BUCKLEY.

The first month of the seventh Conference year has just closed. The Sixth Annual Report of the corresponding secretary showed forty-one Adult and five Juvenile Auxiliaries. Since the Conference two new Auxiliaries have been organized: Cantrell Church, Hillsboro circuit, with five members, and "Brandon Sunbeams," with twenty-five members. Forest district takes the banner in number of Auxiliaries, having eleven on roll. Honor to whom honor is due. (Rev. T. L. Mellor.) The work is growing, and the ministers beginning to realize what a help this society can be to them in their work.

Mrs. Blevins, whose home is in Tennessee, has been appointed State organizer, and is now traveling in the interest of the work.

The Board meeting will be held in New Orleans, April 11-18. Let the members of each Auxiliary pray for the success of the meeting.

Mrs. Brashear, first vice-president of the Conference, has special charge of the Juvenile work. Let those in each church who are interested in working for children correspond with her. We ought to have more than six Juvenile societies. The plan adopted by the Jackson Jewels is a good one. On the first Sabbath they hold a home mission meeting; the next, they have a foreign missionary programme; on the third Sabbath a temperance society, and on the fourth an Epworth League meeting. Having different officers for each society, much interest is aroused.

The "Honor Roll" is growing steadily. Don't fail to have your Auxiliary on this roll. Four thousand two hundred fifty-five dollars and seventy-one cents was reported in March number of Our Homes.

The second vice-president in each Auxiliary has charge of the Department of "Systematic and Proportionate Giving." Mrs. Ratcliffe states that orders for boxes, stewardship books, and leaflets, will be promptly filled.

The following suggestion from editorial notes in March number of Our Homes is so good that we repeat it for the benefit of those who may not have noticed it specially:

"'There are so many meetings.' This is the cry of some of our women, yet from others comes suggestions for 'extra meetings' to insure an interest in certain departments of work. One lady says: 'Why not have a meeting for the Baby Roll? Let all the babies on the roll be present, with their mite-boxes, to be opened, and as the name of each one is called, let it be taken forward, and its age be given, and the amount contained in the box. All the babies under five years of age—with their mothers—in the congregation and community could be invited, and, if possible, their names be secured for the roll.'"

We think, with Miss Helm, that a meeting like this would be a lovely one. Won't some of our Auxiliaries try this, and report?

Our active and wide-awake president reports that the pledge made at Dallas for three scholarships has been redeemed, and the amount, seventy-five dollars, sent to general treasury.

Since writing above note about Forest district, a report has been received from Mrs. Blevins of the organization of three new Auxiliaries in the Jackson district, making twelve, which gives that district the banner. Let the good work go on.

The Auxiliaries reported by Mrs. Blevins are as follows: Yazoo City—Adult Auxiliary—with twelve members. Yazoo City—Juvenile Auxiliary—with twenty-nine members. Flora—Adult Auxiliary—reorganized with eight members. Bolton—Adult Auxiliary—with ten members.

The Christian Life.

Whenever you meet with a morose, gloomy Christian, you may rest assured that there is something wrong either with his life or with his liver; his health is bad or his religion is out of order. Heir to all the sunshine in this world, heir to every promise in this dear old Book, heir to a providence that notes the sparrow when it falls, and to the providence which counts the very hairs of his head, he is heir also to all the glories that are yet to be revealed. With all that within him, beneath him, about him, above him, how can a child of God repine? As one has said, "Every day should be a note of joy, every week a bar of music, every month a line of melody, every year a completed stanza, and life itself one sweet, long, beautiful psalm, a prelude to the anthem sung above."

Rev. J. R. Campbell, D. D.

There wants nothing but a believing prayer to turn a promise into performance.—J. Mason.

FROM THE WORK.

NESHOBA (MISS.) CHARGE.

While there are no wonderful things to be reported from the Neshoba charge, yet I am thankful that there is an advance along some important lines. There are better responses to the collections; more liberal provision has been made for the support of the preacher and his family. We hear expressions of confidence that we will have a good year. I am working earnestly and persistently to lead my people nearer to the Savior, and as they approach him they grow more useful and liberal.

I have had some success and some misfortune since I came to this charge. I carried my family to Attala county to spend the time with relations while I was gone to the Annual Conference, and my horses ate sneeze weed and died. When the news reached me at Conference I was greatly perplexed, but the brethren were kind enough to make up a nice little purse for me, and when I reached Attala I found that the good people there had done likewise. After coming home, a number of my people assisted me in paying for a span of horses that I bought in Kosciusko. Some of my ministerial brethren also assisted me after they reached their homes. May God bless them all!

I am mounted again and at work in the Master's name. Our last Quarterly Conference was not as encouraging as it should have been. Bro. Mellen, our wide-awake and consecrated presiding elder, was with us, hewing to the line regardless of chips. May this be a most gracious year to us all.

HARRISTON CIRCUIT, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

I spent the four last years on the Hermanville circuit—four of the happiest years of my life—and I think I left many friends whom I will be glad to meet at any time, and hope to meet them in heaven. God bless them all! But at the last session of the Conference I was assigned to the Harriston circuit, and moved to the parsonage at Lorman (formerly Haye), Dec. 28, 1899, and have been here three months.

Several ladies and gentlemen met us at the depot and conducted us to the parsonage, where we found a nice supper awaiting us; and after they had all left we found the parsonage very comfortable and well furnished, and some good things in the store-room. While we have had no storm or cyclone, we have had a constant flow of good things; nearly every day something is sent in. We have never lived among a nicer, kinder people than the people of Cane Ridge neighborhood. Surely "the lines have fallen unto us in a pleasant place." The preacher is fortunate who lives in the Cane Ridge neighborhood, and I am sure it would be the case in any neighborhood in the bounds of the circuit. The people at all the churches have treated me so kindly that I have learned to love them much. We have received many tokens of friendship and appreciation from persons who are not members of our church. We truly appreciate their kindness.

I have been sick with grip for about three weeks, and hence have not been able to make as good a beginning as I would like to have done, but am improving rapidly now and hope to do the very best year's work of my life. With God's blessings, I will. Pray for me and mine.

SILVER CITY, MISS.

I reached my new field of labor shortly after the Annual Conference adjourned. On account of my wife's sickness I preceded my family here by a couple of months. We are now domiciled at parsonage, which has not been occupied by a preacher's family in a number of years. The house was small and dilapidated and unfit for occupancy. But the ladies promised the presiding elder to fix it up if he would send them a preacher with family who would live here. They are making good their word, and up until this time about two hundred dollars have been expended in way of repairs and additional furnishing. A neat stable and buggy house have been built, together with new fences around garden and yard. Things are now looking home-like, and with a few additional things yet to be done we will be comfortable enough.

I have made three rounds on my work, and have been most cordially received. I find the people kind, hospitable and intelligent. We have had no "storms" as reported by some of the preachers, yet there have been frequent expressions of appreciation. No pastor here will ever suffer as long as he has such friends as the Sharbroughs, Dunn, Holmes, Partee, Smith, Campbell, and others. The church is also blessed with a number of elect ladies.

There are, perhaps, as many people here, comparatively, who have the interest of the church at heart as elsewhere. It is a mistaken idea that the Delta people are worse than Hill folk. You can find worldliness here in the church and also Sabbath desecration, but plenty of this can be found in the hills. Like our brethren of higher altitude, we hope to see a number of things rectified. I find a number of young men and managers on plantations who, though not members of any church, are Methodist inclined and help with the collections. We hope to get them all into the church. There are members here and there of other churches, but the Methodist pastor supplies them largely with the gospel. They help to support him, receive him gladly, and are as zealous for his success as members of our own church. It seems that the Lord has turned this country over to the Methodists. Pastors of other churches preach in only a few places.

We hope during the year to build a new Methodist Church at this place or repair the old one.

Dr. R. V. Powers, a rich friend to our church here, promises to duplicate every dollar raised towards building a new one. First thing he knows we will have him "planking down" and a new church going up.

Bro. Holloman, our presiding elder, is in high esteem, and the people always look forward to his coming with pleasure. He was raised in this county, and is not without honor even in his own country. Though small in stature, they think him a giant in intellect and preaching ability.

At our first Quarterly Conference a liberal assessment was made for the support of the ministry. We hope to have a good report for next Conference. Pray for us.

COLUMBIA, LA.

We have just closed one of the most wonderful meetings in Columbia that this scribe has witnessed for many years. The preaching was done by Rev. Clarence B. Stronse, of Virginia, who for two years has been editor of the Religious Review of Reviews, a journal published in New York City. Since his conversion, six years ago, he has been a loyal member of the M. E. Church, South.

Bro. Stronse is truly a wonderful preacher, and from the first to the last service he convinced me that his sole object is to win souls for Christ. He never seems to be in a hurry about the results of his preaching, and it is a fact that he leads his converts intelligently to the Savior. When they are saved they have a thirst for the Bible and are willing to be led by the pastor. His preaching reaches all classes, and deep conviction and bright conversions are the result. If any of the brethren have "pets" in their congregation who pay the preacher, and yet their lives do not conform to the teaching of the Bible, they had better not send for Stronse, unless they want them cured and put in an attitude where they claim no more power than belongs to them. Whisky, cards, gambling, dancing, profanity—in fact, every sin that is hurting the church and damning souls—is condemned in such an earnest, intelligent, prudent, and Christ-like way as to cause those who are guilty to become ashamed and so alarmed as to forsake them. Some of the hardest cases in this town have surrendered to God, and now manifest a willingness to do what they can for the salvation of others.

I am not in sympathy with some evangelists who have been traveling through the country for the last few years, but I sincerely thank God that it has been my privilege to work with Bro. Stronse and his consecrated wife, who, by her earnest prayers and touching songs, strengthens in general the evangelistic work in which she and her husband are engaged. After all, perhaps, one of the greatest features of his work is that he leaves the pastor and people united in love and harmony as co laborers together with God.

Since the close of the meeting I have been visiting from house to house, and find many under deep conviction. In fact, some have been saved since the meeting closed. These, and doubtless others, would have made a profession of Christ during the meeting had it not been for the prudent way in which Bro. Stronse dealt with them. But he makes no uncertain sound and wants no shams. Among the results of the meeting are twenty-two accessions and many satisfactory conversions. A wonderful change has been wrought in our town.

Rev. D. E. Kelly, of Jena and Jonesville charge, was with us during the entire meeting, rendering valuable service in prayer and song, and on the last Sunday of the meeting filled the pulpit for Bro. Stronse, at 11 o'clock A. M., to the delight and edification of all present. Rev. N. J. Roberts, of Bunkie, La., also favored us with his presence and co-operation for a few days during the meeting.

Bro. J. D. Harper, our faithful and efficient presiding elder, held our first quarterly meeting March 3, preaching two magnificent sermons on Sunday. The outlook on the entire charge is encouraging.

PROOFS OF THE RESURRECTION.

We do not know of anything that is more calculated to strengthen faith and enkindle hope than the consideration of the numerous evidences of our Lord's resurrection. In truth, there is not a fact in history better attested than that of the resurrection of Jesus. Not by one hasty apparition under cover of darkness, and to only two or three disciples, did our Lord give evidence of having risen again, but on various occasions, and "by many infallible proofs, being seen of the apostles forty days, he showed himself alive after his passion." It is utterly preposterous to suppose that the disciples would have dared to proclaim news so unwelcome to the scribes and Pharisees and elders, who had brought about Christ's death, had they not had the most positive proof of the reality of the resurrection. Their subsequent conduct was wholly inexplicable, unless we admit that Jesus really appeared to them in a glorified body. Neither fraud nor fiction will suffice to account for the wonderful change that occurred in their conduct and spirit after the announcement of the resurrection.

Faith in an entombed, unrisen Christ would never have transformed Peter from a base traitor into a fearless preacher of the gospel of a crucified Redeemer. The cowardice and weakness of Peter and the rest vanishes, never more to reappear, when they joyfully gaze upon the newly-risen Master, and heard his words of cheer. When they saw him nailed to the cruel cross, and heard his last expiring groan; hope died within them, and their faith suffered an appalling eclipse. But when the Son reappears clothed in great glory, despair gives place to the most extravagant joy, and they are transformed into heroes who are ready to seal the truth with their blood. The disciples, be it remembered, were slow to believe that Jesus had risen, and at first manifested the greatest surprise and incredulity over the announcement, for "as yet they knew not the Scripture that he must rise from the dead." They doubted that we might not doubt. These men had every opportunity to know the truth. They had been with Christ all through his ministry, and would have detected a false Christ at once.

Furthermore, the fact of the resurrection was first proclaimed by the disciples, not in some remote corner of the earth, but in Jerusalem itself, the very place where Christ had taught openly, and where he had been crucified. It was announced publicly on the day of Pentecost, and also before the Sanhedrim, the very council that had condemned Jesus. No contemporary denial of the resurrection has come down to us save the one Matthew records, put in circulation by the Pharisees, namely: that the disciples came by night and stole him away. For a Roman soldier to sleep on guard, however, was a capital offense, and that the guards were guilty of such an offense is too absurd to be believed for a moment. If the body of Jesus had still remained in the tomb, the unbelieving Jews would undoubtedly have produced it to silence the disciples, and put them to utter and final confusion. A fraud might have been perpetrated elsewhere, but never at Jerusalem, the scene of our Lord's sufferings and death.

The very precautions taken by the enemies of Christ to prevent imposture being practiced by the disciples only serve to confirm the truth of the resurrection. The crucifixion had been public. Pilate had received evidence from the centurion of the reality of the death of Christ before giving permission for the removal of his body from the cross. The tomb was one well known. The Roman seal, which it was death for any man to break, had been affixed thereto, and a watch of sixty soldiers set to keep guard over the body.

Significant testimony to the reality of the resurrection is also furnished by the change in the Sabbath day. Says Lyman Abbott: "It was changed, not by any express command in the New Testament, but by the almost universal consent of the church, which could not endure to observe as a day of joy and gladness that on which Christ lay in the tomb, nor forbear to mark as a weekly festival that on which he rose."

If Christ be not risen, how can we account for the rise and perpetuity of Christianity, and for its marvelous spread and continued conquests? Would the three thousand who were added to the church on the day of Pentecost have accepted Peter's statements unchallenged had they not been duly convinced of the truth of his words? Would the Apostle Paul have renounced Judaism and subjected himself to the bitterest persecution, and at last to a martyr's death, had he not had a vision of the risen Christ? Is it not the realization of the presence of the living Savior, "who was delivered for our offenses, and raised again for our justification," that enables countless multitudes of men and women to-day to deny themselves, and take up their crosses with patience, and follow after righteousness?

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF EASTER.

The fact that in the Romish and Greek Churches the observance of Easter is connected with many superstitious rites and follies used not deter Protestants from celebrating it as the anniversary of our Savior's rising again. We can avoid their mistakes, and at the same time give needed emphasis at this season to the crowning doctrine of the Christian religion. While the observance of the first day of the week as the Christian Sabbath commemorates the resurrection of our Lord, who upon that day left the tomb, and first manifested himself to his disciples, it is scarcely practicable for the pulpit every Sabbath to call attention to this glorious doctrine.

Besides corresponding very nearly with the date upon which our Lord burst the bonds of death, and came forth apparelled in celestial light, Easter-tide is beautifully suggestive of the resurrection because of its being the season when all nature undergoes rejuvenation and revivification.

The truth of Christ's words and claims hinges upon the fact of the resurrection. Failure to triumph over death and the grave would have proclaimed him less than God, and, therefore, either a blasphemous impostor, or one who was signally deluded as to his own identity. Looked at through the glory of the resurrection, Christ's life and death are radiant with light and momentous in significance. Otherwise they are a tragic and unfathomable mystery. The resurrection was needed to complete the plan of salvation and furnish indisputable evidence of the divinity of One who came down from heaven to bring hope and salvation to a lost world.

This doctrine is the keystone of the noble arch of Christianity. "If Christ be not risen," says Paul, "then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses for God." Deny that Jesus rose from the dead, and you might as well destroy the Bible, pull down the churches, recall every missionary, and give the world over to doubt and despair. If Jesus could not conquer death and come back from heaven, we could never be sure that he came from heaven.

The resurrection also establishes our faith in Christ as a Redeemer, who ever lives to intercede for us, and who has power to deliver us from every enemy and evil work. We worship not merely the Christ who died upon the cross, but Christ, the omnipresent Lord and Savior, who ever abides with us, and imparts to us the life and breath of heaven. This precious doctrine robs the grave of its darkness and terrors, and shows that death is but the gateway to a life far exceeding in glory and blessedness any that the human mind can conceive.

The resurrection of our Lord furnishes us the type of what our life hereafter shall be. It enlightens us concerning the nature of the glorified body, and enkindles a longing in the soul for the completeness of redemption. After this marvelous change had taken place, Jesus was no longer subject to fleshly wants and limitations. Pain and weariness could affect him no more. Henceforth his movements from place to place were sudden and mysterious as thought itself, and his presence was invested with such majesty and glory as to strike the beholder with the deepest awe. The day of his humiliation had forever passed; the hour of his exaltation had come.

The message of Easter, then, is one of exceeding gladness and hope. Says the editor of the American Messenger: "It furnishes a motive for living that transfigures the commonplace into the sublime, and gives to that which is earthly a heavenly significance. Without the hope of immortality of which Christ's resurrection assures us, life would indeed be a dark mystery ending in a wall of blank despair. It is a noble song—Christ is Risen. Nature seems to carol it forth as the buds appear, bursting with the promise of the coming blossoms. Angelic hosts are swelling the chorus with a glorious anthem of praise. So let each human heart pay its grateful tribute to the risen Redeemer, and strive to spread the glad message of life and hope and salvation to all mankind."

DEATH OF DR. CUNNYNGHAM.

With a sad and heavy heart we announce the death of that widely known and beloved preacher and saintly servant of God, Rev. W. G. E. Cunnyngham D. D., who passed away in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday afternoon, March 31, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. D. M. Smith. He was in the eightieth year of his age, his birth having occurred in Knox county, Tenn., in 1820. In 1843 he joined the Holston Conference on trial, and in 1852 went to China, as a missionary, where he labored nine years. On his return, after having served as a pastor and college president for a number of years, he was elected Sunday-school editor to succeed Bishop Haygood, which position he held for eighteen years. Since that time and until within a few days of his death he has been actively employed in literary work. In his death our church has lost one of its purest, most useful and lovable men. Dr. Hoss, who knew him intimately, pays his memory the following just and loving tribute:

"Dr. Cunnyngham deserves the best eulogy that could be pronounced upon him. His long life was not merely without spot or stain, but was crowded full of good works from end to end. As preacher, teacher, missionary, and editor, he served his generation by the will of God. Of rare intelligence, perfect sincerity, and persistent energy, he kept at all his tasks from the dew of his youth till the sere and yellow leaf of his old age. In every community in which he ever lived his memory is as ointment poured forth. High and low, rich and poor, black and white, intelligent and ignorant, all alike rejoiced in his ministry."

AN OUTRAGEOUS ABUSE.

The startling revelations recently made by the Times-Democrat and other city papers concerning the management of the New Orleans small-pox hospital, which, it appears, has become a veritable house of horrors, by reason of the filthy conditions and neglect that prevail there, have aroused the intensest indignation among citizens of all classes, and strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the City Council to inaugurate a new system of caring for patients suffering from small-pox. If reports be true—and there is scarcely any reason to doubt that the picture is not overdrawn, for a number of persons who, for a time, were forced to endure the discomfort and vileness of the pest-house, have given testimony concerning the abuses from which they suffered—the treatment usually accorded to patients at the supposed hospital is nothing short of barbarous, and would be a disgrace to the most degraded heathen.

The abuses, it seems, have grown out of the contract system, which has been so fruitful of evil in the care of convicts, the manager of the pest-house having heretofore been allowed twenty-five dollars for looking after each patient, no matter whether the patient died in a day or two, or remained in the institution the full three weeks sometimes required for complete recovery. It is evident at once that it was to the pecuniary interest of the contractor for patients to die speedily, and thus the contract system virtually put a premium upon death. It is astounding that though the grand jury some time ago reported against the present contract, and though the evils prevailing at the pest-house have been pointed out before, no reform was attempted.

We are glad to see that the City Council has recently passed a resolution not to renew the present contract with the manager of the pest house when it expires next month. The city, with the assistance of the State, ought at once to take steps to build a commodious, well-appointed small-pox hospital, where those suffering from contagious diseases can be properly cared for, and such arrangement should be made with those who may be put in charge as to forever preclude the repetition of the shameful abuses that have characterized the management of the present lazaretto. No pains or expense should be spared to rectify this evil, already too long tolerated, which is a crime against humanity and a monstrous stain upon the honor of the city.

THE FAMINE IN INDIA.

This century has not witnessed a famine more appalling in character and magnitude than the one now prevailing over a large district in India. In order to keep them alive the Indian Government has given employment at two cents a day to five million helpless people, and millions more are in the direst need.

The area affected by the famine contains not less than fifty millions of people, and as it will be four months more before the rains bring relief, it is feared that nearly one-half of this population will be dependent by that time. Thousands of living skeletons can be seen making their way to the relief camps for food and water. The Viceroy of India a short time ago informed Secretary of State Adee at Washington that while the Indian Government is doing what it can to save the people from starvation, contributions from friends of India in America will be thankfully received.

Now is the time for the Christian people of America to act the part of the good Samaritan; nor can we be too prompt in sending succor. We will by no means be guiltless in the sight of God if, in the midst of the abundance and luxury evident in our land, we turn a deaf ear to the piteous appeals of India's starving millions. Missionaries in that ill-fated land state that: "A dollar will feed twenty people for a day and will save a child's life for a month. Five dollars will keep a large family from starving for more than a month. Ten dollars will feed more than two hundred emaciated persons."

We will gladly forward to the proper authorities all contributions sent us for the benefit of the famine sufferers, and due credit for such will be given in the ADVOCATE columns.

EDUCATIONAL RALLY.

The Twentieth Century Educational Rally, held last Sunday morning at Carondelet Street Church, was a grand success, and the occasion will be long and pleasantly remembered by all who were fortunate enough to be present. New Orleans Methodism turned out in force to hear Bishop Galloway speak in behalf of the great movement in which he is so deeply interested, all the other Methodist Churches in the city being closed at that hour. The Bishop was at his best, and from start to finish had the enraptured attention of the vast audience that greeted him. At the conclusion of his address, thank-offerings having been called for, responses were obtained amounting to about $600. The members of Carondelet Church had already subscribed $400, or more, to this fund. One or two other churches had also previously made considerable thank-offerings, a good sister at Carrollton Avenue Church having given $500. Hence, it will be seen that the Methodists here are by no means lukewarm as regards this movement.

At night Bishop Galloway delivered a superb and stirring missionary address to the Young People's Missionary Society at Rayne Memorial, many young people from the other churches also being present.

The "pastor" who does not visit his people is not a pastor. He has no right to the title. Ruskin says that if a Bishop can not circumstantially explain how Bill got into the habit of beating Nancy, then he is no Bishop, though his mitre were as high as Salisbury steeple. It is a Methodist preacher's business to know something of the home life of his people. He can never find this out in his study. And until he gets into their home life his pulpit ministrations will be empty sheives, making noise, but killing nothing. Remember, brother, thy ordination vow to "visit from house to house."—Midland Methodist.

NOTES.

Emory College (Ga.) has recently been blessed with a revival of extraordinary power.

Rev. Geo. D. Parker left Wednesday evening for the State League Conference at Arcadia.

Prof. McGiffert has at last withdrawn from the Presbyterian Church, and thus a vexatious matter has been peacefully settled.

As the Horton law has been repealed by the New York Assembly, prize fighters will now have to seek a new field for their barbarous exhibitions.

Presiding Elder T. W. Dye informs us that affairs on the Durant district are moving on well, and that the pastors are bringing up good reports.

That noble philanthropist, Miss Helen Gould, according to recent reports, is supporting nine or ten chaplains in the army in the Philippines, at an expense of about $2,000 per month.

We had an appreciated call one day last week from Rev. N. B. Harmon, of Canton, Miss., who came down to the city on a short trip in the interest of the woman's edition of the Canton Times.

Rev. W. A. Terry, of the Brandon mission, writes that he is succeeding well with his work. He has had several accessions to the church, and arrangements are being made to build a new church.

Prof. Edwin Anderson Alderman, president of the University of North Carolina, has been elected to the presidency of Tulane University. He is said to be a man of great ability and high attainments.

We are glad to learn that under the pastorate of that experienced and cultured itinerant, Rev. R. D. Noraworthy, congregations at Bay St. Louis are improving, and the work of the church is progressing along all lines very satisfactorily.

Prof. A. M. Muckenfuss, of Millsaps College, has been engaged to write a series of illustrative articles for the Epworth Era on "Among the Forces," one of the books in the Epworth League reading course. Something excellent may be looked for.

Says the Wesleyan Advocate: "With more than usual pleasure we announce the early appearance of a book by Bishop Candler, upon which he has put a great deal of time and labor. It will be called "Christus Auctor—A Manual of Christian Evidences."

The telegraphic dispatches announce that during the session of the Baltimore Conference, held in Washington City last week, after an address by Bishop Candler in behalf of the Twentieth Century Fund, the sum of $35,000 was raised in cash and subscriptions.

Bro. Thomas N. Norrell, a life long Methodist and a most excellent man, died at Steen's Creek, Miss., on the fourth, and was buried at Pearson Station on the fifth, the funeral services being conducted by his pastor, Rev. G. M. Hull, assisted by the editor of the ADVOCATE.

Our church at Indianola, Miss., is being improved by the addition of a new coat of paint. So writes the pastor, Rev. W. H. Sanders, who has his work well in hand, and to whom we are indebted for a cordial invitation to attend the Winona District Conference, which meets this year at Indianola.

Rev. W. M. Stevens, of the Mississippi Conference, left home on the fourth instant for Chicago, to enter the Moody Bible Institute, where he expects to take a three months' course in systematic Bible study. We wish him much success in this laudable effort to gain better equipment for the work of the ministry.

On Sunday afternoon, the eighth, at the Baptist Church in Jackson, Miss., a Sunday-school mass meeting was held, which was addressed by Dr. J. L. M. Curry, treasurer of the Peabody Fund. The theme was, "Jesus Christ, the Model Sunday-school Teacher." The address was a masterly one, and produced a profound impression.

A card from Rev. S. A. Brown, dated Starkville, Miss., April 7, says: 'Rev. Theo. Copeland, of North Alabama, is assisting Bro. Mask in a revival at Starkville. Much good has been done, and we confidently expect a great awakening. We are praying for a genuine revival. Rev. J. A. Leech, of Okolona, is conducting the music. The meeting will continue next week"

The General Board of the Woman's Home Mission Society of our church convened in annual session yesterday morning at Carondelet Street Church, a large number of delegates and visitors being present. Two sessions of the Conference will be held each day, commencing respectively at 9:30 A. M. and 7:45 P. M. The proceedings will be of great interest and are open to the general public. A number of distinguished speakers are expected.

The gratifying news comes from Avoyelles parish, La., that at an election on the whisky question, held on the third instant, the parish went overwhelmingly for prohibition. Marksville, once an anti-prohibition stronghold, cast 39 votes for and 218 votes against the sale. The other precincts in the parish voted over ten to one against whisky. The splendid victory just won is said to be largely due to the preaching and efforts of Rev. Clarence B. Stronge.

Rev. W. T. Woodward, pastor at Lecompte and West Alexandria, La., has started off under encouraging conditions, and hopes to do a good year's work. In a note to the ADVOCATE he says: "We have received ten into the church to date. All services are as well, or better attended, than last year. We are distributing cards for our Twentieth Century collection (offering). Have secured a nice lot in Cheneyville, on which to build a church; also considerable subscription thereto."

The vacancy in the presidency of the Mississippi A. and M. College, caused by the death of the lamented ex-Gov. Stone, was filled on last Friday by the election of Prof. J. C. Hardy, of Jackson, Miss. Prof. Hardy is an experienced and successful educator, and though only about thirty-five years of age, is eminently qualified for the high position to which he has just been elected. As superintendent of the Jackson public schools for the past eight years, or more, he has given entire satisfaction, and was lately appointed one of the new Capitol commissioners. He is a man of fine Christian character.

Rev. H. M. Young, of the Ebenezer circuit, North Mississippi Conference, writes hopefully as follows: "Our second Quarterly Conference embraced last Saturday and Sunday, and was quite an interesting occasion. Rev. T. W. Dye, our presiding elder, was with us, and preached two splendid sermons for us. He is in good favor with our people, and his visits are highly appreciated. This is our first year on the Ebenezer charge, and we at the parsonage have been gladdened several times by gifts, such as hams, sugar, and other necessary articles, which did not come too late to cheer and make us thankful. We are serving a good people, and anticipate a good and a profitable year."

THE WOMEN'S NATIONAL INDIAN ASSOCIATION.

This association has not hitherto appealed by circular to its friends, but from its success it now has confidence to say, "Please help us, if possible, quickly to finish the work remaining to be done by us."

Besides its nearly five years of work, from 1879 to 1884, for gaining the civil and political rights of Indians, the Association has since then directly or indirectly established missionary work for forty-seven tribes or tribal remnants, securing land and building the missionary cottage and chapel. But at least twenty-five more stations are needed to give the gospel to tribes still without a mission.

Our government is providing lands and schools for Indians, and if, therefore, our Association can organize a mission in all tribes unreached by the churches, the three great needs of our aborigines will be met. The Association making this plea is doing much other work; for example: building Indian homes, granting agricultural implements, sewing machines, looms, stock, etc., from its specially designated loan fund of $12,000; opening libraries, providing professional education for bright Indians, giving temperance instruction, sending clothing to some of the aged and helpless of seventy tribes, and it now has a House of Industries (Jewett, New Mexico), where women and girls will be taught sewing, knitting, spinning, weaving, and other needed work. Besides all this, the Association has erected thirty-five buildings, and has well expended from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. But its leading object at present is to open the twenty-five new mission stations needed in the neglected tribes, and, this being done, the society can then right fully disband.

So its Standing Committee now gladly presents the opportunity to all to share in the work remaining, asking that friends will send what the heart prompts, be it much or little, to either person named below, viz.:

WANTED.

The Minister's Education Aid Association of the Louisiana Conference is in urgent need of funds to continue the excellent work it is doing for the church.

The treasurer, Rev. F. S. Parker, writes me from Jackson: "Would it be possible for you to raise a little money for the Aid Association? We are doing a very great deal of good with a very little money. ——— has been enabled to finish his Freshman year almost on $20. ——— has gone to ——— by appointment of the presiding elder, and is doing finely. He got a great deal out of the school work at cost of about $75 for last year and this. ——— has been enabled almost to finish his Senior year by the aid of $15 lent him this year. ——— will be through Sophomore this year with the loan of about $60, of which he already has received $40. There is a very excellent and capable young man here by the name of ———, who gives promise of making a scholar if we can see him through. If he has $20, that will see him through the year."

Now, will not some of the generous friends of this worthy cause send a special contribution at once to an empty treasury, whereby these young brethren may be able to remain during the remainder of the session? Will not some of the members who are delinquent in the payment of their dues make an earnest effort to remit something at this time?

If any members not in arrears can conveniently make a payment now, they will be credited for 1900.

ROBERT H. WYNN,
Secretary.

WINONA DISTRICT.

We have finished the first round of Quarterly Conferences for the Winona district. Prospects are good for a successful year. The pastors are hopeful, happy and at work. It is the purpose of the pastors and the presiding elder to have a widespread revival throughout the district. To this end we are praying and working. Again, to report all finances paid a hundred cents on the dollar, and to see that we pay at least one dollar per member on the Twentieth Century Thank-Offering. We think the prospects bright for this. We have provided on the first round something over eight hundred dollars on a debt on the district parsonage of eight years' standing. We hope to clear it all off by the first of May. Then we will be free for other things. Come and see us at the District Conference.

Royal
BAKING POWDER
-Absolutely Pure-

For the third of a century the standard for strength and purity. It makes the hot bread, hot biscuit, cake and other pastry light, sweet and excellent in every quality.

No other baking powder is "just as good as Royal," either in strength, purity or wholesomeness.

Many low priced, imitation baking powders are upon the market. These are made with alum, and care should be taken to avoid them, as alum is a poison, never to be taken in the food.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Morgan City, La.
EDITOR.

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

W. F. Lagrone, of West Point, first vice-president of the State Conference, referring in a letter to the gathering at Vicksburg, May 10-13, says, "We expect to have a great meeting."

Mr. G. T. McGehee, superintendent of the Sunday-school at Woodville, writes in a private letter that the work among children has been the sweetest and most profitable of his life.

Just before the meeting of the State League Conference we should think seriously, prayerfully, of the plans that should be adopted for the advancement of the church's work and influence among the young people. The field is unlimited, and oftentimes we see how it could be planned and worked, if all would do their duty here. But it is a fact that all will not do their part. The problem is, "How to get more to do their part." Oftentimes resolutions have been passed and requests have been made which were never observed. "How to see to it that our orders and requests are heeded," is the question. Strong minds, mighty hands, are needed. God help us!

Inasmuch as the Epworth Era is run at an expense to the Publishing House, the Alabama Advocate is of the opinion that Barbee & Smith, the Agents, ought to secure for it a few worthy, but paying advertisements, instead of making it depend entirely upon the subscriber list. We ourselves see no impropriety in this. But no financial provision should stop a single effort that is being made to enlarge the list of subscribers. The Era deserves a large circulation.

As to the "Bi-Annual Conference:" Is it better to proceed as at present, or will it be better to hold the State League Conference only every two years, allowing on the other year each of the two Conferences of Mississippi to hold a League gathering if it sees fit? W. D. Hawkins, of Meridian, to whom the duty of finding out the sentiment on this subject in the Meridian, Forest, Seashore, and Brookhaven districts, asks that the question be voted on at the League business meetings, and that he be informed of the result by April 25, or at least before the meeting of the State Conference at Vicksburg, May 10-13.

Sometimes matter for the League column has not been inserted by the publisher as promptly as we expected; but we are in receipt of a letter from the ADVOCATE office, stating that, if the matter for the column can be sent so as to reach New Orleans by Saturday, the work will be more satisfactorily accomplished. We will so do hereafter.

MISSISSIPPI STATE LEAGUE TAX.

Received to March 11, 1900: Wesley Chapel, $2 43; Vossburg, $1.35; Starkville, $2; Madison, $1; Shuqualak, $1.10; Columbus, $5; Canton, $2; Greenville, $2.50; Tupelo, $2; West Point, Senior, $1 65; Sardis, Junior, $2.10; Natchez, Under Hill, $2 25; Inka, $1 35; Madisonville, $1.50; Beauregard, $1; Pain's Chapel, $1.70; Jackson, First Church, $4; Hollandale, $1.65; McComb City, $2.20; Lake, $1 20; Meridian, West End, $1.95; Corinth, Junior, $2 20; Corinth, Senior, $2.75; Corinth, South Side, 50 cents; Pickens, $1; Amory, $1.50; Tyro, $1; Verona, Senior and Junior, $1 70; Wesson, $1.80; Hickory, 75 cents; Macon, Junior, $1.30; Hernando, 70 cents; Macon, Senior, 80 cents; Columbus, East Side, $2; Natchez, Jefferson Street, $2.35; Chickahoma, $1.50; Days, 80 cents. Total, $64.53.

I am glad to announce that the railroads have all consented to give one and one-third rates to our State Conference, on certificate plan. Remember, no League will be entitled to representation save those having paid State tax.

VIC THOMPSON,
State Secretary.

P. S.—Since the above statement was made, Columbus, Junior, has paid $1 55, and Rankin, 50 cents, making the total $66 58.

VIC THOMPSON.

MR. EDITOR: Towards our little city of marvelous growth, both present and prospective, many eyes are turned, and many prayers ascend for the prosperity of our church work here. Methodism, in its different departments, is surprisingly well-organized, and is endeavoring to keep pace with the material prosperity of this new town. Our Epworth League is, I think, deserving of special mention. It has a membership of forty, with frequent additions from our very best people. Prof. Phillips, principal of our Graded School, and a Baptist, is one of the most enthusiastic Leaguers I have known. As vice-president of the Literary Department, he has the work well in hand. In addition to a number of Epworth Eras already taken, we have recently sent on an order for twenty more copies. The books included in the course of study for the current year have been purchased. The devotional meetings are well attended, not only by our young people, but by the older members as well. We hope to take up a special work very soon, of which I will speak at another time.

To those who understand the situation here, the above record will appear a fine one, I am sure.

MRS. J. S. PARKER.

Gulfport, Miss., March 17, 1900

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment of the most modern style.

"Love and War in Cuba," by Rev. P. L. Stanton, A. M., is a charming story. There is enough war in it to make one's blood boil, enough love to make the heart warm, and enough religion to make the soul feel good. This is good missionary reading for bright young people.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." TWO TABLES SET FOR TWO.

The sunshine falls on the window-sill,
And the day looks in at the open door,
The kettle sings, and the dear old wife
Goes back and forth o'er the kitchen floor
With plate and platter, and fork and spoon,
As every day she is wont to do,
And she lays them with a quite grace
On the homely table set for two.

Oh, the bread is like the sea's white spray,
And the cloth is clean as mountain snows;
From the pantry shelf to the kitchen stove
The dear old wife on her errands goes,
The morning glories over the porch
All in a riotous tangle run,
The cat lies curled asleep on a chair,
The old dog blinks at the noonday sun.

But the dear old wife is sad to-day,
And the morning hours have seemed so long,
For her thoughts are of the long ago,
When the old house rang with mirth and song;
When the red-cheeked boys and merry girls
Came trooping in through the open door;
Some wander now 'neath an alien sky,
And some will come back no more—no more.

There are empty chairs against the wall,
And the wide old rooms are strangely still,
The day is sad, though the sunshine falls
Like sifted gold on the window-sill;
And the dear old wife in her quiet way
Does the homely tasks she is wont to do,
But the tears fell fast as she sadly thinks
Of the lonesome table set for two.

FAMILY MANNERS.

Our manners in the family are very apt to be the sincere expressions, as they are the unconscious revelations, of our prevailing and dominant states of mind. Character is indicated by the tricks of speech and of gesture, the tones of voice, the politeness or the rudeness of daily deportment, and by a hundred small things which are automatic things of which we take no note, perhaps of which we are quite unaware. Just as a habitually gentle and controlled person has a quiet and serene face, and as a tempestuous and unrestrained nature writes its record on the countenance, so the manners of a family set it apart as well-bred or the reverse, and the family air stamps each individual of the clan.

When the overwrought mother scolds her fractious child, allowing her fretfulness to sharpen her accents, and speaking with the stormy emphasis of anger, she does not mean permanently to influence her little one's manner, but she is doing so nevertheless. The child grows querulous, reflecting the nervous susceptibility to strain which makes the mother unamiable. Placidity, serenity, a tranquil calm of strength and sweetness in combination seem to have vanished from many homes wherein people are hurried and worried, distraught and care-laden.

Family manners, apart from the relation of parents and children, which imply a reciprocal consideration, are apt to suffer from too much candor. We speak with great plainness in the circle of our own kindred; we comment too freely on foibles; we express the contrary opinion too readily and with too little courtesy. A slight infusion of formality never harms social intercourse, either in the family or elsewhere.

Beyond this too common mistake of an over-bluntness and brusque freedom in the manners of a household, in some of our homes there is a greater fault, even a lack of demonstration. There is the deepest, sincerest love in the home; the brothers and sisters would cheerfully die for one another if so great a sacrifice were demanded, but the love is ice-locked beyond a barrier of reserve. Caresses are infrequent, words of affection are seldom spoken. It may be urged with truth and some show of reason that in the very homes where this absence of demonstration is most marked, there is complete mutual understanding, and no possibility of doubt or misgiving, and, so far as it goes, this is well. But often young hearts long unspeakably for some gentle sign of love's presence—the lingering touch of a tender hand on the head, the good-night kiss, the word of praise, the recognition of affection. Older hearts, too, are sometimes empty, and many of us, younger and older, are kept on short rations all our lives, when our right, on our Father's road to our Father's house, is to be fed with the finest of wheat, and enough of it, just as those who ate manna in the wilderness had always an entire provision, not a stinted supply.

Another suggestion which should not be overlooked is the importance of politeness to the little ones. To snub a small laddie needlessly, to order about a child on errands here and there, instead of civilly preferring a request as one does to an older person, in each case is an invasion of the rights of childhood. The child to whom everybody practices politeness will in turn be himself ready to oblige and agreeable in manner, for the stamp of the family is as plainly to be seen on every one as the stamp of the mint on the coin, and it is as indelible for time, and why not also for eternity? —Margaret E. Sangster, in the Young Woman.

THE CONSIDERATE GIRL.

To consider, is to "sit down by," as the dictionary hath it. But who has time for that in these days? "Up and away" is the word to-day, and everybody runs—at least it often seems so. But the considerate girl does exist, blessings on her. She sits down by a friend in need, stopping long enough to take thought for her necessities and to understand them, whatever they are, that so she may relieve them. To toss a bit of sympathy, a would-be helpful word as one rushes by, is not the way either to relieve or alleviate. The word well-meant, in a careless, simply good-humored way, may prove to be a sharp missile instead of a healing message.

The considerate girl knows better than to "sing songs to a heavy heart," but she does know how to speak "the good word that maketh glad" when "heaviness in the heart causes it to stoop." There are so many stooping hearts in the world, that it is well worth while to consider how to lift them up. It is an art that calls for thoughtfulness, discrimination, earnestness and sympathy. One must sit down and take time for the cultivation of these; they are not gained in any "giddy whirl." The charities, personal and organized, that form so large and needful a part of the life of the present, call for considerateness in their administration. "Blessed is he that considereth the poor." It is far easier, but far more selfish, to give a coin at the back door, than to "consider" the needs in the back street or obscure court. But the true-spirited girl who forms a part of youthful, growing life to-day, makes a beginning in this direction, as occasion serves, for her sensitive heart and conscience long to help truly, and to grow up into actual helpfulness.

The considerate girl is recognized by what she withholds as well as by what she gives. She pauses long enough to notice the sharp edges that must be ignored, the throbbing hurts that must be avoided, the prejudices that must not be irritated, and her kindly silence is golden, her tact is a boon to all. This lovely characteristic comes from not considering herself. Therefore the girl, having a heart at leisure, is able to sit down by others. The consideration, too, is for the sake of doing good, and not for the sake of making intimate acquaintance with failings and foibles.

The character is not to be attained or achieved in a day. It is of life-time growth, but the girl who realizes the beauty and the duty of it, the joy and recompense, will begin early and "keep on keeping on."

Think of the blessedness of coming close to people. What dear intimacies of mutual and gracious helpfulness grow out of it. The considerate girl is self-denying and self-forgetful, but "Verily she hath her reward."—Julia H. Johnston, in The Interior.

TACT IN THE FAMILY.

A Great Mother is a just title for Frances Willard's biography of her mother. She was indeed a remarkable woman, and in the daughter's autobiography parents of girls will find many a helpful suggestion in connection with the training and education of Frances and her sister Mary. One instance of the wise and tender home influences surrounding their girlhood was the tactful treatment of Frances' sensitiveness in regard to her personal appearance. She says of herself in her youth: "All happy hopes were mine save one—I wasn't a bit good looking." In a comparison with her sister, who was remarkably attractive, she describes herself as being "thin, with sparse red hair, though mother never permitted me or any one else to call it red." Nevertheless, boys sometimes teasingly dubbed her "redhead" and girls pitied her for being "homely." Smarting from these taunts, she would take refuge with her mother, who soothed her by the assurance that her hair was "like Grandfather Hill's, which grew to be a lovely gold-brown color when he grew up," and adding, "You are like him in every way, and he was the noblest-looking man in all the country round." Then sister Mary would remind her of her "nice figure" and small hands and feet, and the brother also would come to the rescue with, "Never mind, Frank, if you aren't the handsomest girl in school, you are the smartest!" Thus home love and loyalty healed the sore spirit until the girl grew to womanhood and realized that beauty of expression, of manner, of utterance, of achievement, of character outweigh beauty of person even in the scales of society, to say nothing of celestial values.—The Congregationalist.

THINGS A MOTHER SHOULD NOT DO.

She should not forget that if she treats her boy as a gentleman, she will do much towards making him a gentleman.

She should not treat her boy to perpetual frowns, scoldings, and fault-findings. "Sugar attracts more flies than vinegar." Love wins her boy to a noble manhood.

She should never be so busy or hard-pressed for time that she can not listen to him. If he lives to be a man, he will all too soon leave her. She should make the most of him while she has him.

She should encourage outdoor exercise or sports, and she should not forget to train him with proper regard for his personal appearance.

She should never allow him to form such habits as coming to the table in his shirt-sleeves, neglecting his nails or teeth, or carrying soiled handkerchiefs about with him.

She should never nag him, or forget that he is a creature of reason, not an animal that requires to be driven

She should not try to break her boy's will, but be thankful that he is manly enough to have a mind of his own, and devote himself to training it to the noblest uses.

She should not fail to instill in him a distaste for all that is vulgar.—Household.

PRACTICAL painters say that when they come to repaint a house which has been painted with ready-mixed paint or combination White Lead (so-called), it costs more to prepare the surface than to apply the paint.

The moral is to use only Pure White Lead, because it is not only more durable, but is always in good condition for repainting. These brands are genuine.

FREE For colors use National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors. Any shade desired is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving full information and showing samples of Colors, also pamphlet entitled "Uncle Sam's Experience With Paints" forwarded upon application.

LIVING WELL TO-DAY.

Living well to-day is the best any one can do. We can not live in the future. We must live in the present. If that be lived wisely, there need not be any anxious concern for the morrow; for, says a judicious writer, "the value of the future depends entirely upon the value attached to to-day; there is no magic in the years to come; nothing can bloom in those fairer fields save that which is sown to-day. The great aim of Christianity is not to teach men the glory of the life to come, but the sacredness of the life that now is; not to make men imagine the beauty of heaven, but to make them realize the divinity of earth; not to unveil the splendor of the Almighty, enthroned among angels, but to reveal the deity of the Man of Nazareth. He has mastered the secret of life who has learned the value of the present moment, who sees the beauty of present surroundings, and who recognizes the possibility of saintliness in his neighbors."—Telescope.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

TAKE NOTICE

That we are now handling two different styles of the Holman Bible in Bourgeois type. One we sell to paid-up subscribers at $1.50, the other at $1.30. The $1.30 Bible is substantially the same we have hitherto sold at $1.50. The one we sell at $1.50 is a far better Bible than has ever been sold at such a price. It is a marvel of cheapness. See our offer.

PRICE REDUCED.

"The Gospel of Giving" having had a sufficient sale to justify a reduction in price, we will hereafter send it postpaid to any address at the following prices: Ten copies, ten cents; twenty-five copies, fifteen cents; fifty copies, twenty-five cents; one hundred copies, forty cents; two hundred copies, seventy-five cents.

MADDEN—Mrs. BERTHA A. MADDEN (nee Eaves) was born June 25, 1873; was married Dec. 22, 1898, to Mr. W. L. Maddan, of Simsboro, La., and died Dec. 16, 1899. She was baptized Oct. 7, 1876, by Rev. F. G. Hocutt, at Mars Hill, Union parish, La., and was received into the church at about twelve years of age by J. A. Miller, at Paine's Chapel, near Simsboro, La. Her membership was moved from Paine's Chapel to Simsboro in 1896. There she remained a loyal member till her death. When a girl she never engaged in worldly amusements. While some of her friends were led off into the dance and other worldliness, she remained true to her church ves, oftentimes standing almost alone. She had been afflicted with heart trouble for four or five years preceding her death. It was rumored by her friends, as she lay a corpse, that she bore her suffering with so much patience as never to murmur. Although for some time unable to attend to the household duties much, her hands were not idle, and many were the kind acts done for the different members of the family. Oftimes she left her own work undone in order to help others. The last work she did was for her mother and sister. When death came she said to her mother and husband, "Now, don't get scared; I am not scared." Her last words were, "Nothing hurts me; I am all right." May we all emulate her worthy example!

H. W. LENNETTER, Former Pastor.

ALFORD—Died Jan. 30, 1900, at the home of her son, Rev. N. E. Alford, near Magnolia, Miss., Mrs. ANN ALFORD, more widely known as "Aunt Ann." She was a devout member of the M. E. Church for many years, and was the mother of eleven children, two of whom had gone before. Only those to whose lips the same cup of sorrow has been pressed can realize the chill that settles on the soul when one stands beside a still form, and knows the faithful heart which would have shed its last drop of blood for us has ceased to beat, though it was not my privilege to be with her very much for two years before she died. Seldom are the hearts of grandmother and granddaughter so closely knit together as was the case with us. May He who says, "I will not leave you comfortless," help us to bow in meek submission to His divine will in this dark hour! During her illness she expressed a desire to go and be at rest. The years to come will be so desolate to those of us who still linger here without her presence and love; but she is gone, and even in our deep sorrow we would not call her back if we could. Heaven is nearer, dearer, because she is there.

Farewell, grandma, thou art resting
In the Shepherd's peaceful fold;
By God's grace we all shall meet you
When we cross death's river cold.

Her granddaughter, MOLLIE CARTER.
Lumberton, Miss.

NABORS—EZEKIEL R. NABORS was born in Union county, Ark., Jan. 17, 1860. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and lived a consistent Christian life to the day of his death, which occurred at his home near Mansfield, La., Nov. 30, 1899. He was happily married in Vienna, La., Dec. 22, 1886, to Miss Mary B. McLeRoy, who, together with three children, an aged father, and three brothers, all living in and near Mansfield, La., are left to mourn his early demise.

Zeke (as we familiarly called him) was a true man; true to his family, true to his friends, and true to his convictions of right, and hence he was always on the right side of every moral question. Those who knew him best trusted him implicitly. But in his home life his chief virtues shone brightest. He was an affectionate husband, a kind and tender-hearted father, a dutiful son, and a loving brother; in a word, he was a Christian gentleman of the highest type, without parade or ostentation. He was diligent in business and fervent in spirit, providing well for his family, and contributing of his means, as the Lord prospered him, to the support of the institutions of the church. Amid a throng of sorrowing people we laid his body to rest in the Mansfield cemetery, feeling assured that his spirit had winged its way to realms of bliss.

PARKER—Resolutions adopted by the Newton Methodist Sunday-school on the death of S. F. PARKER:

Whereas, Death has invaded our Sunday-school circle, and has removed from our midst our beloved brother and co-worker, S. F. Parker, who had endeared himself to us all by deeds of kindness and by his ever bright, cheerful, and friendly manner, that carried joy and gladness everywhere he went; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Methodist Sunday-school of Newton, that it is with profound sorrow, and with deep-felt sense of our loss, that we have learned of the death of our bright, good, and useful and ever-faithful friend, brother and co-worker in the Sunday-school.

Resolved, That while we do not understand the providence of God, who often "moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," in removing this bright and useful young man from our midst, yet we bow in humble, reverent submission to the will of the loving God, who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That we tender to the bereaved family and relations of Bro. Parker our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of great bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the parents of deceased.

Resolved, That the Mississippi Baptist and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE are requested to publish these resolutions.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the Minutes of the Sunday-school.

Alice C. Logan, Ollie Hunt, C. H. Raw, Committee.

Adopted Sunday, Feb. 25, 1900.
T. H. SELBY, President.

LEAK—LUMKIN T. LEAK, son of F. T. and S. S. Leak, was born in Benton county, Miss., Dec. 23, 1878, and died near Abbeville, in Lafayette county, March 7, 1900. It will be seen from these dates that Lumkin had just entered young manhood, and had felt some of the aspirations and experienced at least some of the prosperts of young life; but the flower that has just bloomed is often cut down and withers.

In many respects Lumkin was a remarkable boy, possessing some noble traits of character. While quite young he lost a good mother, who left his father with five little children—two sons and three daughters. His father's business kept him from home much of his time. Lumkin stayed with and worked for the support and comfort of his sisters and little brother with all the devotion and industry that could have been expected of one of riper years. When only a small boy he appeared to have the judgment of a mature man. Though of limited opportunities, the neighbors had often predicted that he would make his mark in the world. He was highly esteemed in the community, and tenderly loved by father, brother and sisters, who sorrow, but not as those who have no hope.

A. W. LANGLEY.

SKIPPER—MARION JOSHUA SKIPPER, eldest son of Mr. J. Q. and Mrs. E. J. Skipper, was born in Kemper county, Miss., June 5, 1880, and departed this life March 6, 1900, having lived nineteen years nine months and one day.

Marion was a good boy, having joined the M. E. Church, South, at Spring Hill about six years ago. During his short life he lived up to his profession of faith in the Master. His sickness was of short duration—only a week—and pneumonia claimed him as a victim. All that medical skill and loving, gentle hands could do for him was faithfully done. He was never heard to murmur. Only a few hours before his death he said, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." He was brought up to worship God and love the church. Fidelity and loyalty to his Savior characterized his whole life. His devotion to his parents was simply beautiful. That beauty, grace and loveliness of character which comes of careful Christian training and faithfulness in service was beautifully expressed in his daily walk and conversation. His chair on earth is vacant, but his place in heaven is filled.

His uncle, VIRGIL.

KELLIS—Dr. W. A. KELLIS was born April 4, 1851, and died Jan. 27, 1900. He was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in the Summer of 1877, and was united in marriage with Miss Sallie M. Ford, Nov. 15 of the same year.

Dr. Kellis was a very intelligent, conscientious Christian gentleman. He leaves a sorrowing wife and three children to mourn the loss of a kind father and devoted husband. As a physician, he was successful, and had a large, extended practice. As a member of the church, he was very useful and attentive. The preachers of Winstonville charge will greatly miss his kindness and helping hand to them and their families. We were with him in his last hours, and talked freely to him about the future, and he assured us that he was willing to go. He talked to his wife as if he was only going on a journey, and called up the hired boy and gave him directions, and had an understanding as to how they stood financially. The writer officiated at his burial, which took place at Kellis' store, about fourteen miles southeast of here. J. H. BASS, His Pastor.

WINE OF CARDUI

HEALTHY OLD AGE.

LARUE, BENTON CO. ARK., Aug. 4.
I am 49 years old and have been suffering with Change of Life. I had flooding spells so bad that none thought I could live. My husband got me Wine of Cardui and it saved my life. I am like another person since taking it.
MRS. E. B. TOWNSEND.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It is the devout wish of nearly all people to live to a ripe old age. None of us want to die young. This universal desire can be realized if care be taken of the health in early and middle life. A little precaution then will add many years to our existence. Death can be kept away a long time. Happy, healthy old age will be the lot of the woman who promptly corrects the ailments which afflict her sex. In youth, Wine of Cardui will take the female child safely over the dividing line between girlhood and womanhood. As a wife she needs it to help her through the trials of pregnancy and childbirth with as little discomfort as possible. At the Change of Life it will help her over the dangerous place that appears in her pathway between 40 and 50. Then will come many years of truly blissful existence. She will grow old slowly and gracefully. To the last she will preserve that charm and beauty which are always characteristic of perfectly healthy grandmothers. It is for women alone to decide whether they will be healthy or sick. The remedy for their sickness is close at hand.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to April, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

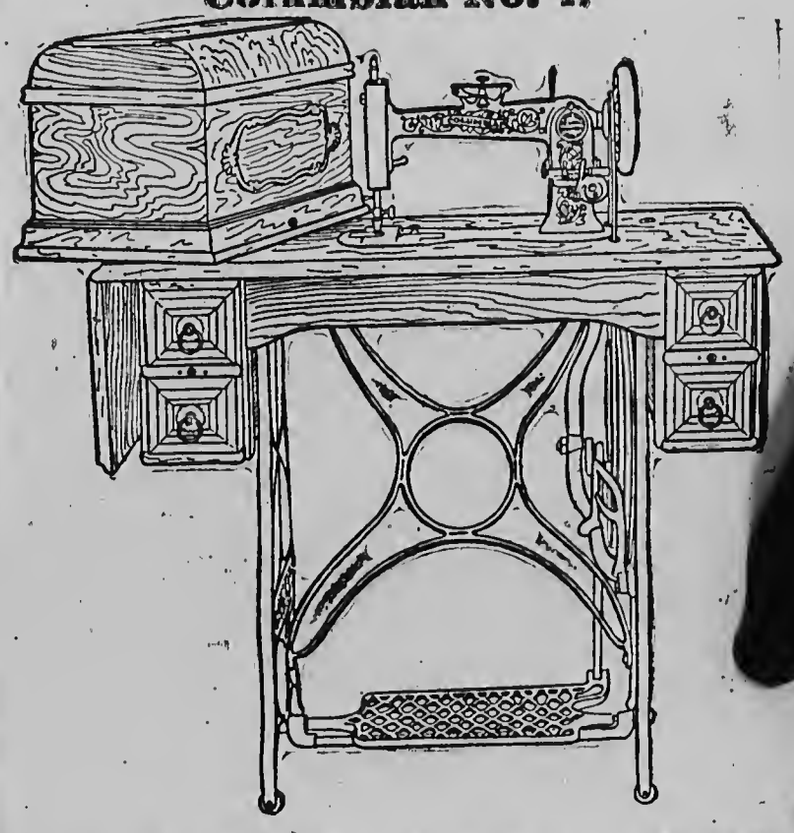
Furnished Free with every machine are the following named accessories: One Foot Hemmer, One Screw Driver, One Wrench, One Oil Can and Oil, One Gauge Screw, One Extra Check Spring, One Package of Needles, Five Bobbins and One Instruction Book.

Columbian No. 4.



EXCELLENCE OF THE COLUMBIAN.—All wearing parts are of case-hardened steel possessing great durability, and by the turning of a screw all lost motion caused by wear can be taken up. All parts are fitted so accurately that the machines are absolutely noiseless, and as easy running as fine adjustment and best mechanical skill is possible to produce. No expense or time is spared to make them perfect in every respect, as every machine passes a rigid inspection by competent men before leaving the factory.

NICKEL PLATED.—The balance wheel and many of the fine parts are nickel-plated, with other parts finely enameled and ornamented, giving it a rich appearance.

A Self-Setting Needle and Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle are used in the Columbian High-Arm Sewing Machine. They are so simple that any one can easily operate them in a few minutes' time, as our Instruction Book is fully illustrated, showing how to do all kinds of fancy work with attachments.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

ADDITIONAL ACCESSORIES.—Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screw Driver, Oil Can with Oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb Screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated, and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

No. 3—Drop leaf, Bent cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $29. Our price, $17.
No. 4—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $31. Our price, $17.75.
No. 5—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making a seven-drawer machine. Dealer's price, $33. Our price, $18.50.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

POTASH gives color, flavor and firmness to all fruits. No good fruit can be raised without Potash.

Fertilizers containing at least 8 to 10% of Potash will give best results on all fruits. Write for our pamphlets, which ought to be in every farmer's library. They are sent free.

Gen. Gatacre's force has returned to Bethany without having fonnd any trace of the ill-fated British colnmn captured at Reddersbnrg. A telegram from Pretoria says Gen. De Wet commanded the Boer force that made the capture, and that 450 prisoners and a large qnantity of camp stores and ammunition was also taken.

April Showers

Wash away the filth and waste that have accumniated during winter.

In like manner Hood's Sarsaparilla expels from the blood impurities that have been deposited during the season when there has been but little perspiration and perhaps constant confinement in impnre and vitiated air. It is a boon to tired mothers, housekeepers, teachers and others who spend their time indoors.

It gives the blood richness and vitality, fitting it to nourish and strengthen the nerves, muscles and all the great organs of the body. It cures all spring humors and banishes that tired feeling.

It is the best medicine money can buy for all diseases caused by impure or impoverished blood. Yon should begin taking it to-day.

Althongh there can be no donbt that the insnrrection in the Philippines has come to an end, insofar as organized armed opposition to the Amerioan forces is concerned, it must be admitted that the situation in the islands from a military point of view is far from satisfactory.

The Brazos and Colorado rivers are ont of their banks in Texas. The costly dam at Anstin has given way. Between forty and fifty people are thought to have been killed and nntold damage to property has occnrred. The cotton fields in some portions of the State are innndated and will have to be replanted.

Filipinos, operating in small bodies, are very active in different parts of Lnzon. Gen. Yonng has made several requests for reinforcements, reporting that his force is inadeqnate; that the men are exhansted, and that he is unable to garrison the towns in his jnrisdiotion. Gen. Bell, commanding in Southern Luzon, has made similar reports.

The mystery snrrondiug the assassination of Senator Goebel, of Kontucky, seems in a fair way of being cleard np. Youtzey, a stenographer, has made a confession implicating W. S. Taylor with others previonsiy accused. Youtzey declares the assassin was Jim Howard, a Clay connty fond leader, and says he was hired to fire the fatal shot.

For some time past matters have been in a very nnsettled condition in various parts of China. The lives of foreignors have been imperiled, and various outrages have occurred, calling for vigorons protests from different Enropean powers. In order to properly safeguard American interests several of onr warships were recently sent to Chinese waters.

CANCER CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment Removes All Malignant Growths and Drives the Poison from the Blood and Lymphatic Fluid.

J. N. HATHAWAY, M. D.

Cutting out Cancer does not cure it and can not cure it.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment does cure it.

Cutting out Cancer simply removes the local, outward manifestation.

Dr. Hathaway's Treatment Kills the malignant germs of the Cancer, removes the poison from the blood and lymphatic fluid and hastens the systems against future attacks.

Dr. Hathaway has treated Cancer successfully under this method over eight years; his experience covering a large number of well defined cases has proven this terrible affliction to be perfectly curable IN EVERY CASE WHERE IT CAN BE REACHED BY THE SYRINGE. This includes all outward manifestations, such as the nose, face, head, mouth, lips, tongue and breast, as well as all internal organs that can be reached direct, such as the womb and ovaries. Besides, many internal Cancers that can not be reached direct may be reached and treated successfully through the agency of the lymphatic vessels and the blood.

A TYPICAL CASE AND CURE.

The following is one of hundreds of like testimonials:

Several years ago there appeared on the side of my face an irritable rough spot. At first there was no attention paid to it, but after a year or two it began to scale off and bleed easily, and another place appeared on the other side. Two years ago they had developed into what the doctors pronounced Cancer. About this time there appeared a growth on my neck which got to be about the size of a hen's egg, and proved to be cancerous. In August, 1896, I began the use of the Serum Treatment, administered by Dr. Hathaway & Co., and in about six weeks all three of the cancerous masses had been removed and healed up.

C. F. HILL.
Duncan, Ariz., June, 1899.

Dr. Hathaway makes no charge for consultation or advice, either at his office or by mail. He will be glad to send free by mail his new book on Cancer and its Cure to any address.

Available Summer homes at the St. Tammany resorts, Abita Springs, Covingtou, etc., are becoming very scarce, the demand far exceeding the suppiy.

The popularity of these resorts is rapidiy outrunning the facilities for housing the visitors, and a boom in house-building is the next move to be antioipated.

Free to Inventors.

The experience of C. A. Snow & Co. in obtaining more than 20,000 patents for inventors has enabled them to helpfully answer many questions relating to the protection of intellectual property. This they have done in a pamphlet treating briefly of United States and foreign patents, with cost of same, and how to procure them; trade marks, designs, caveats, infringements, decisions in leading patent cases, etc., etc.

This pamphlet will be sent free to anyone writing to C. A. Snow & Co., Washington, D. C.

SCHOLARSHIP FREE.

You may, by doing little writing at your home, secure scholarship, free, in either Draughon's Practical Business Colleges—Nashville, St. Louis, Little Rock, Ft. Worth, Galveston, Shreveport or Savannah. Best patronized Business Colleges in the South. For particulars address, The Illustrated Youth and Age, Nashville, Tenn.

Excursions.

The New Orleans and Northeastern railroad announces that, commencing with Wednesday, April 25, it will inaugnrate the popnlar Wednesday excursions to St. Tammany parish, including Covington, Abita Springs, Pearl River, Slidell, and all intermediate stations.

The attractions to sportsmen, as well as the healthfulness of St. Tammany parish, are constantly increasing the popularity of these resorts.

Great improvement has been made, both by the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad and the East Louisiana railroad, in the track, which is being rapidly relaid with heavy steel rails, and in the eqnipment, thereby affording the excursionist the best of accommodations.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

The President this week ratified the conventions providing for universal arbitration of international disputes, and for the regulation of the use of certain implements of war, which were adopted by the Czar's Peace Conference at The Hague last year. United States Minister Newell has been directed to notify the government at The Hague of the formal ratification of the conventions by the United States. So far as known in Washington, this government was the first to ratify the treaties, which will not become operative until ratified by all the governments represented by the signers. It is not expected that any steps will be taken towards the selection of those who are to represent the United States in the permanent court of arbitration provided for until notice of the ratification of the conventions by all the powers concerned has been received by this government.

Rev. Willis Brown, president of the Young People's Temperance Federation of America, and Rev. Wallace R. Struble, national lecturer of the same organization, are conducting a crusade against the use of cigarettes and tobacco by the boys of Washington with much vim and success. They have secured the co-operation of the Y. M. C. A., and been promised every assistance in the conduct of their work by the public school authorities. They are preparing to organize a Washington branch of the Anti-Cigarette League, an organization which has 8,000 members in Chicago. At their meetings many boys are signing the pledge to abstain from the use of cigarettes. They are finding substantial assistance from the heads of business establishments, some of which have established rules prohibiting cigarette smoking by their employees, old or young, under penalty of dismissal. If they can materially lessen cigarette smoking among the boys of Washington, they will receive the thanks of many parents who have failed in their efforts in that direction. The decision of the Supreme Court affirming the constitutionality of the Chicago anti-cigarette law helps along the good work.

At a meeting of a committee of 100 citizens, acting in conjunction with a committee of the Board of Trade, an invitation to the National Conference of Charities and Corrections to hold its annual meeting for 1901 in Washington was authorized, and $3,000 pledged for the entertainment of the delegates if the invitation be accepted. This conference, which is composed of men and women of prominence in works of charity, philanthropy and reform throughout the United States, will hold its annual meeting in Topeka, Kan., next month, when the invitation to Washington will be presented. The conference can be sure not only of a cordial welcome in Washington, but of meeting many who are familiar with and in sympathy with the work that is being done by those represented therein.

Although Congress several years ago decided against giving any public money towards the support of sectarian Indian schools, the influence of one denomination in the Senate was sufficient to get an attempt made to evade the law by attaching an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill authorizing the Secretary of the Interior, under certain circumstances, to make contracts with sectarian schools for the education of Indian pupils. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 30 to 16.

While the two joint evening receptions—that in the Corcoran Gallery of the Methodist Union, and that in the White House by President McKinley—were interesting and enjoyable affairs, to many the most interesting feature of the meeting of the two Baltimore Conferences of the M. E. Church was the reunion of the surviving members of the old Baltimore Conference, held in Mt. Vernon Place Church. There are sixty-four survivors of the 357 members the Baltimore Conference had at the time of the division in 1861, but the infirmities of age reduced the attendance at the reunion to twenty-five. The meeting was an old-fashioned Methodist love-feast.

There were few Protestant pulpits in Washington outside of the Episcopalians who do not throw their pulpits open to ministers of other denominations, which were not filled by Methodists at one or all of the services held last Sunday. President McKinley, accompanied by Hon. C. H. and Mrs. Grosvenor, occupied a pew at the Metropolitan M. E. Church, where Bishop Walden preached a strong sermon from Romans viii, 28, "And we know all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose."

The sturdiest blow struck at impure politics, the increase of which has alarmed most observant men, in many a day was the unanimous report of the Senate Committee on Election in favor of unseating Mr. Clark, the Montana millionaire, whose election was such a great political scandal.

THE BAPTISM OF POWER.

NO. 2.

Having attempted a definition of the baptism of power, and the intimate association of this divine equipment with successful and victorious service having been made clear, there remains some practical thoughts which it is hoped may lead some impotent and barren worker in the vineyard of our Lord to seek the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

II.—WHAT ARE THE MARKS OF THIS ENDUEMENT OF POWER?

The only test that God has given us by which to determine the genuineness of Christian character and the successfulness of Christian service is contained in one short, but pregnant sentence, "By their fruits ye shall know them." What, then, are the fruits of the baptism of power?

The first fruit which hangs in glorious cluster upon the branches of the panoplied and consecrated Christian life is love. It is a divine reinforcement of the love which already has its beginnings and blossomings in the heart. We not only love Him who first loved us, but a passionate and consuming love for the souls of men fills our hearts with prayer, and our voice with tenderness, and our hands with duty, that we may win out of the sinful world about us the ecclesia of the kingdom, the redeemed of God, and the unclaimed and prodigal brothers, who are waiting for the true worker to come with a personal message, not only dispelling the pessimistic feeling of each lost sinner, that 'no man cares for 'his' soul," but bringing him to a blessed realization of both the human and divine affection for himself alone as the one lost sheep to whom the heavenly Shepherd has sent the faithful witness of the Savior's tenderness and power. "Ye are my witnesses," said the Lord Jesus to his disciples, and in no sweeter nor no more fragrant way can the disciples of the present day display the clustered fruit of the Spirit than by revealing the love of Christ in the words of witness and testimony. Paul did more preaching of his experience than is usually heard in this enlightened age. And what a man of power was the apostle to the Gentiles! He delighted to testify before kings and scholars of the grace of God in the love of Christ which captured him on his way to Damascus, and thenceforth made him a rejoicing bond-slave in the liberty wherewith Christ had made him free. Love must speak. Her voice will always be tender and sweet, and her message will always possess more power than the rushing together of many waters, or the thunders of artillery. Love, as a divine energy and gift, is the very heart of this doctrine of the endowment of power.

The second fruit which clusters about the soul as cluster the grapes amidst the vines on the vine-clad slopes of California is the spirit of self-sacrifice and self-denial which accompanies the recipient of this enduement "from on high." The Christian who has not given up all for Christ is not willing to enlist himself with the battalions of our Lord's forces, whose flag flies only where there is danger, and where the conflict is most deadly. The self-seekers, whose membership in the church would be speedily demitted if such a persecution as the bloody days of the cruel Nero or the tortures of the Inquisition were forced upon them, do not make any sacrifices for Christ worthy of the mention of their comrades, simply because they love the world, and the things that are in the world, more than the things of God, the kingdom, and souls of men. They are not spiritually minded; they are not self-emptied and self-denying and self-sacrificing. When our blessed Master uttered those strong words, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me," he gave us something more than the statement of a fragmentary self-denial. It meant that the whole self must vacate the throne of the heart, and that the will and love and very personality of Christ himself must take the throne, and reign dominant over thoughts and purposes. Is the gospel worker humble? Is he willing to go anywhere in the Master's vineyard to labor for the upbuilding of the kingdom? Is he self-sacrificing in the matter of compensation? Does he work for so many dollars per day, or so much per head? Or does he leave all these things to the Lord, who rewardeth liberally, and whose Spirit will move the people to do liberal things by the laborer among them? A preacher will lose the power, if he possesses it, when he catches the sordid spirit of this age, and takes up a good collection for himself every night, and a larger sum at the close of the revival. Oh, Spirit of the living God, help us to keep our eyes on the heavenly treasure, which is better than the gold of Klondyke or the Rand, for this must perish at last. God forbid that we should perish with it!

An evident mark of the spirit-baptism is greater purity of character and righteousness of life. This cluster of grapes is richer than the famous Eshcol grapes borne by the spies on their return from Canaan to the camp of Israel in the wilderness. Power and purity are inseparable. This is the end of Christ's redemption work—purity and holiness of life and character. This was the full meaning of Pentecost, and this is the justification of the presence of Christianity among men. It makes the disciples of the lowly Nazarene them the purest and sweetest and grandest characters in the history of the world. Before Pentecost all false religions sink as easily as the iron goes to the bottom of the stream, and sink forever out of sight, hated and despised by their former worshipers. We are not redeemed from hell unto heaven as an end to be obtained by the cross, but we are redeemed from sin unto righteousness, from self unto God, and from moral guilt and unholiness to purity and righteousness of life! This will lead the soul to heaven, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

The fourth and last mark of the baptism of power is the great success which attends the revival efforts of those who possess it. The first day of revival preaching in this age of the Spirit witnessed three thousand conversions and additions to the church. All of the apostles seemed to possess this wonderful power as they went like flaming heralds over Western Asia and Southeastern Europe, proclaiming the gospel, establishing churches, and turning men from idols to serve the living God. Notably was this true of the Apostle Paul, the greatest evangelist-pastor the world has ever seen. Richard Baxter, of Kidderminster; George Whitfield, John Wesley, John Knox, Dr. Earle, Charles G. Finney, D. L. Moody, Bishop Marvin, and all the long line of preachers since the day of Pentecost, whose ministry has been attested by souls won by the multitude, above all other equipment, have possessed the enduement "with power from on high." Moody, in the course of a sermon delivered in the city of Brooklyn about two months before his last illness, said that his ministry was comparatively barren until he realized the baptism for service, which he stated that he had received as a distinct gift of power about seventeen years before. This is the difference between many very worthy men that we know, and other worthy men that we are just as fully acquainted with: One class depend upon many things of heart and mind, with a partial reliance upon God; the other class of preachers depend only upon God for power and spiritual equipment to use the natural and acquired powers of mind and heart to win souls for Christ. Many good men have realized this necessity too late, and have gone into eternity regretting that they had failed to reach a higher measure of efficiency in the great work of soul-winning. Let us study the biographies of soul-winners from Paul down to this present time, and we shall find that all of them were baptized with power from on high.

III.—HOW CAN THIS BAPTISM OF POWER BE ATTAINED?

The first step toward the divine enduement of power is consecration of self to God. The beautiful hymn in our collection which, to my mind, embodies this thought is often sung in our revival meetings:

"Here I give my all to thee,
Friends and time and earthly store,
Soul and body thine to be,
Wholly thine forever more."

Paul wrote of some Christians in his day "who first gave themselves to God." Let us first consecrate ourselves unto God and his service, and God will give ourselves back to our own keeping, with the aid of his own power, to use for him.

The call of Moses furnishes an illustration of what we mean by consecration. When he pleaded his unpreparedness for the great work of rescuing the children of Israel, the Lord told him to put forth the rod which he held in his hand. When the future leader of Israel obeyed the rod was changed to a serpent. Then God commanded Moses to put forth his hand and take the serpent by the tail. It was rather an uncanny thing to do, but Moses obeyed, and the serpent was changed back to a rod. It was the self-same rod, with the same crook and the identical notches, and yet it was not the same, for before it had been only an ordinary rod, and now it possessed power from the touch of God. With that rod he afterward performed miracles, because it was instinct with Jehovah's power and presence. So God wants us to turn everything we have and are over to him, that his own touch may dedicate us thenceforth to divine uses exclusively, and so shall all we possess and our own personality be baptized with power from on high.

The second condition of attaining the baptism of power is the prayer of faith. In fact, consecration is involved in this all-conquering faith. There may be other concomitants, but it is all of faith in Jesus. This will give potency to the public prayer for the presence of the Spirit in the sermon, exhortations, prayers, and songs of invitation and praise. Some years ago, in the State of West Virginia, a pastor was conducting a series of meetings for the salvation of souls. For nearly three weeks the earnest pastor preached, with no visible signs or tokens of victory. No penitents came forward for prayer; no movement among the backslidden could be discerned. At this stage of the meeting a godly superannuate, whose feeble health had prevented his attendance upon the meeting at an earlier service, was seen in the congregation. The pastor preached as usual to a large audience, and called for penitents. None came forward. The pastor was discouraged, but knew something of the reputation of the old preacher as to his power in public prayer. He called on the old superannuate to lead the throng in prayer to God. The assembly bowed, as much out of respect for the holy man as for the God he served. He began with a subdued energy, "Oh, Lord, send the power!" This sentence was repeated three times, rising in tone with each utterance until the third repetition shook the building. Then, like waves of mighty waters and like the burning of electricity, came the power from on high. It moved every man in that audience. Sinners came flocking to the altar before the invitation could be extended. Over one hundred persons were brought to Christ in the days that followed. The old soldier of the cross could pray without doubting, and the power fell as on the day of Pentecost. Let all our ministry throughout all our borders pray with a faith that will not waver, "Oh, Lord, send the power!" And let all the people say, "Amen!"

"Shall we get the money?"

Rev. J. H. Mitchell, P. E., says "Yes," and declares the Winona district will vie with the Aberdeen district for first place.

Rev. T. B. Holloman has my hearty thanks for the interest disclosed by his "open letter" to me.

"Shall we get the money?"

Let every presiding elder and every pastor say, "Yes;" and let all the people say, "Amen!" Please read what follows from Dr. Hoss.

J. R. BINGHAM.

SHALL WE GET THE MONEY?

BY REV. E. E. HOSS, D. D.

In these latter days I sometimes find myself almost wishing that I were a rich man. There are so many things that I could do with money—build churches, endow colleges, sustain orphanages, and found missions. But, then, if I had a big bank account, with stocks and bonds, and city property, and broad farms, I might become as stingy as other people. Therefore the case is best as it is. But my heart swells within me when I think of all the great enterprises that our church might accomplish could only the hundredth part of its power be harnessed and put to use. Everybody knows that our contributions for religious purposes, large as they seem in the aggregate, are, after all, ridiculously small. We spend vastly more on self-indulgences than we do in promoting the interests of the kingdom of Christ. When the day of judgment comes, who among us will be able to stand its inquisitions? The success or failure of the Twentieth Century Movement will be a test of the pith and the fidelity of our church. That we should allow it to go by default, or should raise a smaller sum than the $1,500,000 called for, ought not to be thought of for a single moment. We could put down $5,000,000 without going cold or hungry for a single day. The rich among us should cast their thousands into the Lord's treasury, and the poorest widow should give her three mites. . . .

Let the canvass which has opened so auspiciously be pushed to a conclusion. Something from everybody. That is a good motto. No one must be forgotten or passed by. Be the individual contributions much or little, they all count. The time for doubt is gone. Put the skeptics to the rear, and the men of hope in the front. Bishop McTyeire used to say, in speaking of the value of church buildings, "The sound of the hammer and the saw is often scarcely hushed before the movements of the Holy Ghost are heard coming to take possession of the house reared in his name." May we not expect that a wide and deep revival of religion will follow an unusual display of Christian liberality? When the tithes are all gathered in the storehouse the Lord will pour out a blessing, spiritual as well as material, such as there will not be room enough to contain it.—Texas Advocate.

A NEW SENSATION IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Close upon the heels of Dr. McGiffert's withdrawal from the Northern Presbyterian Church comes the news that the celebrated Dr. N. D. Hillis has made a vigorous attack upon the Presbyterian creed, and, in consequence of his not being in thorough sympathy with certain of its dogmas, has asked to be permitted to withdraw. A number of leading Presbyterian divines have spoken out emphatically in favor of a revision of the Westminster Confession, one of these being Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, pastor of Madison Square Presbyterian Church, New York City, who, from his pulpit last Sunday, said, among other things:

"We ought to have a new confession of faith. It is surprising that the Presbyterian Church is able to do as much as it is doing with such an incubus strapped upon us as we are tottering under in our present confession. In the first place, the thing needed is not a system of theology, for that is what our present confession is, but a simple, brief, Saxon statement of a half-dozen or so of vital ingredients of Jesus Christ's message to the world. I could get along with a confession of faith containing what little Jesus said when he was trying to make a Christian of Nicodemus, 'God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life.' That gives to us the doctrine of God's unlimited love, human guilt, the divinity of Christ, salvation through Christ, faith in Christ, immortality—every word Saxon, three-quarters of the words monosyllables, profound enough for any elder, simple enough for any four-year-old child.

"At any rate, we want a new creed. Amending this one will not meet the necessities of the case. Better give it a dignified place in the museum than pick it to pieces and revamp it for what it is not."

The way in which you read your Bible at family prayers will have a good deal to do with your children's interest in the Book. Don't read the promises with groans, the songs of praise with tears in your voice; and don't read the imprecatory Psalms at all—at family prayers.—Bible Reader.

I THANK THEE!

BY J. M. CAVANESS.

I thank thee, Father, for thy grace,
In ways unnumbered shown;
I thank thee for thy smiling face,
That makes thy goodness known.

My skies are clear, the sun above
Comes like a healing balm;
And in my spirit shines thy love,
And brings a holy calm.

I see thee in each lovely flower,
In every blade of grass;
I see thy care and guiding power
In birds that northward pass.

Thy loving voice speaks unto me
In every passing breeze;
Thy glory in the clouds I see,
And in the waving trees.

The clouds and trees thy garments are,
In which thy form I trace;
But I can see in flower and star
Faint glimpses of thy face.

When nature's scenes overwhelm my soul,
I touch thy garment's hem,
And know that I have been made whole,
And wear love's diadem.

THE NEED OF A MISSIONARY CONSCIENCE.

(Read before Sardis District Missionary Institute, and published by request.)

It will be readily understood that this subject refers to the necessity, or lack, or both, of a missionary conscience in the great body of the church of to-day. Conscience, as defined in the lexicons, is "the faculty of judging of the moral quality of our actions in relation to a rule of right and wrong."

Mr. Watson says: 'Conscience is that principle, or power, or faculty within us which decides on the merits or demerits of our own actions, feelings, or affections, with reference to the rule of God's law."

Dr. J. H. Pritchett, in a paper on conscience, in a late number of the Review of Missions, says: "Conscience is neither law nor judgment. But when a law, or rule of right and wrong, has been accepted as supreme—when judgment makes out a specific case under that law—then conscience, as judge supreme, . . . says, 'Obey the law; do the right.' And if its mandate is obeyed, it rewards as no other hand this side of heaven can reward; but if it is disregarded, it punishes as nothing this side of hell can punish." He further says: "Conscience assumes missionary functions wherever the gospel of Jesus Christ becomes dominant in our thought, our affection, and our purpose."

These several definitions, substantial in agreement as they are, serve as a foundation for the observations of this paper.

It is perfectly safe to assume that the church of Christ, in its design and work, is missionary. Without the missionary idea and spirit it can not long exist. It is only as the church stresses and presses the work of furthering the gospel that it takes on larger growth; and its growth in spiritual life and force, to say nothing of numerical increase, is always proportioned to the amount and quality of its work for saving the world. Let any church organization neglect and discard its obligation to give the gospel to others, and its death is assured. God has no need of it, and no place for it. And this is just as true as to the individual number as it is of the aggregation of members constituting a church, so-called.

That I may not fail to present my theme in its widest sense, I shall divide it into two parts:

First: Is there necessity in the church, in the individual member, for a missionary conscience? Is not an affirmative answer to this question both logical and inevitable when we comprehend the full meaning of the great commission, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature"? And when we accept the definitions of missionary conscience, and its bearing upon and necessity to the maintenance of spiritual life? And when we know that we shall be very little concerned about furnishing others with this gospel, unless it reign supreme in our thought and love and purpose? It is not enough that we have faith in this gospel. "Faith without works is dead." The church was designed to be the "salt of the earth." It is sent forth to be "the light of the world." In no way can the world be saved but by the church sending it the light of the gospel. In no other way can the church be saved than by thus fulfilling her high and holy mission. Because of these, and many other facts, a missionary conscience is an absolute necessity.

Second: Is there lack of a missionary conscience in the church of to-day? To this question I unhesitatingly answer affirmatively. There is a woful lack just here. I want us to take a lesson in statistics. The last financial report of the North Mississippi Conference shows that a membership and ministry of 45,302 paid on assessment for foreign missions $7 632.80, or a small fraction below 17 cents per capita. I think we paid quite as much as, if not a little more than, the Mississippi Conference. Let us suppose, then, that, in round numbers, 80 000 Methodists in Mississippi, in a whole year, contributed $15,000 to the cause of foreign missions. Then let us suppose that all other Protestant Churches in the State gave as much more (and I think this a liberal estimate). This would show a contribution for a whole year, by all evangelical churches in our State for sending the gospel that we profess to prize and love so much to those who "sit in darkness" and are in such dire need of it, of $30,000.

Put over against this showing the following facts, for I am sure they are facts: A few weeks ago what is called the Mardi Gras festival took place in New Orleans. Of the reported 75,000 who were in attendance a reasonable estimate would be that 20,000 of these were from Mississippi, and that the expense per individual would average $20, at least. This shows an expenditure by 20,000 people, to say nothing of the many who went to Memphis on a like occasion, of $400,000, and for what? Certainly not for anything that contributed to moral and spiritual advantage. But in a whole twelvemonth, as the result of thousands of earnest public and private appeals, 200,000 people, say, calling themselves Christians, give the pitiful sum of $30,000 for the cause of foreign missions. Does not this show great lack of a missionary conscience?

Again: Let us draw a comparison, or contrast rather, between the church of the first century and that of to-day. Suppose that when the first apostles started out on their world-wide mission, after "the power of the Highest" came upon them, the "effectual doors" had been everywhere thrown wide open to them as they are to the church to-day, and that the abundant resources of this day and time had been placed at their disposal, together with our wonderful facilities for travel, how soon they would have made the whole earth ring with the tidings of salvation!

On the other hand, what would the church of the present, with her spirit of indifference, and in many cases of positive opposition to missionary work, and with her love of ease and of the world, do, were she no better equipped, financially and otherwise, than was the early church, and if she stood face to face with persecution and probable martyrdom, as did Peter and Paul and their co-laborers?

How much of thought are we—preachers and members—giving to this cause? Does the gospel of Christ dominate thought and love and aim? Are we planning and working and praying and paying to "send the light, the blessed light," of Christ's gospel to those who need it, and those who need it most?

How many members of the average church to-day voluntarily pay their contributions to the foreign work? A majority must be appealed to first, and then, in many cases, they seem slow and reluctant to give. Many refuse to give till the close of the year, that they may use the fund themselves before turning it over to the Lord. Should we be content with securing merely the amount "assessed"? The assessment is the very lowest estimate of amount needed for the work. Hundreds of thousands more could be wisely employed. Shall mere pride be the controlling motive in paying assessment "in full"? And shall pastors be content with this?

When we survey the vast fields that are yet waiting for us—for us at the close of the nineteenth century—and consider how little is being done to enter these fields, it is pertinent to ask, "Are we dawdling at missions?" Doors are opening all over the world, but we are slow to enter. Millions are hungering and starving for the Bread of Life, but we are slow to give it to them. In the Philippine Islands, according to reports, Americans have opened hundreds of whisky saloons already (300 in Manila alone), with many thousands of dollars invested in this accursed traffic, while the church has scarcely turned her thought in that direction. Verily, "the children of this world are, in their generation, wiser than the children of light."

According to the writer already liberally quoted, "The absence of a missionary conscience can be accounted for only on the following grounds:

"1. The utter absence of the gospel. This is literal heathenism.

"2. The lack of appetency for the gospel. This is practical heathenism.

"3. The formal acceptance of the gospel, without an experience of its power to save. This is formalism.

"4. A Christian experience that has been dwarfed and deadened by the cares of the world, the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things. This is incipient apostasy."

To conclude: When the church comes fully to understand the magnitude of this work, and the full measure of her responsibility for its success, and places all she has and can do on the altar of God's service, then, and not till then, will the true conditions have been met.

The gospel belongs as much to China and Africa as it does to England and America. To you a Chinaman may be a "foreigner;" to the gospel he is not. How shall he get it if we do not "go or send"? Let us awake.

"Shall we, whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high,
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?
Salvation! O salvation!
The joyful news proclaim,
Till earth's remotest nation
Has learned Messiah's name."

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH.

MR. EDITOR: We have been waiting and hoping that some one more competent than we are would start the agitation of this subject in time to accomplish something by the time the Legislature meets, two years hence. If we expect to accomplish anything, we must begin now, and keep at it, and all get at it. We failed before the last Legislature because we were too late and too few. For one, I feel that the failure of the last Legislature to pass some law regulating the railroad traffic on Sunday is a reflection upon the intelligent Christian sentiment of the great State of Mississippi. In the name of peace, where are we, and what are we doing, and where are we going? Are we morally dead on the subject of the Christian Sabbath? If so, we are dead on all. "He that is guilty of one is guilty of the whole." Surely there was not a man that voted against the Cobb bill that would say, Christianity is not necessary to the preservation of our civilization. If this be true, and it certainly is, then, is not the Christian Sabbath necessary to the preservation of Christianity? An infidel truly said, "There is no hope of destroying the Christian religion so long as the Christian Sabbath is acknowledged and kept by men as a sacred day."

The question for that, as well as all legislation to settle, is, What is right in the sight of God, and in the interest of the people? Then vote it, if it splits the world open. If it is right to legislate on theft and murder, why not on this? He that said, "Thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not kill," said also: "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath unto the Lord thy God." Until this law is repealed from heaven, how dare any man, or set of men, attempt to repeal it?

Are we going to sit still and let great corporations that control thousands of the best young manhood in the land drag us into legislation that is an insult to God, and destructive to our civilization? If so, God pity us! But say they, "The employees petitioned us not to pass the bill." The character of the petitioners, and the motive that prompted them to petition, deserved serious consideration. Suppose the thieves, and profane swearers, and murderers had petitioned that Legislature? "They petitioned it." If the Christian Sabbath is a Divine institution, and it certainly is, ten thousand petitioners ought not to have moved any man professing Christianity to vote against it. Better, far better, to have resigned in favor of God, and gone home, than put himself on record like that. The very fact that a few poor fellows were forced to sign a petition to hold a job that they might keep loved ones from suffering in midwinter, should have stirred their manhood to break the chains that bind these, their brothers, to the god of gold.

There is no right or justice under heaven that permits a million corporations to violate God's holy law, and interfere with the rights and privileges of others, and then say to a poor man, that does not interfere with anything on earth but his old gray mule, You must observe the Sabbath. If one of these petitioners, now permitted by law to do any kind of work on the Lord's day, were to resign his place, and set up for himself, and ditch, or plow, or saw wood, or traffic on Sunday, he would be arrested. There is not a Christian church in the land that would tolerate for a day any ordinary man that would not observe the Sabbath.

My brethren, there is a question we must settle, and that soon. It is this, Can a Christian live in the habitual practice of any known sin, and not be guilty before God? But they say, "It is legitimate business." I say it is not. Any business that is in open violation of God's positive law, like that of the Sabbath, is not legitimate. We can just as easily make stealing, or lying, or profane swearing legitimate. The same God, for the same purpose, commands all these. "Suppose ye that these" employees are "sinners above all the Galileans because they" do "such things." "I tell you, Nay." Except the members of these great corporations repent, they will perish. Our God is no respecter of persons. And I, for one, will die in the last ditch with these poor employees until their lords are reformed, or put out of the synagogue. Some legislation we can and will have in Mississippi on this subject. Let the Sunday League begin now to take some steps to organize the people. They are ready to act. We only need to get together and speak out. The action of the last Legislature was not the sentiment of the people. And I am sure our people will not sit still and make no effort to help the thousands of good men who are slaves to these corporations. W. S. LAGRONE.

SHALL WE DISCARD OUR REGULAR HYMN BOOK?

Among the many good things in the Nashville Christian Advocate, of March 23, there is an article under the head of "A Means of Grace," which attracted my attention. Possibly the reason why I gave it more than passing notice is the fact that from childhood days I have been a lover of sacred music. Having been taught instrumental music when very young, and having used many of the hymn and song books published and placed before the public, I believe that I can speak intelligently along this line. The writer of the article referred to says truthfully, "Every phase of Christian experience, and perhaps every aspect of religious truth, finds expression in our hymn book."

Your scribe is familiar with many of the song books in use to-day, and it is strange indeed to me that in many of our Methodist Churches we find that our Standard Hymn Book is being supplanted by song books, the publications of other houses, which have not the welfare and best interests of our Zion at heart.

Our Standard Hymn Book, as revised and given to us now, has several features to commend its use. One of these is its admirable arrangement as to the division of subjects, and another is to be found in the hymn and tune book. Those who will take the time to examine and study the music in this book will find that there is little excuse for anyone to be at a loss in finding a suitable tune for any given hymn.

The music is so arranged that a selection can be quickly made by anyone who will acquaint himself with this part of our hymn book.

Next to my Bible and prayer I prize our Methodist Standard Hymn Book as a means of grace to my soul. The soul-stirring hymns of Chas. Wesley, Watts, Doddridge, and others, thrill and inspire me more than any other selections that I know of. In an article in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, on the subject of our hymn book, perhaps two or three years since, the writer of that article advocated the idea of having our Bishops place the Standard Hymn Book of our church in the course of studies for our preachers. I sincerely believe that to do this would prove advantageous to both preacher and people. Let us cultivate the power there is in our Methodist Hymn Book.

ITEMS FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE W. H. M. S.

Another quarter has passed, completing the record for another year in the history of the Woman's Home Mission Society. Cold weather and bad roads have made thier influence felt, and yet we have some notes of progress to chronicle.

An auxiliary has been organized at Itta Bena, in Winona district; one on New Salem circuit, Greenville district, and one at Tohula, in Durant district.

Interest in our Twentieth Century Offering is very good, but many societies can do nothing until Spring.

In Aberdeen district subscriptions have been taken at Amory and Verona, and Strong's, a country auxiliary of only eight members, has already a subscription amounting to $30.

In Columbus district Macon reports $13, partially collected, and Brooksville $12 50 promised. Other societies in this district will be heard from later, when the warm sunshine dries up the mud. Winona district reports a pledge of $150, with a prospect of more. At a meeting of one of the auxiliaries the husband of a member sent in a contribution of $7, being one dollar for himself and each of his children. The wife added her dollar to complete the list. Winona observed Rally Day according to program, thereby gathering, in pledges and cash, $47. Holly Springs also observed the day, raising $38. Greenville district is coming up bravely with her subscriptions, and also Sardis, Grenada, Durant, and Corinth districts.

No district meetings have been held, but several district secretaries are preparing to hold them.

The Sardis district will hold a meeting at Hernando, April 26, the W. F. M. S. having theirs on April 25. Delegates for both of these meetings are requested by the corresponding secretary at Hernando, Mrs. George Holmes, to send their names at once to Rev. J. H. Smith, Hernando, Miss. Mrs. McMorries, secretary of Columbus district, will hold her meeting at Brooksville, May 8. Mrs. Buckley, of Carrollton, writes that the meeting for the Winona district will be held at Maryland, May 5 and 6, in conjunction with the W. F. M. S.

Our Home Mission Board will meet in New Orleans, April 11 18, and our own North Mississippi annual meeting will be held in Como, probably May 26-29, though definite information as to time will be furnished later. Let this meeting receive due attention now, selecting your delegates and getting up your reports. How it will relieve the officers, and those in charge of the programme, to receive ready responses from those of whom any service is requested! When one declines to serve, and another, and perhaps another, as is sometimes the case, the difficulties in the way of an interesting meeting become almost insuperable.

Our president, Mrs. E. W. Foote, has changed her place of residence from Macon to Aberdeen, where she will be pleased to hear from any of her co-workers.

As to the fifty new subscribers to Our Homes, pledged at the last meeting of the Board, we fear all have not been secured. They have certainly not all been reported. I will ask that each corresponding secretary report to her district secretary the number obtained in her auxiliary, so that we may be able to ascertain how many we still lack.

The Little Home Builders, of Shelby, deserve special mention. Their president is a twelve-year-old girl. They have sixteen members, meet every Sunday afternoon, and enjoy their meetings exceedingly. God bless the children!

One district secretary writes that she has purchased the "Life of Lucinda B. Helm," and is sending it to every member of her auxiliary to read, and thinks "if each auxiliary would do this, what an inspiration this noble life would be, and what an arousing effect it would have on those who are either doing nothing or doing indifferently the Master's bidding."

In conclusion, let me call attention to Bishop Candler's article, "Avert This Temptation to Blunder." Have you read it? As the Bishop says, "Here is a good place for Twentieth Century gifts."

MRS. J. B. STONE.

AVERT THIS TEMPTATION TO BLUNDER.

The Woman's Home Mission Society has projected an institution at Key West, Fla., which will be of great value to the Cuban Mission, as well as of vast benefit to the local community and the people in the coast towns of Southern Florida. I refer to the school for girls which has been established there.

Opened in a rented house, it already has about two hundred pupils and its enrollment grows daily. Recently an admirable piece of real estate has been secured, upon which a beautiful and commodious building will be erected at once.

Key West has a large Cuban population, and there are many Cuban girls in the school. Not a few of them will eventually return to Cuba to live. Educated in a Methodist school, they will be very useful in our work on the island. Moreover, Key West is only ninety miles north of Havana. The education of women has been greatly neglected in Cuba. There is now considerable demand that this serious want in Cuban life shall be supplied. But schools for women are not on the island. An institution so near will inevitably draw good patronage directly from Cuba; therefore, it will in one respect have advantage as a missionary instrumentality over any similar institutions on the island, viz.: it will deal with its pupils removed from the Romish influences of the island and under the strong Protestant influences of Key West. That its patronage and power will always be great is already demonstrated. The danger which besets the institution now is, that in an effort to build within their means, the good women of the Home Society will build a smaller establishment than will be adequate for this great work. I do wish some generous woman would remove this temptation from them by a gift of $10,000, or other large sum. They could spend $25,000 without wasting a penny.

The people of Key West have made a subscription ample to build the land. The first improvement it should cost $25,000. Later the plant, even if built at the figure named, will have to be doubled, alas, I doubt not. If built by a smaller figure, enlargement will be required in a twelve-month. Here is a good place for Twentieth Century gifts.

W. A. CANDLER.

The Christian Life.

Outwardly, there may be degrees in sin. Inwardly, in the sight of God, it is one controlling and determining principle. A great or small act is but the human expression for the form in which the principle manifests itself. A man need not spill blood to be a murderer. "He that hateth his brother, the same is a murderer"—that's the divine statute. Somewhere back in the soul, with or without manifestation, a moral act becomes complete. To hate is character in the absolute sense—it is what we are. Both to hate and kill only attach reputation to the motive—it is both what we are and what we seem to be. There is no augmentation of the guilt. Sin is sin. To remove the principle is the object of the "new birth."—Exchange.

Some people sink under temptation; they are overborne and debased by it. Others by it become divine; they meet it and fight it, and are made strong. Yet it is the same temptation that comes to both. You look out upon the Firth or Forth, and you see two vessels, the one sailing east, the other west. It is the same wind which is blowing upon both. Everything depends upon how the helm is turned.—Selected.

The children of Israel did not want to enter Canaan, but the moment the Lord told them they should not, they were seized with an uncontrollable desire to try the milk and honey of the promised land, and vowed they would go, any way. We may not measure the old Adam that is within us by the amount of contrariness that comes to the surface.—Selected.

FOREST DISTRICT.

To the Preachers and Sunday-school Superintendents in the Forest District, M. E. Church, South—

DEAR BRETHREN: Programs for Children's Day are being sent to the pastors without charge. Let preparations be begun at once, and the day properly observed at the appointed time by every Sunday school in our district. Failure to do so is a disregard of the law of the church. Encourage liberal contributions for the purposes specified in the Discipline. To pervert the funds to other objects is unwarranted and inexcusable. Let us keep, and not mend or break the rules of our church.

In some instances there has been failure to comply with the law of the church, and oft-repeated exhortations to organize the Sunday-schools into missionary societies. Let this evil be corrected at once, and the organizations perfected at every Sunday-school.

The pastors will also read carefully the leaflet, "The Holston Plan," and adopt its suggestions. We can and ought to carry up full reports from every charge in this district. A postal card addressed to the Rev. W. R. Lambuth, D D., 346 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn, asking for 500, 1,000, or 2,500 leaflets, will be honored. If you will promise to distribute them.

Yours faithfully,

T. L MELLEN.

Forest, Miss., April 11, 1900.

FROM THE WORK.

SALLIS, MISS.

Our second Quarterly Conference of Sallis charge, North Mississippi Conference, was held April 7 and 8. The reports show an increasing interest. Our Sunday-schools are prosperous, and we have a few family altars. The stewards made a very good report, and we are glad to say that to date we have collected more for foreign missions than was paid last year. Bro. Dye, our presiding elder, was with us, and did some excellent preaching, and presided to the satisfaction of all. He preaches with power, and edifies the church. May the Lord bless his labors!

ELLISVILLE, MISS.

We have just closed a "Missionary Protracted Meeting" at this place. The preaching was all done by Bro. T. L. Mellen, our Conference Missionary Secretary. I have held these services once a year for several years, and found they always resulted in a quickening of the mission ary conscience of the church. I do not always take my missionary collections at that time. I let circumstances govern. What our people need to make them more liberal is information. This I try to give in these services. Twice a day, for at least a week, the subject is prayer fully pressed home. It can but be profitable. One hundred and twenty missionary protracted meetings in the Mississippi Conference will result in—what? Would it not be worth while to try it? B. F. LEWIS.

ABBEVILLE, LA.

We came to this work with cheerful hearts and the determination to make this a very fruitful year in our ministry. We filled our appointment last Sunday in December; my wife arrived Jan. 4, and took fever the next day. She was not clear of fever for sixty days, during which time she suffered most awfully with two abscesses—one on her arm, the other on her side. Therefore, I was shut off from my work until March 1. We began our work with a revival in Abbeville, in which our members were very much revived and put in better shape for a year's work.

We have many good people here. During my wife's illness everybody united in showing us kindness, for which we feel very grateful. We have become greatly endeared to these people, and will do our best for them. Pray for us, friends.

A great crowd assembled at 11 o'clock, and opened the service by standing and singing, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." It was a happy hour. All nature joined in with accents of praise, and from scores of hearts went up a grateful thanksgiving. We are glad because God has helped us to bring to completion this neat and beautiful edifice. No small town in Mississippi has a nicer church than Brooksville. Plans for the front and tower were furnished by the Church Extension Board. House is painted gray and white, seated with circular antique oak pews, oak pulpit and altar rail, and lighted with incandescent gasoline lamps.

We are making ready to entertain the District Conference, which is to convene May 8. An occasion like this means much to a small town. Our prayer is, that it may give a tremendous impulse for good to our people, and awaken them to a full sense of their responsibility.

HOMO CHITTO CHARGE.

The Master's cause in this part of the field is, I trust, still receiving the prayerful attention of at least a majority of pretending followers.

I can not say that the work here is what it really could be were the people made to realize the grand importance of such work; but such is the nature of man that the part that tends to raise and beautify his life here, and entitle him to a crown of life in the world hereafter, receives his much begrudged attention only after all things pertaining to the opportunities and privileges which tend only to the gratification of the flesh have been faithfully and untiringly looked after.

May the God of all grace see fit and expedient to pour out upon his faithful followers an unprecedented fullness of his Spirit at this particular time, for I do not think there was ever a period when a fullness of the power from on high was more needed than it is to-day.

Brethren, pray for me and these over whom you have been fit and proper to send me to watch. May God send his spirit in such power that all of us be fully awakened out of the dangerous slumber of sin and insecure contentment as well, and made thoroughly attentive to every call of earthly duty!

LA GRANGE CIRCUIT.

We are on a large circuit this year, covering an area of territory of about six hundred square miles; have six appointments, with a membership of three hundred and seventy. This is a good section of country, but we have so much to do that it keeps a young preacher busy; and it is good for them. If there is anything that I enjoy, it is preaching the gospel and doing the work of the church.

We have traveled about one thousand miles on the circuit; have made about two hundred and fifty pastoral visits since I have been on the circuit.

Our beloved presiding elder, Rev. W. T. J. Sullivan, is the man for the place. He has captured our people by his Christian standing and ability as a preacher and presiding elder.

We have more money in hand and subscription than it paid last year. We are taking up subscription privately. I am getting the ladies to give a hen and chickens for the cause of missions; have about ten dollars this way.

I am determined, by the grace of God, to bring up my collections in full this year. We have organized two good Sunday-schools on the circuit since our arrival, all using our literature.

Brethren of our Conference, pray for me, that I may be a useful man in the cause of Christ. I need the prayers of the preachers and the counsel of the brethren. Success to the ADVOCATE.

THREE MONTHS' ITINERANCY.

At Vicksburg the presiding Bishop (Duncan) sent us back to Hillsboro. Returning to the parsonage, we made ready for a visit to the "old home." Christmas over, the old year coming to a close, and the day dawn of the new year appearing, we returned to our field of labor, arriving just in time for our first Quarterly Conference, which embraced the first Saturday and Sunday in January. The "beloved" was with us, and preached two edifying sermons. Two full "rounds" of preaching were made amid many difficulties, such as sickness (measles, pneumonia, etc., many cases of which proved fatal), rain, cold, mud, etc., but we didn't miss an appointment.

Then came the second Quarterly Conference, the second Saturday and Sunday in March, and again the "beloved" was on hand, and magnified his office. The financial report was not as good as it should have been, but when I compare my receipts with those to this date last year, I become encouraged.

On my return home, Monday, I found that the Lord had taken one of the members of our "home church."

The next day we were called upon to bury the remains of a little child, and the Thursday following, while the snow fell thick and fast, the funeral knell of another of our parishioners was sounded, and at the Hillsboro cemetery, that bleak day, we interred the body. Three more appointments were filled, and then I went to the Sunday-school convention.

Madison, the scene of the convention, with its majestic shade trees, its beautiful flower gardens, its pretty strawberry farms, its orchards rich in bloom, its handsome residences, with inmates possessed of Christian hospitality, is one of the most pleasant little towns I ever visited.

After getting back I had only two hours to spend with the dear home folks; then across the "Flatwoods," through mud and water, I went to fill another appointment. After this long drive, a night's vigil with the sick, and two sermons the next day, and a travel of sixteen miles back home, I was prepared to enjoy a night's sweet sleep. And now, with renewed energy, we enter upon further duties, feeling grateful to God that we have good health, and plenty to do. THOS. J. O'NEIL.

No other M. D. has so many cures to his credit. No other M. D. has made so many wonderful cures. So-called "hopeless" cases, chronic cases, "incurable" cases have all been cured, not once or twice, but thousands of times, by the use of that remarkable remedy

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"My husband had been coughing for years and people frankly told me that he would go into consumption," writes Mrs. John Shireman, of No. 265 25th Place, Chicago, Ills. "In the spring of 1888 he took measles. He caught cold, the measles then settling on his lungs, causing such terrible coughing spells, we not only grew much alarmed, but looked for the bursting of a blood vessel or a hemorrhage at almost any time. After three days' coughing he was too weak too cross the room. The doctor who lived with us on the same floor did him no good. I went to the other end of the town and stated the case to a druggist, who then handed me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. My husband's recovery was remarkable in its speed. In three days after he began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he was up and around and in two more days he went to work. Two bottles cured him."

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter absolutely free of charge. Every letter is treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential. All answers are sent in plain envelopes without any printing upon them. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE THEATRE.

Recent developments connected with theatrical performancee, particularly in New York City, make it more evident than ever that the stage, instead of having evolved into a pnre and harmless means of amnsement, as some of its patrons claim, is still, in large measnre, vile and corrnpting. While we wonld not go to the extreme of asserting that all modern plays are bad, evidence is not wanting to show that those of a decidedly immoral natnre and tendency largely predominate over the good, and are the ones everywhere most liberally patronized. It is a hnmiliating commentary npon onr boasted civilization that the more immoral and obscene a play is known to be, the snrer it is to have a great rnn. Not long ago tha mayor of Pittsbnrg, who, in response to the protest of leading citizens, refnsed to allow a certain play of nnsavory repntation to be given in that city, thns expressed himself:

"I don't believe any of this talk of the theatrical manager that they will stop the play if it is immoral. The theatrical man is hnnting for the money, and, no matter how sad it is, it is a faot that the people will rnsh to see a play which is advertised as immoral.

"We had an instance of that not long ago. ——— was prodnced here, and the peopie orowded to see it. Then ——— came along, and the report got out that it was immoral, and it, too, drew crowded honses. Then the ——— came along with a beanti fnl play fnli of good sentiments, and there was hardly a corporal's gnard at any of the performances."

We are thoronghly convinced of the trnth of the mayor's statements. In New Orleans, as well as elsewhere, the pnblic has repeatedly gone wlid over stage performances that were nothing short of lewd. Theater managers are after profits, not the elevation of the stage, or the edification of tha masses. Hence they nsnally present npon the boards just those plays that will make the biggest sensation and draw the biggest crowds.

Mnch ado has been made of late over the "realistic development" of the stage, bnt from all snch development may heaven deliver ns! The evidences of sensnality and iniqnity are already far too abnndant in our land. To invest these things with the glamonr of the stage, to parade them before the pnblic in snch manner, is bnt to render vice dangerously familiar and attractive. It almost passes belief that people who lay claim to respectabiiity should so far forget themselves as to witness plays whose scenes are strongly sng gestive of the brothel. What can Christian mothers be thinking of when they permit their danghters to attend snch shameless exhibitions, thongh they be given in the name of art? If we are not mistaken, the leading actor in more than one popnlar modern drama is simply a disguised harlot.

We heartily agree with the editor of the Pittsbnrg Advocate in saying that: "Every friend of social purity and defender of the morals of the yonng shonld panse long before giving any conntenance to the theater of the present day. It has never been so low and lewd in the history of onr country as it is now. The harmless plays do not afford salt enongh to save the institntion—never have, and were never so far from doing so as now." What matters it that the play is the popnlar thing? Does that render it innocnons? Is it not high tima for Christians, generally, to act according to the apostolic teaching that "it is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby onr brother stnmbleth, or is offended, or is made weak"?

Jnst here we wonld utter a oantion to the pnlpit, and that is, to beware of denonncing any immoral play or book by name. To do so is bnt to advertise it, and aronse greater interest therein. Time and again has this been the resnlt of snch indiscreet mention.

THE FORBIDDEN BOOK.

The Review of Missions, for April, which is a "Bible and Missions" nnmber, contains a striking editorial nnder the above caption, some paragraphs from which we qnote as follows:

"The right and the dnty of each person to read and to interpret the Word of God for himself is the chief distingnishing characteristic in which all Protestant branches of the church of Christ are agreed. Their watchword has ever been, 'An Open Bible for All.' The Chnrch of Rome alone denies to the laity the privilege of stndying the revealed truth of God.

"In Roman Catholic lands the priests to-day bnrn all copies of the Word of God that they can secnre. Where Rome has sway the Bible is still 'the forbidden book.' The story told in the famons painting, which we reprodnce as a frontispiece, is just as trne now in papal lands as it was centnries ago. In some places to have in one's honse a copy of the Gospel has been made snch a heinons sin that the Bishop alone can give absolntion for it. This obliges gnilty persons to undertake a long and axpensive jonrney, and pay larga fees, to be forgiven.

"The policy of the Vatican, and of the Romish Chnrch, as a whole, is completely dominated and controlled by Jesnits, and these disciples of Ignatins Loyola are more active today than ever. Their history is a record of constant, violent opposition to an open Bible. They have ever been its relentless, persistent foe, and never more so than now. We conld fill pages with the testimonies of Bible workers in papal lands as to the accnracy of these statements."

Tha Review editor then qnotes as follows from the British and Foreign Bible Society Record:

"Bible agents agree that this implacable hostility grows more bitter and persistent year by year. From Germany, Mr. Morrison writes, 'It is the nnanimons testimony of onr colportenrs that the opposition of the Roman Catholic clergy has never been so violant and so virulent.' From France, Mr. Monod writes, 'The Jesnit jonrnal, La Croix, does more harm to colportage than the press of the Freethinkars.' From Austria, Mr. Miliard writes, 'The growing infinence of Rome is felt more and more.' From Italy, Signor Meille writes, 'More and more do the priests in Italy exert their utmost power to dissnade their people from bnying the Word of God.' We hear of the same intolerance in Spain, in Quebec, in Brazil—wherever, in short, the Chnrch of Rome is powerfnl."

THE SHORTER LIFE OF D. L MOODY. Vol. 1—His Life By Paul Dwight Moody and Arthur Percy Fitt. 124 pages. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 75 cents, postpaid. Chicago: The Bible Institute Colportage Association, 250 La Salle avenue.

As is mentioned in the preface, this first volnme of the shorter life of Moody contains matter of a more strictly personal natnre, while the second volnme gives an acconnt of the variona conferences, schools, and other organizations that he estab lished and controlled. Inasmnch as it is a biography prepared, in accordance with Mr. Moody's expressed desire, by his son, William R. Moody, who necessarily has had access to many private letters and sonrces of information respecting the character and labors of his father, which were inaccessible to other biographers, it possesses interest above any other. So fascinating is the story of Mr. Moody's life, as here presented, that the reader will be loath to lay it aside nntil it has been finished. In fact, there is not a more inspiring, helpfnl biography extant than thia one jnst from the press. On acconnt of its convenient size and low price, it is sure to have an immense sale.

This intensely interesting work of fiotion is for sale by Messrs. F. F. Hansell & Bros., 714-716 Canal street, by whose courtesy a copy lies on our table.

Mr. Wickersham's characters, portrayed with sympathy, knowledge, and hnmor, are racy of the soil of the Middle West a generation ago, and form a distingnished group. Both as a stndy of the strenuons spiritual life of the region and period, and as a story of human love, the novel will take high rank. The author is a professor of modern languages, and lives in Terre Haute, Ind.

SECOND ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMAN'S BOARD OF HOME MISSIONS.

We are not gnilty of exaggeration when we say that a more splendid body of Christian workers has never assembled in the city of New Orleans than the delegates and officers composing the Woman's Board of Home Missions of onr chnrch, the second annnal session of which has jnst closed. The able and efficient manner in which bnsiness was despatched, the importance and magnitnde of the work reviewed and planned, the deep earnestness manifested by the leaders and delegates alike, together with the eloqnence, cultnre and extensive information displayed by the speakers, excited the wonder and admiration of all who attended the proceedings, which were not only possessed of great interest for the Methodists of the Crescent City, bnt as news of the Conference became noised abroad, attracted more and more visitors and attention from the ontside. The attendance upon the night sessions, which were devoted mainly to the hearing of addresses from the officers and invited speakers, was peculiarly gratifying. The platform had been beantifnlly decorated for the occasion by the Methodist ladies of the city, and each night the audience was treated to music of a high order by a large and excellent choir under the direction of Mr. T. O. Adams. We feel sure that New Orleans Methodism, especially the female portion of it, has derived a great stimulns and spiritual uplift from this conference of godly women, whose presence was trnly a benediction.

On Thnrsday afternoon, of last week, the ladies went in a body to Carrollton to visit Bishop Keoner and his noble wife, who were deeply tonched by thia thonghtful courtesy and beautifnl token of appreciation. All the visitors and members of the Conference were given a trolley excnrsion on Satnrday afternoon to the varioua points of interest in and around the city.

We regret exceedingly that we can not give a detailed account of the proceedings of the Conference, but our limited apace forbids.

On Wednesday evening of the first day's session appropriate addresses of welcome were made by Mrs. F. A. Lyona in behalf of the local society, by Mrs. W. H. LaPrade in behalf of the W. F. M. Society, and by Rev. F. N. Parker in behalf of the clergy. An impromptn, bnt excellent and witty response was then made by Mrs. Mordecai Williams, of West Virginia.

ADDRESSES.

On Thursday evening Mrs. J. J. Tigert, snperintendent of the Baby Roll department, made an address that charmed everybody, by reason of its elegance and impressiveness. She emphasized the importance of enlisting the children early in Christian work, and made it evident that pntting the names of the little ones on the 'Baby Roll" is the most beanti fnl of all mamorials. She mentioned that though this roll was only started in 1895 with just six names, now it numbers 3,359. In the absence of Mrs. Florence Kelly, of Chicago, who was to have delivered the principal speech of the evening, splendid talks were made by Mrs. J. D. Hammond, the first vice-president, and Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, each of whom displayed remarkable gifts as a pnblic speaker.

One of the most eloqnent and intrnctive addresses we have heard for a long time was delivered the next evening by the gifted president, Miss. Belle Bennett, who graphically ontlined and reviewed the work of the society, and pressed home its claims npon the men and women of the church. The grandeur and extent of the work being done by this society, as well as its phenomenal growth and success, were a revelation to not a few who heard Miss Bennett's speech. Thongh only fonrteen years old, the society has inangnrated a new era in our church as regards parsonage-building and city mission work. Miss Bennett mentioned that, partly as the resnlt of the stimnlns given in this direction by the Woman's Home Mission Society, more parsonages have been bnilt in Southern Methodism during the past five years than dnring the first fifty years of Methodism in this country. The self-sacrificing Methodist itinerant has no trner friends or more noble helpers than the members of this society, one of the mottoes of which is, "A comfortable parsonage on every charge." Miss Bennett also explained how necessary and helpful is the work of the Snpply Department, mentioning that were it not for the boxes of clothing, etc., sent to many ministers' families on the frontiers and at other points where the salaries are distressingly meager, these men of God could not remain at their posts. Nor did the speaker fail to enlarge upon the distinctive mission work of the society. This is of a varied character, the edncational branch embracing night schools for the benefit of the Chinese and Japanese, particnlarly on the Pacific coast; indnstrial schools both in the cities and monntain districts, schools for the Cnbans in Florida. There are in San Francisco alone six night schools in successful operation. An enrollment of 442 was reported for the Cnban schools.

The reports mada as to city mission work were fnll of interest and encouragement. Time wonld fail us to tell of the sewing schools, day nurseries, flower missions, rescne and relief work, tract distribntion, and many other things that the society has enterprised, and is looking after so successfully. Work of this kind is now being carried on in twelve of our Southern cities. The amount of good being done is incalculable.

The address delivered on Monday evening by Prof. G. W. Dyer, of Vanderbilt University, who spoke on "City Missions," was brilliant, humorous, and highly instructive. He showed that the South is now facing new conditions, and made it clear that the churches must prepare to grapple bravely and intelligently with the grave problems presented by the cities, where more and more the destiny of our country is being shaped. He was listened to with profound attention.

The account given by Miss C. Addie Brown, president of the Chicago Deaconess' Aid Society, who was among the distingnished visitors in attendance, aroused the deepest interest. She mentioned that from a small beginning, thirteen years ago, the work had so enlarged that now a deaconess hospital, a children's home, a boys' home, an old people's home, a training-school for deaconesses, and extensive jail, rescne and settlement work, and a young ladies' college, give anbstantial evidence of the success of their efforts.

The following statistics kindly furnished us by Mrs. Hargrove, the General Secretary, give a partial of the work and progress of the society:

Number of adult auxiliaries	1,299
Number of adult members	20,278
Juvenile and Y. P. auxiliaries	143
Juvenile and Y. P. members	3,012
Total members	23,290
Net increase during the year	4,500
Subscribers to Our Homes	5,909
New subscribers during the year	1,686
Boxes of supplies reported	188
Value of same	$5,507 51
Papers and leaflets distributed	131,032
Pledged to proportionate and systematic giving	2,364
Number of visits to sick and strangers	95,980
Number of garments distributed	36,623
Number of needy relieved	4,229

The total receipts for the year amounted to $39,417.00, there being a gain of $6,000 over last year. Fifty-five parsonages have been aided by direct donations amonnting to $3,633, and by loans aggregating $4,810.

WOMAN'S CONFERENCE NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Upwards of seventy-five delegates and visitors were in attendance.

All of the general officers were present, and all of the department superintendents, save two, namely: Mrs. M. B. Williams, superintendent of the Chinese and Japanese Missions on the Pacific coast, and Mrs. W. C. Ratcliffe, superintendent of Mite Boxes and Systematic Giving.

Dr. John J. Tigert, the erudite and portly editor of our Bi-monthly Review, in company with his wife, was in attendance upon the Conference, and filled the pulpit at Rayne Memorial on Sunday morning. He also preached at Carondelet on Snnday night. Those who had the pleasnre of hearing him say that his sermons were masterfnl and highly edifying. The Doctor's wife, who is a danghter of our lamented Bishop McTyeire, is one of the most prominent and devoted members of the Woman's Board.

The annual sermon was preached at Carondelet Street Chnrch by Dr. O. E. Brown, of Vanderbilt University, his theme being, "They that be whole need not a physician, bnt they that be sick." (Matt. ix, 12.) The speaker gave special emphasis to the need in our church of trained deaconesses for effective home mission work, and impressively indicated the duty and importance of more aggressive rescue work among the ontcast classes as well as more active sympathy for the masses. Those who heard it say that it was a most forceful and stimnlating discourse.

Largely owing to the influence and help of the W. H. M. Society, onr church is now building parsonages at the rate of 100 a year.

A pleasing incident of the exercises Monday morning was a presentation to the society by a Louisiana Methodist lady, whose name was withheld, of a little potter's clay barrel filled to the brim with coin. It was broken, and found to contain $85. A resolution was then nnanimously adopted tendering sincere and loving thanks to the giver, who made the offering as a memorial to her departed brother.

Miss Belle H. Bennett, of Kentucky, who for seven years has been the faithful president of the organization, is a woman of great ability and force of character. Under her wise direction the work has grown marvelously.

Mrs. Araballa W. Alexander, editor of the Leaflts, is the gifted wife of Dr. Gross Alexander, of Vanderbilt University. She is the author of that most excellent and inspiring volume, "The Life and Works of Lucinda B. Helm."

Miss Emily Allen, the accomplished recording secretary, is professor of English in Wesleyan Female College, Macon, Ga. She is a minister's danghter, and shows that her whole heart is in the work.

The General Secretary, Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, evidences eminent fitness for the responsible position she holds, and is tireless in her zeal. She is a woman of superior intelligence and refinement.

Mrs. W. D. Kirkland, the General Treasurer, who hails from North Carolina, has made a most efficient officer. She is a wise and earnest worker.

The second vice-president, Mrs. F. B. Carroll, of Georgetown, Texas, has done noble and teiling work in connection with the Rescne Home at Dallas.

The first vice-president, Mrs. J. D. Hammond, is the talented wife of our well-known Secretary of the Board of Education. All were deeply impressed by her wisdom in counsel, her forcefulness of speech, and her spiritnelle face.

The Conference, on Monday morning, was honored by the presence, for a little while, of our beloved Bishop Keener, and also of Rev. Dr. Chas. Wells, rector of Christ Church, each of whom was an interested spectator of the proceedings.

Mrs. J. H. Yarbrough, superintendent of the Department of Supplies, is a danghter of the lamented Dr. J. B. McFerrin. Her vivacity and enthusiasm impressed not a few.

The report of Mrs. F. A. Lyons, of thia city, who is the efficient and zealous superintendent of the parsonage department, was of great interest. She mentioned that the donations and loans to parsonages during the year aggregated $8,443.00. During the past fourteen years nearly $100,000 has been expendad by the society in parsonage aid work.

As the ADVOCATE goes to press early Wednesday morning, we are unable to give any report of the last day's proceedings.

One of the sprightliest and most enthusiastic members of the Board is Mrs. W. H. Johnson, agent of the Dallas Mission Home, Dallas, Texas.

Miss Mary W. Bruce, superintendent of the Cuban Mission Schools, made several very impressive talks regarding her work. She is a woman of sound judgment, great vim, and thorough consecration.

It was a source of joy to all that Miss Mary Helm, the bright and saintly editor of Our Homes, was in attendance.

One of the most successful and faithful workers connected with the Board is Miss Elizabeth Redford, General Organizer.

On Tuesday afternoon a most delightful reception was tendered the members of the Conference and visitors thereto by Mrs. R. M. Walmsley at her elegant home in this city. It was a splendid and much appreciated courtesy.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

The fifty-third anniversary of the New Orleans District Sunday-school Union was held last Sunday afternoon at Carondelet Street Church, a large crowd being present, though some were kept away on account of the threatening weather. Delightful and impressive addresses were made by Miss Emily Allen, of Macon, Ga., recording secretary of the W. H. M. Society, and by Prof. Hamil, the noted Sunday-school lecturer. An interesting feature of the exercises was the singing of a hymn by six Chinese, who are members of the Carondelet Mission Sunday-school. The general subject emphasized was the sanctity of the Sabbath. As the Louisiana Avenue Sunday-school reported the best all-round average, it captured the banner this time. The singing on this occasion was truly inspiring.

NOTES.

The postoffice address of Rev. Robt. L. Phillips, pastor of the North Kemper circuit, is Peden, Miss.

Rev. W. M. Sullivan writes that things are moving on nicely on the Vossburg charge. He expects to bring up everything in full, and is counting on having a good year.

Miss Sallie Smylie, of Meridian, Miss., has been appointed a delegate from the W. F. M. Society to the Ecumenical Missionary Conference, which meets in New York City on the twenty-first instant.

We regret to learn that Rev. L. J. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference, has had a good deal of sickness in his family this year. His sons, Henry and Walter, have had slow fever for twenty days, but are now improving.

Rev. W. H. Huntley informs us that a protracted meeting will begin this week at Fayette, Miss., under the joint management of the pastors of the Presbyterian, Christian, and Methodist Churches. It is planned to carry the revival from church to church—a week in each.

A revival meeting is in progress at Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, Miss., conducted by that splendid preacher and successful revivalist, Rev. W. M. Leftwich, formerly of Tennessee, but now of Virginia. It began on the eleventh instant, and will continue about two weeks.

A two weeks' protracted meeting has just been concluded at the Crawford Street Methodist Church, in Vicksburg, Miss., the closing service being held on last Sunday evening. The meeting was conducted by Evangelist George R. Stuart, of Tennessee. The number of converts, distributed among the various churches, is estimated at two hundred, or more.

Some philanthropic citizen, who refuses to let his name be known, has offered to loan the New Orleans municipal authorities sufficient funds for the equipment of a sanitary small-pox hospital, and it is highly probable that this generous offer will be accepted, as the city has no funds available at present for such a purpose. The need of immediate action is certainly imperative.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

LOUISIANA.

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Morgan City, La. EDITOR.

The third Annual Conference of the Epworth Leagues of Arcadia district convened in Homer, La., March 30 to April 1. Forty-five delegates were present. The Homer League gave a royal welcome to her visitors. Thursday evening, March 29, a reception was tendered the Leaguers at the court-house.

The Conference opened Friday morning, and closed Sunday night. Many inspiring talks were made during the session. The Conference was by far the best ever held in Arcadia district.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: Mr. W. W. Nicholson, president; Mrs. H. R. Singleton, first vice-president; Miss Eula Kidd, second vice-president; Prof. G. L. Wren, third vice-president; Miss Annie T. Clingman, secretary; Miss Lessie Jackson, treasurer; Mrs. J. J. Holmes, Junior League superintendent.

The next District Conference will be held in Ruston, the "City of Conventions."

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

We note that the Meridian district Leaguers expect to go over to Vicksburg in a special car. They are also planning to hold a District League Conference. And they are at work now on an Easter edition of The Evening News. They are not laggard.

W. H. Sanders, of Indianola, in writing up the proceedings of the Winona District Preachers' Institute, says: "The Conference committed itself to the 'Holston Plan.' We look for the district to pay out the mission assessment this year."

At the Preachers' Institute of the Winona district Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, of Pickens, delivered a strong speech on "The Epworth League a Methodist Training-school." It is a good subject for a speech, for where the Literary and Devotional Departments of the League are properly appreciated and championed in a community, they become for the youth of that community a kind of university, and the Devotional and Charity and Help Departments, when worked, make a training-school for the practice of Christianity. Indeed, they are the practice itself.

Miss Sallie Klipatrick, secretary for Aberdeen district, in announcing the District League Conference, requested that the Leaguers attending bring note-book and pencil. The suggestion is a good one, and the same suggestion is here made to those attending the State Conference at Vicksburg, May 10-13. A nickel writing-pad, if utilized, could carry home a great many notes, which would afterwards remind of ideas and things that would otherwise be forgotten.

We are glad to read that Rev. Isaac L. Peebles is able to be at his post in McComb City again. Since Conference, 441 pastoral visits, 49 accessions to the church, 22 children baptized. How many can equal that? May the church a long time have the benefit of his untiring zeal!

He was absolutely reliable, never failing in any duty, never faltering in the presence of any danger, and never betraying a trust. His whole life was formed on the ethics of the Man of Galilee, and throughout his long career he obediently followed the teachings of an all-wise Providence. He trusted in the Son of God for his salvation, and died with a prayer on his honest lips.—Bishop Galloway at funeral of Gov. Stone.

The Chicago University baseball team played our team a series of three games last week. The visiting team won all the games. It is said that not a man on that team drinks, swears, or uses tobacco.—Vanderbilt Notes in Epworth Era.

The last League chartered up to March 29 was one at Macon, Tenn.; No. 4940.

The Epworth League Secretary is leaning heavily on his brethren of the ministry in the arduous work of expanding and making permanent the cause of the Epworth League. With their aid, he can succeed; without it, he must fail. He believes his confidence is not misplaced.—Epworth Era.

The last issue of the Epworth Era had on the title page a photo-engravure of Thomas O. Summers, and the preceding issue had Albert Taylor Bledsoe. They are probably the two most unique characters among the strong, famed men of our Methodism.

SEASHORE CAMP GROUND.

The annual Spring meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Seashore Camp Ground was held April 4 and 5, every member of the Board attending. There was a great deal of business transacted, and great preparations have been made for the accommodation and convenience of the large numbers who are expected to attend the camp meeting this season.

The camp meeting this year will be conducted on a plan entirely different from any heretofore put in operation, and it is expected much good will result from the innovation and changes. A large, commodious building will be erected in place of "Foster Hall," which has been torn down, and the tabernacle will be entirely renovated and repaired, and put in first-class condition.

J. B. Leftwich, Esq., the energetic and capable vice-president of last year, was promoted to the presidency, and Dr. E. L. McGehee was elected vice-president. W. B. Thomson, who has held the position of treasurer for twenty-five years, was re-elected. S. H. Mayer was re-elected financial secretary, and J. H. Bancroft, recording secretary. The new officers have entered into the discharge of the duties encumbent upon them with great vigor and energy and are already hustling and doing everything in their power to make the meeting a great success. The president, especially, Bro. J. B. Leftwich, one of the prominent members of St. Francis Street Methodist Church, South, of Mobile, Ala., is untiring in his efforts, and his zeal inspires confidence and incites all the others to action.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

GALLOWAY LITERARY SOCIETY APPROPRIATELY OBSERVES ITS BIRTHDAY.

The Galloway Literary Society appropriately celebrated the seventh anniversary of its organization in the chapel at Millsaps College last night.

The exercises of the evening were commenced at 8 o'clock, and the large hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion with beautiful flowers and the colors of the society. A large audience was present, and the program rendered thoroughly enjoyed by all. The numbers were interspersed with excellent music, and the order of speakers, with their subjects, was as follows:

First orator: E. H. Galloway, of Jackson, "Stumbling Blocks Along the Road of Life and their Help."

Second orator: R. A. Clark, of Kosciusko, "America and the Close of the Nineteenth Century."

Anniversarian: J. T. McCafferty, of Chester, "The Making of the South."

The three young gentlemen acquitted themselves with much credit, and their orations displayed much careful thought and preparation. The evening was a most pleasant one and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.—Clarion-Ledger.

NOTICE.

We are getting ready for the Sardis District Conference, to meet here (Hernando) April 26-29. Our people are delighted in their expectation of the blessings in prospect for them, and will gladly entertain all who will come.

Come, brethren, in the name and spirit of our Master, and may our services together be wonderfully blessed in the salvation of souls!

Doctor, we will be glad to have you with us. J. H. SMITH.

NOTICE.

I ask that the preachers of the Columbus district send me at once the names of those who will attend the District Conference at Brooksville, April 25-29. Let any others who intend to be present send in their names, that provision may be made for their entertainment. Mr. Editor, you are cordially invited.

NOTICE.

To the People Called Methodists:

DEAR BRETHREN: We are struggling to build a church in this growing young city. It is the consensus of opinion that of all places on the gulf coast, this is the one in which to establish Methodism on a firm and enduring basis. We have as brave, loyal and liberal a band of workers here as can be found anywhere. But they have given to the extent of their ability. We need help, and need it badly, and "now." Will not our brethren come to our rescue, and send us as God has prospered them? Any amount will be thankfully received.

Brethren, don't delay, but help us "now." Our Baptist brethren all over the State are sending in contributions to build a Baptist Church here. Will not our Methodist people be as liberal?

Please send check or postoffice money order on Gulfport, Miss. Send to the undersigned.

Yours in Christian love,

J. S. PARKER, P. C.

Excursions.

The New Orleans and Northeastern railroad announces that, commencing with Wednesday, April 25, it will inaugurate the popular Wednesday excursions to St. Tammany parish, including Covington, Abita Springs, Pearl River, Slidell, and all intermediate stations.

The attractions to sportsmen, as well as the healthfulness of St. Tammany parish, are constantly increasing the popularity of these resorts.

Great improvement has been made, both by the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad and the East Louisiana railroad, in the track, which is being rapidly relaid with heavy steel rails, and in the equipment, thereby affording the excursionist the best of accommodations.

BOSTON DENTAL COMPANY.

Owing to excellent work and satisfactory prices, this firm has a large and constantly increasing practice. It includes among its patrons leading professional and business men.

THE VERY BEST.

The very best premium, offer we have ever made is our sewing machine offer in this week's issue. Be sure to read it.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment of the most modern style.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

TAKE NOTICE

That we are now handling two different styles of the Holman Bible in Bourgeois type. One we sell to paid-up subscribers at $1.50, the other at $1.30. The $1.30 Bible is substantially the same we have hitherto sold at $1.50. The one we sell at $1.50 is a far better Bible than has ever been sold at such a price. It is a marvel of cheapness. ROYAL

The Absolutely Pure

is the baking powder of general use, its sale exceeding that of all other baking powders combined.

Royal Baking Powder has not its counterpart at home or abroad. Its qualities, which make the bread more healthful and the cake of finer appearance and flavor, are peculiar to itself and are not constituent in other leavening agents.

Great efforts are made to sell alum baking powders under the plea that they are so many cents a pound cheaper than Royal. The admission that they are cheaper made is an admission that they are inferior. But alum powders contain a corrosive poison and should not be used in food, no matter how cheap.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS.

The Most Important Organs in the Human Body—They Throw Out All Disease.

Swamp-Root Cures Weak Kidneys.

Does your back ache?
Do you have pains across your kidneys?
Is your complexion chalky, gray, white?
Is your skin dry or feverish? Are there puffy bags beneath your eyes?
Are your eyes dull, listless and dead-looking?
Are you irritable and hard to please?
Do you feel as though you have heart trouble?
Do you have to urinate several times in the night? Is there ever a scalding, burning sensation there?
Do you feel the desire immediately to urinate again, with no result?
Is your urine clouded, thick or milky?
Is there any sediment or do particles float in it?

Don't neglect these conditions, and if they or any part of them are yours, Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, will be found just the medicine you need.

Here's a simple test for the kidneys, just as certain as though a physician were in personal attendance on your case: Pour some of your "morning" urine in a glass or bottle and allow it to stand twenty-four hours. Then hold it up to the light, and if you find any settlings or sediment, or if it is thick or milky, or if small particles float about in it, don't hesitate for a moment, but write at once to Dr. Kilmer & Co., mention the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE," and immediately begin using the sample of Swamp-Root which you will receive at once, absolutely free by mail. The results will surprise you.

Swamp-Root is purely vegetable, pleasant to take, and is for sale by druggists everywhere in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one-dollar. Bear in mind the name, Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

NOW.

BY EDWARD ROBESON TAYLOR.

Oh, do not wait until in earth I lie
Before thou givest me my rightful meed;
Oh, do not now in coldness pass me by,
And then cry praises which I can not heed.
If I have helped thee on thy weary way,
Or lightened in the least thy burden's weight,
Haste with love's tokens ere another day
Shall pierce thee with the fatal words, "Too late."

The present moment is thy time to live;
The Past is gone, the Future may not be;
If thou hast treasure of thy heart to give
To hungry souls, bestow it speedily;
For sweet love's sake, let not to-morrow's sun
Tempt thee to wait before thou seest it done.

THINGS AT HOME.

Children are not always satisfied with home and its surroundings; if money is not very plenty, if pleasures are simple, and life is free from excitement, they are often anxious to get away and try new scenes; too often they find fault with things at home, and give pain to those who are spending their lives to serve them. Fathers and mothers give what their children when away from home will sorely miss—home care and love; and the humblest home with a mother in it is rich with comforts and attentions never to be found again.

I was obliged to wait at a railway station, says a traveler; so fell to talking with the young man who was in charge. He was a bright, stirring fellow, evidently bound to get on in the employment which he had chosen. His first service had been in his home town, and this was his earliest experience away.

"So you are really your own man now and free from home restraints," I said, to try him.

"Yes," he said, "but I am not over-well pleased with the change. I used to think that it would be fine to live at a boarding-house and eat fine dinners and have a latch-key; but I would gladly give them all, and ten times more, for the things at home. We did not have much money to spend, but mother put something into her cooking that I don't find at boarding-houses; money does not buy from laundry women the careful darning that mother gave my clothes. I have a pleasant room—pictures and all that—but I would rather have mother's face. Look here! Here is a letter giving me an appointment with a large raise in paying. My greatest pleasure in good luck has always been telling it at home; and now I am a hundred miles off. I know, of course, that it is right that I should push off for myself; I could not possibly have earned a living at home, but I wish I had seen how good home was when I was there, and had never found fault with mother."

The youth was now obliged to signal a train and left me, but his words kept coming up: "I wish I had seen how good home was, and had never found fault with mother."—New York Christian Advocate.

FINANCES IN THE HOME.

A lack of sound business understanding between husband and wife has been the ruin of more homes than poverty. When a man and woman enter into a marriage—that most important partnership in life—both members in the new firm should have a distinct appreciation of the financial situation, and, as the years pass, the firm's profits and losses should come within the equal knowledge of both.

So would be avoided much of the unhappiness that arises from the husband's thinking his wife extravagant, or the wife's thinking her husband stingy. Nothing is more discouraging to a man than to see his hard-earned money thrown recklessly away on luxuries he feels that only the families of richer men can afford, but often this expenditure is due, not to willfulness on the wife's part, but to simply not knowing how much her husband can afford to have her spend. He is often over-indulgent. She tells him of two bonnets; one is five dollars more than the other, and she doesn't know whether she ought to get it—"but it is a dear of a bonnet," she adds, and he, too weakly loving, tells her "to buy it and look pretty," and then, when the bill comes in, he broods over his expenses.

At another time she asks for money to buy a certain piece of brica-brac, and meets with a refusal, and at a loss to reconcile her husband's former generosity with the present denial, inwardly decides that he is "close."

Both of these misunderstandings are due to a want of mutual advice and confidence concerning the household treasury.

The way to avoid the unhappiness that such misunderstandings invariably bring about, is for the wife to have an allowance for household expenses, knowing exactly what ratio this allowance bears to her husband's whole income. Whether the allowance be large or small will really matter very little in a home that is established on the above sound-money basis.—Dixie Farmer.

CULTIVATION OF RESERVE.

Too much emphasis can not be laid on the importance of winning a child's confidence and encouraging him to talk freely to mother or older sister about his interests, his thoughts, his friends. At the same time there is something to be said about the cultivation of reserve, especially in regard to other people. Beyond a certain point we have no right to discuss the private affairs of our friends, even in the home circle. Honor requires us to keep some confidences, even from the nearest members of our own family, as sacredly as we should guard family secrets from outsiders. We have in mind a woman who is so interested in her neighbors, and so fond of discussing their movements with the person to whom she chances to be talking, that her friends dare not confide any information which they do not wish to become common property. They know at least that nothing is ever kept from her family. From childhood she has always told every bit of news at home, regardless of whom it concerns, because secure in the assurance that it would not be repeated; but the habit thus formed has developed into a relish for gossip not always kept within safe limits, and this well-meaning and kindly woman is fast losing the sense of honor and delicacy which one desires in one's friends.—The Young Woman.

GOLDEN GOSSIP.

How easy it is to speak kindly of everyone! If, during our conversation, a bitter thought comes in our heart, we can just hesitate a minute; we will be sure to change that hard word to something pleasant, and thus make life happier not only for the friend in question, but it will certainly make our hearts lighter to know that no hasty word of ours has been the means of making another sad. For cruel words, sometimes intentional, but more often uttered thoughtlessly, can never be instrumental of good, and when once spoken can never be recalled. There is certainly something good to be found in every human soul, so we should try during our whole life to speak well of others.

It certainly is difficult sometimes to see the good in the midst of so much dross, but if we can not speak well, do not speak ill. We must leave such unfortunates out of our conversation. There are so many pleasant truths to be uttered which will make life sweeter and more worth the living. We must ever try to put away all unfriendly thoughts and temptations, and remember the example we have to follow. Strive to be more like Him every day and every hour. Now, if we must talk, let it be golden gossip. "Speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, showing all meekness to all men" (Titus iii, 2).—Selected.

GREATNESS AND FAME.

Grant was a great man, but he was once in jeopardy of losing his command in consequence of a mistake, and if he had, he would probably have been little heard of afterwards. If he had lost the opportunity to command a great army, he would probably never have become famous. Fame, therefore, is greatness plus opportunity. Was Washington or Napoleon the greater man? The world would not agree. Is Bismarck or Gladstone the greater man? Here again, the world would disagree. Fame is not the measure of greatness. Every man has a chance to succeed, but all haven't the same chance. A great man with a great crisis within his reach becomes world-renowned, when another, equally great, for lack of such an opportunity, makes but a slight impression on his age. Lincoln, Grant, Wellington and Bismarck, as inherently great as they are shown to be, owe their fame largely to circumstances. But, it is doubtful if fame, in itself, has any power to add to man's happiness. The important thing is to do your work well.—Midland Advocate.

HEAVENLY REST.

A mother in bitter grief, bending over her dying child, was trying to soothe it by talking about heaven. She spoke of the glory there, of the brightness glowing all around, of the shining countenances of the holy angels; but presently a little voice stopped her, saying, "I should not like to be there, mother, for the light hurts my eyes." Then she changed the subject of her description, and spoke of the songs above, of the harpers harping on their golden harps, of the voices as the sound of many waters, of the new song which they sang before the throne; but the child said, "Mother, I can not hear any noise." Grieved and disappointed at her failure to speak words of comfort, she took the little one from its restless bed and enfolded it in her arms with all the tenderness of a mother's love. Then, as the little sufferer lay there, near to all it loved best in the world, conscious only, as its life ebbed away, of the nearness of love and care, the whisper came, "Mother, if heaven is like this, may Jesus take me there!"—Archdeacon Sinclair.

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheerful words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled by them. The things you mean to say when they are gone say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away full of perfumes of sympathy and affection, which they intend to break over my dead body, I would rather they would bring them out in my weary hours, and open them, that I may be refreshed and cheered by them while I need them.—Henry Ward Beecher.

WHAT WE PUT INTO LIFE.

A young woman, whose life was full of lofty ambitions, found herself occupied day after day with disagreeable household tasks. As the future seemed to shut down hopelessly around these homely duties, the girl grew complaining and bitter. One day her father, who was the village doctor, said to her: "Do you see those vials? They are cheap, worthless things in themselves, but in one I put a deadly poison, in another a sweet perfume, in another a healing medicine. Nobody cares for the vials themselves, but for what they carry. So with our duties, insignificant and worthless in themselves, but the patience, or anger, or high thinking, or bitterness which we put into them, that is the important thing, the immortal thing."

A celebrated Frenchman said: "Perfection consists not in doing extraordinary things, but in doing ordinary things with an extraordinary spirit."—Silver Cross.

GOOD INTENTIONS.

Many a good intention dies from inattention. If through carelessness or indolence or selfishness a good intention is not put into effect, we have lost an opportunity, demoralized ourselves and stolen from the pile of possible good. To be born and not fed is to perish. To launch a ship and neglect it is to lose it. To have a talent and bury it is to be a "wicked and slothful servant." For in the end we shall be judged not alone by what we have done, but by what we could have done. —Selected.

The purest lives I have known have not been those carefully screened from the world, but which, coming up in it, have kept themselves unspotted. The sweetest and truest have grown and ripened under conditions, you would say, most hostile, but which have been wrought into the means of a grandly elevated faith and life.—J. F. W. Ware.

The Abita Springs Hotel, which was destroyed by fire a short time since, is now being rebuilt, larger and better than before. The main building is to be heated by steam, and made thoroughly comfortable for Winter as well as Summer visitors, and hereafter will be kept open all the year round. Baths and sanitary plumbing, modern and of the very best, will be among the attractive features.

PRICE REDUCED.

"The Gospel of Giving" having had a sufficient sale to justify a reduction in price, we will hereafter send it postpaid to any address at the following prices: Ten copies, ten cents; twenty-five copies, fifteen cents; fifty copies, twenty-five cents; one hundred copies, forty cents; two hundred copies, seventy-five cents.

BEASON—Miss LULA RACHEL BEASON was born June 7, 1876, and died at the home of her stepfather, Mr. F. A. Ainsworth, near Sartinsville, Miss., on the ninth day of March, 1900 after a week's illness. She was the granddaughter of Rev. B. A. Beason, a faithful local preacher. Reared in a Christian home, her whole life and character bore testimony to the truth of the Christian religion. At the age of thirteen she joined the Methodist Church under the pastorate of Rev. P. H. Howae. Her after life was always consistent and upright. In her death the church at Sartins loses one of its most useful members.

Miss Lula possessed many noble traits of character. Ever gentle in her manner, loving in disposition, and pure in spirit, she leaves a large circle of friends and loved ones. About two weeks before the beginning of her brief illness she was impressed that the end was near, but she shrank not from the approach of death. On the contrary, she expressed a longing to depart and be with her Savior, taking her relatives not to grieve. Thus leaving abundant evidence of her acceptance with Christ, she entered into the rest of the saints. The body was tenderly laid away in Sartins Cemetery in the presence of many sympathizing friends and loved ones. May the bereaved hearts find comfort in the precious promises of our Lord! Her pastor, J. J. GOLDEN.

Quinn's, Miss.

HONNOLL—TANDY M. HONNOLL, son of Rev. M. H. and Onada Honnoll, was born Feb. 2, 1874, and died Feb 22 1900, aged twenty-six years and twenty days. He was converted and joined the Methodist Church when quite young, and continued a consistent member until God called him from labor to reward.

Tandy was a good boy, a clean young man. He loved the church and Sunday-school, read good books and papers, and was loved and esteemed by a large circle of friends. In youth and manhood he was obedient to his parents. On the day of his burial his father said to the writer, "I never knew Tandy to speak a cross word to me or his mother." That statement is a monument that will outlast the granite rock that will mark his last earthly resting-place. Reap, my dear boy, through all eternity the benedictions pronounced by the all-Father upon the children that obey their parents.

Tandy had a stroke of paralysis at his boarding-house in the city of Memphis on Feb. 18, from which he died the next Tuesday. In his last days and hours he was happy in the Lord.

"His toils are past, his work is done,
And he is fully blest:
He fought the fight, the victory won,
And entered into rest.

"Then let our sorrows cease to flow—
God has recalled his own;
And let our hearts in every woe
Still say, 'Thy will be done.'"

J. W. PRICE.

KIRKWOOD—Mrs. MIRANDA C. KIRKWOOD was born in —— county, Ga., March 5, 1830, and died in Escatawpa, Miss., Oct. 30, 1899. She was the last surviving sister of Rev. B. B. Whittington, deceased, of the Mississippi Conference. While young, she joined the M. E. Church, South, and her life was ever that of a meek and faithful Christian, doing good wherever she found an opportunity, and endeavoring to walk daily as becometh a follower of Jesus. Through sunshine and sorrow her faith remained unshaken. Though she suffered much in her last illness, Jesus was with her, even as she neared the "dark valley," and when we asked her if "all was well," she answered, "Yes;" that she trusted in the promises of God, saying she was ready to go, and that she wanted her children to meet her in heaven.

Children, grandchildren, and many loved ones, sorrow on account of her absence, but we know she is "at home" in the Father's house, and if we are faithful, we shall meet her again, and shall sorrow and weep no more.

Let us so live that when we come to die we, too, can say, "I know in whom I have trusted," and "all is well." Her niece,

MRS. LAURA M. PRICE.

COOPER—EDWARD GLENN COOPER, son of R. L. and Mrs. S. W. Cooper, was born in Starkville, Miss., Sept. 12, 1897, and died, after an illness of two weeks, on Feb. 6, 1900.

A more winsome and attractive child than little Glenn the writer has never known. He was large for his age, having been unusually healthful all his life, and was strikingly handsome in personal appearance. He had a quick, bright mind; a jolly, rollicking disposition, and a quaintness of speech and manner which enabled him to win his way at once into all hearts. In the home from which he was taken he was almost idolized. Throughout his painful illness his father, mother and grandparents hovered over him, bestowing upon him the sweet ministries of affection, and the most skillful and faithful physicians attended him, but it was all of no avail. The disease raged until the little sufferer breathed his last, and a flower-covered mound in the cemetery marked the resting-place of his remains.

"Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care;
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
And bade it blossom there."

May God sustain and comfort the loved ones left behind! E. A. MAAK.

COLEMAN—MARTHA J. COLEMAN (nee Pitts) was born Aug. 24, 1839; was married to Jas. H. Coleman, Dec. 24, 1868, and was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Pleasant Grove, Panola county, Miss., in the Summer of 1879, under the pastorate of Rev. B. B. Brown.

These statements outline a good, long life of patient industry, friendly kindness, and Christian faith. She was a faithful attendant upon the services of her church, and a member of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. Always a delicate woman, for a good while in imperfect health, the rapid decline was not altogether unexpected. She was not supposed to be so near the end until a few hours before death. At different times she spoke of her departure, and was happy in saying that she would be at rest. She leaves a sorrowing husband, who almost worshiped her; two sisters, and a brother. May God bless and comfort them all with his love! A large concourse of friends attended her funeral service at Peach Creek Church; then quietly laid her to rest in the cemetery close by. BEN P. JACO, P. C.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is without an equal for swiftness to cure.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to April, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

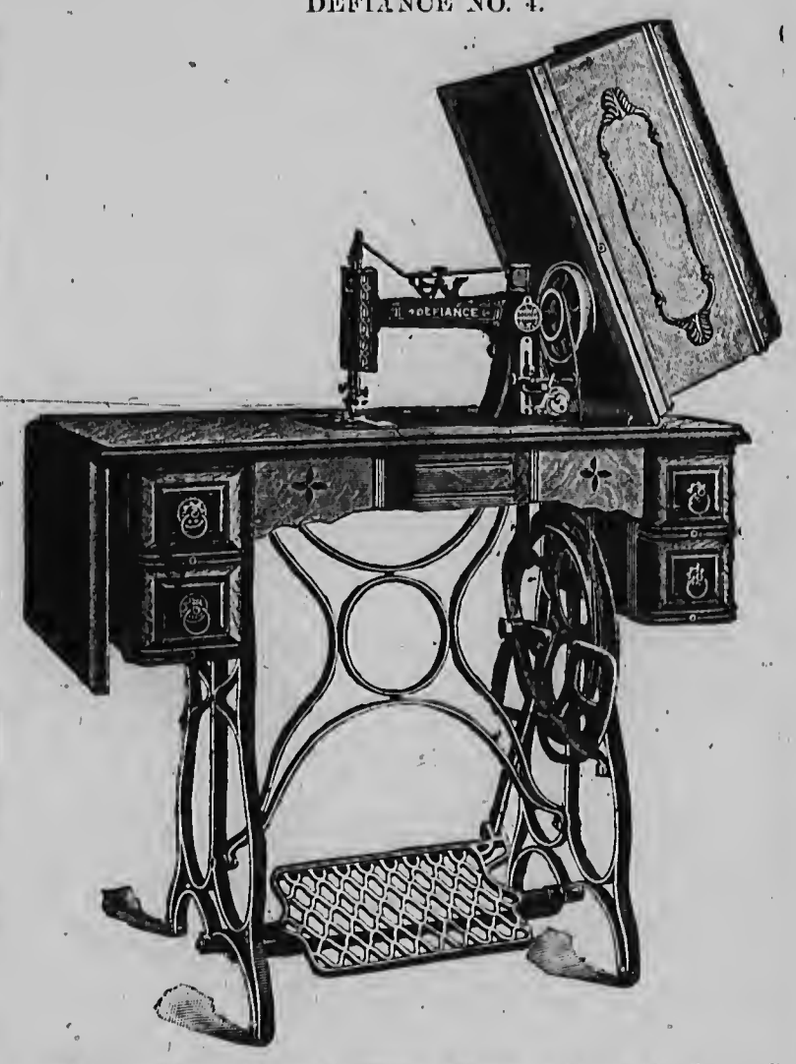
For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.



The Defiance Machine is the perfection of simplicity, durability, speed, strength and ease of operation.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

The Arm is large and roomy, 8x5½ inches in the clear.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well-oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The Needle is absolutely self-setting. No screwdriver is required in setting, a winged thumb nut being used instead.

The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

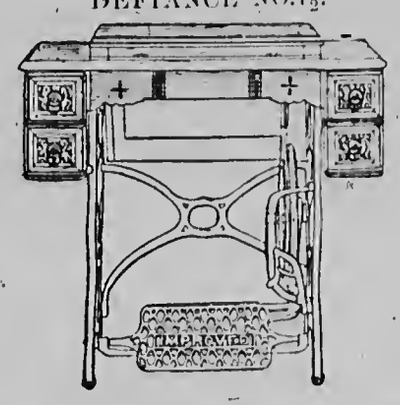
The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbine without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stoppage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on a spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set 14 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider, Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

Additional Accessories. Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, Cloth Guage and Thumb-screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.



This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34 Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

No. 7½ Machine, Drop head cabinet, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $38. Our price, $23.

All the woodwork is of the best quality, either Light Antique or Golden Oak Finish. For Walnut Woodwork add $2 to above list prices.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address

REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

NO crop can grow without Potash. Every blade of Grass, every grain of Corn, all Fruits and Vegetables must have it. If enough is supplied you can count on a full crop—if too little, the growth will be "scrubby."

Send for our books telling all about composition of fertilizers best adapted for all crops. They cost you nothing.

Available Summer homes at the St. Tammany resorts, Abita Springs, Covington, etc., are becoming very scarce, the demand far exceeding the supply.

The popularity of these resorts is rapidly outrunning the facilities for housing the visitors, and a boom in house-building is the next move to be anticipated.

CANCER CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment Removes All Malignant Growths and Drives the Poison from the Blood and Lymphatic Fluid.

J. N. HATHAWAY, M. D.

Cutting out Cancer does not cure it and does not cure it.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment does cure it.

Cutting out Cancer simply removes the local, outward manifestation.

Dr. Hathaway's Treatment Kills the malignant germs of the Cancer, removes the poison from the blood and lymphatic fluid and strengthens the system against future attacks.

Dr. Hathaway has treated Cancer successfully under this method over eight years; his experience covering a large number of well defined cases has proven this terrible affliction to be perfectly curable "IN EVERY CASE WHERE IT CAN BE REACHED BY THE SYRINGE. This includes all outward manifestations, such as the nose, face, head, mouth, lips, tongue and breast, as well as all internal organs that can be reached direct, such as the womb and ovaries. Besides, many internal Cancers that can not be reached direct may be reached and treated successfully through the agency of the lymphatic vessels and the blood.

A TYPICAL CASE AND CURE.

The following is one of hundreds of like testimonials:

Several years ago there appeared on the side of my face an irritable rough spot. At first there was no attention paid to it, but after a year or two it began to scale off and bleed easily, and another place appeared on the other side. Two years ago they had developed into what the doctors pronounced Cancer. About this time there appeared a growth on my neck which got to be about the size of a hen's egg, and proved to be cancerous. In August, 1896, I began the use of the Serum Treatment, administered by Dr. Hathaway & Co., and in about six weeks all three of the cancerous masses had been removed and healed up.

C. F. HILL.
Benson, Ariz., June, 1899.

Dr. Hathaway makes no charge for consultation or advice, either at his office or by mail. He will be glad to send free by mail his new book on Cancer and its Cure to any address.

Free to Inventors.

The experience of C. A. Snow & Co. in obtaining more than 20,000 patents for inventors has enabled them to helpfully answer many questions relating to the protection of intellectual property. This they have done in a pamphlet treating briefly of United States and foreign patents, with cost of same, and how to procure them; trade marks, designs, caveats, infringements, decisions in leading patent cases, etc., etc.

This pamphlet will be sent free to anyone writing to C. A. Snow & Co., Washington, D. C.

SCHOLARSHIP FREE.

You may, by doing little writing at your home, secure scholarship, free, in either Draughon's Practical Business Colleges—Nashville, St. Louis, Little Rock, Ft. Worth, Galveston, Shreveport or Savannah. Best patronized Business Colleges in the South. For particulars address, The Illustrated Youth and Age, Nashville, Tenn.

Read What is Said of the "Combination" Bible.

"I give your 'Combination' Bible my commendation and endorsement without one qualifying word."—Bishop Scarborough, Trenton, N. J.

"It should be in the hands of every clergyman."—Bishop Leonard, Cleveland, O.

D. P. HENSLEE, Doe Branch Ark.

Dear Doctor Woodard: I write you a letter to let you know that I am now entirely well of cancer. Your oils have worked a miracle in my case, for I did not think myself that it would cure me, as I had tried so many remedies that I had just about given up all hopes of getting well. But just think! I am again sound and well. Oh, how I wish that I had seen your advertising sooner, for it would have saved me much anxiety and many dollars. I will soon be down to the city and I will call on you.

Yours thankfully,

D. P. HENSLEE,
Doe Branch, Ark.

We have discovered a combination of oils that readily cure cancer, tumors, catarrh, bronchitis, consumption, piles, fistula, ulcers, eczemas and all skin and womb diseases. We have cured thousands of afflicted people within the last six years. Many cured by correspondence. Readers having friends afflicted should cut this out and send to them. A book sent free giving particulars about the oil. Address Dr. R. E. Woodard, 502 Main Street, Little Rock, Ark.

RICHE-T AND POOREST.

BY E. R. CHAMPLIN.

Richest are they
That live for Christ so well.
The longest day
Would scarce suffice to tell
In what wide ways their benefactions fell.

Poorest are they
That live in self so true.
Their longest day
Brings but such good to view
As they may need self's service to pursue.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

The American Society of Religious Education is celebrating its eleventh anniversary by holding the Second National Biblical Congress, with del[illegible] from nearly every section of the country. The meetings are held in Foundry M. E. Church. At the opening session Gen. John Eaton, president of the society, and Dr. A. [illegible] Keigwin, of Wilmington, Del., presided. Dr. Byron Sunderland delivered the opening address on "The Bible the Sword of the Spirit," and Rev. J. L. Looy, of Wheeling, W. Va., read a paper on "Bible Truths for Every Period of Life." Dr. J. E. Rankin and Hon. J. W. Stokes, of South Carolina, presided at the first evening session, at which Dr. George Reed, president of Dickinson College, delivered an address on "The Achievements of the Bible," and Bishop J. W. Hott, of Dayton, Ohio, spoke on "The Bible and the Welfare of the Church." This morning there was a Mothers' Conference, presided over by Mrs. J. E. Gilbert, of Washington, and Mrs. W. F. Smith, of Spartanburg, S. C., at which papers were read on "Home, the Nursery of Child Piety," by Mrs. J. Ellen Foster; "The Religion of Childhood," by Mrs. Isabella McDonald Alden ("Pansy"); on "The Child's Idea of Prayer," by Mrs. Florence Hull Winterburn, of New York, and on "Church Membership in Childhood," by Mrs. Frances A. Ford, of Philadelphia. At the Pastors' Conference, presided over by Dr. J. C. Nicholson, of Baltimore, and Dr. C. L. Work, of Cincinnati, Dr. L. G. Broughton, of Atlanta, read a paper on "Bible Equipment for Soul-Winning;" Dr. [illegible] L. Fiske, one on "Bible Truths as Centers in Character-Building," and Rev. A. J. Stokes, of Charleston, S. C., one on "The Pulpit as an Agent in Biblical Instruction." At the Educational Conference, presided over by Dr. F. W. Boatwright, of Richmond College, and Dr. W. O. Roberts, of Louisville, Ky., papers were read on "The Principles of Bible Study," by Rev. F. B. Palmer, of Fredonia, N. Y.; "The College as an Agent of Biblical Instruction," by Dr. W. W. Foster, Jr., president of Rust University, and "The Bible the Great Uni[illegible] of All Knowledge," by Mrs. E. G. Ford, of Clarksville, Tenn. At the second evening session, presided over by Dr. Mackay-Smith, vice-president of the society, and Hon. Washington Gardner, of Michigan, the reports of committees were submitted, and Dr. [illegible] MacArthur, of New York, delivered a lecture on "The Bible and the Welfare of Our Country." Thursday the delegates will be received by President McKinley, and in the evening they will scatter themselves among the Bible-in-hand meetings, which every Protestant Church in Washington has been requested to hold. Gen. Eaton, who has been president for some years, having declined re-election, Justice J. M. Harlan of the United States Supreme Court, was elected president. The other officers were re-elected.

The Anti-Saloon League is trying to push the Bowersock anti-canteen bill, which is now before the House Military Committee, through Congress. It is also striving to get the Littlefield anti-saloon amendment recently added in the Hawaiian bill, which is now in the hands of a conference committee, consisting of Senators Cullom, Lodge, and Morgan, and Representatives Knox, of Massachusetts; Hitt, of Illinois, and Mann, of Tennessee. The League has also taken steps towards publishing a pamphlet on the use of beer and other intoxicants in Germany, and the deteriorating moral and physical effects of the drink habit there, compiled from reports of German societies and other authoritative German sources. This pamphlet is intended to show how mistaken those are who say, "Look at the Germans; they drink beer all the time, and it doesn't injure them." It does injure them, both morally and physically, as it does all those who become victims of the drink habit.

Dr. Samuel Domer, for twenty-six years pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, has been compelled by age and ill-health to tender his resignation. At the annual meeting of the congregation, held this week, the resignation was regretfully accepted, to take effect May 31, next, and, as a mark of appreciation for his long and faithful service, $500 was voted to Dr. Domer as a vacation fund. Dr. Domer has been a minister for forty-five years, and his retirement from active duty is a decided loss to the church workers of Washington, regardless of denomination.

The House Ways and Means Committee this week granted hearings to those interested in the movement to get the law repealed requiring internal revenue stamps to be affixed to proprietary articles and preparations, etc. The delegation was large and influential, including representatives from a number of State pharmaceutical associations and members of the National Association of Retail Druggists. The argument advanced was that this tax bears heavily upon the retailer, and that, now the country no longer needs the money, it should be wiped out.

NOTES FROM DISTRICT.

Our first round has been completed, and the record stands as follows: Number of days in quarter, 94; days out, 48; sermons, 33 Aggregate of assessments for pastors a slight increase over last year; that for presiding elder the same as 1899. Reports in answer to the eighth question show the gratifying figures of 604 dollars increase over the reports of the first quarter for last year, only four charges showing a decrease, which aggregated less than 50 dollars, and explained in these by early Quarterly Conferences.

To one who feels the delicate responsibility of the presiding elder at this point, this is indeed a gratifying report. Liberal assessments punctually paid should be the aim of every work, and no charge should feel content to dole out to the "man of God" a mere pittance. The chamber on the wall, the bed, the table, the stool and the candlestick provided by the Shunammite for Elisha meant not only an expression of her appreciation, but the freedom from anxiety, the comfort, and the better equipping of the busy prophet for his best work.

In too many instances the cause of the Master suffers because of a stinted ministry. To visit the flock, bury the dead, prepare sermons, and meet the many other calls made upon the willing pastor, and at the same time struggle with the wolf at the door, is hard work indeed. As well hope to get the best work out of the half-kept horse on the farm as out of a man with such surroundings. "There is that withholdeth more than is meet, and tendeth to poverty," says the wise man. "He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly."

We have had the good fortune to meet every appointment, and have found all pastors on hand and in good spirits. The new pastors have all been kindly and loyally received, and have entered heartily into their work, and, without exception, preacher and people seem pleased with each other.

We are striving to keep up all the ends on the district, and hope to report an advance on all collections, and a handsome sum on the Twentieth Century Fund. Why not? Our people are abundantly able to do liberal things if we would only think and so plan.

We boast of the richest soil, the most genial climate, the most cooperative people, the greatest of crops (King Cotton), the most chivalry, the most beautiful and attractive women—indeed, the superlative in everything—and yet we lag a long ways behind all other Methodisms in our proposed offerings to this grand cause.

Well, I had almost forgotten to mention the plan adopted by some good sisters to raise their missionary moneys. One reports $1 60 raised first quarter from sale of Sunday eggs. She confidently expects to pay six dollars to the cause of missions gotten from that source, which will be nearly one-fourth of the entire amount paid by that circuit of four appointments for missions last year.

Enough! enough!

GRENADA COLLEGE.

MR. EDITOR: It was my pleasure to spend several hours last Saturday morning in Grenada College. The cheerfulness, harmony and safe ambition seen and felt in that prosperous institution intensified the desire to furnish ample room and better facilities for teacher and pupil. Shall we delay any longer? Shall we embarrass ourselves personally, our church in the North Mississippi Conference, and even the history of her future? Now, may every one of us begin at once to collect much money for the Twentieth Century Fund, so that it will go into immediate service of building Christian character out of young men and young women at Millsaps and Grenada Colleges. These schools, planted and fixed in our own great State, are commanding our respect, courting our affection, and are longing so worthily for our liberality.

The Board of Education, unanimously endorsed by our last Annual Conference, has a very satisfactory arrangement with the people of Grenada to erect a ten-thousand-dollar building on the college ground. This house, so greatly needed, should be begun by the middle of May. Let us, who believe in intelligent Christianity and the rapid progress of the church of God, put our minds, hearts, and purses together, asking others to enter with us, "that we will do them good," and raise fifteen or twenty thousand dollars before another month has passed.

God, in his mercy and kindness, has brought us to this time. Our forefathers wrought well. The opportunity, great and sublime, is before everyone to honor and inspire the youth, and equip them for a splendid citizenship.

The North Mississippi Conference must and will meet her obligation in the Twentieth Century Movement. Let us lead. Yours in love,

J. M. WYATT.

DISTRICT DOTS.

There seems to be a widespread impression that the church is somehow lagging behind. The falling off in the acquisition of new members appears to have tinged the face of Zion with a melancholy hue. The preaching and the praying and private conversation all indicate that nearly everybody thinks that there is something wrong either in the manner of preaching, or in the methods of church work, or in the living of Christians. Some of the preachers, as well as a good many of the members, in our district have talked to me in this strain. In regard to this matter, I will not say that it is as bad as some think, nor will I say that there is no foundation for this kind of talk. Quite a number of writers have taken up the task of pointing out the causes which brought about this state of things. One writer attributes it to one thing, and another writer to another thing. Scarcely two of them agree. I shall not give my opinion on this point, because the knowledge of the cause does not necessarily tell us the remedy. If the church is in the condition indicated by what we hear and read, then what we want is to know how to get out of that condition. I am aware that there have been a goodly number of prescriptions by various doctors, and I verily believe that a goodly number of these prescriptions savor strongly of quackery.

Suppose we agree that the church is in a low, weak, even moribund condition, what is the true remedy? Some may think that my remedy savors of quackery, too; but I will make a suggestion which, if acted upon, will do an influential class in the church a great deal of good. I refer to the preachers. It is my conviction that something is the matter with a great many of us preachers. My suggestion is this: Let each preacher take a day off—lay down everything—and take his Discipline—only that—and find a place where he can for a whole day be alone with God and that Discipline. When he has found such a place, let him open his book and read over the first vow he ever made to God—that is, the vow by which he was admitted to membership in the church. He will find it in paragraph 470. It contains a promise to keep the "General Rules" which are contained in paragraph 28. As he reads, let him ask himself—alone there with God—"Have I kept this vow?" Then let him turn to the solemn promises he made when he was admitted into the ministry, contained in paragraph 145, and, remembering that God alone is in hearing, let him ask, "Have I kept all these faithfully?" Then let him turn over and read his ordination vows by which he was admitted to the order of deacons and the order of elders, and put the same question to himself. After he has done this, let him turn to the duties of preachers laid down in paragraphs 119-137, inclusive, and ask himself, "Have I been a faithful servant?" I verily believe if a preacher will scrutinize his life and ministry in the light of what he has solemnly vowed to God and the church, he will discover lapses in his life and failures in his ministry which, if he is a true man, will bring him to a hearty repentance and a reconsecration of his whole being to the work of the Lord. According to the Scriptures, failure in duty is just as much a sin as violation of law, and the only way to get rid of sin is to repent of it. No preacher can afford not to repent of sin when it is discovered in his life and ministry. When he has acknowledged his unfaithfulness, and repented of it, then let him consecrate himself to his work right there alone with God, and he will come back from that place a new man, and there will be a power in his ministry which all "the adversaries can neither gainsay nor resist."

I tell you, brethren, we are too forgetful of our vows as ministers of the gospel! Too many of us are place seekers instead of sinners-seekers! We think more about "taking care of number one" than about taking care of the church of God! May Christ have mercy upon us! P. E.

Selections.

NOW OR NEVER.

BY BISHOP CHARLES B. GALLOWAY, D. D.

In the language of the English parliamentarian, I wish to raise the question of "urgency" in the consideration of the Twentieth Century Thank-offering Fund. The time for debate has passed; the hour for final decision has come. "Closure" must be invoked, and the voice of the church be recorded. And in the "division" it is ardently hoped that not one negative response will be heard. The earnest desire is that every pastor in Southern Methodism will make faithful and grateful report for every soul committed to his care and cure. If that is conscientiously done, success is absolutely and abundantly assured.

What we do must be done quickly. The time for immediate and heroic action has come. Longer postponement means certain and humiliating failure. The next six months will determine the fate of this movement in Southern Methodism. With the closing months of the Conference year come the annual strain to raise the assessments for current connectional expenses. If this Thank-offering Fund has not been secured before that time, the new century will dawn with the record against many a pastor and his people, "Nothing done."

The following words from Rev. Dr. Mills, specially charged with the direction of this great movement in the M. E. Church, are as forceful as they are fervent and felicitous: "The time of reaping is a time of peril as well as of opportunity. A few days of idleness when the fields are white and the harvest has perished. We have come to the greatest reaping time our church—yea, our world—has ever known. If we are listless and indifferent in the face of such unparalleled opportunities, the Lord of the harvest will drive us as idlers from his field. A church too blind to perceive and improve such an opportunity is doomed."

Such a kindly warning may well be rung out through all our American Methodism. We can not allow this memorable year to pass unimproved—this great connectional movement to expend itself in jubilant boasting and good resolutions. To do so would be a crime against duty and a travesty upon glorious opportunity.

There may be a few preachers in Southern Methodism who see little or nothing in this great movement, and have no heart to urge its triumphant success. But I am sure they are very few in number. The great body of our ministers, with the vision of seers and the soul of true apostles of God, are in heartiest accord with this grand opportunity of the church, and feel most profoundly the humiliation of possible failure. To such alone do I make affectionate and earnest appeal

Do not wait for better opportunity, or the aid of some strong deputation, to begin the canvass in your charge. The field is large, and the men at command to assist in this movement are few. They could not and ought not to be disengaged from other work to devote themselves to this alone. Let every pastor, feeling keenly the responsibility laid upon him by the church, ask divine help and organize himself at once for victory. The man who stands next the people is best able to win and open their hearts to this providential enterprise.

Rev. W. L. Watkinson, an ex-president of the Wesleyan Conference, and the connectional editor, one of the most brilliant preachers of the world, in a recent sermon preached in behalf of the Twentieth Century Fund, used this striking illustration: "When a young Greek soldier complained that his sword was short, a veteran instantly answered him: 'Then add a step to it.' And I say to you who find yourselves short of time, short of money, short of strength, short of opportunity, 'Add a step;' in other words, make up for deficiencies of material, opportunity, and instrument by an intenser resolution, enthusiasm, and sacrifice." That illustration is as suggestive as it is beautiful. It is the heroic and determined spirit back of the sword that measures the sweep of its valiant swing and the number of its brilliant victories. Many of the mightiest men of history have more than made up for all natural or other limitations by an inflexible and all-conquering purpose. In this way everyone of us may become more than a conqueror.

Local claims must not be allowed to push this great connectional interest aside. If so, we will suffer discount, if not discredit. One presiding elder who has a mind to know what Israel ought to do, writes me as follows: "The opportunity to do great things is slipping by. Nearly every charge has some local claim that just now urges response. I wish all my brethren could and would realize the value and advantage of this movement in education." Local interests in the end will be best conserved by strengthening our connectional strongholds. On the other hand, we may imperil the Connection by expending all our energy on local enterprises. If these local interests are allowed to absorb pastoral attention to the ignoring of this movement, the proposed Twentieth Century Thank-offering Fund will become a travesty on connectional enterprise, and a positive tragedy of ecclesiastical statesmanship. But such a result is not to be an imagined possibility. We can and will succeed. Some pastors have already done nobly, and many others are now diligently carrying out wisely formed plans. Let me urge every preacher and presiding elder in Southern Methodism to immediate action. My dear brethren, if the movement is to be worthy of our great church, it is now or never.

Jackson, Miss.

SOME DAY.

BY ELLA C. G PAGE.

Some day I shall awaken
As from a quiet sleep.
To find the dark ning shadows
That pile, a tangled heap,
Between my soul and sunlight
Gone, like the light cloud scrolls,
And know I have awakened
Within the land of souls.

Some day this sound of turmoil
Shall drop to sudden ca m.
The shades and storm clouds parted
As by a mighty arm.
And lo! the land of quiet,
Where souls that here have striven,
Shall find their rest forever—
The peaceful realm of heaven.

Some day life's waves and billows
Shall ebb in perfect peace;
The noise and stormy howling
Of the chill wind shall cease.
And my life bark, tho' shattered,
Scarred hull, and canvas rent,
Shall anchor in the haven
To which her course was bent.

Some day my eyes shall open
To sights unknown and sweet;
Old faces, aye, and new ones
With raptnre I shall greet.
My loved ones, lost and vanished,
Unto the peaceful coast
Shall all draw nigh to welcome
Me to the ransomed host.

The passing of a moment,
The twinkling of an eye,
And all above, around me,
Shall arch immortal sky.
O land of peace and glory,
I catch thy golden shine!
When shall I reach that country,
The heaven-land divine!

THE CONFLICT OF SCIENCE AND RELIGION.

The conflict of science and religion is a snbject on which skeptics never tire of writing. Less than three years ago Andrew D. White finished np a long series of articles on the "Warfare of Science." Draper wrote two hooks on the same line. Recently David Starr Jordan and William Henry Hudson, both of Leland Stanford University, California, have written for the Popniar Science Monthly on "Veracity"—all tending to show that religion and theology are fnli of rottenness, and make continnal war on science and all progress. One answer fits them all, which I shali attempt, and end with some criticism on Prof. Hudson as the latest. They all misnse the terms "theology" and "religion." Each of these terms has two moanings. In its broadest sense theology signifies the science of God, or a treatise pertaining to God without any special reference to the teachings of the Bible; in its narrow sense it is a treatise on the teachings of the Bible. In its broadest sense religion refers to any system of something snpernatnrai, and applies as well to Brahmanism and Mohammedism as to the Christian religion; in its narrow sense, with ns, it refers only to the Christian religion, the science and philosophy of which we call theology, and mnst not be confonnded with the living np to the teachings of Christ—a power obtained hy grace and faith, an internal and invisible work. This internal work is also called religion.

The writers referred to are men of the highest order of learning, and are well-versed in drawing the finest distinctions in matters of science, and yet they reason very loosely about religion. They attribnte the sins of theology and religion, in their most extensive sense, to theology and religion in their narrowest sense; and more than this, they thoronghly confonnd false religion, and political and military religion, with the religion of the heart. They also confonnd the theory of religion with the practice of it. They speak of faith as a belief without evidence or reason, utterly ignoring man's ability to perceive a work on his heart hy the Spirit of God simply because his ear can not hear, nor his eye see, nor his imagination conceive of it. When some military chieftain or political tyrant sets np some man as priest and calls him father, seizes the Bible in one hand and the sword in the other, revels in the blood of his fellow-men, and without reason or justice sports with the consciences of mankind, bayonets all who fail to acknowledge his propagations as divine, and requires his father priest to indorse all his doings as sanctified hy heaven, these writers throw np their virtnous hands in scientific horror at the wickedness of the Christian religion.

The great war has been between religion and politics, and science has had but little to do with it either way. In all ages of the world governments have sought the divine as authority for their right to rnle. Æneas claimed his mother was a goddess. Nnma declared that his laws were dictated to him hy the nymph Egiria. Tho Pharaohs of Egypt claimed their authority to rnle from heaven throngh the priests. When Christianity became more powerfni than paganism debanched Romo embraced her, defiowered her, enslaved her; bnt Christianity enslaved is a harlot, and has no more trne religion than a harlot has virtne. The Bible interpreted by reason is peace and love; interpreted hy politics is the crnsades, the inquisition, St. Bartholomew's Day. It is dreadfnl Havoc, amid blood and slanghter, gnashing his terrible teeth upon the bleeding bodies of men, women, and children, and then thanking God that he is the chosen instrnment of heaven for establishing the religion of Christ. Of all things that Christianity dreads it is that religion whose tongne is a sword. The skeptic scientist will never get done telling about the imprisonment of Galileo and the execntion of Brnno hy this religion of the sword, bnt they forget to mention the many ten thonsands of hnmble Christians hntchered hy the Roman Neroes for centnries, dnring which time science, philosophy and civilization were going down and Christianity was rising. After Rome hariotized the church trne Christianity suffered more than ever nnder the power of this political dragon. To call the power that imprisoned Galileo Christianity is to call the power that murdered the Christian Albigenses and Waldenses a trne type of Christ. The strnggle between free Christianity and political Christianity was long and severe, and the bloodiest known in the annals of history, and thonsands of thonsands at the bnrning stake sealed their faith in Christ. And it seemed for awhile that free Christianity, in hiding and weeping, wonld go down under the fagot and sword, and science and philosophy and civilization all sank rapidly nnder the persecntion of trne religion.

Finally with John Huss, Jerome of Pragne, Luther, Zwingle, Melanc thon, Calvin, and others the ranks of the enemy began to give way. The struggle increased in severity, was wide-spread, and was carried on with the most terrible energy. The thirty years war among the Anstrian and German States, which involved nearly all the states of Enrope, the slanghter of more than one hundred thonsand French Protestants in a single day, are two of the many deathly conflicts showing the long continnance, the stnbbornness, and the deadly natnre of this awfni contest between free religion and polit ical religion. It was over two centnries before free religion felt a tolerable secnrity in her establishment, and to this day the contest is not ended.

Bnt what did science and philosophy do all these dark ages? Astronomy helped to corrupt Christianity hy its dawdling astrology, and the alchemists, the ancestors of onr modern chemists, proved to the church hy their mysteries and exploding crucibles that the world was fnll of ghosts, and goblins, and evil spirits. As free Christianity came forth in her glorions trinmphs, she bronght with her a revival of letters, of the arts and sciences, and soon political freedom followed in the wake of religious liberty; and wherever this liberty prevailed, and just as it prevailed, there progress and science and political freedom flonrished, and wherever religious reformation failed, there retrogress, cruelty and intolerance continned—witness Turkey and Spain and Spanish-America. It is true, Spanish-America gained freedom in name, bnt in reality intolerance in religious matters continned, and revolntion, violence, and anarchy grew apace, and these states were for a long time, if not to the present day, on the down grade in every respect.

In Popnlar Science Monthly, of Jnne, 1898 (page 207), we make the following qnotation from Prof. Wm. Hudson. He speaks of the dark ages, "when theology held nndisputed sway." We reply by saying, "When theology played the harlot for politics and persecnted religion." He continnes, "Trnth should have been so little prized." Yes, when Christians were being hntchered and bnrned for the sake of the trnth hy tyrant States that held a prostitnted church in chains. "By the fonrth century," says Mosheim, "the monstrous and calamitous error 'had taken possession of the ecclesiastical world,' that it was an act of virtne to deceive and lie when, by that means, the interest of the church might be promoted." When Christians were hnnted down and slain as wild beasts, is it strange that they should nse deceit? When Gen. Washington wrote letters fnll of lies, directed them to Gen. Greene in the South, and contrived to have them fall into the hands of Sir Henry Clinton, British commander in New York, and hy this deceit enabled himself to take Yorktown, did anybody blame him for lying? Again we quote, "So far as philosophical veracity is concerned, therefore, we have to conclnde that its growth mnst depend almost wholly on the decline of the theological and the spread of the scientific spirit." And this in face of the facts, as we have already shown, that science expands only as theology advances, and gives religious, political, and scientific liberty.

Prof. Hudson certainly forgets that nearly all the great progress in science and philosophy has been made hy religious men, many of them being theologians. He forgets that a large proportion of the nniversities of the world where science is developed were fonnded and are condncted by some church, and that church members occnpy a majority of the chairs in all other nniversities. He forgets that a large majority of all school teachers are church members, and many of them preachers. Take away denominational schools and universities everywhere, and science and civilization wonld receive the severest shock felt since theology was prostitnted to politics. Snppose education, philosophy and science were tnrned over wholly to skeptics and disbelievers, it wonld strip the world of more than nine-tenths of its teaching and professional ability, and most of its endowed capital in education.

Prof. Hudson forgets that science has been more opposed hy scientists than hy theologians. The Copernican theory was opposed hy scientists. The trne theory of light advanced by Dr. Young was overborne hy the great authority of Sir Isaac Newton, and its acceptance delayed nntil the present centnry. Mnltitndes of examples might be addnced. On the other hand, science and philosophy have been the freest things in the world. When Nero was making toroh-lights of Christians, the scientist and philosopher were nnmolested. When Christians were bnrning at the stake at the hands of political Christianity the alchemist, in his search for the philosopher's stone, was nndisturbed.

Prof. Hudson has much to say about the virtne of veracity, specially of indnstrial and political veracity, all of which is good, bnt has been worn smooth hy every pnlpit in the land.

When it comes to theological truth he grows eloquent in defaming theologians, and in trying to prove theology a science that can only live by falsehood. He forgets the thnnders that he and other scientists have hnrled against theology. He forgets that skeptics have ransacked science, philosophy, history, and criticism to prove the Bible false. He forgets how few points there are in science which even political theology has antagonized. Political theology opposed for awhile the Copernican theory, the teachings of geology in regard to the antiqnity of the earth, and its creations, and evolution. With these four points the opposition ends—four only amid many thonsands—and scientists and learned men everywhere opposed these as mnch as theologians; while religious freedom, throngh Christian professors, has done the chief work in establishing these theories. Who ever heard of any sect antagonizing the development of steam power, the telegraph, or any other development of electricity? Who ever opposed the chemist working wonders in his laboratory, the physicist, the botanist, the zoologist, and the whole compass of scientists?

I agree with Mr. Hudson that there is as mnch veracity among scientists as among any class of men. The reason that science in general is least antagonized, and the freest of all departments of knowledge, is that it is farthest removed from all causes of prejndice. Wherever religions freedom is throttled there neither science, nor civilization, nor progress of any kind advances. In Turkey, Spain, Portngal, North Africa, Asia, the Central and South American States science is free, bnt dead, because religion is not free. Now, and in all time past, in every connlry whatsoever where there has been no religious liberty, there has been no progress, and the people have been on the down-grade; and wherever there has been religious freedom nntrammeled by politics or state alliance, there has been progress and development of the sciences.

A BAD HABIT.

Not a great while ago I visited a certain Snnday-school, and had the privilege of the floor dnring the lesson hour, that I might watch the methods employed in teaching the lesson, etc. After the classes had fairly started the pastor came in, and, going from class to class, shaking hands and asking after the health of the family, etc. Now, the earnest pastor had not thonght that he was disturbing the teacher in her efforts to direct the child's thonght to the lesson; that just about the time she was getting her class interested, and was making a good point—one that she had prayed and thonght over—the pastor came and spoilt all.

Now, I am snre it never occnrred to onr good brother that there was any harm in snch a proceeding, bnt, had he gave the matter any thonght, I am snre he wonld not have been gnilty of anything of the kind. I myself have had this very thing to contend with for many years in my Snnday-school work, and in some instances I have been almost forced to offend my pastor before I could get him to desist. None bnt those who are actnally engaged in teaching know how very annoying this habit is, and yet there are many pastors who contend that they have the right to greet the children anywhere and at any time.

Dear brother, is this your habit? If it is, I beg you to stop and think on these things.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY MOVEMENT IN THE SHREVEPORT DISTRICT.

Upon call of Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer, presiding elder of the Shreveport district, the committee appointed hy him to conduct the canvass of the Shreveport district in the interest of the Twentieth Centnry Edncational Movement met in Shreveport on April 10. The committee consists of Dr. Sawyer, P. E., chairman; Rev. W. G. Evans, secretary, and Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard, R. P. Howell, and H. W. Bowman. The committee formulated plans for the canvass, and arranged dates and selected speakers for special services to be held in the bonnds of each pastoral charge.

The general plan agreed npon is: First, to have the General Board of Education fnrnish each pastor with a qnantity of literatnre for distribntion among his people, and some pertinent tracts and the New Centnry Edncation for his own perusal. Second, to reqnest each pastor to preach on the snbject of Christian education at each preaching-place npon his work before the rally is to be held, at which time the literatnre may be distribnted and the rally advertised. In the third place, the committee desires to have the hearty support of the pastor in preparatory services and judicions advertising. The speakers should not be looked npon as foreigners or ones who are intrnders, bnt those who are "sent"—"in his name"—to help both pastor and people to glorify God and do his work. Fonrth, wherever possible, "dinner on the grounds" should be provided, as this will insure a larger crowd, and in some instances enable the speakers to address people that otherwise could not come.

The committee is anxious that the idea of thanksgiving to God for his blessings should be the key-note of the canvass.

It will be necessary for the pastor to see the larger part of his people after the rally has been held, while the snbject is yet fresh npon their minds, and enroll their names upon the "Honor Roll." Would it not be a good idea for him to see several of the most prominent and liberal members before the meeting and get their pledges for liberal contribntions, so that when the time comes some one will be ready to respond to the highest proposition and not cnt the collection down to almost nothingness hy some one responding with a very small contribntion at the ontset?

W. G. Evans and R. P. Howell were appointed a committee to snpply the secular papers of the district with matter each week bearing npon this cause.

The following plan of visitation and speakers was agreed npon:

Texas Avenne, Shreveport, May 1—J. L. P. Sheppard and W. G. Evans.

Mooringsport, at Mooringsport, April 26—J. S. Sanders and J. L. P. Sheppard.

Caddo, at Greenwood, May 8—H. W. Bowman and J. L. P. Sheppard.

Manafield, May 9—W. T. Bowling and W. G. Evans.

Grand Cane, at Grand Cane, May 11—W. G. Evans and J. L. P. Sheppard.

Pleasant Hill, at Pleasant Hill, May 16—W. G. Evans and R. P. Howell.

Red River, at Campohelio, May 16—H. W. Bowman and J. L. P. Sheppard.

Benton, at Benton, May 18—W. T. Bolling and H. W. Bowman.

Conshatta, at Conshatta, May 22—W. T. Bolling and W. G. Evans.

Wesley, at Davis Springs, May 24—H. W. Bowman and Wm. G. Evans.

South Bossier, at Haughton, Jnne 5—H. W. Bowman and R. P. Howell.

North Bossier, at Emma, Jnne 8—W. G. Evans and R. P. Howell.

Ft. Jessnp and Many, at Ft. Jessnp, Jnne 12—H. W. Bowman and R. P. Howell.

Pelican, at Pelican, Jnne 14—H. W. Bowman and J. L. P. Sheppard.

Florien, at Florien, Jnne 19—W. G. Evans and R. P. Howell.

Logansport, at Logansport, Jnne 19—H. W. Bowman and J. L. P. Sheppard.

Leesville, Jnne 21—R. P. Howell and W. G. Evans.

Zwolle, to be held dnring the District Conference at Zwolle.

Of the $38,000 apportioned to the Lonisiana Conference, the share of the Shreveport district wonld be about $5,750. Of this amonnt about $1,000 is already in sight, and the ontlook for the balance is very bright.

GREENVILLE DISTRICT.

The Missionary Institnte of the Greenville district met in Cleveland, April 12, and continued two days, with fourteen preachers in attendance. The meeting was called by the presiding elder for the pnrpose of devising plans for secnring all of the assessments made npon the district. It was an earnest and enthnsiastic gathering. We had a religious time. Every service was spiritnal—'twas good to be there. The sermons of Bros. Morehead and Countiss were impressive and nplifting. The speeches, hy those appointed special topics, could have been made only hy men in love with the cause, and fnlly determined to succeed on Methodist principles. A report of each would consume more than our share of space. I wish every preacher in the Conference could have heard them all, bnt especially the remarks of the presiding elder on "The Assessments, and Onr Ability to Meet Them," and the speech of Bro. Harris on "The Relation of the Snnday-school to the Various Claims."

The meeting closed on Friday night with a Twentieth Centnry Rally. The short addresses hy Bros. J. T. Mnrrah, Countiss and Moose were of a high order, and thoronghly enjoyed. They will bear frnit.

Throughout, our sessions were pleasant and profitable. The choir fnrnished excellent mnsic, and the friends were thonghtfnl in every way. They always are at Cleveland.

The secretary was directed to write the brethren who were not present, on account of sickness in their families, that the Greenville district paid all of the assessments in '88, and that we had decided to do so again this year.

LADY HUNTINGDON.

The Woman's Home Mission Movement had its first expression in the heart of the Shnnammite woman when she bnilt the little chamber on the wall for the prophet Elisha. It is represented in the days of our blessed Master hy Mary and Martha and the "other women" who ministered unto Him; and in apostolic ages hy Doreas, Lydia, Phebe, Priscilla and a host of other noble women who labored with their brethren in the gospel and distributed "unto the necessities of the saints." Passing down the centnries, we pause in the early days of Methodism to see this noble work develop into new vigor in the life of Selina Shirley Countess of Huntingdon.

This gifted woman, sprung of an ancient line, and married to the ninth Earl of Huntingdon of the house of Hastings, was dowered with a nobility far greater than any earthly rank or titles can confer; for throngh faith, she had been adopted into the family of the King of kings and become a joint heir with Christ to an inheritance "incorruptible, undefiled and that fadeth not away." Henceforth beauty, talents, rank and wealth were laid at the feet of her Lord. "Throngh this honorable woman, pure in life as she was exalted in character and station, the neglected rich and great had an opportunity to hear the gospel." Her London mansion and country seats were tnrned into chapels in which the Wesleys and Whitefield, and another evangelical lights as Romaine, Topiady and Berridge, held forth the Word of Life to the perishing nobility of the realm. Some received it in honest hearts and gave their live and fortnnes to the spread of the trnth.

In her thirty-ninth year Lady Hnntingdon was left a widow, with the management of a large fortune in her hands. As her time and resources were now at her own command, her home mission work was extended, and she began to give the gospel to the poor. She traveled over the kingdom with her chaplain who gathered together, and preached to great multitndes. She erected chnrches at Bath and Bristol, where in visitors in search of health and pleasnre could hear Methodist preaching. Besides bnilding numerous chapels throughout England, Wales and Ireland, she bought theatres, halls and dilapidated chapels in London, Bristol and Dublin and fitted them np for public worship. She mapped ont the country into districts, and sent evangelists throughout their borders, meanwhile bearing the traveling expenses of a big corps of ministers whom she kept circulating throngh the kingdom. Assisted hy wealthy friends Trevecca House, an ancient castle in South Wales, was procured and fitted up as a college for the education and training of young ministers, with the saintly John Fletcher, of Madeley, as its first president. Students could remain three years and have education and maintenance free. From this institntion streams of holy influence went forth to bless the land. Here Lady Hnntingdon spent much of her time, and made it the center of her missionary operations. The annnal commencements were like Methodist camp meetings. Thousands of people gathered on the grounds, stands were erected for preaching, and sermons, exhortations and love-feasts were greeted with hearty "Amens" and fervent cries of "Glory to God!" from the assembled crowds.

After a life spent in constant ministrations of self and equally constant giving of all she was and had to Christ this noble woman died at the ripe age of eighty-four years. During her life-time she had given more than half a million dollars to religious purposes. She had sold her jewels to build chapels for the poor, and had parted with her aristocratic equipage and liveried servants that she might have the more to give to her Lord. At her death she left what fortune remained from her benefactions for the support of sixty-four chapels she had helped to build in various parts of the kingdom.

With her dying breath she uttered these words: "My work is done. I have nothing to do now but to go to my Father."

CLARA B. DRAKE.

Prayer does not directly take away a trial or its pain, any more than sense of duty directly takes away danger of infection; bnt it preserves the strength of the whole spiritual fiber, so that trial does not pass into temptation to sin. A sorrow comes npon yon. Omit prayer and you are ont of God's testing into the devil's temptation; yon get angry, hard of heart, reckless. Bnt meet the dreadful hour with prayer, cast your soul on God, claim him as your Father, though he seem cruel, and the very grading, paralyzing, embittering feets of pain and sorrow pass away in a stream of sanctifying and softening thonght ponrs into the soni, and all that which might have wrought your ruin bnt works in yon the peaceable fruits of righteousness.—Stopford Brooke.

From the Work.

WESTVILLE, MISS.

This is my second year's work on the Westville circuit. I have enjoyed the work very much, though this charge requires a great deal of physical labor, and, of course, the young preacher has a good deal of mental work to do also if he preaches and brings up his course of study. My work includes every Methodist Church in Simpson county save one. But as Methodism is not very strong in this county, I only have six churches on my charge. We have been treated as nicely as we could ask. The parsonage has been nicely furnished since we came here. The charge paid about thirty per cent. more last year than it had done for some years previous. This year the work paid almost as much the first quarter as it paid the first half of last year. We are hoping, praying, and working for better things along all lines. God helping us, we expect to see a forward movement in the interest of churches and schools before our time-limit expires, if those in authority see proper to continue us here that long. There is great room for development in this county. The material resources are abundant. There are plenty of people out here, but some of them have not ascended very high in the scale of development. While there are some good Christians and loyal Methodists in this county, there are many others who, though they pose as Christians, when the test comes, throw their influence on the side of the devil and his hosts. There are many church members who have neither religion nor church pride, and, it seems, no conception of law and order. Boys and young men every now and then come to the church intoxicated, and fire their pistols near by, and unless the preacher takes the matter in hand, nothing is done to secure order and protection to the women and children. And with officers and members either in sympathy with or very lenient on the hoodlum element, the preacher has a poor show in enforcing the law. However, we succeeded in keeping order last year after punishing some of the leaders.

We think that the building of the Gulf and Ship Island railroad through this county will bring about improvement in many directions, especially as regards law and order, religion and education. We hope to build one, or more, new churches on the new railroad before the end of the year. L. E. Alford, P. C.

LEESVILLE STATION.

When Bishop Galloway, at the Louisiana Conference, read out, "Leesville, J. M. Alford," the natural inquiry was, "Where is that place?" This being a newly-made work, it has never before had a name in our Minutes. Last year this was with the Florien work, of which Bro. Holliday was the pastor.

At the last Conference, Dr. Sawyer, complying with the wishes of this people, had it made a station. Some of the brethren thought it was rather a premature thing to do, but I believe it was not a mistake. At first we found twenty-nine members; now we have seventy. We found no house of worship; now the prettiest church in this district outside of Shreveport, and it is being painted. We have raised over $1,000 in cash up to date. We owe the principal part of our lumber bill, which will be paid by next Conference. We have already sent the money to Chicago for an eighty-five-dollar organ, and have ordered from New Orleans about 25 dozen chairs to seat the church. The church is built with the Sunday-school so connected with the main auditorium as to be made one large room on extraordinary occasions. The full seating capacity is four hundred. The church is built with three gables, two of them prominent on the main streets, the church being on a corner lot, and, therefore, will be very convenient when the street car line has been extended this far. Our windows and doors are after the modern style, having two sets of twin windows in each end, segment head with transoms, and variegated light cathedral glass. Our bell weighs 550 pounds.

Leesville is the metropolis of Vernon parish. A temple of justice has just been completed which cost $16,000. We have a population of two thousand, and still they come from every section, except Tangipahoa parish and Kentucky.

Numbers of families are living in cloth tents, waiting for houses to be built. Over twenty new buildings are in course of construction now. A saw-mill, with a capacity of 75,000 feet per day, is one of the leading industries. The K. C. and P. G. road has developed the county. This town enjoys a large trade from East Texas. Commercial men say this is the best business town between Lake Charles and Shreveport.

My Board of Stewards have put pastor's salary nearly $100 above that of last year.

But I must close, as some ex-presiding elder or some giraffe from another Conference will probably be looking over this way about next Conference, and then the Bishop might hustle me out to some other place where there is a church to build. I want to stay here four years.

The above may seem an exaggerated report as to the condition of this charge, but, in reality, "the half has not been told."

Jas. M. Alford, P. C.

MOORHEAD, MISS.

On arriving here we found a new, but promising field. There are three appointments on the charge: Baird, Sunflower, and Moorhead.

At Baird we found an organization, with about twelve members. Dr. W. C. Miller, the only steward on the charge, lives here. We have no house at this point, and it will hardly be possible to build this year. Services are held in an old building belonging to the Presbyterians. Bro. G. W. Bachman during February organized a Sunday-school for us in Baird, which meets regularly.

Sunflower is a little lumber town on the Yazoo Delta railway. The population is small and uncertain, and the people are poor. There is, however, considerable religious interest there, and we hope to build a house soon that can be used both for a school-house and to preach in.

Moorhead has a population of four hundred, and is at the junction of the Yazoo Delta and the Southern railways. Just now there are but twelve white families in the town. If what Moorhead is now were all we had to work with and to work for, it would hardly be worth while for the Home Mission and the Church Extension Boards to invest money here. The splendid future Moorhead has before it is what gives the place its great importance. It is but a few years since C. H. Pond came to this place, then a swamp and a cane brake. He built a saw-mill and a dummy line. The mill burned and the dummy line was sold. Mr. Pond then began the construction of the Yazoo Delta railway. This undertaking met with universal doubt and ridicule. The railway was completed to Rolleville, however, and leased to the Illinois Central. A spur of the Y. & M. V. came down form Clarksdale to meet the Y. D., and Moorhead was in direct communication with Memphis. The Y. D. has added from 50 to 1000 per cent to the value of the lands through which it runs, and it is said now that it will be made the main line into Memphis of the Illinois Central system. Since the completion of this railway far-reaching plans for the future of the town have been silently developing. The first step was the completion of a $10,000 hotel. This magnificent hotel has been successfully operated from the start. After the hotel came an oil mill, which, when completed, will be among the best equipped in the South. The latest enterprise is a cotton mill, which is already in process of construction. The cotton mill will employ three hundred men and will operate five thousand spindles. A contract has been let for twenty-five roomy cottages, equipped with water-works and lighted with gas. A thorough sewerage system will be put down, and every precaution will be taken to insure the health of the operatives. A fine artesian well, with a stream over fifty feet high, supplies the drinking water.

Already the fine prospects of the town, and its certain future, have begun to attract capital. People are buying lots every day nearly. It is predicted that within the next two years Moorhead will have an increase in population of from five to six hundred. Fine farms are being opened all around the town.

Although there are practically no Methodists here, we have met with only the kindest reception at the hands of members of all denominations, and all have joined heartily in helping in the support of the work. It is impossible to guess what kind of people will come here in the next year or two—whether they will be Methodists, or of any church at all. But, at any rate, they will need a house to worship in. Just now each denomination is eager to build, but it will be hard for anyone to put up a building, unless assisted from without.

At present we worship in a hall that belongs to Mrs. Pond, and which she loans to all denominations alike. We have two services a month, and the Baptists and Presbyterians have services on the other two Sundays. Thus we have preaching every Sunday night. Besides, we have a good Sunday-school, conducted by all denominations, and a weekly prayer meeting.

We have taken the Twentieth Century Offering at Moorhead, and the people responded liberally. Besides, we have raised a little of our Conference collections. Mrs. Pond has kindly offered us a lot, and as soon as we have that settled, we will proceed at once to raise the money to build. W. G. Harbin.

There is nothing like the first glance we get at duty before there is any special pleading of our affections or inclinations. Duty is never uncertain at first. It is only after we have got involved in the mazes and sophistries of wishing that things were otherwise than they are that it seems indistinct. Considering a duty is often only explaining it away. Deliberation is often only dishonesty. God's guidance is plain if we are true.—F. W. Robertson.

In the East childlessness is considered a curse from the gods. It is a pathetic sight to see some childless Hindoo mother prostrate before an idol, imploring that the curse of childlessness may be taken away.

Are we much wiser than the heathen? Thousands of childless women are not as they suppose under Nature's ban, but are suffering from a diseased condition of the delicate feminine organs. It may be debilitating drains or female weakness, and perhaps an ulcerated and inflamed condition of the parts. In any case the diseased condition must be removed and a healthy condition established before the maternal function can be fulfilled.

Many a mother acknowledges her debt to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and to its inventor Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., who invites the sick to write and consult him without charge. "Favorite Prescription" promptly allays irritation, heals ulceration, checks the debilitating drains, cures female weakness and the accompanying bearing down pains. It gives vitality and elasticity to the organs peculiar feminine, and establishes the natural conditions which make for the easy birth of healthy children.

There is nothing just as good for you as "Favorite Prescription." Don't be put off with a substitute.

"I have never written you how grateful I am to you for your help in securing good health and one of the sweetest, dearest thirteen pound girls that ever came into a home," writes Mrs. M. Vastine, of 647 South Liberty St., Gniesburg, Ill. "When I wrote you about my ailments I was living in Richland, Iowa. I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Before I had taken four bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I was a new woman. I cannot make pen describe my heartfelt gratitude."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the stomach, liver and bowels.

In California.

The Golden State is seriously considering the necessity of quarantining against consumptives. This means that God's fresh air and sunshine, nowhere more entrancing and beautiful than on the Pacific slope, may be denied to the unfortunate sufferers. Thousands have been greatly benefited and many cured by the delicious atmosphere of California, and it appears a most cruel measure, even though sanctioned by medical. Many persons now in the advanced stages of consumption, and surely doomed, could have been cured by early resort to that most gracious healing remedy, MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

For loss of appetite, weak digestion, debility, typhoid fever, and consumption it is invaluable.

THE ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE ON FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The largest and most significant missionary conference ever held is now in session in the City of New York, and will sit for eleven days, the conference having been formally opened on the twenty-first instant. Over two thousand accredited delegates from every Protestant mission field on the globe, including the isles of the sea, are in attendance, every denomination being represented by eminent leaders and successful missionary workers. This is the third meeting of the character held during the century. The first was held at Mildmay, in England, in 1878. The second in London in 1888. This is the first general conference that has ever been held in this country. It represents no single denomination, no one country or continent, but the whole world of Protestant Christendom.

Attention is being devoted not merely to the evangelistic feature of mission work, but also to the subject of higher education, the training of teachers, the establishment of hospitals, medical relief work, the great question of comity, and a number of other things of vast importance. Never before in the history of the church has the cause of missions attracted such profound and general attention as is evidenced by this huge gathering, one of the beneficent results of which will be the giving of new emphasis during this closing year of the century to that noble battle-cry of Christianity, "The world for Christ." What a magnificent proof of the oneness of the church in Christ is this great assemblage of missionary workers taking sweet counsel together in beautiful harmony!

Let fervent prayer go up from the heart of every Christian that the blessing of God may rest in fullness upon this Conference during its entire session, and that its deliberations may result in a great forward movement for the evangelization of the nations.

Ex-President Harrison is the presiding officer, the principal meetings being held in Carnegie Hall. On the Committee of Arrangements all the principal Protestant missionary societies of America are represented.

On the evening of the twenty-first instant an enormous crowd assembled in Carnegie Hall to hear the address of welcome by President McKinley in behalf of the nation. The President said in part:

This representative gathering, the earnest and sympathetic assemblage presided over by one of America's most illustrious statesmen, Gen. Harrison, is your true and best welcome. It attests the profound pleasure and satisfaction which all of us feel that the representatives of more than 200 societies engaged in the work of foreign missions in every part of the globe are guests within our gates.

The labors of missionaries, always difficult and trying, are no longer so serious as in former times. A hundred years ago many of the fields were closed to missionary effort. Now almost everywhere is the open door, and only the map of the world now marks the extent of their thought and action. Their contributions to the onward and upward march of humanity is beyond all calculation.

They have promoted concord and amity and brought nations closer together. May this great meeting rekindle the spirit of missionary ardor and enthusiasm to go teach all nations!

THE PRICE OF CHURCH PAPERS.

The question is often asked why church papers are not published as cheaply as secular papers, and without stopping to ascertain the facts in the case, many people unjustly charge that the price at which the ADVOCATE and other official organs of the church are published, is exorbitant. How erroneous is this view a little inquiry will show.

In the first place, our people should remember that the circulation of a church paper is necessarily limited. We don't expect Baptists, Presbyterians, Hebrews, Catholics, or anybody but Methodists, save in rare instances, to take a Methodist paper. Secular journals, on the other hand, circulate among all classes, including both Jews and Gentiles, saints and sinners, and having so much wider a patronage, the publishers can well afford to offer them at lower rates than the majority of denominational papers can be published at. If a paper established under the auspices of our church were to be published along undenominational lines, like the Christian Herald, while its circulation could be greatly extended, and possibly the price reduced, yet it would no longer fill its mission as a paper specially devoted to the interests of Methodism, and would, therefore, quickly be repudiated.

Again, it should be borne in mind that secular papers, as a rule, admit all classes of advertisements to their columns, a whisky advertisement, or the notice of a theatrical exhibition, appearing oftimes in close proximity to the announcement of a church service. All sorts of questionable schemes and humbugs are therein glowingly described, and no questions are asked, provided the cash for the "ad" is forthcoming. Church papers do not advertise the saloon business, the theatre, the race track, and many other things of an objectionable character. Hence their sources of revenue are greatly curtailed, for if there is any business in the world that can afford to subsidize the press, it is the liquor traffic. We have abundant evidence that the average daily is absolutely under the control of the liquor men.

Furthermore, all the large weeklies and tri-weeklies, like the Times-Democrat and the Picayune, of this city, are but a rehash or reprint of the dailies, and after deducting cost of paper, press-work, and mailing, the receipts are so much clear profit, not a line of news being set up specially for these additions. Every bit of the matter, however, that goes into our denominational weeklies, with the exception of some of the advertisements, has to be set up new. Nor do any of our church papers use "patent insides," or "outsides," or "plate matter," the employment of which is the secret of the cheapness of most county weeklies.

Just at this time newspapers of all classes are being greatly hampered by the recent large advance in the price of white paper caused by the unscrupulous greed of the Paper Trust. A further decided advance in the price of white paper means ruin to not a few papers.

A good illustration of the impossibility of publishing a first-class paper at a low price, unless it has a large circulation, is furnished by the Epworth Era, which, the publishers say, can not be published for one dollar without loss, unless the subscription list reaches and is kept at twenty thousand.

Southern Methodism is strewn with the wrecks of papers started on the cheap line. To refuse to profit by the lessons of the past is to be guilty of no little folly.

LIGHT WANTED AS TO THE BEST METHOD OF CONDUCTING A PRAYER MEETING.

A good brother who is a loyal Methodist, and who has the interests of the church deeply at heart, is considerably perplexed about the matter of which he writes below. What he says is certainly worth thinking about. How to make the prayer meeting a success is a burning question in these times, and those who feel able, as the result of experience, to offer helpful suggestions along this line, should speak out. Every wise pastor will ever seek to avoid tediousness. Ministers are not always to blame, however, when their prayer meetings are poorly attended. In the majority of instances, we think, lack of interest therein is due to the fact that the church members are either sinfully lukewarm, or lamentably backslidden. Here is what the brother says:

"I have noted with no little regret that the prayer meeting of the church where I worship is not as well attended as formerly, and that the interest therein seems to be languishing. We have one of the best preachers in the Conference. He is a model of faithfulness and is a man whom we all respect and love; and hence I have been somewhat at a loss to account for the decline in our prayer meeting.

"After thinking over the matter a good deal, however, it seems to me I have found a partial solution in the fact that our pastor conducts this social meeting of the church too much as he does the regular Sabbath preaching services. The prayer service consists almost uniformly of several songs, three or four prayers, and a Scripture address or talk by the pastor, of from twenty-five to thirty-five or forty minutes' duration. Rarely ever, unless our pastor be absent, is a layman asked to lead, or make a talk, although we have several who have gifts in that direction. Now, I would have no one imagine that wounded pride is at the bottom of this utterance, or that I am itching for a chance to talk in public. I am but an indifferent speaker, and tremble much when it becomes my duty to say anything publicly. My delight is always to be a listener. I have long believed and still am of the conviction, however, that a prayer meeting should be given more variety than a preaching service, that the talks should be earnest and pointed, but brief; that as many should be induced to take part in the exercises as possible, that prominence should be given to song and prayer, and that opportunity should be given from time to time for words of praise and testimony. I am of the opinion also that it is better to have five or six short prayers than two or three long ones. The best attended and, it has seemed to me, the most inspiring and helpful prayer meetings I have seen in the course of my peregrinations have been those conducted very nearly according to the model I have described. Our pastors have their opportunity on Sunday; why not give the laymen a chance on Wednesday night? Besides, if a pastor does nearly all the talking, praying and leading himself, how are his members to be developed in usefulness or in piety? Of course, where only one or two godly laymen or women are in evidence at prayer meeting, the pastor has no other recourse but to do nearly everything himself. I do not profess to be a Solomon, and may be wrong in my views. If I am, I would thank some one to set me right."

BELATED NOTES OF W. H. M. S. CONFERENCE.

The next meeting of the Board will be held in St. John's Church, St. Louis.

The officers and department superintendents elected for the present year are as follows: Auditing Committee—Mr. James A. Kirkland, Mr. D. H. Smith; editor Our Homes, Miss Helm; editor Leaflets, Mrs. Alexander; supt. mountain work, Miss Bennett; supt. Cuban work, Miss Mary Bruce; supt. supplies, Mrs. J. H. Yarbrough; supt. mite box and Baby Roll, Mrs. J. J. Tigert; supt. systematic and proportionate giving, Mrs. Ratcliff; supt. Chinese and Japanese work, Mrs. Mary Williams; financial agent Dallas Home, Mrs. W. H. Johnson.

Pledges for the Board work were received from the Conference delegates present as follows: East Texas, $300; Florida, $300; Holston, $100; Missouri, $50; Alabama, $75; North Georgia, $500; North Texas, $1000; Southwest Missouri, $100; St. Louis, $250; Texas, $100; West Texas, $50; White River, $30; making a total of $2,930

The Board gratefully accepted the offers of Sam Jones and ex-Gov. Bob Taylor to lecture for the benefit of their Twentieth Century Fund.

Those enterprising dailies, the Times-Democrat and the Picayune, kindly gave full reports of each day's proceedings.

DEATH OF SISTER HINES.

We are deeply pained to learn of the death of that aged "mother in Israel," Sister Jane Hines, wife of Rev. W. B. Hines, of the Mississippi Conference. She fell on sleep in Summit, Miss., on the nineteenth instant, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mollie Reed. She was in the seventy-eighth year of her age, and had for some time been almost a helpless invalid.

Sister Hines was a woman of lovely character, and had, from her earlier years, been a true, self-denying servant of the blessed Master. Never did an itinerant preacher have a more faithful, loving wife than our dear brother, whose lot she shared for so many years. Verily she has entered into rest. Besides her aged husband, who survives in feebleness extreme, she left several children, and grandchildren, and a host of friends, to lament her departure.

May the Lord graciously sustain the bereaved husband and family in this heavy sorrow! A suitable memoir, we suppose, will be furnished in due time.

GIFT TO VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY.

Vanderbilt University has just received a bequest of $100,000 from the late Mrs. J. Furman, of Nashville, who, for many years, has been a member of McKendree Church, and whose husband, recently deceased, achieved great success in that city as a wholesale merchant. Mrs. Furman further directs in her will that the residue of her estate, after paying for a monument to her husband, her son, and herself, in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, shall "be turned over to the said Vanderbilt University, to be held as a sacred fund, and not encroached upon for any purpose, the interest thereon to be used in such manner as the chancellor of said University shall deem most advantageous to the institution."

It is stated that this residuary legacy will amount to another $100,000.

A NEW BOOK.

"ABOUT MY FATHER'S BUSINESS." By Austin Miles. The Morshon Company, New York. Price, $1.50.

Mr. Miles in this book describes the church as the "Father's business," in which there are employed many kinds and conditions of men to carry out the work.

He has been for nearly ten years engaged in collecting data, during which time he has visited many different denominations in his extensive travels, and has made personal observations as to their reasons for failing to reach the masses, embodying his experiences and receptions in the form of an interesting story.

Choosing living characters to represent the different conditions of church life, and the evils existing, through the desire on the part of its members to bring it down to the arena of pleasure.

All through this interesting narrative there is carried on an animated controversy between the social and spiritual elements, describing the lack of force and power in spiritual life by the encroachment upon it of social pleasures.

It also shows the abuses made possible by the power and influence of some of its rich members. While the book has a religious flavor, at the same time it advances some very strong themes of morality and philosophy. Throughout its pages a vein of helpful humor is found, and written in such an original manner as to win for the book a marked favor with the reading public.

NOTES.

Rev. H. H. Ahrens is among the visitors to the Ecumenical Conference.

Bishop Galloway dedicated our new church at Magnolia on Sunday, the fifteenth.

One thousand Cuban teachers are to receive instruction at the Harvard Summer School in July.

The annual sermon at Science Hill, Shelbyville, Ky., will be preached by Bishop Galloway, Sunday, June 3.

Rev. R. D. Norsworthy, pastor at Bay St. Louis, paid the ADVOCATE office an appreciated call one day last week.

In the Southern Presbyterian Church the number of candidates for the ministry has declined every year since 1894.

It is expected that the General Conference of the M. E. Church, to be held in Chicago in May, will bring together 15,000 Methodists.

A writer in the Baptist and Reflector says that there are 1,500 Baptist preachers in Texas without pastorates.

On Tuesday, the seventeenth instant, Bishop Galloway delivered an address before the Methodist Social Union, of Chicago.

The Canadian Methodists already have $643,850 of their coveted $1,000,000 for a Twentieth Century Thank-offering Fund.

An exchange says: "There is an old woman in Atlanta who shouts at every Sunday service, and gets mad at every call of the church steward."

The distinguished and cultured Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, of the Mississippi Conference, is in New York attending the Ecumenical Missionary Conference.

The Baptists of England have decided to raise for their Twentieth Century Offering not less than $250,000, which will be spent upon new chapels.

What a howl the political papers are making about commercial trusts! But not a word have they to say against the devilish whisky trust.—Epworth Herald.

In 1899 the Young Men's Christian Association erected new buildings in the United States at the rate of one every ten days, many of them costing from $50,000 to $200,000.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer, presiding elder of the Shreveport district, spent a couple of days in the city last week. He was on his way to the Ecumenical Missionary Conference in New York.

Rev. Dr. S. S. Keener, presiding elder of the New Orleans district, has been confined to his room for a week, or more, by sickness. We are glad to learn that he will soon be out again.

Rev. C. C. Miller, the enterprising pastor at Alexandria, informs us that he is meeting with a fair measure of success, and that he hopes to be able to report everything in full at Conference.

In accordance with his request, the Chicago Presbytery, on the sixteenth instant, erased from the rolls the name of Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of the Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

Rev. Dr. McF. Alexander, pastor of the Prytania Street (New Orleans) Presbyterian Church, has declined the presidency of the Austin Theological Seminary, which was recently offered him.

Dr. Tillett reports more than $36,000 as subscribed from twelve congregations in the Tennessee Conference, and from the preachers of the Conference, to the Twentieth Century Educational Movement.

Rev. W. T. Palmer, of Dyersburg, Tenn., has been engaged as assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in this city. He is a nephew of the distinguished Dr. B. M. Palmer, the regular pastor.

Calloway Little, son of the late Rev. D. A. Little, of the Mississippi Conference, died at the home of his mother, in Jackson, Miss., on the fifteenth. We deeply sympathize with our sister in her great bereavement.

The aggregate value of the Randolph-Macon system of colleges and academies—five in all—is now placed at about $800,000. The Virginia Conference, to which these splendid educational institutions belong, may well be proud of them.

The Baltimore Christian Advocate and the Richmond Christian Advocate have been consolidated under the name, The Richmond and Baltimore Advocate. Dr. Cox, of the Baltimore Conference, has been elected editor from that Conference.

The amount subscribed to the Twentieth Century Fund during the late session of the Baltimore Conference, held in Washington City, was $15,000. A larger amount than this was mentioned in the telegraphic reports of the Conference, but the correct figures are as given.

Says an exchange: "The saddest fact in the recent rise of white paper is that it has increased the price of Bibles and other good literature."

The Epworth Herald, of the M. E. Church, now has nearly one hundred and twenty thousand subscribers and is the most widely circulated church weekly in the world. It is the most profitable piece of newspaper property owned by the M. E. Church. The Herald will soon celebrate its tenth birthday.

A gracious revival at Emory and Henry College resulted in the conversion of all the unconverted students but seven. The sickness of the preacher in charge, Rev. J. W. Shuler, necessitated the closing of the meeting, or all, perhaps, would have been reached.—Central Methodist.

We are glad to learn that Rev. W. McLaurin, the popular pastor at Gloster, Miss., is having fine congregations both on Sunday and at the prayer meetings. He has had five accessions to the church since Conference, two being on profession of faith. A new $160 organ has just been bought for the new church, and paid for in full.

Bishop John C. Granbery last week delivered the Cole lectures for 1900 before the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University. The subject elucidated was, "Experience the Growing Evidence of the Christian Religion." These lectures will soon appear in book form, and will be in great demand, as Bishop Granbery is one of our profoundest thinkers and most attractive writers.

In response to inquiries recently sent out by Rev. Dr. Buell, dean of the Theological School of Boston University, two hundred of the alumni report, as one of the results of their labors, upwards of twelve thousand conversions within the eighteen months preceding March 1, six thousand of these having been gained during the last six months of that period.

Rev. R. A. Meek writes that a wonderful revival meeting has just been closed at Starkville, Miss. Among the results are seventeen additions to the Methodist Church, and upwards of one hundred conversions. The preaching was done by Rev. A. A. Leech, of Okolona, and Rev. Thos. Copeland, of the North Alabama Conference. A fuller account of the meeting will appear next week.

"Things are moving on here in the usual channel. Assessments for missions subscribed and in hand. We will begin a meeting next Sunday (the twenty-second), and continue indefinitely. Revs. Boiling Denson and Williams will assist me. Mansfield College affairs are moving on in a very satisfactory way. We anticipate a fine commencement. So writes Bro. J. L. P. Sheppard, pastor at Mansfield, La.

Through the courtesy of the pastor the assistant editor had the pleasure of preaching, last Sunday morning, to the attentive and intelligent congregation at Parker Memorial Church. Bro. Atkinson is in fine favor with his flock, and is meeting with much encouragement. His Sunday-school has had the largest number of children to join the church during the past twelve months of any Methodist Sunday-school in the city.

A few days ago Dr. B. M. Palmer, of this city, having been interviewed by a Times-Democrat reporter respecting the recent attacks on the Presbyterian creed, said, among other things: "The present controversy over the Westminster creed will probably split the Northern Presbyterian Church into two bodies. In my opinion, that is apt to result in the reunion of the North and South orthodox branches, which have been divided since the war."

A note from Rev. W. L. Anderson, dated Chester, Miss., April 20, says: "Rev. J. S. Oakley, of Chester, returned from Memphis this morning. He has been under treatment there for three weeks, and his friends everywhere will be delighted to learn of his complete restoration to health. His physician directs him to remain at rest for some time yet. We will all rejoice with him when 'Richard's himself again,' and can go out and in among us as before."

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss., EDITOR.

Rev. J. P. Drake had prepared to organize an Epworth League at Summit, April 15, that rainy Sunday. If the atmospheric conditions were too unfavorable for this work at that time, we trust that there will not be a long postponement. Summit is in Pike county, which was established as a county in 1815.

The Paris Exposition opened on Sunday. With the French, Sunday is more a holiday than a holy day. French ideas have always dominated in New Orleans to a great extent; and the Sabbath-breaking influence of that city has a long time been felt in all the regions surrounding. The following paragraph taken from an account of the State National Guardsmen shooting in New Orleans, as given by one of the dailies, is a sample of a French way of observing the Sabbath:

"Hereafter prize shooting will take place only every other Sunday general practice being permitted to commands applying for the privilege on the intervening Sundays. Next Sunday, March 11, will be devoted to general practice, and the following Sunday, March 18, the seventh shoot for the Weinfurter prize will take place."

If there is a pastor or layman, or laywoman, young or old, who really desires the help that would come from attending the Vicksburg Conference, it is hoped that such will not stay away simply because not a delegate-elect, or otherwise entitled to membership. We feel sure that Pastor Watkins' committee will say "Amen" to this suggestion.

More of the presiding elder's districts of the Mississippi Conference should hold League Conferences. The Leaguers of Meridian district are preparing for one. Will it be the only one? It is the testimony of those who have attended all the different League gatherings that an enthusiastic District League Conference surpasses in practical results.

The Anti-Cigarette Club of Chicago has 8000 members.

Only those pastors who have Leagues in their charges are entitled to membership in the Conference at Vicksburg. It might happen that an officer of the Conference would be sent by the authority that fixes appointments to a charge that has no League. The question arises as to whether such officer would be a voting member by virtue of his office. Here is the case of one of our district secretaries as stated by himself: "There is a question in my mind as to my membership in the coming League Conference. There were no Leagues on this work when I came. I was late in getting here on account of changes made after Conference, and found much accumulated work to do; hence the time has not been opportune for beginning League work. Under the circumstances will I have a right to membership as district secretary or not? I am inclined to think that I will not. I hope to have two Leagues in good working order before the year closes."

The Constitution reads: "Credentials of delegates must be signed by the president and secretary of their Leagues, and forwarded with their names to the local committee at place where Conference meets." Miss Bertha E. Clansman, 103 Randolph St., Vicksburg, is asking for the names.

One young lady has expressed to us the evident inspiration to her faith which came from entering during a greater portion of last year heartily and regularly into the study of a portion of the Scriptures as outlined weekly on the devotional page of the Epworth Era. A change of residence has deprived her of the benefit that came from the weekly devotional meeting. As Rev. W. B. Lewis said in his sermon during the Mississippi Conference Sunday-school Convention, a person's faith is in proportion to his study of the Bible which contain the truths that engender it.

We note that Rev. T. L. Alford, pastor at South Side, Meridian, is librarian for his League. No office is nobler than this one, if it be magnified. It has sometimes happened that Sunday school and League libraries are almost worthless simply through lack of a punctual, competent distributor and receiver of the books. To keep good books coming and going in rapid succession among the youth of a community is as important work as any one is likely to be engaged in.

Notice.

Since sending out my circular letter in regard to the excursion on the Mississippi river to the State Epworth League, I find that the date had been changed for the meeting of the State League from the third to the tenth of May. All necessary information will be given next week in regard to the departure of the boat from Greenville.

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON, Ruston, La., ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

LOUISIANA LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

This year's State Conference of the Louisiana Epworth Leagues met in Arcadia on the twelfth and adjourned on the fifteenth of April. The program was an interesting one, though many who were to take part failed to come. The Social Evenings, the reception on Thursday and the 'Evening in China," on Saturday, were delightful occasions. The sermons on Sunday by Bros. Foster, Clifford, Cobb and White were of a high order. Dr. DuBose won the Conference in two inspiring addresses. Bishop Galloway was not present.

There were about 90 delegates in attendance, half of them from Arcadia district. Arcadia could have entertained twice the number handsomely. The ministers present were: Bros. G. D. Parker, Atkinson, Crews, B. H. Sheppard, Davies, Foster, Henderson, Akin, H. O. White, Schnhie, Clifford, Sanders, Howell, Lowry, Thomason, J. L. Wright, Turner, Stapler, W. G. Evans, J. E. Denson, H. W. Ledbetter, and H. R. Singleton.

A Constitution was adopted, vesting the president with authority to appoint an executive committee which shall fill all vacancies occurring between Conferences, audit all accounts, prepare Conference programs, etc. The committee for this year: G. D. Parker, chairman; Miss Gussie Tooke, A. S. Daniels, W. G. Garrett, T. B. Clifford, R. H. McGimsey, O. B. Staples, Miss Carrie Schwing and Miss Edyth Davis.

The president was also instructed to appoint a district chairman in each presiding elder's district where there is no District League organization, whose business it shall be, with the co-operation of the presiding elder, to bring about a district organization. The District Conference is the best place for organized work, and to carry out the Holston plan district organization is absolutely necessary. The district chairmen appointed are: T. B. Clifford in the Opelousas, Miss Carrie Schwing in the Baton Rouge, R. H. McGimsey in the Alexandria, and W. G. Garrett in the Delhi.

The "Holston plan" for raising missionary money was adopted. Of its details, more anon. Already over $500 has been pledged toward wiping out the deficit Louisiana Conference usually reports. On missions we were short $4,683 last year. If Leagues and pastors, organizing compactly into district organizations, will pull together, there will be no deficit this year. One district at least, probably two or three, will pay up in full all their assessment. Details of this plan may be had from our Mission Rooms.

Prof. A. P. Holt, of Crowley, ably presided in the absence of President Ahrens, and Miss Carrie V. Schwing filled the secretary's place with credit. Miss Tooke was quite ill with typhoid at the time of the Conference.

A State tax of 5 cents per member was asked for from all Leagues in the State. Send it to the treasurer.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, A. S. Daniels, of Algiers; first vice-president, Miss Mae Smith, of Baton Rouge; second vice-president, Miss Randolph, of Louisiana Avenue; third vice-president, Prof. A. P. Holt, of Crowley; secretary, Miss Gussie Tooke, of Arcadia; treasurer, Miss Emma McNeese, of Lake Charles; superintendent of Junior Work, Mrs. Lee Smith, of Shreveport; and editor, H. R Singleton, of Ruston.

And now, Louisiana Leaguers, let's put Louisiana to the front! See to that district organization. Invite the State and district officers to visit your League. Keep in mind the State Conference at Jackson, La., next Summer, and let's have 200 delegates there. Instruct your secretary to send the news of your League to the editor at Ruston. We want to keep the League column full of news. With a strong pull, and a pull all together, we will go into our next Conference with 150 Leagues and 5000 members instead of 65 Leagues and 2000 members. Be sure enough "All for Christ."

NOTICE.

To the Pastors of Louisiana—

During the next few days you will receive a postal from the president of the State Epworth League. Do not delay answering; it will take but a few minutes, and the information is necessary.

Preachers in charge are urged to use diligence in advertising these meetings and in distributing literature concerning the thank-offering. Subscription cards will be circulated throughout the congregations, and a strong appeal will be made in each case for the whole amount asked. But the work of securing subscriptions should go on both before and after the mass meetings. Personal work will facilitate the public work, and will, in turn, receive re-enforcement from the public appeals and the educative addresses.

The Mutual Life Insurance Com'y OF NEW YORK.

RICHARD A. McCURDY, PRESIDENT.

Is the oldest active Life Insurance Company in the United States, and the largest and strongest Company in the world. It is purely mutual—belonging exclusively to its policy-holders, for whom it has accomplished results in excess of those of any similar institution.

SINCE ITS ORGANIZATION IN 1843

It has paid to living members	$283,157,627 64
To beneficiaries of deceased members	204,591,282 43
Total paid to members, both living and dead	$487,748,910 06
And now holds for the security of its present members	277,617,326 36
Paid to and invested for its members	$765,366,236 42

are remarkable for their liberality, large guaranteed values, and entire absence of all technical terms or harsh. Being practically incontestable, they provide a legacy and not a lawsuit.

Persons desiring policies in this Company can secure them from the Company's nearest agent, or if no agent is convenient, by writing to the General Agent, giving date of birth and stating what amount of insurance is desired.

THE LAMAR SOCIETY.

A good-sized audience assembled at the Millsaps College chapel last night in attendance on the celebration of the seventh anniversary of the organization of the Lamar Literary Society, and the event proved one of the most pleasant and enjoyable that has been held during the present college session.

A first-class orchestra furnished the music between the numbers, and the chapel room was artistically decorated with the colors of the society. Dr. W. B. Murrah delivered an earnest invocation, after which Mr. C. N. Guice, of Natchez, delivered a well-prepared address on Southern Literature. He was followed by the anniversarian, Mr. T. W. Holloman, of Phœnix, who delivered a very interesting address on "The Superiority of Mind."

Dr. Charles Hillman Brough, of the Mississippi College faculty, delivered the annual address, which was received with much enthusiasm and interest.—Clarion-Ledger.

A Widow Tells How She Regained Her Health and Supports Herself.

I was a sick woman, three months ago. Everybody told me I was too weak even to do my housework. Since then I know that all I needed was plenty of fresh air. A friend of mine told me that W. H. Baird & Co., 330 Century Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., wanted agents in every community to sell their Flavoring Powders, and advised me to try it. This firm is one of the largest in the country, and they fitted me out handsomely. I started in and the first week made $17.50. The second week I cleared $21.75, and since then I have been averaging from $22.50 to $30.00 a week. I never thought it was so easy to be an agent. Maybe it isn't with other things, but with the Flavoring Powders I know it is. I can sell from one to eight Flavors in each house, and when those are used up they always come for more. The powders are cheaper, better and go farther than the old liquid extracts and the Powders have no alcohol in them. They please everybody. I have an established business now and it's getting bigger and bigger all the time. I've got a woman now to do my housework by the hour while I'm away and the children are at school; and I have my health back. It isn't every day that a poor widow gets a chance to support herself like this, and I advise every woman and man who wants to earn a comfortable living to write these people. They are generous, and will do as well by you as they have done by me. MRS. SAMUEL B.

The Abita Springs Hotel, which was destroyed by fire a short time since, is now being rebuilt, larger and better than before. The main building is to be heated by steam, and made thoroughly comfortable for Winter as well as Summer visitors, and hereafter will be kept open all the year round. Baths and sanitary plumbing, modern and of the very best, will be among the attractive features.

PRESIDENT CHAMBERS.

We cheerfully reproduce the following clipping from the Lincoln Co. Times, published at Brookhaven, sent us by Dr. H. W. Featherstun:

The announcement in the Times last week that the Board of Trustees of Whitworth College had accepted the resignation of President Chambers, to take effect in June, was read with genuine regret by the citizens of Brookhaven. The college prospered under Mr. Chambers' management, and was being rapidly built up until the three quarantine years in succession cut into the patronage. Whitworth was about the only one of the State schools which could open on time and did not lose time on account of the quarantine. It takes a rare combination of talents to make a successful college president, and Mr. Chambers possesses this combination as few men do. If he could be induced by the Board to reconsider his determination to drop the arduous duties of the position and continue at the head of the institution, The Times believes it would conserve the best interests of all concerned—the college as well as the citizens and business men of Brookhaven. The merchants have especial reason to feel kindly toward Mr. Chambers, because he has always pursued the policy of patronizing home folks, and they would rejoice if he should be re-elected president of the college. The students all love and revere President Chambers, and if their wishes and the wishes of their parents avail, he will remain at its head.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

No inferior or impure ingredients are used in Royal for the purpose of cheapening its cost; only the most highly refined and healthful.

Royal Baking Powder imparts that peculiar sweetness, flavor and delicacy noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, rolls, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

Alum is used in making cheap baking powders. If you want to know the effect of alum upon the tender linings of the stomach, touch a piece to your tongue. You can raise biscuit with alum baking powder, but at what a cost to health!

CANCER CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment Removes All Malignant Growths and Drives the Poison from the Blood and Lymphatic Fluid.

J. N. HATHAWAY, M. D.

Cutting out Cancer does not cure it and can not cure it.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment does cure it.

Cutting out Cancer simply removes the local, outward manifestation.

Dr. Hathaway's Treatment Kills the malignant germs of the Cancer, removes the poison from the blood and lymphatic fluid and immunnes the system against future attacks.

Dr. Hathaway has treated Cancer successfully under this method over eight years; his experience covering a large number of well defined cases has proven this terrible affliction to be perfectly curable IN EVERY CASE WHERE IT CAN BE REACHED BY THE SYRINGE. This includes all outward manifestations, such as the nose, face, head, mouth, lips, tongue and breast, as well as all internal organs that can be reached direct, such as the womb and ovaries. Besides, many internal Cancers that can not be reached direct may be reached and treated successfully through the agency of the lymphatic vessels and the blood.

A TYPICAL CASE AND CURE.

The following is one of hundreds of like testimonials:

"Several years ago there appeared on the side of my face an irritable rough spot. At first there was no attention paid to it, but after a year or two it began to scale off and bleed easily, and another place appeared on the other side. Two years ago they had developed into what the doctors pronounced Cancer. About this time there appeared a growth on my neck which got to be about the size of a hen's egg, and proved to be cancerous. In August, 1898, I began the use of the Serum Treatment, administered by Dr. Hathaway & Co., and in about six weeks all three of the cancerous masses had been removed and healed up.

C. F. HILL.

WHICH ONE?

One of us, dear—
But one—
Will sit by the bed with marvelous fear,
And clasp the hand
Growing cold as it feels for the spirit land—
Darling, which one?

One of us, dear—
But one—
Will stand by the other's coffin pier,
And look and weep,
While those marble lips strange silence keep—
Darling, which one?

One of us, dear—
But one—
By an open grave will drop a tear,
And homeward go,
The anguish of an unshared grief to know—
Darling, which one?

One of us, darling, it must be.
It may be you will slip from me;
Or perhaps my life may first be done:
I'm glad we do not know
Which one.

LEARN TO CONVERSE.

Once and again Good Housekeeping has deprecated the comparative decadence of the art of conversation, in these days of admirable opportunities and meagre accomplishment. The home conversation, especially, is bare and meaningless. It has truly been said that many a girl, intelligent, educated, as our ideas go, is mortified by her lack of ease in conversation. She finds other girls, inferior in actual ability, ever ready in the shifting round game we call small talk, and is forced to the conclusion that shallowness is the passport to social favor. But she is mistaken; she is simply in the condition of a person overloaded with large bills when there is need for a little change. Perhaps she is self-conscious; perhaps—let me whisper it—she is selfish; like the man in Punch, who said, "O, Robinson is such a bore; he's always talking about himself and his affairs when I want to talk about myself and my affairs." There is one great reason for this great lack of conversational power. In too many cases the art is never practiced inside the home circle. No attempt at pleasant converse is ever made, save when visitors are present; the various members of the family may gossip a little or discuss purely personal affairs, but they make no attempt at entertaining talk. In point of fact, the art of conversation is like the game of battledore and shuttlecock—one needs the quickness and dexterity of constant practice. In many busy households the only general gathering of the family is at meal time—a time above all others when worry should be banished, if only for the sake of physical comfort. Yet this is the very time when the mother will complain of domestic worry, the father of business cares, and the daughter of shabby frocks.

THE ATMOSPHERE ONE CARRIES.

Nature's forces carry their atmosphere. The sun gushes forth light unquenchable; coals throw off heat; violets are larger in influence than bulk; pomegranates and spices crowd the house with sweet odors. Man also has his atmosphere. He is a force-bearer and a force-producer. He journeys forward, exhaling influences. Thinking of the evil emanating from a bad man. Bunyan made Apollyon's nostrils emit flames. Edward Everett insists that Daniel Webster's eyes, during his greatest speech, literally emitted sparks. If light is in man, he shines; if darkness rules, he shades; if his heart glows with love, he warms; if frozen with selfishness, he chills; if corrupt, he poisons; if pure-hearted, he cleanses. The soul, like the sun, has its atmosphere, and is over against its fellows for light, warmth and transformation. This mysterious bundle of forces called man, moving through society, exhaling blessings, or blightings, gets its meaning from the capacity of others to receive its influences. Standing at the center of the universe, a thousand forces come rushing in to report themselves to the sensitive soul-center. There is a nerve in man that runs out to every room and realm in the universe. Man dwells in a glass dome; to him the world lies open on every side. Each man stands at the center of a great network of voluntary influence for good. Rivers, winds, forces of fire and steam are impotent compared to those energies of mind and heart that make men equal to transforming whole communities and even nations.—N. D. Hillis.

THE HABIT OF SAVING.

Now that the good times are marching upon us, filling the farm and the factory, and making the people cheerful and the country glad, it might be well for all to remember that the best way to profit by the depression of the last four years is to save something out of the new prosperity for any other possible season of idleness and distress. With the vast abundance that this country has known, the habit of economy has come slowly. Many have seen the wisdom of it, and they are our rich people and the owners of our lands and industries and banks and various profitable properties. But the great majority of people have lived up to their incomes, and when the wages stopped, or the salary ceased, grim want stalked in. And so good men and well-bred women had to go to charity to keep from starvation; had to sacrifice their pride and accept of the public bounty, because in their days of prosperity they had forgotten the future.

Saving comes easily when it is once begun. Do not spend more than you earn. When Peter Cooper earned a dollar he lived on 50 cents of it, and the other successful men will testify how hard the struggle was to save the first money and how easy it was after the habit had been formed. We are going to have four of the greatest years the world has ever known, but no one should let that prospect delude him into spending all he gets. There is safety only in saving.—Leslie's Weekly.

The difference between success and failure is often to be located in a single word—docility. That difference may be accentuated—and often is—by other elements, but this factor is in many cases the decisive one, enabling its possessor to get knowledge from various sources, and to be a learner every day. This docile disposition early becomes a molder of character, prompting a lad at school to gain discipline and get information with eagerness and diligence, while some of his fellow pupils, by their supercilious pride, their egotism, their conceit and their prejudices, are hampered at every turn. The teachable lad, grown to manhood, comes to appreciate more and more the value of this docile habit; he learns from all he meets, rich and poor, cultivated and ignorant, big and little; nature, providence, the Scriptures, books, men, and the multiplied experiences of life become his habitual mentors, and he gains from them every day rich stores of knowledge. He learns how to hold his judgment in equipoise, how to wait for sufficient evidence, how to hold prejudices and prepossessions in abeyance, and how to "buy the truth and sell it not." In the life of devotion this element is invaluable, as any one of discernment may see at a glance; but that the docile spirit—which is sometimes mistaken for tame spiritedness—is one of the fundamental elements of a sterling character, and that it is one of the traits of real greatness, is not so often seen. Whatever else the Master meant when he told his disciples that they must become like little children, he certainly meant to say, "be teachable; cherish a docile spirit; be willing to learn."—Central Advocate.

SUCCESSFUL WOMEN.

It has been wisely suggested by an exchange that the women who succeed are those who go to their work with a determination born of courage and positive conviction, and whose energies are absolutely tireless. It is true they are often not so well paid for the same work as men, but that is one of the mistakes of the day that will soon be rectified. We are growing wiser, and one of the things that is most important for everyone to know is that there is no sex in brains. Those who fail are usually those who expect too much and presume on account of their being women. There is plenty of work and money for the sharp woman who will fight every difficulty. Everybody loves a fighter, whether it be man or woman; fighters who see nothing but success at the other end of the long road; fighters who believe in themselves and their efforts, and who plan their daily battles as a general plans campaigns; fighters who are brave, above board and generous in the struggle—these are the heroines of daily life, and they command success and respect by thoroughly deserving it.—Presbyterian.

HOW TO BECOME A BETTER CHRISTIAN.

A young friend of the editor is ambitious to be a literary man. What is he doing now? He is reading the best literature in the language. It is not necessary to say, "The best literature he can get," for the best is accessible to all in these days. He is studying the writings of the masters in English composition. He is at work earning his living, but he keeps up his study of literature. He also uses his pen considerably, and spoils a good deal of white paper. But it is possible for him to succeed, and be in the right course.

Do you desire to be a better Christian? You must adopt a course similar to that pursued by the literary aspirant. Cultivate the acquaintance of God. Read the literature about him. Not only read, but study the Bible. Hold frequent conversations with God and with good men. Put in practice what you learn. You will become a better Christian by knowing God and doing his will. —The Watchword.

BEWARE OF MAGNIFYING.

Perhaps it were better for most of us to complain less of being misunderstood, and to take more care that we do not misunderstand other people. It ought to give us pause at a time to remember that each one has a stock of cut-and-dry judgment on his neighbors, and that the chances are that most of them are quite erroneous. What our neighbor really is we may never know, but we may be pretty certain that he is not what we have imagined, and that many things we have thought of him are quite beside the mark. What he does we have seen, but we have no idea what may have been his thoughts and intentions. The mere surface of his character may be exposed; but of the complexity within we have not the faintest idea. People crammed with self-consciousness and self-conceit are often praised as humble, while shy and reserved people are judged to be proud. Some whose whole life is one subtle, studied selfishness get the name of self-sacrifice, and other silent, heroic souls are condemned for want of humanity.—Ian Maclaren, in the "Potter's Wheel."

A GOOD BARGAIN.

Robert Aitkin, a bookseller of Philadelphia, was the first person who printed a Bible in that city. While he kept a bookstore, a person called on him and inquired if he had a noted infidel book for sale. He told him he had not, but having entered into conversation with him, and found that he was an infidel, he told him he had a better book than the one he asked for, which he usually sold for a dollar, but would lend it to him if he would promise to read it; and after he had actually read it, if he did not think it worth a dollar, he would take it again. The man consented; and Mr. Aitkin put a Bible into his hands. He smiled when he found what book he had engaged to read, but said he would perform his engagement. He did so; and when he had finished the perusal, he came back, and expressed the deepest gratitude for Mr. Aitkin's recommendation of the book, saying it had made him what he was not before—a happy man—for he had found in it the way of salvation through Christ.—Bible Reader.

BITTER WORDS.

A single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day. One surly glance casts a gloom over the household, while a smile of sunshine may light up the darkest and weariest hours. Like unexpected flowers which spring up along our path, full of freshness, fragrance, and beauty, so kind words, and gentle acts, and sweet dispositions make glad the sacred spot called home. No matter how humble the abode, if it be sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn longingly towards it from all the tumult of the world; and home, if it be ever so homely, will be the dearest spot beneath the circuit of the sun.—Great Thoughts.

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries of 200 words published free. For all words in excess of that number send one cent per word.

WELLMAN—TIMOTHY H. WELLMAN was born June 9, 1831, in Westminster West, Vt., and came to Mississippi in his eighteenth year. For some years he resided with an elder brother in Grenada. In 1860 he located in Beauregard. A skilled machinist, he always found employment. November 2, 1865, he was married to Miss Minerva Helen Ford, daughter of Dr. Wm. G. and Mrs. Mary A. Ford, of Lincoln county, Miss. They made their home in Beauregard, later in Kentwood, La., and lastly in Wesson, Miss. Unto them were born ten children, all of whom survive, with their mother, to mourn the departure of a good father.

Up to the Summer of 1882 he had been very irreligious, but at that time, and under the pastorate of the Rev. W. W. Hopper, in a noteworthy revival, he passed from darkness into light. He never denoted his conversion; neither did his wife, his children, nor his associates. Secret prayer, family prayer, public prayer were participated in; the love-feast and class meeting were enjoyed, the church paper taken, Sunday-school joined; evil habits long binding, were broken and given up; the poor and the sick were visited, the hungry fed, the naked clothed. He grew in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. He read Wesley's Sermons and the lives of Carvoso, Hester Ann Rogers, and Mary Fletcher, and Bishop Fitzgerald's "Growth in Grace," and every other good book and paper which he thought might be helpful to him in his religious life. He loved everybody. Faith became stronger and simpler. He carried everything to God in prayer; he hungered for a deeper work of grace; he thirsted for more love; he groaned after Christian perfection; he had received the witness of the Spirit that he was a child of God. Under the preaching of the Rev. Dr. Carradine, God gave him the experience of perfect love. He rejoiced in it; he glorified God; he was never wise in his own conceits; he was always teachable. The M. E. Church, South, was loved by him as his spiritual mother. His pastor always had his support, his love, and his prayers. He continued to grow in grace, and loved God and man more and more. As the outward man perished the inward man was renewed day by day.

December 31, 1899, notwithstanding the very inclement weather, he was in his place at church, both morning and night, a helpful listener to a former pastor (who penns these lines), whom he loved and who loved him. He daily grew weaker; his sufferings increased; his mind grew clearer, faith stronger, his way brighter. The brightness of the perfect day was at hand. His heart overflowed with joy and found expression in songs of praise. He was kept in "perfect peace;" his mind was stayed on God.

Sunday, Feb. 4, 1900, at 10:15 A. M., "he was not, for God took him." Death had no sting, the grave no victory. "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." T. L. MELLEN.

ALDRIDGE—Rev. MATTHEW L. ALDRIDGE was born Feb. 11, 1838; was converted to God and joined the M. E. Church, South, when about nine years old, and licensed to preach in that church in 1861, being in his twenty-third year. In this church he labored as a local preacher, acceptably and effectively, for nearly twenty years, after which he united with the Methodist Free Church, which he served as a regular pastor for full twenty years. He was a leading spirit in this church, holding the most responsible positions in its control. He was the regular pastor at Jackson's Chapel, DeSoto county, Miss., for twenty years; of Mount Olivet, Panola county, Miss., eighteen years; Independence, same county, seven years; Fly's Chapel, four years; Hebron, Talahatchie county, Miss., four years. It will thus be seen that our brother, giving himself to God in childhood, was a servant of the Lord and constant laborer in his vineyard for more than half a century.

As a man, he was physically strong and active, able to endure much labor, with a liberal mind, free, open heart, and fine spirit. He was very companionable, drawing numerous friends about him in whatever capacity he appeared before the public. In his happy home he was most hospitable to all who came, and sought to have many people visit him. His constant industry and business management made him able to make comfortable any who visited him. Well do I remember the days and nights spent in his home, eating with him at his bountiful table, singing and making joy in our hearts with the family all gathered about the organ; then talking so freely about things of faith and grace.

I first came to be associated with my brother when we were both pastors at Mount Olivet, where both denominations worshiped in the same old dilapidated log church, and the members not as cordial as they should have been. I proposed co-operation. He agreed, and we worked together with great success for three years, greatly strengthening the membership and building a beautiful church. I have never been associated with a more unselfish, brotherly, good spirited preacher in my life, I think. As a revivalist, he always revived. He, with our dear brother, J. W. Bates, will long be remembered where they have held revivals together.

This useful man, substantial citizen, kind husband, faithful father, devoted friend, consecrated Christian and successful preacher fell on sleep March 1, 1900, at his home west of Courtland, Miss. Having passed through the temptations of youth, borne the burdens of manhood, seen the privations of service for three years in war, and preached the gospel for forty years, he has entered his reward. We could but expect him to do triumphantly, which he did. Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord. BEN P. JACO.

Pleasant Grove, Miss.

JOYCE—Bro. JOHN FRANKLIN JOYCE was born at Thomastown, Leake county, Miss., in 1837; was born again in 1872 at a camp meeting at "Eeon," in Holmes county, Miss.; was married to Miss Mollie E. Fatherree in 1882. This marriage was most happy, and was blest with six children. The eldest of these preceded his father to the better land, while five others, with their widowed mother, still live to cherish his memory. He was a gentleman in the truest sense. A desire to deal justly and kindly by all, and never to speak evil of any unless duty demanded it, were marked traits of his character.

Bro. Joyce was a skillful druggist and a successful merchant—for some years in the Delta of Mississippi, and for about five years in Bay Saint Louis and Gulfport. As a citizen and a member of the church, he filled honorable offices with fidelity and ability. As a Methodist, he was loyal and true, but not demonstrative. He had a very humble view of his own attainments in grace. To the last he looked only to Jesus for salvation. After a painful illness he died in peace at 8.30 A. M., Feb. 10, 1900, at his home in "the Bay." His new pastor, Bro. E. D. Norsworthy, faithfully attended his bedside to the last. The tenement of clay rests in the classic old cemetery on Second street, awaiting the resurrection morn. May we and all the loved ones meet him on high! J. P. DRAKE.

WARD—DAVID C. WARD was born March 31, 1862, and died at his home, five miles west of Sarcis, Panola county, Miss., March 20, 1900.

Bro. Ward had been for some time an acceptable member of the M. E. Church, South, at Davis' Chapel. He was a man of indomitable energy, attending industriously to all his home affairs; was regular and constant in attending his church. He was a good man, kind and friendly. I always liked to be with him in his hospitable home, where he delighted to make his friends enjoy themselves. We talked freely about the church and its work, in which he always seemed much interested. He was in very bad health for some years, but fought back the destroyer bravely. Only a week before his death he was at church; but when he gave down, it was all at once. He said he was ready to depart. May our good Lord comfort his aged mother and only brother with his grace, and unite the whole family above! BEN P. JACO, P. C.

FORD—Mrs. OLIVE H. FORD, wife of W. F. Ford, and daughter of J. M. and Frances L. Foxworth, was born near Hopewell Church, of the Columbia circuit, Marion county, Miss., Oct. 24, 1871, and died March 14, 1900, at Ball Town, La. She was married to W. F. Ford, Oct. 16, 1895. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, when quite young. It was not the privilege for the writer to know Sister Ford intimately, having met her only once, but those who knew her gave universal testimony of Christian life. When the end came she was ready, and passed triumphantly into the bright beyond. She leaves a sorrowing husband and two little children, besides father and mother, brothers and sisters, and many others, to mourn her absence. May the sorrowing ones have that faith that will enable them to take hold of the promises of God, and receive the consolation which they alone afford! W. M. WILLIAMS.

WINE OF CARDUI

A LITTLE DOES MUCH.

BOONE, IOWA, Dec. 14.
No tongue can tell what I have endured in the past ten years with my monthly sickness. While suffering untold agony, a friend called and recommended Wine of Cardui. I sent for a bottle, and Oh! what relief. After the first dose I began to feel better and have had no pain since.
MRS. GRACE LAMPHERE.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Wine of Cardui not only cures but it acts AT ONCE. Here is a case of ten years' standing, and yet one single dose made the sufferer feel better, and stopped the pain. The Wine goes straight to the seat of the trouble. It acts directly upon the menstrual and genital organs. Its action is not violent, and it does not force a result. It simply gives Nature that little assistance that the sufferer's system lacks. A single disorder in the feminine organs spreads many disorders all over the body, and when the Wine cures the source, all the other ills vanish as a matter of course. A woman can be her own physician and cure herself at home. Local examinations are largely things of the past—the obnoxious custom is no longer necessary. Wine of Cardui is the only perfectly safe and sure vegetable Wine made to-day for the cure of "female troubles".

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to May, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

IMPERIAL No. 4.

THE IMPERIAL HIGH-ARM SINGER will be found the perfection of mechanism as regards simplicity, durability and adaptability to the wide range of work embraced in the general family needs.

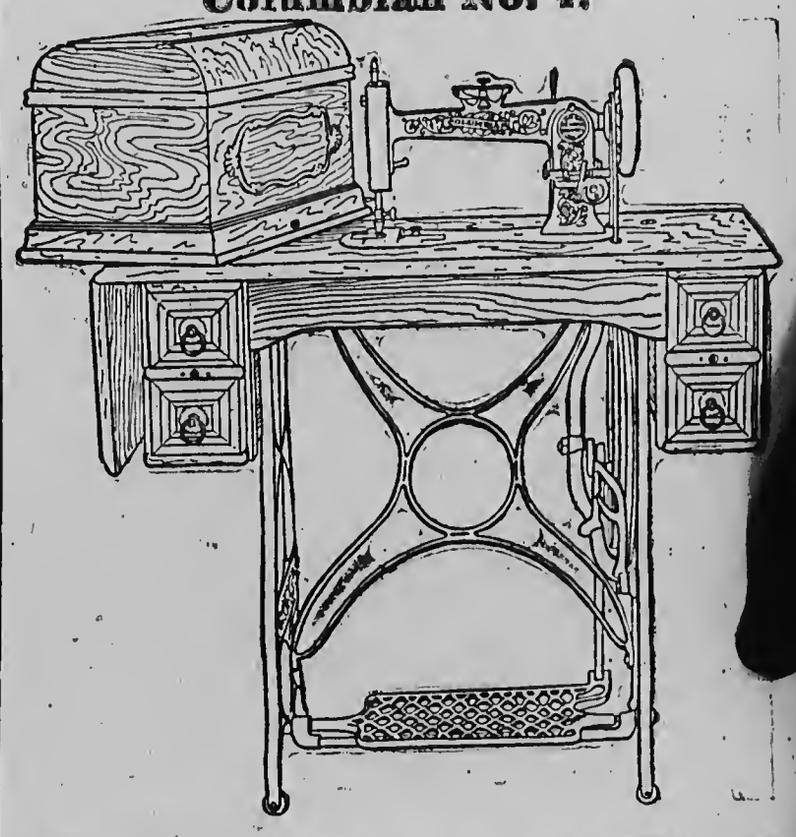
A Handsome, Light-Running, Lock-Stitch, High-Arm Machine that will not fail to please the most fastidious. Embracing all the advantages, with all desirable improvements of other first-class sewing machines, so simple in mechanism that the most inexperienced need no assistance in operating it. Book of instructions with every machine. Any child can learn to run it.

Extra Set of Attachments also free with each machine, consisting of the following: One Tucker, One Foot Ruffler, One Set of Plate Hemmers, four different widths up to ½ of an inch. One Binder and One Thread Cutter.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $24. Our price, $14.75.
No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $25. Our price, $15.50.
No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of three drawers at each end, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $26. Our price, $16.25.

Furnished Free with every machine are the following named accessories: One Foot Hemmer, One Screw Driver, One Wrench, One Oil Can and Oil, One Gauge Screw, One Extra Check Spring, One Package of Needles, Five Bobbins and One Instruction Book.

Columbian No. 4.



EXCELLENCE OF THE COLUMBIAN.—All wearing parts are of case-hardened steel possessing great durability, and by the turning of a screw all lost motion caused by wear can be taken up. All parts are fitted so accurately that the machines are absolutely noiseless, and as easy running as fine adjustment and best mechanical skill is possible to produce. No expense or time is spared to make them perfect in every respect, as every machine passes a rigid inspection by competent men before leaving the factory.

NICKEL PLATED.—The balance wheel and many of the fine parts are nickel-plated, with other parts finely enameled and ornamented, giving it a rich appearance.

A Self-Setting Needle and Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle are used in the Columbian High-Arm Sewing Machine. They are so simple that any one can easily operate them in a few minutes' time, as our Instruction Book is fully illustrated, showing how to do all kinds of fancy work with attachments.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

ADDITIONAL ACCESSORIES.—Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screw Driver, Oil Can with Oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb Screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated, and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

No. 3—Drop leaf, Bent cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $29. Our price, $17.
No. 4—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $31. Our price, $17.75.
No. 5—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making a seven-drawer machine. Dealer's price, $33. Our price, $18.50.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

Much devastation has been wrought by high water in Mississippi. Part of the town of Enterprise is in ruins. Merchants of that place lost all of their goods. Every bridge in Clarke county has been carried away. Stock has been drowned, crops destroyed and the farmers are in despair.

The firm attitude of the United States government regarding the claims of Americans for losses and massacres in Armenia is entirely approved in political and commercial circles, and it is hoped that the United States will steadfastly maintain its demand, such a course being the only one likely to succeed.

The will of Mrs. Mary Furman, which was admitted to probate at Nashville, Tenn., on Saturday, leaves her estate, valued at from $200,000 to $250,000, to Vanderbilt University. It provides that a building, to be known as Furman Hall, shall be erected on the grounds of the university at a cost of $100,000.

There are many indications that important movements are impending in South Africa, if they have not already commenced. The belief is universal that Lord Roberts is about to commence his long-expected advance on Pretoria, if he has not already done so. This belief is based upon the renewal of a rigorous censorship of press dispatches. Not a word conveying definite information is allowed to go out. All movements of troops are kept religiously secret, and correspondents are not permitted to send even the most trivial matters.

At the Capitol.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, the disease assuming a more severe and dangerous forms. I became very weak, and lost flesh rapidly, I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I gained twelve pounds in three months. My strength and health, my appetite and my digestion were perfectly restored, and now I feel as young and vigorous as I ever did in my life.

Dear Doctor Woodard.: I write you a letter to let you know that I am now entirely well of cancer. Your oils have worked a miracle in my case, for I did not think myself that it would cure me, as I had tried so many remedies that I had just about given up all hopes of getting well. But just think! I am again sound and well. Oh, how I wish that I had seen your advertising sooner, for it would have saved me much anxiety and many dollars. I will soon be down to the city and I will call on you.

Yours thankfully,
D. P. HENSLEE,
Doe Branch, Ark.

We have discovered a combination of oils that readily cure cancer, tumors, catarrh, bronchitis, consumption, piles, fistula, ulcers, eczemas and all skin and womb diseases. We have cured thousands of afflicted people within the last six years. Many cured by correspondence. Readers having friends afflicted should cut this out and send to them. A book sent free giving particulars about the oil. Address Dr. R. E. Woodard, 502 Main Street, Little Rock, Ark.

FOR INDIA'S SAKE.

BY J. CLARENCE HARVEY.

"Cast your bread upon the waters,
And to you it shall return."
These are words that through the ages
Never yet have ceased to burn,
And the charity of giving,
To the poor along life's way,
Is by night a fiery pillar,
And a tower of strength by day.

Now, the bread that once you scattered
From your lavish, generous hand,
Has returned again to bless you
From across our fertile lands
Stricken ones outside our doorways
Who have felt the chastening rod
In these golden globes of sunshine,
Find the favoring smile of God.

Let there be no hesitating,
Wondering what you can afford.
He who giveth to the needy
Is but lending to the Lord.
And as sure as rain and sunshine
Bring the harvest to the plain,
Just so sure the noble giver
Come into his own again.

On India's plains they perish,
Hark that cry of "Save, oh! save!"
Mothers pleading for their children,
"Keep my loved ones from the grave."
And from out that land of plenty,
Where the sun shines warm and fair,
Come these heart-beats for the children,
Comes the answer to their prayer.

Shall the little ones cry vainly
For the crumbs we throw away?
Can we see them helpless lying,
Growing weaker every day?
Pitying hearts that throb with sorrow,
By your deeds ye shall be known:
Give to-day, and ere to-morrow
Twill be carved on God's white throne.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

While Secretary Hay was gratified the action of the Sultan of Turkey officially authorizing the rebuild- of the American missionary ses at Harpoot that were burned eral years ago, he was not satis- with the Sultan's attempt to the demand made upon him payment of the amount of dam- by saying that the damages be paid when his treasury was condition to pay similar claims de by several European govern- ts. For more than a year the tan has been promising to issue order for the reconstruction of sionary buildings, but putting it on some excuse or other, princi- ly his alleged fear that the starting work upon the buildings might se the natives to attack the mis- aries. He probably hoped that ssuing of the order at this time ld result in lessening the pressure government was putting upon for the payment of the $100,000 ages. If he indulged the hope, knows before this that it was a one, as Secretary Hay instructed American Saoretary of Legation Constantinople, who, in the ab- ce of Minister Straus, who is in shington, is in charge, to repeat demand for payment of the ney, and to make it clear to the tan that nothing short of that uld be satisfactory to the United tes Government. Secretary Hay confident that the money will rtly be paid.

Miss Clara Barton called at the partment of State to explain to retary Hay her connection with ambulance corps from Chicago, members of which cast away r Red Cross emblems as soon as y arrived in South Africa, and me fighting men. Of that action said: "These men have practiced deception; broken a pledge and ted a confidence which they ght. The humane world will not them guiltless." Miss Barton Secretary Hay that her only nection with this corps as presi- t of the American Red Cross had to give a letter, at the solicita- of a Mr. Judd, of Holyoke, Mass., ting the corps the use of the Red s flag and emblem, and asking t of way and good treatment for expedition and for the men, as as the members lived up to the s of the Geneva convention. Be- giving the letter Miss Barton rtained that each member of the corps had made oath separately before a notary that he was going to South Africa to work under the Red Cross and in the ambulance service. Dr. Hubbell, who accompanied Miss Barton, said that he had been consulted as to the character and quantity of medicine and supplies that the ambulance corps would be likely to need for its work, and that he had no reason to doubt the honesty of those in charge of it. Miss Barton is too well known for anyone to attach the slightest blame to her in this matter, over which she is justly indignant.

Gov. Brady, of Alaska, delivered an interesting address at a reception held by the Washington Auxiliary of the Woman's Indian Association this afternoon.

Dr. T. C. Easton, pastor of the Eastern Presbyterian Church, said on a subject now being discussed, not only by Presbyterians, but by members of all denominations, at the close of his Sunday morning sermon: "I believe that the old Confession of Faith of the Presbyterian Church should not be meddled with or changed. It represents the principles of the faith at the time of its foundation. It is a book for the fifteenth century, and not a nineteenth-century book. I believe that the creed should be canonized and laid aside, for it is sacred, and then a shorter and working creed given us to use. By no means change or destroy the old creed."

A number of local ministers are taking an active part in the crusade against cigarette smoking by the boys of Washington. Meetings are being held in the churches in all sections of the city for the purpose of obtaining signers of the Anti-Cigarette League pledge, which follows: "I do hereby pledge myself, upon honor, to abstain from smoking cigarettes or using tobacco in any form, at least until I reach the age of twenty-one years, and to use my influence to induce others to do the same." The largest of the local Leagues organized is in the junior department of the Y. M. C. A., which has about 200 members; but some of the others are rapidly growing in membership, as the idea of organizing the boys of to-day to protect the men of to-morrow from the deteriorating effects of the cigarette is rapidly growing in popularity. Mr. Willis Brown, one of the originators of the crusade, stated as another argument against cigarette smoking that a prominent undertaker had recently said that he could not satisfactorily embalm a cigarette smoker, as both sides of the nose and the lips invariably turned green.

A NOTABLE DAY AT CARROLLTON.

MR. EDITOR: Yesterday (fifth Sunday) was a great day in Carrollton. We had a special service in the interest of the Twentieth Century Thankoffering Fund, and raised $1,330. Adding this to the $430 raised last year, makes Carrollton's contribution $1 760. And this goes to the General Fund. That princely layman, J. R. Bingham, led off with $500, and his wife with $260. The great success of the occasion is due to the wise management of Bro. Bingham.

"THE GIFT OF THE HOLY GHOST" ON THE DAY OF PENTECOST.

There is a great deal being said and written of late as to the bestowment of "power from on high" to fit the apostles for the great work of evangelizing the world. In St. Luke—chapter xxiv, 46-49—we have a summary of the great commission, together with the promise and instruction given by the Master in connection with that commission.

1. The crucifixion of our Lord.

2. Preaching the gospel "among all nations."

3. Sending the apostles—verse 49—out to do the work of evangelists.

4. Ordering them to stay at Jerusalem until they were "endued with power from on high."

In Acts i, 4, there is reference to the scene narrated by St. Luke, and a statement of the requirement to tarry at Jerusalem "for the promise of the Father"—that is, "till ye be endued with power from on high" to preach the gospel "among all nations." In Acts—i, 22—in the selection of a successor to Judas Iscariot, the disciples recognize themselves as "witnesses" (Luke xxiv, 48). After selecting Mathias, and thereby filling out the number of "witnesses" chosen by our Lord, "and when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place," where the gift of the Holy Ghost came upon them.

What was this gift of the Holy Ghost? If it were a higher life, or a cleaner heart, or stronger faith, or diviner hope, or anything else pertaining to spiritual advancement, we ought to know it, seek it, and possess it. Let us see.

First. There was a sound in the house, as if a cyclone had burst upon the people there assembled.

Second. There were "cloven tongues, like as of fire."

Third. "They were all filled with the Holy Ghost."

Fourth. They "began to speak with other tongues, as the Holy Ghost gave them utterance."

Fifth. (Verses 4-6) When it was "noised abroad" that the unlettered disciples of the Lord had become linguists, "the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language." Whether from Judea, Greece, Media, Asia, or Africa—Libya—they heard the gospel in their native languages and in their varied dialects.

Sixth. (Chapter i-iii) Two sermons from Peter followed—one at nine o'clock A. M., and another at three o'clock P. M., the results of which was the addition of 8,000 people to the number of believers. Such results would have been impossible without "the gift of the Holy Ghost," by which they were moved, or given utterance in a language previously unknown to them.

Beside this power to "preach the gospel to every creature"—power to preach "repentance and remission of sins among all nations"—there is not even a hint at any other enduement on the day of Pentecost. Note the Master's commands: "Preach the gospel to every creature." Not one of them, perhaps, could speak Persian, or Grecian, or Egyptian languages; and what of the dialects?—Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and Mesopotamians, and Cappadocians, and a great number of others. Less faith than theirs would have said: Master, this is impossible. We are, most of us, unlettered men. How can we preach the gospel to people who do not understand our language, and to people of whose language we are utterly ignorant? "Tarry ye at Jerusalem till ye be endued with power from on high," was the Master's order. It is reasonable to ask, "Endued with power from on high" for what purpose? The answer is self-suggested, viz.: To do the work assigned you by the Master—power to preach to "all nations," the gift of tongues, the impartation of the Spirit to give to your tongues power to articulate all languages and all dialects.

All my life I have heard that on the day of Pentecost some great spiritual illumination came upon the apostles—some new cleansing, a great uplift, a profounder faith, a diviner hope. For years I have honestly and faithfully sought for the evidence of such, but all in vain.

"But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses of me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

Thus we have the reason, and the only reason discoverable to me, why the apostles were to "tarry at Jerusalem till . . . endued with power from on high." They were under orders to do that which they were unable to do, and for the preparation of which there were no human means—no time, no money, and no school of languages accessible to them. Heads, hearts and feet they had; also faith, the love of Christ, and the approbation of the Father. The one great need was tongues, and these the Father sent, "as it were, cloven tongues as of fire," and with this gift they could speak "as the Holy Ghost gave them utterance." The idea of any other enduement is pure fancy, and the naming of "times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord," however sublime, as a penteoostal day, is a misnomer. The prophecy of Joel was there and then fulfilled for once and always. "I will pour out my spirit," etc.

A confirmation of this view is found in the fact that nowhere in all the apostolic ministries was there ever any reference to that event—Pentecost—as the time and place of any advancement to a higher or purer life, or of any reception of increased spirituality. It is easy to say: We infer all this from the facts stated. But inference is not always fact. What does the record say?

I have written this, not in a controversial spirit, but in the interest of what I see as truth, and will, if in error, be glad to be set right.

EDUCATION AND ITS DIFFICULTIES.

BY REV. I. W. COOPER.

Education, from the standpoint of a historical fact, has been defined by J. S. Mill "as the culture one generation purposely gives to those who are to be its successors, in order to qualify them for at least keeping up and, if possible, raising the level of improvement which has already been attained."

The state of civilization determines the nature of the culture. The primitive education was that of the family. The children were taught the arts known to the parents. This is true of Iceland now, where education is more general than in any other country. "At the age of seven," says an Icelander, "all know how to read and write, and they know how to reckon." Even among the poor fishermen there are none who have not had a good elementary education. The mothers are the instructors; the rural home the school-house. Ask the first child whom you meet who taught him the history and geography of his country, the names of the birds and flowers, and he answers, "My mother."

The first schools were ecclesiastical, designed to instruct in religious ceremonials. In countries where the priest did not have charge of the training of the children, education became secular. Plato gave the first systematic treatise on education; Luther opened the school-house to the masses. The open Bible and the school-house are inseparably connected. Erasmus and Luther insisted on the education of the girls. Comenius, Locke, Milton, Spencer and Bain have been leaders in the system of the development of education.

In this enlightened age few will deny the importance of education. Aristotle said, "Whoever meditates on the art of governing men will perceive that it depends on the education of the children." This is the argument that the State has for establishing schools. With equal truth we can say that whoever meditates on the art of producing the highest manhood will perceive that it depends on the Christian education of children. Out of this thought grows the necessity of church schools. There need not be an unholy rivalry between the State and Church schools. The field is large enough for both. Let us, as a church, see to it that our ideals, our spirituality and scholarship produce a salutary influence on State schools. It is not only the duty of the church to establish schools, but to create the proper ideals. Has the church been true to her work?

While we have every reason to give us hope as to our educational work, yet we have several difficulties to meet. Our colleges and university are not endowed as they should be. To a Southern Methodist it was rather strange reading that the Chicago University had a Christmas present of nearly four million dollars. I presume that three million dollars would more than cover the endowment of all our colleges and university, including promissory notes, which, to say the least, are very uncertain. Low salaries of professors often force our best teachers to go into other vocations. A valued professor said to me the other day, 'I am thinking of going into the insurance business, as I can make twice the salary my services as a teacher command." Alas! such is the case. If we are to compete with State institutions, we are compelled to increase our endowment fund.

Many of our school buildings are unattractive. The style of architecture is not imposing. The professors' rooms are bare. The following is what a prominent educator has to say on the subject of making our school buildings attractive: "We hold that a love for the beautiful is second only to religion as a protection against the grosser forms of self-indulgence, and that it can be best kindled at an age when the mind is especially susceptible to the influence of habitual surroundings. We are all more or less molded by our environments. Pictures of noble men of history and the stately works of art wrought by the world's great masters stimulate the youth to the highest achievements. The scholars, by becoming accustomed to see what is pure and noble in art, will unconsciously absorb its influence, and learn to appreciate that which elevates and ennobles our lives." One of our greatest difficulties is the low ideals of many parents. If the church could have a revival of godly parental ambition, we would make a forward movement at once. I know a consecrated Christian lady, a widow of a prominent itinerant minister who left three sons to the care of the mother, who had a godly ambition for her boys. She moved to a college, kept a boarding-house, and gave her sons every advantage. One son became a lawyer, passed away in early manhood, and left a precious memory; two sons became ministers—one is in the pastorate, the other a professor in a university. The character, education, and the success of the three sons are but an expression of a mother's lofty ideals. Would that we had fifty thousand such parents in Southern Methodism!

Our college work has suffered greatly for the lack of first-class training-schools. The work so successfully carried on by the Webb brothers has been an incalculable benefit to the church. Our best men must be placed in the charge of our training-schools. More training-schools and fewer colleges is the demand of the twentieth century. The commercial idea of education has developed into an abnormal condition, and is interfering with the patronage of our schools. The majority of our students do not go beyond the Freshman class. At the present time in Centenary College we have forty in the Freshman class. I asked a professor, "How many do you suppose out of this class will graduate?" He replied, "About eight." Just as soon as a majority of students think that they are capable of entering business they cease their studies. The emphasis the State is giving to its normal work is minifying true culture, which is the object of education. True education is to create noble manhood, and a realm of noble ideas and noble impulses. Manhood, and not money, is the key-note of the Christian school. As a church, may we recognize our difficulties and speedily remove them, and make the twentieth century the most glorious in the history of the Christian church.—Nashville Advocate.

IS THE CHURCH CHRISTIAN?

Gov. Stone, of Pennsylvania, defending Senator Quay in a convention, declared vehemently at the climax of a paragraph, 'His father was a Presbyterian and his mother was a Christian." He did not use the latter word in the denominational, but in the usual sense. The writer received a letter speaking of a certain woman as a "Christian Methodist." This is what we want—Christian Christians. Why should the son of a church member think it any advantage to join the church when his father in business and politics acts just like a sinner, and for pleasure goes to plays of the kind all too common to-day, when even the Chicago Tribune declares that the theater has never been so foul since the days of Charles II.? The Protestants charge that the Catholic religion is all in going to mass; but what is the religion of most Protestants but going to meetings? These are called "divine service," though going to meetings is only going to meals. A man in Maine is said to have complained, "It is working between meals that is killing me." The case is just the opposite with the church. Even home worship and grace at meals are becoming exceptional in church homes. These things partly explain the decrease of conversions, but the larger causes are social rather than personal. We have no right to expect an increase of conversions until, by united action of the churches, we make a more tolerable environment for tempted youth. Instead of making it harder to do wrong and easier to do right, the opposite condition exists in all our churches because of the social inefficiency of the scattered churches. The churches must be federated to accomplish the ultimate purpose of the Bible, which is not the salvation of the sinner, but of the city. The former is but a means to that end, and yet the Methodist Bishops, in offering remedies for the present decline in conversions, have ignored the chief item hitherto included in the practical side of the Methodist creed—the temperance question. And Boston preachers of all denominations, consulting solemnly on the same subject, suggest nothing in the way of improving the vicious environment which hinders conversion, before and after.

One Winter, when Cincinnati made a successful fight for municipal reform, it was the very churches whose preachers gave the most time to this effort that had the largest accessions. My suggestion is, that the preachers in every city meet and agree to give one day each to their joint pastorate—the social betterment of the whole city—cleaning news rooms, bill boards, nuisances, theaters, driving out gambling slot machines, securing the curfew—all this contribution of time, one morning, one afternoon, one evening from each preacher, to be marshaled by a strong committee, which shall hold up before the churches this motto, "Favorable environment helps conversion, before and after." NEVER LOOK SAD.

BY T. H. BAYLEY.

Never look sad—nothing's so bad
As getting familiar with sorrow;
Treat him to-day in a cavalier way,
And he'll seek other quarters to-morrow.

Long you'll not weep, would you but peep
At the bright side of every trial;
Fortune you'll find is often most kind
When chilling your hopes with denial.

Let the sad day carry away
Its own little burden of sorrow;
Or you may miss half of the bliss
That comes in the lap of to-morrow.

When hope is wreck'd, pause and reflect,
If error occasion'd your sadness;
If it be so, hereafter you'll know
How to steer to the harbor of gladness.

EVANGELISTIC GRASS.

Some years ago, on a poor piney-woods circuit, in what is now a part of the Louisiana Conference, the quarterly meeting, ever welcome to the preacher, was to be held on Saturday. The pastor had an arduous work, covering five or six appointments, situated at a great distance from each other, over a thinly populated and comparatively barren territory. Money was scarce and times were hard. The parsonage, situated in a rural district, was dilapidated, the fences were down, and the house was scantily furnished. The larder was empty save the few pounds of home-made bacon and meal sent in by the kindly neighbors. The pastor cheerfully took the Winter's rain and Summer sun, faithfully serving his flock. His little wife, with bright eyes and smiles, attended her meager little home, forgetful of the luxurious parental roof from which she came, gladly sharing the toils and privations of the itinerant's life. Two rosy children gleefully played about the hearth-stone, and their sparkling eyes grew brighter as their father told them next Saturday the quarterly meeting would be at the parsonage. Saturday came at last. The jovial, open-hearted stewards came riding up, and then the presiding elder, with his long coat and pleasant smile—a perfect miniature Bishop. He who has not attended a country quarterly meeting "dinner on the ground," with open-hearted stewards and their staunch, matronly wives and happy children, has lived in vain. The preacher is buoyant with expectancy, and all goes "merry as a marriage bell." A strong, substantial sermon at 11 o'clock on "Bringing the tithes into the store-house," and visions of the windows of heaven opened and pouring out a blessing that can not be contained, elicits the thanksgiving "Amen" from the devout congregation.

"Dinner on the ground," a social hour, and now the quarterly meeting. The routine business is transacted. Question 8 is called, "What amount has been raised the present quarter for the support of the ministry, and how has it been applied?" Answer: "Seventeen dollars—$15 to the P. C., and $2 to the P. E." Question 9, "What has been raised the present quarter for other objects?" A painful silence for a few seconds, and the pastor arises and reports, "$60 for Bro. Banks."

"It seems, brethren," said the presiding elder, "you have had an evangelist grazing around among you."

"Yes," says one of the brethren, "and he held us a mighty good meetin'."

"Seems as if he got all the best grass," was the laconic reply of the elder.

"Yes," replied the brother; "but he did not charge us a cent. We just gave him the $60."

The brethren had been duped. Unsuspecting themselves, they little suspected the shrewdness of the evangelist in throwing himself on the liberality of the people as the best method of securing a large collection. The magnanimous generosity of the pretended self-sacrificing mendicant wins the admiration of the multitude and prompts generous "gifts." The pastor, his wife and children, are unconsciously wronged by his brethren, who give to another what rightfully belongs to him, for "the laborer is worthy of his hire."

"But," says one, "he held us a good meetin'." So he did, and when he is gone the "meetin'" is gone, and the faithful, untiring pastor sets to work to hold his pulverized church together. But, alas! new difficulties present themselves. The pastor has been so badly disconnted by the evangelist that his flock survey him with compassion and supinely await another gospel blast from some other self-sacrificing, self-constituted ecclesiastical tax-gatherer. The sensational harangue of the average evangelist has created a morbid appetite that no longer relishes the pure Word of God.

The evangelist himself, were he in the regular pastorate, could not cater to such an appetite, because his store of slang and sensationalism is exhausted in a "ten-days' meeting." No self-respecting, godly pastor could afford to try the experiment. The idea obtains that the evangelist has wrought wonders, when really the success of the meeting was due to the untiring and continuous fidelity of the church and pastor. The president who drives the golden spike on the completion of one of our great trunk line railroads, amid the applause of the multitude, may have had no part in its construction. The road-bed, with its splendid equipment, is a concrete expression of all the labor, energy and capital expended in its construction. The president may be a "figure-head." The great victories of earth are won by the trained regulars. Guerrilla warfare only means havoc.

Another class of evangelists, more open than the don't-charge-you-anything kind, demand a specified per diem. An evangelist of our acquaintance recently wrote to a preacher of our Conference that his charges would be expenses and $100 for a ten days' meeting. Now, he either does or does not preach for money. If he does, his services should not be accepted. If he does not, why should he demand such a large amount? Why should he get at the rate of 3,650 dollars per annum above expenses, and the pastor, whom he assists, receive only 800 dollars per annum? Why the difference? Very few preachers in the regular work preach for money, and he who does is both a fool and a knave: a fool because he expects to become rich by the gospel, and a knave because he attempts it.

THE BAPTISM OF JESUS.

The subject of baptism is one that will not down, like Banquo's ghost in Shakespeare's tragedy of Macbeth—at least, not for a time. The light is breaking, and the strongly fortified tenets of the Baptists are beginning to yield even by the outbursts from within. Such Baptists as Whitsitt, and Lofton, of "character-sketch" fame, are breaking away and declaring that there is a break in Baptist apostolic succession, and thereby invalidating their doctrine that immersion can be traced back to John the Baptist. The result is that Methodism, which allows candidates their choice of baptism, will "continue to take the country," as Sam Jones said, our baptism by immersion being just as valid as theirs.

Let us, however, examine some Scripture in relation to the baptism of Jesus. The Bible itself is its best commentary.

1. Jesus waited till he was thirty years of age to begin his work. The priests under the Mosaic dispensation were inducted into their priestly offices at that same age. (Luke iii, 23; Num. iv, 3.)

2. When Jesus went to be baptized of John he said, "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." (Matt. iii, 15.)

Now, let us examine the method of inducting the Mosaic priests into their offices, and we see clearly the mode of Christ's baptism. Let the reader consult Ex. xl, 12-16, and Lev. viii, 1-30. We observe here, first, the priests to be consecrated were washed with water at the door of the tabernacle. (They certainly were not immersed.) Second, the holy garments were put upon them, signifying their sacred office. Third, the pouring of the holy oil on Aaron's head. His sons were also to be similarly anointed. (Ex. xl, 15.) Fourth, sacrificing.

Now, take the words of Jesus—"For thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness"—and at his baptism we see, first, the washing—"I baptize you with water;" second, the holy garments not being needed, the Holy Ghost (typified by the poured-out oil—Lev. viii, 12) descended upon him in the form of a dove. The sacrificing also was not needed, as Jesus himself was the great sacrifice.

As the original Greek can not be made to prove Christ's immersion, so neither does the immersion theory comport with Aaron's consecration, who was a type of Christ.

Then, again, in all the New Testament there is no record of people changing their clothes before or after baptism. It may be said this is trifling, but very small incidents are often related. There is no record, either, of a baptistery anywhere at all.

IS THE PROGRAM FOR CHILDREN'S DAY SUITABLE?

MR. EDITOR: As a doctor, I call on you for relief—in your legitimate line. I have been superintendent of our Sunday-school for just twenty-six years, and have done all that I could to develop the missionary spirit in my school—not for foreign lands only, but for our needy Sunday-schools at home. I have faithfully and persistently urged the use of our Publishing House issues, but I am "stumped" now on the program for "Children's Day." I am inclined to doubt if anyone of the committee ever had a child, or was ever brought in contact with the tender touch of childhood. They are surely old bachelors, and were born so. There is not a sentiment in the whole thing that would touch a child's nature. I can not use it, and rather than try to make such a mockery of the day, I would quietly take up the collection and let the bachelors' celebration go by default. I would humbly suggest that the authorities get some mothers to arrange this program, and let these old men devote themselves to metaphysics, which we don't want.

Yours in earnest,

G. T. MCGEHEE.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The third session of this body was held at Madison, Miss., opening with a sermon by Rev. W. B. Lewis, Tuesday evening, the twenty-sixth, and closing with a sermon by Rev. W. T. Griffin, Friday evening, the twenty-ninth of last month. It was an occasion of very great interest. There was not a dull hour in the entire session.

Rev. B F. Lewis filled the president's chair. His presidency was marked by deep spirituality and resourcefulness. He gave abundant proof of capability as a presiding officer. Under his skillful management all the business of the convention was transacted without the least friction.

Miss Annie Mellen, the secretary of the convention, was absent, and Rev. H. C. Brown was elected in her stead. It would be difficult to find a man more rapid and accurate at the secretary's desk than Bro. Brown. He is an ideal secretary. The convention expressed the highest appreciation of the president's and secretary's faithful and efficient work by adopting suitable resolutions.

An elaborate programme had been prepared, calling for papers and addresses from a large number of the pastors and intelligent Sunday-school workers of the Conference. The subjects for these papers and addresses were well chosen, covering the various phases of Sunday-school interests. Some to whom work had been assigned failed to attend the convention, but the paper called for from almost every absentee was on hand. This was as it should be. No one should allow trifles to prevent him from discharging a duty that he has promised to perform.

The addresses were all good. The papers were generally of unusual merit. The writer has never attended a meeting of any kind where such a high level was reached in the papers presented. The reading was exceptionally well done. The discussion that followed each address and paper was quite spicy at times. In these discussions some of the good women took a lively part. When they got the floor they carried the convention with them.

Several members of the Conference attended, and gave much thought and effort to make the session a pleasant and helpful occasion. The following were present: H. B. Trevilion, B. F. Lewis, W. B. Lewis, T. B. Holloman, W. T. Griffin, H. C. Brown, T. J. O'Neil, C. F. Emery, J. G. Galloway, H. G. Hawkins, G. A. Guice, and T. W. Adams. Two local preachers were present, viz., W. T. Beall and J. F. Robinson.

Rev. G. W. Bachman, of the North Mississippi Conference, was present selling the literature of the church, and greatly adding to the interest of the occasion by occasional talks on the subjects under discussion. He read a thoughtful paper at the request of the Programme Committee.

The singing was good. Prof. Henry Spence, of Nashville, conducted the song services. He knows how to sing, and how to make others sing.

A great many schools in the bounds of the Conference had no representative at the convention. Some of the largest and most prosperous did not even send a written report. Of those reported, a large per cent. made a poor showing of scholars enrolled, and of average attendance. There were a few exceptions. The McComb City and Yazoo City schools reported unusual activity and prosperity. Small-pox and measles in many sections had seriously interfered with the Sunday-school work.

After considerable discussion and vigorous opposition, the ratio of representation in the convention was changed from one to every one hundred to one to every twenty-five. This will make the body very large. About fifteen hundred will be entitled to seats in the convention of 1901, which will be held at McComb City. Certainly, with this increased representation, the future sessions of the convention will be largely attended.

The convention asked that the Conference Sunday-school Board offer two prizes, first and second, for the best answers to twenty questions on the Book of Matthew, the examination to be held at the session of 1901. Prof. J. A. Moore, of Millsaps College, was appointed chairman of the Examining Committee. None above 17 years of age are eligible to compete in this examination.

The preaching was done by Revs. W. B. Lewis, H. B. Trevilion and W. T. Griffin. It was good, of course. Who ever heard of bad preaching on such an inspiring and joyous occasion? The preaching service of special interest was held for the benefit of the children at 11 o'clock of the last day of the session. Prof. Sinclair closed his school and brought all the children to the church, and many little fellows were brought by their parents. The service was conducted by Rev. W. B. Lewis, and much good was evidently accomplished.

The Sunday-school Rally service was held Thursday evening. Rev. B. F. Lewis conducted it. The congregation was very large. The service was varied to meet every demand. Several addresses were delivered, and the song service was delightful.

The people of Madison manifested the deepest interest in the work of the convention. Fine congregations were in constant attendance upon the exercises. The Presbyterians, Baptists and Episcopalians vied with the Methodists in their manifestations of interest in every particular. The most delightful spirit of fraternity prevailed. Everybody seemed interested in and profited by the convention.

The hospitality was perfect. Certainly no body of Christian workers was ever more graciously and royally entertained. All the visitors fell in love with Madison.

The popular pastor of the Madison Church, Rev. Henry G. Hawkins, was a very obliging and kind host. The serious illness of his wife brought all hearts in sympathy with him. Many fervent prayers went up for her recovery.

The convention will meet next Spring with the McComb City Sunday-school.

Rev. Robert Selby was elected president, and Miss Helen Stewart, secretary, for the ensuing year.

THE UNION MISSIONARY TRAINING INSTITUTE.

By the divine touch and voice I was aroused from lethargy regarding giving the gospel to every creature. A heaven-born zeal was imparted, and I went to India. While working there as a missionary I felt a lack of power resulting from not having had specific training for that most difficult and unique work. Later I was forced to return home on account of ill health, and, finding that many other missionaries in India, China, Japan and Africa felt the same need of training I had felt, I suggested to missionary officials the desirability of a training-school for the equipment of foreign missionaries. They assented to its importance, but the money required to establish such a school was the obstacle.

Believing that God, who owned the universe, and who had not withheld his costliest gift, would give the little needed for so important a work, and finding no one else willing to undertake it, I made the beginning in 1885. Now see how God has taken care of the little vine planted for himself. Then a small rented cottage—now two comfortable buildings, with modern improvements, valued at $21,000; then one teacher, an ungraded school, a very meagre course of study—now a three years' course with Biblical, Medical, Musical and Linguistic Departments, and twenty four able instructors who, because of the benevolent character of the work, give their services; then not one missionary, and many Sanballats and Tobiahs prophesying there never would be one sent forth by a regular missionary society—now seventy-six who have gone to sixteen different countries under twelve missionary societies. "It is the Lord's doing, and marvelous in our eyes."

Of all these who have gone, thirty-six have been given to the Methodist Church. One of their missionary officials said recently: "All we have sent from this institute are doing remarkably good work. Of the sixteen who went to Africa under Bishop Taylor, only two have returned. Six or eight have been there eight years. The hardships of that most difficult field have been endured heroically by these good soldiers of Jesus Christ."

Miss Wells, of China, in a recent tour reached three thousand people weekly, she in that time living on bread and sleeping on boards. Those who heard her in one place would run on ahead to the next town or city to announce her coming, saying, "A messenger from the Maker of heaven and earth is coming; you must come to hear her."

The students leaving a land which has a physician to every 600 of population for those countries where there is only one for every 2,500,000 people find our short medical course helpful—a course of 275 lectures with clinics, given by ten physicians, and qualifying for minor surgery, obstetrical cases, and the treatment of ordinary diseases. They are taught what not to undertake as well as what to endeavor to relieve. When people pile bricks on broken limbs to keep down swelling, and take the poison of spiders, centipedes and snakes to cure disease, run red-hot needles in the head or ear to destroy pain, and pry out decayed teeth, these trained missionaries can do much to relieve pain and open hearts to the gospel.

Fourteen languages can be taught as desired—all but three of them by natives recommended by the consuls of their respective countries, or by agents of the Bible Society who have employed them in translating. New York is an excellent centre to secure these teachers. Hundreds of dollars to each missionary, as well as much valuable time and strength, might be saved by a one year's course here in the language.

We have had recently university and college graduates availing themselves of our course.

The greatest attention is paid to character development, believing that to be of first importance. Faults are eliminated before being exhibited to the heathen. Some leading Boards send about thirty questions to be answered relating to the candidate, and after he or she have been with us three years, we know the life and character.

That there is need for this institution is seen from the fact that we can not supply the demand for our trained workers. All the graduates of last May are now in the foreign field, and those of the class of 1900 will, doubtless, be at their posts by Fall.

We were asked recently by an official of a leading Board what we could do towards supplying them with thirty missionaries. It is sometimes said all we need is money, but I notice that sometimes societies advertise for missionaries, and the secretaries say the right kind are not plentiful.

For a few years we took in missionaries without charge for board or tuition, but now they meet about one-fifth of the expense, though we never refuse a worthy applicant because he has no money. The remaining four-fifths of the expense is met by voluntary offerings amounting to between $2,500 and $3,000.

We have given our services these years, and been besides responsible for obtaining the thousands of dollars needed; but an ample reward is ours when we lay our heads on our pillows at night in the knowledge that seventy or eighty reapers are beginning work in the white harvest fields of other lands.

THE PARSONAGE.

What is a parsonage? Webster defines it as the "house of the minister of the parish." A minister is one who serves—in this case serves us in heavenly things, giving all of his time, and talent to that service. Week after week he pleads at the throne of grace for us and our families and friends, or stands in the pulpit and instructs us in the things that be of God. He visits from house to house, praying with the sick, comforting the sorrowing. He warns the impenitent, strengthens the tempted, pleads with the wayward, baptizes the babe, marries the bride, and buries the dead. To do all this he must turn his back to all opportunity for gain, and say: "This one thing I do."

Should not the house we prepare for one who so ministers to us express in some way our appreciation of the character of his work and our gratitude for his services? Do our parsonages do this? Are they sanitary, comfortable, clean, and pleasant?

A witty preacher once said that when he was in search of the Methodist parsonage, he knocked at the worst-looking house in town, and the door was generally opened by the brother he wanted. This was true of the past than of the present parsonage, since the organization of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society, but in many places the parsonage needs much (perhaps a new one) to make it healthy and comfortable.

A refined, cultured "preacher's wife" thus describes her last experience: "We were delayed in going on our appointment by the death of a daughter of the brother who preceded us—the second to die of consumption since they had lived there. When we came the house had never been cleaned, and I considered it full of disease germs. It was built flat on the ground, with the earth sloping down to the back door so that rain and mud came in on the floor. The paint and paper, what was left of them, were filthy; the ceilings smoked, the floors damp. I did not wonder that death entered that house, and I refused to take my family into it. Later in the year the lot, being a good one, enabled them to sell the parsonage, and another was bought. It is new and clean, but it is just a pine box without a comfort or convenience. I will try to make it a home."

After a pause, she added: "Some of our preachers and their wives are partly responsible for the deplorable condition of some parsonages. They fail to realize that it is church property intrusted to their care while they are given the use of it. In some instances the property is absolutely abused; in others so neglected as to amount to abuse. A nail here or a screw there, a window glass put in, a smoky chimney or stove corrected, loose wall-paper pasted in place, and the back premises, as well as the house, kept clean, would keep the place in better shape not only for themselves, but for the comfort and health of those who are to succeed them. There are many, however, who share with us the desire to leave the parsonage in better condition than we find it, and to add something in the way of a fruit tree, a flower, or a vine on the porch to make it attractive. The late garden is planted even when we know it is for another, and the house left clean and orderly for the poor, tired woman who is to come into it, while we hope another will do the same for us."

This conversation impresses four thoughts: the need of healthy, comfortable parsonages, and that there are mutual obligations in every relation of life.

THOUGHTS BY THE WAY.

The question is asked—and it is most assuredly a pertinent one—in the fourth chapter of Genesis, "Am I my brother's keeper?" I consider that a very relevant affirmative answer is given in Rom. xiv, "None of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself."

When a boy I had a supreme regard for preachers; thought them scarcely capable of doing wrong. I recall having heard a preacher use profane language, but I could not believe that it was a reality; tried to believe it was a dream, or an hallucination. Indeed, it was a source of great relief when he, who was called a man of God, confessed to me his wrong, stating that swearing was his besetting sin. I was not gratified to know that he had done wickedly, but relieved from the dilemma into which I had been thrown. The fraternal spirit also which seemed to me then such a distinguishing characteristic of the ministry wonderfully impressed me.

But the question arises now (my observation having become more extended and my experience broadened), Is this spirit of fraternity a distinguishing characteristic of preachers? Are they any more inclined to that spirit than men who belong to societies and orders less honorable than the church of Christ, which we, as ministers, claim to represent?

Some critic may say that this is indulging in a pessimistic spirit, but I deny the allegation. The question is, Are we, as the representatives of our Master, imbued with that gentle, forbearing spirit that was so strikingly manifest in his life?

I have known one preacher to write another demanding his note for a very small amount. I have heard preachers make such remarks as the following, "He's no good," "He's a failure," etc.; "Every charge he ever served has gone down."

The question is suggested, Which is worse—to kill a brother, as Cain did his, or to kill or crush him in the way referred to above? Preachers get too much gibing and buffeting from other sources to be subjected to the same from each other.

I have known a faithful preacher to go down under a dark cloud when sympathy and words of cheer might have saved him to bless the church.

When an unfortunate brother has gone to his long home flowers are placed lavishly upon his grave, but that is little worth, or, at most, it affects him not then.

Would it not be better far to give a poor brother a word of cheer and a small flower as he passes along life's rough pathway? Flowers and sunshine are so nice, and should be so much appreciated, but so much more desirable are they in lives than on graves.

Paul gave some timely admonition to Timothy, which we should also regard, "Shun profane and vain babblings, for they will increase unto more ungodliness, and their word will eat as doth a canker."

The other side is given us in the language of Solomon, "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." Finally Paul exhorts, "Be thou an example in manner of life, in love," etc.

WANTED.

Help for a needy Sunday-school. Not pecuniary help, but some of that precious commodity of which every individual keeps a large stock on hand for the benefit of others, and which is more blessed to give than to receive—advice. And that it may be intelligently given, some of the main facts in the case will be given.

Imprimis, this school, through no fault of its own, is situated in the backwoods, and but few of its members have ever been far from the environments of home, and are satisfied that there is nothing beyond. No music is allowed, only such as can be made by untrained voices, an organ being tabooed as an invention of the enemy of souls. Blackboard and other helps are regarded as light and sinful, but the lessons, as laid down in the quarterlies, are followed to the letter, no variation being allowed. Occasionally, some progressive individuals, strongly imbued with the spirit of the old adage, "Dum vivimus, vivimus," have tried introducing some new feature or plan of work, but their efforts have been regarded as invasions of the rights and customs sanctioned by the ancients.

Now, what can be done? Intelligent, wide-awake young people finding nothing in this "dry place," shun it, and the few faithful hold the ground. Any remedy which can be applied without the knowledge of the patient, or any information or advice, will be gratefully received by

TOTALLY DISCOURAGED.

"Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle and low; an excellent thing in woman."

So says Shakespeare, and I think that we all agree with him in thinking that a pleasant, gentle voice is an attribute which is always appreciated, and which should be cultivated more generally than it is.

Thinking is the least exerted privilege of cultivated humanity.—Evene.

FROM THE WORK.

REVIVAL AT STARKVILLE.

We have just closed a wonderful meeting in Starkville. The preaching was done by Rev. J. A. Leech, of Okolona, and Rev. Theo. Copeland, of the North Alabama Conference. The choir used the Young People's Hymnal, and the singing, under the direction of Bro. Leech, was superb. The congregations were immense, frequently taxing the capacity of our large church and overflowing the house at night. Not even the inclement weather could turn the people back. The interest was deep and widespread. The oldest citizens say that they never before saw the town so powerfully stirred. The different denominations stood shoulder to shoulder in the work, and the utmost harmony and good-will prevailed. Indeed, I never saw a more beautiful meeting. Not a single unpleasant incident occurred from beginning to end. It is impossible to estimate the good done. Eternity alone can disclose that. The spiritual life of all the churches was greatly quickened. There were probably not less than seventy-five or a hundred conversions and reclamations. Many family altars were established, disagreements of long standing were adjusted, and dozens of men and women were heard to pray in public who had never done so before. I received yesterday seventeen members into our church, and still there are others to join. How many the other denominations have received I can not state at present. Our Epworth League has been strengthened by the addition of twenty-five or thirty names to its membership roll.

Of Bro. Copeland, I feel I must say a few things. He is a plain, practical, thoroughly consecrated man. He has faith in God and faith in humanity. He is never rough or harsh, but always kind, gentle, and loving. He never indulges in slang or vulgarity. He does not come between the pastor and people. He is a clean, forceful, sweet-spirited man, whose love for souls is a consuming passion, and whose earnestness is irresistible. I never saw a more tactful or resourceful leader in a meeting. He knows what to do, and how to do it. His preaching rivets the attention of the people, and moves them to a higher life. I predict a still wider sphere of usefulness for this gifted young Alabamian.

I also make grateful acknowledgment for service rendered by Dr. Sullivan, and Bros. Brown and Bachman.

OPIUM WHISKY and other drug habits cured in 30 days Sanatorium treatment. Book and particulars FREE. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

It isn't the bodily sickness that hurts a man. He could stand that fairly well if his mind were easy. But Americans are busy. They have work to do—plans to make—schemes to execute. They are "plungers." They line up their incomes as soon as they receive them or re-invest them with the idea of increase. They cannot afford to be sick. Sickness is a calamity—a financial calamity as well as a physical one. So the sick man worries, and the more he worries, the sicker he grows.

Worry is a good thing at the right time. The minute you feel a symptom of sickness—worry about it—do something about it—cure yourself. When you begin to feel run-down—when a twinge of rheumatism tells you plainly that your blood is impaired—when you are losing flesh and vitality, go to the nearest drug store and get a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the greatest blood purifier and tissue builder on earth. It cures rheumatism and all other blood diseases by curing the cause. It purifies the blood and puts the blood making organs into good, healthy, working order. It tones up the stomach, stirs up the liver, helps the kidneys in their work and puts suffering nerves at rest. It contains no whisky, alcohol, opium or other dangerous drugs and does not, therefore, create a craving for stimulants or narcotics.

James E. Crampton, Esq., of Sharpsburg, Washington Co., Md., writes: "I was in business in Baltimore, and had rheumatism for three months; couldn't walk at all. I tried the best doctors I could get but they did me no good. I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cured me sound. I came home to Sharpsburg and there were three cases of different diseases. I advised the patients to use Dr. Pierce's medicine, which they did, and all were cured. I have sold over one hundred dollars' worth of your medicine by telling people how it cured me. You can write to our druggist, Mr. G. F. Smith, in our town and he will tell you what I did for you in regard to selling and advertising your great remedies."

The Golden State is seriously considering the necessity of quarantining against consumptives. This means that God's fresh air and sunshine, nowhere more entrancing and beautiful than on the Pacific slope, may be denied to the unfortunate sufferers. Thousands have been greatly benefited and many cured by the delicious atmosphere of California, and it appears a most cruel measure, even though sanctioned by medical.

Many persons now in the advanced stages of consumption, and surely doomed, could have been cured by early resort to that most gracious healing remedy, MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

KNIGHTS OF THE ROYAL ARCH.

Such is the high-sounding, innocent-looking title of an association, not of benefactors or chivalrous defenders of virtue and morality, but of liquor dealers formed a year or two ago in Arkansas for the purpose of fighting prohibition. This semi-secret, beneficial and protective order, membership in which is confined exclusively to persons engaged in or connected with the liquor traffic, has spread to a number of other States, and now, it is stated, has 90,000 members, new branches having recently been established in New York. The avowed object of the organization is to oppose and defeat all efforts for temperance reform, and to influence legislation in favor of the liquor business. The birth of this new society is another evidence of the effectiveness of temperance agitation, for it plainly shows that the liquorites are getting alarmed. It also reminds us of the fact that the advocates of rum are thoroughly organized, and that, if the temperance cause is to triumph gloriously, there must be like concert of action among the friends of sobriety and righteousness. The order in which these "Knights of the Arch" enumerate the various organizations of "the enemy," as the temperance folks are called, indicates in some degree which ones they regard as most inimical to their interests. They are mentioned as follows: Prohibition leagues, temperance leagues, law and order leagues, local option leagues, high license leagues, and the Sabbath, or Sunday, observers.

The Constitution of this pretentious organization provides that candidates for membership therein shall be of good moral character, believe in a "Divine Being," and classes as ineligible "habitual drunkards," and persons of "doubtful reputation" Could anything be more audacious or anomalous than this ruse, on the part of the whiskyites, to cover up their dark designs and gain the reputation of honorable, chivalrous, moral gentlemen? The example of these so-called "Knights" is but another striking instance of the fact that man, depraved and wicked man, will even

"Steal the livery of heaven
To serve the devil in."

Says the editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate, with much force: "Mark you: the Constitution of a liquor organization requires candidates to believe in the 'Divine Being,' and to be of good moral character. This incongruity is meant to give the organization respectability. The truth is: no man who believes in a just God, and has any regard for good morals, could lend his voice and influence for a moment to an order which has for its end the blighting and damning of every good and holy thing under heaven.

"Let the cry, 'To arms! To arms!' by all good men, ring out from one end of the nation to the other, for the battle is waging, and it must be fought to a finish. The Anti-Saloon League affords every man an opportunity to deal the enemy a blow without endangering the interests of his party."

One of our exchanges mentions that there are twelve young men in Vanderbilt University who are pledged to foreign missionary work.

UNSEATING OF QUAY.

On April 24 the United States Senate, by a vote of thirty-three to thirty-two, decided that Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania, whose case has been under consideration for several months, was not entitled to a seat in that body. Unless we are greatly in error, this action of the Senate, though tardy and closely contested, meets with the general and hearty approbation of the American people, many of whom have come to believe that both principle and expediency now demand that senators should be elected by direct vote of our citizens. The unseating of "Boss" Quay, whose name has become a synonym of political corruption and trickery, together with the recent ousting of Clark, of Montana, will do no little to clear the upper branch of Congress from the by-no-means groundless suspicion that millionaires and political tricksters have little difficulty in buying seats in that august body.

Quay, it will be remembered, was not elected by the Pennsylvania Legislature, though he was a candidate for the office of senator, but was appointed such by Gov. Stone, who, it seems, is one of his minions, after the Legislature had adjourned without having filled the vacant senatorship. As a matter of fact, Quay was under indictment during the last sitting of the Pennsylvania Legislature. For a man of such unsavory reputation to have been given a seat in the Senate, under such circumstances, would have been a disgrace to the nation, and a public calamity. Constitutional reasons, to say nothing of good morals, justified his exclusion, which the best citizens all over the country can scarcely regard in any other light than a victory for righteousness and decency.

THE LIQUOR AND OPIUM TRAFFIC.

One of the topics warmly discussed at the Ecumenical Missionary Conference, on Saturday last, was, "The Liquor and Opium Traffic in Missionary Fields." The British and United States Governments were roundly scored, and justly so, for conniving at and abetting the trade in these baneful articles in their foreign possessions, where the effects of their use is most disastrous. Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon President McKinley to stop the sale of whisky and opium in Hawaii, the Philippines, and in Alaska, in which regions, containing a mixed and alien population, it will be well-nigh impossible to maintain peace and order, unless the sale of intoxicants is prohibited.

NOTES FROM VANDERBILT.

The assistant editor is in receipt of a newsy letter from Rev. A. S. Lutz, of the Louisiana Conference, who is now at Vanderbilt University, taking a theological course, in which he says: "We have three boys from Millsaps, four from Centenary, and two from the University of Mississippi. I am glad I came to Vanderbilt. This has been a year of great profit to me. I have formed larger views of the kingdom of God, and my longing to win souls for the Master has been intensified.

"Last week we were favored with Bishop Granbery's lectures on 'Christian Experience the Crowning Evidence of Christianity.' They were rich food for brain and heart. We also had an excellent lecture the same week from Dr. Dwight Hillis on 'John Ruskin's Message to the Nineteenth Century.'

"For the past month I have been supplying the pulpit of Edgar Presbyterian Church, the pastor having resigned a short time since, and the new pastor not yet having been installed."

CHEAP PAPERS.

A cheap paper can only be made by cheap filling. The competition of papers to gain circulation on the score of cheapness is like the competition of so-called colleges to gain patronage on the same ground. A school which is run on the plan of a cheap boarding-house, with instruction thrown in, is not a school which sensible people will patronize. The effort to extend the circulation of a paper by cheapening it fails, because, while it gains from the class who demand cheapness, it loses from those who demand excellence; the more intelligent subscribers drop it, and take a paper of higher tone and merit. Your religious paper should be first-class.—Arkansas Methodist.

DEATH OF MISS LAURA HAYGOOD.

On the twenty-ninth ultimo a telegram from Shanghai to relatives in Atlanta, Ga., conveyed the sad intelligence of the death of that noble and successful missionary, Miss Laura Haygood, sister of the lamented Bishop Haygood. Although Miss Haygood has for some time been in failing health, hopes were entertained of her recovery. Her service in China as a representative of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions has been most faithful and efficient, and in her decease our missionary force in that land sustains a heavy loss. She founded the McTyeire Home in Shanghai. A heroic and saintly worker has entered into rest.

NEW BOOKS.

UNDER ORDERS; OR, NOT HIS OWN MASTER. By Mrs. G. S. Reaney. Cloth, gilt top, 75 cents; linen cloth, 40 cents; paper, 25 cents. Advance Publishing Co., 215 Madison street, Chicago.

A story of thrilling adventure and heroism, drawn from the great treasure-house of such scenes—modern missionary enterpise. It shows anew that missionary truth is stranger and more exciting than the old-time fiction of adventure. The leading character is a hero in many senses, for he not only braves the dangers of Tierra del Fuego, but he gives up the girl he loves when she makes it a question of choice between her and the call of the Master. In the end he gains more than he has lost, for he wins her back, a devoted woman, by his heroic example. The English surroundings of the "home" features of the story give it a quaint and pleasant setting, which will be attractive to readers on this side of the water.

Spring is the time to head off the Summer flood of Sabbath-breaking. Hence the appearance of a new, ninth edition of "The Sabbath for Man," by Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, Ph.D, is timely. As The Reform Bureau, which uses the book for ammunition, conducts its literature department not for revenue, but for reform, this cloth-bound book of 662 pages will be sent, postpaid, at 75 cents. The Bureau supplies a smaller book wholly on "The Civil Sabbath," 96 pages, at 10 cents, and send free leaflets on the Sabbath to all who apply with stamp.

Indian Mission.

MR. EDITOR: Through the inadvertence of some one the appointment of the Rev. A. D. Miller as financial agent of our Choctaw Indian Mission does not appear in the published Minutes of the Mississippi Conference. He was duly continued in the agency, and is authorized to collect funds. We need additional lands, and are planning to erect at least two new houses of worship—one in Neshoba, and the other in Newton county. Bro. Miller, and the cause he represents, are commended to the Methodists and our friends in the bounds of the Mississippi Conference.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, one of the Vanderbilt theologues, and also a member of the Louisiana Conference, asks us to say to the brethren that he wishes to spend his vacation in doing evangelistic work, and will be glad to assist any preacher who may desire his services in holding revival meetings. Bro. Lutz will be at liberty from his studies after May 15. Those who wish to write to him about this matter are requested to address him at 825 Lafayette avenue, New Orleans. Bro. Lutz is a gifted and deeply consecrated young preacher, and whoever secures his services will have efficient help.

MISSIONARY.

One of the daily papers of Osaka, Japan, recently spoke of the Bible as "one of the greatest books in the world, and unsurpassed in literary form and exalted sentiment." Thus Japan is rapidly coming into the light.

The Northwest Texas is the banner missionary Conference in Southern Methodism. Having last year been assessed for foreign and domestic missions the sum of $21,000, she paid $19,117 90—or about 90 per cent. of the whole amount.

The Southern Methodist delegates in attendance upon the great Ecumenical Conference held a most enjoyable meeting last Friday in the Hotel Albert, New York. Bishop John C. Granbery presided. Addresses were made by Drs. Lambuth, Hunnicutt, Atkins, McLean, and Sawyer. A resolution was adopted to hold a Missionary Conference for Southern Methodism.

One hundred years ago educated men could not be induced to become missionaries; the work was too forbidding. Now we have 7,000 missionaries, nearly one-third of whom are women. There are also nearly 35,000 native preachers. One hundred years ago there were not 300 Bible converts among the heathen; now there are nearly 3,000,000. One hundred years ago it was thought vain to hope for converts from the Mohammedan religion. Now in many parts of India and elsewhere most of the leading native pastors have been Mohammedans.—Central Methodist.

At the late session of the Baltimore Conference, Bishop Candler, who presided, pressed the claims of the missionary cause in the following forceful language: "Don't let us stand between the missionaries and their work," said he. "They want more money, and I hear men say that they can't afford to put any more money into that business. We can afford to if we have the right kind of respect for God. I know people who pay less to their cause of God than they pay to the bootblack. The law of life in Jesus Christ is the law of self-denial. That being true, the law of death is self-indulgence."

A short time ago Bishop Potter, speaking in Grace Church, New York, stated that his views regarding missions had undergone a radical change as a result of his recent travels in the Orient. He acknowledged that at times he had been influenced by the current opinion that money devoted to foreign missions is so much money thrown away, when it might have been put to good use in mission work at home. He frankly and emphatically declared that he was thoroughly convinced of his error when he observed how great is the work that is being accomplished by the missionaries in India, China, and Japan.

The report of the Ecumenical Missionary Conference will be published in two volumes, handsomely printed and bound. This report should be in the hands of every pastor and every missionary worker, and in the library of every church, Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor Society. It will cast a flood of light on the problem of missions, and it will bear testimony to the power of the gospel to uplift fallen humanity and establish Christian society. The retail price has been fixed at $2.50. Send word at once to the Publication Committee, Ecumenical Missionary Conference, Room 823, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

No longer are the churches in their missionary endeavors confronted by that once serious problem: how to obtain an entrance to heathen lands. Everywhere open doors invite, and pressing, pleading calls are heard. Nor is it any longer a question of finding consecrated workers willing to serve in the foreign field. Thousands of earnest and splendidly trained young men and women stand ready to go to any field to which they may be sent. It is now simply a question of obtaining the means wherewith to send out missionaries, and maintain them. The Protestant foreign missionary societies now spend about $15,000,000 a year in the propagation of the gospel abroad. Yet five times—yea, ten times—this amount ought to be forthcoming for this grand work. How utterly insignificant the sum mentioned appears in comparison with the billion-dollar drink bill of this country each year!

At the Saturday's session of the Ecumenical Missionary Conference prominence was given to the converted heathen in attendance, the seats of honor in front being occupied by Chinese, Japanese, Zulus, Turks, natives of India and of other lands, whose presence furnished a living exhibit, both striking and convincing, of the work of the missionaries. Thus wonderfully is the brotherhood of the race being made manifest.

Week before last, in his address of welcome to the Ecumenical Missionary Conference, President McKinley said, among other things: "I am glad of the opportunity to offer without stint my tribute of respect to the missionary effort which has wrought such wonderful triumphs for civilization. The story of the Christian missions is one of thrilling interest and marvelous results. The sacrifices of the missionaries for their fellow-men constitute one of the most glorious pages of the world's history. The missionary who devotes his life to the service of the Master and of man, carrying the torch of truth and enlightenment, deserves the gratitude of and homage of mankind. The noble, self-effacing, willing minds of peace and good-will should be classed with the world's heroes. Wielding the sword of the Spirit, they have conquered ignorance and prejudice. They have been the pioneers of civilization. They have illumined the darkness of idolatry and superstition with the light of intelligence and truth. They have been messengers of righteousness and love. They have braved disease and danger and death, and in their exile have suffered unspeakable hardships, but their noble spirits have never faltered. They count their labor no sacrifice."

NOTES.

On our third page will be found an interesting account of the recent meeting at Starkville, Miss.

Rev. J. W. Malone, president of the Woman's College of Oxford, Miss., writes us as follows: "Our first year here has been very successful. We have the best school that was possibly ever in this building in all its history. The school was founded in 1838 by the Methodist Church, passed into the hands of the Cumberland Presbyterians, and was chartered in 1854, thus making it one of the oldest in the State. It has had a useful career, having many graduates, not only in this State, but in other States also. Under the new management a charter was granted July, 1899, with change of name. Dr. Palmore, as you will see, preaches our commencement sermon."

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss., EDITOR.

The programme of the sixth Annual Conference, Epworth Leagues of Mississippi, are in print. It is a splendid specimen of the printer's art, on good paper, and illustrated with pictures of all the prominent speakers and officers, from that of our General Secretary-Editor down to the editor of the League column in the ADVOCATE. The mental material of the programme is unique, and the exercises bid fair to be not only practical, but intensely interesting. Dr. DeBose, our Era Editor; Dr. Monk, of Chattanooga, and Rev. P. L. Cobb, of Nashville, will be there, besides the workers of Mississippi. Dr. Monk delivers two addresses, one being on the Twentieth Century Fund. The literary parts to be conducted by Mrs. Mathis, of Columbus, are specially attractive, e. g.—Clay Model of Jerusalem, Bible Chart and Drill, Pendulum of Church History. On the first afternoon of the meeting, Thursday, May 10, following the opening exercises, there will be a Rose Social.

At the close of the printed programmes is the following:

Leaguers are requested to bring note books and Young People's Hymnals. Come prepared to receive practical help, and to sing unto the Lord. The railroads will give one and one third fare on the certificate plan. Come for the opening session, and remain till close of Conference.

WEST END, MERIDIAN, LEAGUE.

The West End Epworth League, No. 3,891, was organized in 1894, with D. S. Harmon, president.

About a score of members composed the charter list, and all the best working material of the church's young people has been brought into the force.

The League has been of incalculable value to the pastor, not only in junior branches of duty, but in the main work of the church.

Every department is at work. However, we have not reached such perfection that every member is doing his duty. The first, or Devotional Department, holds a prayer meeting every first, third and fourth Friday night, with a good average attendance.

The second, or Charity and Help Department, is doing a magnificent work among the sick and needy, reports showing fifty or seventy-five visits by our League doctor, besides visits by committee, with several dollars a month usually expended for medicines, fuel, clothes, etc.

The chairman of the third, or Literary Department, is to be congratulated upon her excellent good work in so successfully organizing the entire League with reading circles, three of which bring every member into a congenial circle of study. The second Friday night is reserved for a social meeting of the entire League, which is always well attended and highly enjoyed.

We believe our League is indispensable, and that its influence is a power for God.—Meridian News, League Edition.

STATE CONFERENCE.

The State Conference is organized as if it were a League chapter, having exactly the same officers. The vice presidents have charge of the departments, and are expected to study and present methods of work for the departments over which they are placed. In short, the State Conference is, or should be, a school of methods. Such shall be the sixth State Conference of Mississippi, to be held at Vicksburg, May 10-13, for the State officers have, with perfect unanimity, determined to make it such, if possible.—H. W. Featherston, in Meridian News, League Edition.

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R SINGLETON, Ruston, La. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Prof. R H. McGimsey can not accept the chairmanship of the Alexandria district.

Carondelet Street Epworth League disbanded about a year ago, and has not yet been reorganized.

If you are going to have a vacation this year, you could not spend it more pleasantly and profitably than at the Tri-State Epworth League Conference, at Seashore Camp Grounds.

The Louisiana Leaguers will be glad to know that the State secretary is recovering from her recent severe illness.

The editor wants the news from the different chapters often. He also wants a short report from each League in the State, taking the Baton Rouge report in this issue as a model.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Orleans Epworth League Union will be held at Tchonpitoulas Mission, 1026 Tchonpitoulas, between Calliope and Delord Sts., on Tuesday, May 8, 8 o'clock. As this is the first meeting in their new quarters, let us have a full attendance.

A missionary rally under the auspices of the Union Epworth League is being planned for the near future, at which the Holston Plan will be fully discussed.

The Senior Epworth League of the First Church, at Baton Rouge, was organized in March, 1896, by Bro. H. R Singleton, at that time our pastor. Our most rapid growth has been attained during the past Conference year. Our membership is forty-seven. Officers: May Goldsby Smith, president; W. S. Holmes, first vice-president; Mattie Reames, second vice president; H. A. Morgan, third vice-president; Laura Hanaman, treasurer; Anna Burgess, secretary; May S. Mayo, Junior superintendent.

Our work for the past year: Prayer meetings held weekly, with testimonies of spiritual benefit from them. A Week of Prayer was held in March, which drew our young people closer to Jesus. The missionary prayer meetings have been held monthly, program in Era being used. We have received letters from Mrs. W. B Nance, of Shanghai, China, and Miss Peabody, of the Scarritt Training-school, for our missionary meetings.

Our pledge of thirty dollars toward Mrs. Nance's support has been redeemed in full, and the Student Missionary Campaign Library purchased. The books are being read.

The Charity and Help Department has given money and food to the poor; visited the sick and the stranger within our gates. A Welcoming Committee has greeted visitors in the vestibule of the church. One thousand cards have been printed, containing a list of our church services, and an invitation to attend same. These cards have been put into the hotels and ferry-boat. The Welcoming Committee presents them to strangers, and our pastor uses them in his pastoral visits. We have fifteen subscribers to the Epworth Era.

Our treasurer is active in her duty, four-fifths of our members being regular in paying dues.

Our Sunday-school superintendent and third vice-president combines his offices by conducting a Bible class weekly. We are studying Stevens' and Burton's Harmony of the Gospel, with the companion book, Burton Sharman's Studies in the Life of Christ—a study being outlined for every day in the week. We feel that this systematic study of the Word, wherein is light, is developing our young workers spiritually.

You may expect to hear from our Juniors at an early date.

THIS WE CRAVE.

We have had but a small percentage of replies from the earnest personal note addressed to our pastors. Some have answered that they have sought to comply with our request and have failed; others feel that they have already too many things to do; but a large majority have sent no reply. May we not ask this (it is but a little thing to do): Will you not send us the names of six, eight, ten, or more of your intelligent young men or women who could likely be interested in the extension of our League work and the circulation of the young people's paper? Two thousand of our League chapters are absolutely without the Era. That is, there are one hundred thousand of our young people organized into the League who never see their own paper. Brother pastor, will you not inquire diligently to see if this may not be the case with your League? It will take you but a few seconds to make us a list of the names of your leading young people. We will undertake the task of seeing that they are interested. Only help us in this, and we will help you in turn. May we not even beg for so much help from you?

NOTICE.

To All Missionary Workers in the Mississippi Conference:

Bro. P. L. Cobb has arranged to hold a mid-year missionary meeting at Vicksburg, Miss., May 9 and 10, in connection with the State Epworth League Convention. There will be missionary addresses delivered on Wednesday evening, at 8 P. M., and Thursday, at 11 A. M.

The following program has been arranged for discussion:

1. The Assessment the Minimum.
2. The Sunday-school Fund for a Surplus.
3. The Holston Plan.
4. A Missionary Conscience.
5. Sunday-school Missionary Societies.
6. Relation of Presiding Elder to the Movement.
7. The Use of Missionary Literature.

Providence Camp Ground Association.

The Providence Camp Ground Association met on April 7, and appointed Friday, August 31, as the time to begin the next meeting, and to continue six days—i. e., to move in on Friday and move out on the following Friday. Plans have been made for a new roof on the tabernacle, and arrangements are to be made for good hotel accommodation, and we are to have the best possible preaching and music. There is a renewed interest and enlarged views in this old camp ground.

Letter from Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss.

MR. EDITOR: I have just returned home after a delightful visit of ten days to McComb City, where I had the pleasure of being associated with Bro. Peebles in a revival meeting. Our consecrated and zealous brother is justly held in the highest esteem by all his people, who love him dearly. All the interests of the church are prospering under his faithful administration. To him the language of 1. Kings xvii. 24, is especially applicable.

Our community is greatly saddened by the death from smallpox of Bro. Callaway Little, a son of the late Rev. D. A. Little. This noble young man was a steward in the church, and his life bore the promise of great usefulness. His place in the church will be hard to fill. It can never be filled in the stricken home. Let the prayers of all be made for the bereaved mother, sisters, and brothers. A suitable obituary will appear in due time.

On the twenty-fourth Bishop Galloway delivered to a large audience his eloquent and instructive lecture on "Mississippi: Her Past, Present, and Future." The proceeds of this lecture, which was delivered under the auspices of the Senior Epworth League, will go to defray the expense of putting electric lights in the church. In this connection must be mentioned the efforts in this behalf of the Junior League, which gave an Easter egg hunt, thus realizing about twelve dollars. We have a noble band of young people, who give promise of great usefulness to the church. The Sunday-school, under the efficient superintendency of Bro. I. C. Enochs, assisted by Bro. A. J. Harris, is prospering. The attendance last Sunday morning was the largest this year.

THE VERY BEST.

The very best premium offer we have ever made is our sewing machine offer in this week's issue. Be sure to read it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfils every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE.

BY IDA GOLDSMITH MORRIS.

If you're a gray-haired mother
In the old home far away,
Sit down and write the letter
You put off day by day.
Don't wait until her tired steps
Reach heaven's pearly gate,
But show her that you think of her
Before it is too late.

If you've a tender message,
Or a loving word to say,
Don't wait till you forget it,
But whisper it to-day.
Who knows what bitter memories
May haunt you if you wait?
So make your loved one happy
Before it is too late.

We live but in the present,
The future is unknown;
To-morrow is a mystery,
To-day is all our own.
The chance that fortune lends to us
May vanish while we wait,
So spend your life's rich treasure
Before it is too late.

The tender words unspoken,
The letters never sent,
The long-forgotten messages,
The wealth of love unspent -
For these some hearts are breaking,
For these some loved ones wait;
So show them that you care for them
Before it is too late.

COMPANIONSHIP IN MARRIED LIFE.

If you wish to be a good companion to your husband, study to make each "Good morning" that you say to him an incentive to a better life. Learn to make each "Good night" a benediction of love for the day's work, the day's loving, and the day's sympathy. Look for his good qualities. He is like you in having faults; with very little trouble you can find these faults, and by talking about them and reminding him of them you can make your married life unendurable. You can bring about heart-burnings, you can cause strife, and before you know it hatred may take the place of love. Look for his virtues, and, seeking always for goodness, you will grow better every day just as certainly as you would grow bad if you looked only for that which was wicked. Remember there is much that will have to be forgiven in you, and whenever you feel inclined to remind Tom of a weakness, read the book in which is set down your foibles and your follies. A woman who, even after her marriage, carefully studies her profession, can make her husband what she wishes him to be. Everything that is good is contagious, and the right kind of a wife makes the right kind of a husband.

Respect the rights of your husband; he is a man, not a child, and how can the world honor him when you, who are his closest companion, do not? Do not, even in jest, deride or underrate him. People are slow about deciding when one is jesting or when one is in earnest. And what you meant to be funny may cause some stupid person to say: "How horrid Tom must be! Why, his wife says dreadful things about him!"—Ruth Ashmore.

God does not promise supplies in advance. If we have only bread for to-day, and are doing our duty faithfully, we may trust him till to-morrow for to-morrow's food. And it will surely come, for God's word fails not. As the days come, each one will bring with it its own little basket, carrying a day's supplies, but no more.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

CANCER CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment Removes All Malignant Growths and Drives the Poison from the Blood and Lymphatic Fluid.

J. N. HATHAWAY, M. D.

Cutting out Cancer does not cure it and can not cure it.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment does cure it.

Cutting out Cancer simply removes the local, outward manifestation.

Dr. Hathaway's Treatment Kills the malignant germs of the Cancer, removes the poison from the blood and lymphatic fluid and immunes the system against future attacks.

Dr. Hathaway has treated Cancer successfully under this method over eight years; his experience covering a large number of well defined cases has proven this terrible affliction to be perfectly curable IN EVERY CASE WHERE IT CAN BE REACHED BY THE SYRINGE. This includes all outward manifestations, such as the nose, face, head, mouth, lips, tongue and breast, as well as all internal organs that can be reached direct, such as the womb and ovaries. Besides, many internal Cancers that can not be reached direct may be reached and treated successfully through the agency of the lymphatic vessels and the blood.

A TYPICAL CASE AND CURE.

The following is one of hundreds of like testimonials:

Several years ago there appeared on the side of my face an irritable rough spot. At first there was no attention paid to it, but after a year or two it began to scale off and bleed easily, and another place appeared on the other side. Two years ago they had developed into what the doctors pronounced Cancer. About this time there appeared a growth on my neck which got to be about the size of a hen's egg, and proved to be cancerous. In August, 1896, I began the use of the Serum Treatment, administered by Dr. Hathaway & Co., and in about six weeks all three of the cancerous masses had been removed and healed up.

"I DARE NOT."

A group of boys stood on the walk before a fine, large drug store, pelting each other with snowballs. In an unlucky moment the youngest sent his spinning through the frosty air against the large plate glass of the druggist's window. The crash terrified them all, but none so much as the little fellow who now stood pale and trembling, with startled eyes, gazing at the mischief he had wrought.

"Won't old Kendrick be mad! Run, Ned! We won't tell. Run, quick!" "I can't," he gasped. "Run, I tell you! He's coming! Coward! Why don't you run! I guess he wouldn't catch me!" "No; I can't run," he faltered. "Little fool! he'll be caught! Not spunk enough to run away! Well, I've done all I can for him," muttered the elder boy. The door opened; an angry face appeared. "Who did this?" came in fierce tones from the owner's lips. "Who did this, I say?" he shouted, as no one answered.

The trembling, shrinking boy drew near. The little, delicate-looking culprit faced the angry man, and in tones of truth replied: "I did it, sir." "And you dare tell me of it?" "I dare not deny it, sir; I dare not tell a lie." The reply was unexpected. The stern man paused. He saw the pale cheek, the frightened eyes wherein the soul of truth and true courage shone, and his heart was touched. "Come here, sir. What's your name?" "Edward Howe, sir. Oh, what can I do to pay you? I'll do anything"—his eyes filled with tears—"only don't make my mother pay it, sir!" "Will you shovel my walk when the next snow falls?" Ned's face was radiant as he answered: "All Winter, sir! I'll do it every time, and more, too, sir." "Well, that's enough; and do you know why I let you off so easy? Well, it's because you are not afraid to tell the truth. I like a boy that tells the truth always. When the next snow falls be sure you come to me." "I will, sir." "We'll all help him!" shouted the others; and, as they turned away, three hearty cheers rose for Mr. Kendrick and three more for the boy that dared not run away.—Selected.

AMERICANS RUSH TOO HARD.

Take our family life to-day. Look around one's own family circle, look into its life, look into the families we know, and tell me if I am so far wrong when I say that what our American families need more than anything else is more time with one another, more drawing together, more moments of being alone with one another, a greater extraction of the peace and comfort from those material surroundings which each so earnestly strives for, and all are too much satisfied to strive for simply to possess, and nothing more.

We are all too much in a hurry in America to allow of our knowing and enjoying one another: our lives are too full with the things which ought to be secondary, but which we have allowed to dominate us. We are all too busy—men and women, girls and boys—all of us. We are not getting the rich beauties out of life, the greatest enjoyments out of living. Rush and haste are too much upon us. The sweet balm of peace and quiet is an unknown delight to thousands of our people. And much of the cause, disagreeable as it is to say it, lies with our women who have of late allowed their lives to become too full. I will not say that they have neglected, to any alarming extent, the fundamental duties of wifehood and motherhood; but I do say that the danger of doing so in the very near future exists, in many an instance, if things are allowed to go on as they have gone.—Edward Bok, in Ladies' Home Journal.

INFANCY AND CHILDHOOD.

Among the traits which are not natural to childhood, which will, unless promptly eliminated, increase rather than diminish with advancing maturity, are those arising from a too intense self-consciousness—a trait which is foreign to healthy animal existence, and is one of the penalties we pay for our civilization. Among its manifestations we may note that of excessive bashfulness, or its counterpart, offensive boldness; an eagerness for attention and commendation; the demand for continual amusement or over-excitement; and a chronic discontent or persistent fretfulness. All these traits indicate an over-stimulation of the nervous system, and a precocious concentration of the childish mind upon itself. While disagreeable in the child, they are increasingly offensive in the man, and are always antagonistic to the highest personal development.

There are also certain demonstrations of temper which are decidedly and increasingly dangerous. The sudden, short-lived temper of the baby, with its natural animal protest against that which is displeasing, is, as we have said, transient, and in no aspect serious. But the temper which manifests itself later, which is brooding, or sullen, or malicious and lasting, should at its very first demonstration be counted as a danger signal, indicating the necessity for immediate and constant repression.—Harper's Bazar.

WHILE YOU ARE GROWING.

Growing girls and boys do not always appreciate that it is while they are growing that they are forming their figures for after life. Drooping the shoulders a little more every day, drooping the head as one walks, standing unevenly, so that one hip sinks more than the other—all these defects, easily corrected now, will be five times as hard in five years, and twenty-five times as hard in ten years. A graceful, easy carriage and an erect, straight figure are a pleasure to beholder and possessor, and are worth striving for.

An easy way to practice walking well is to start out right. Just before you leave the house, walk up to the wall and see that your toes, chest and nose touch it at once; then, in that attitude, walk away. Keep your head up and your chest out, and your shoulders and back will take care of themselves.

A Southern school teacher used to instruct her pupils to walk always as if trying to look over the top of an imaginary carriage just in front of them. It was good advice, for it kept the head raised. Don't think these things are of no value. They add to your health and your attractiveness, two things to which everybody should pay heed.—New York Times.

LITTLE THINGS OF LIFE.

Why is it that we so easily forget that the little things of life are what make it easy or hard? A few pleasant words, a warm handclasp, a cordial letter, are simple things, but they are mighty in their influence on the lives of those about us, adding a ray of hope to many disconsolate hearts, giving a bit of courage to disappointed weary ones, and helping to make our own lives sweeter at the same time. Few people realize how much the little attentions of everyday life mean to their associates in the home, the church, the business place. It is generally a lack of consideration which makes one forget the tiny pleasantries, but lack of consideration is really one form of selfishness, and selfishness is not considered a desirable quality. Remember that the little things in life, whether good or bad, count for more with those who love than we ever know, and we should be watchful of our actions and our words.—Selected.

SOME GOOD RULES.

These rules, handed down by somebody's grandmother, are good ones for our boys and girls to remember.

Always look at the person to whom you speak. When you are addressed, look straight at the person who speaks to you. Do not forget this.

Speak your words plainly; do not mutter or mumble. If words are worth saying, they are worth pronouncing distinctly and clearly.

Have you something to do that you find hard and would prefer not to do? Then listen to wise old grandmother. Do the hard thing first and get it over with. If you have done wrong, go and confess it. If your lesson is tough, master it. If the garden is to be weeded, weed it first and play afterward. Do first the things you don't like to do, and then, with a clear conscience, try the rest.—Phrenological Journal.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

Happy is the man who has learned the fine art of looking for the bright side. The cloudiest day is brighter than the darkest night. The darkest night has unseen stars concealed behind the drapery of its gloom. There can no misfortune befall us that can rob us of the Father's care. For he makes all things work together for good to them that love him. Once admit his plan and his hand, and the all things are gloriously transformed. The wick of your lamp is charred and black. The oil in the lamp, soaking upward, makes the wick still more uncomely. But bring the lighted match to the charred wick, and you explain its past blackness in its present cheer. Welcome the Father into the darkest hour, and you see the hour was black because he was absent. The secret of looking for the bright side of life is the heavenly Father's face.—The Commonwealth.

OBITUARIES.

THOMPSON—JESSE THOMPSON, SR., was born near Columbia, Marion county, Miss., July 1, 1812; and passed to his reward from his home near Spencer, Copiah county, Miss., Feb. 20, 1900. On May 10, 1835, he was married to Miss Nancy Rembert. This union was blessed with a large family of children, some of whom survive their father, and others have crossed the river. For forty-six years there was unbroken happiness in his home, but on Sept. 17, 1881, his wife was taken from him. On July 12, 1882, he was married to Mrs. Eliza Jones, who survives him, and faithfully did she discharge her duty as wife and companion.

In the departure of this good man Copiah county loses one of its best and oldest citizens, and the Methodist Church at Pleasant Valley her oldest and most faithful member. He had been a member of the church for nearly eighty years, during which he had filled all the offices to which a layman is eligible. In faithfulness to his vows, purity of life, and consistency of conduct, he was an example to all. He was never happier than when doing for his church and helping his pastor. It was my good fortune to live in his home while on the Bayou Pierre circuit, and it would be difficult for me to imagine more pleasant surroundings.

"Uncle Jesse" always had deep convictions on whatever cause he espoused, and what he deemed right he did, regardless of public sentiment.

Bro. Thompson loved his children, and gave them all the very best education possible. The burden of his prayer was that God would bless his children and make them useful in the world. He knew in prosperity to be humble, in adversity to give thanks.

May the blessings of God be upon the widow and children! M. L. BONTON.

JONES—Sweet little ERNESTINE, infant daughter of Estell and Leanna Jones, was born Feb. 17, 1899, and died Jno. 14, 1900. She was beautiful, pure, innocent, and one of the most interesting children I ever knew. Had she lived, doubtless, she would have become a bright, shining light in the church and a blessing to the world; but God, who does all things for the best, has graciously and tenderly taken this precious one from the toils and troubles, the sorrows and suffering of this life to the joys, triumphs, and ever-expanding glories of the heavenly world, there to grow and mature with the angels and kindred spirits through the eternal ages. Though her sun set so early, yet it did not fail to leave a trail of hallowed light behind to lead the loved ones to that bright home. B. W. LEWIS.

FLETCHER—JOHN J. FLETCHER was born in Morgan county, Ala., Sept. 10, 1855. With his widowed mother and four sisters he moved to Madison county, Ala. In the home of his Christian uncle, sifted by the constant and patient training of his consecrated mother, he was early impressed with the highest principles. He developed into a model boy, and was one of the most obedient sons that ever blessed a mother. We are not surprised that he became a Christian so early in life that he could not remember the date of his conversion. It was the privilege of the writer to see him baptized and join the Methodist Church in Winona, Miss., in 1866. God's gentleness made him too great to be pretentious. He was a "living epistle, read of men." He illustrated the Christ in his business life. His beautiful life came to its full power in his lonely hours. No wonder that those who loved him best say that he was one of the purest and holiest men that ever lived on earth. They testify to the regularity of his home altar, and his loyalty to Christ and to the rules of his church. On Jan. 18, 1888, he was happily married to Miss Mattie Lou Rose, of Duck Hill, Miss. For eleven years they helped each other on the way to heaven. Home was perfectly happy. On Jan. 20, 1892, when typhoid-pneumonia brought death to Bro. Fletcher, he was ready to go. To him it was victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. We commend his bereaved wife, little son and daughter, and other relatives, to the Father of the orphans and the Protector of the widow.

J. A. BOWEN.

Columbus, Miss.

ALFORD—Mrs. CELIE A. ALFORD was born Nov. 6, 1822, and departed this life the thirtieth of January, 1900. Her maiden name was Lewis. She was the daughter of Mr. Quinia and Martha Lewis. She was married in 1840 to Mr. Warren Jackson Alford. Her husband preceded her to the grave two months and nineteen days. There was given to them eleven children—five boys and six girls—all of which are living but one son and one daughter.

Sister Alford was converted and joined the Methodist Church when she was about eighteen years old, and lived a faithful Christian up to her death. She has two brothers who are members of the Mississippi Conference—Revs. W. B. Lewis and H. P. Lewis. Her son, Rev. N. E. Alford, is a local minister of whom she had good reasons to be proud. She leaves many relatives and friends to mourn their loss, but what is their loss is her gain. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, that they may rest from their labors." We ask God to bless the bereaved ones, and to assist them in making their election sure.

B. H. RAWLS.

Tylertown, Miss.

RICHERT—The angel of death visited the home of Mrs. Nellie Richert on March 27, 1900, and bore away in triumph the sweet, gentle spirit of LOTTIE RICHERT. A more noble girl never lived. She was so sweet and pure and good. Being without a fault, she was loved by everyone. Kind friends and loved ones did all they could for her, but God saw fit to take her from us, and we can not but feel that he took her for some sweet purpose; yet it is so hard to give her up. She was a fair, sweet flower of eighteen summers, just in the bloom of young womanhood.

Weep not, fond mother, sisters and friends; she is not dead, but sleepeth. Remember, you have another golden link that binds you closer to heaven. Another dear one waits on the shining shore to welcome you when you cross the silent river of death to that bright and beautiful home of the soul. Some day,

A fair maiden in her Father's mansion,
Clothed in celestial grace,
And beautiful with all the soul's expansion,
Shall we behold her face.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

ECKFORD—R. L. ECKFORD, son of H. P. Eckford and Ella Bland, was born on the sixth of June, 1874, near Macon, Miss., and died at Isola, Miss., of congestion on the eleventh of March, 1900, leaving a broken-hearted old mother and three sisters. Think God there is something beyond this life, and in my Father's house are many mansions, prepared for those who love Him. Those who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ shall not perish, but have everlasting life. In the bitter suffering of losing our darling we have the hope of meeting him soon.

Belzoni, Miss.

Deafness Can Not be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is without an equal for swiftness to cure.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to May, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

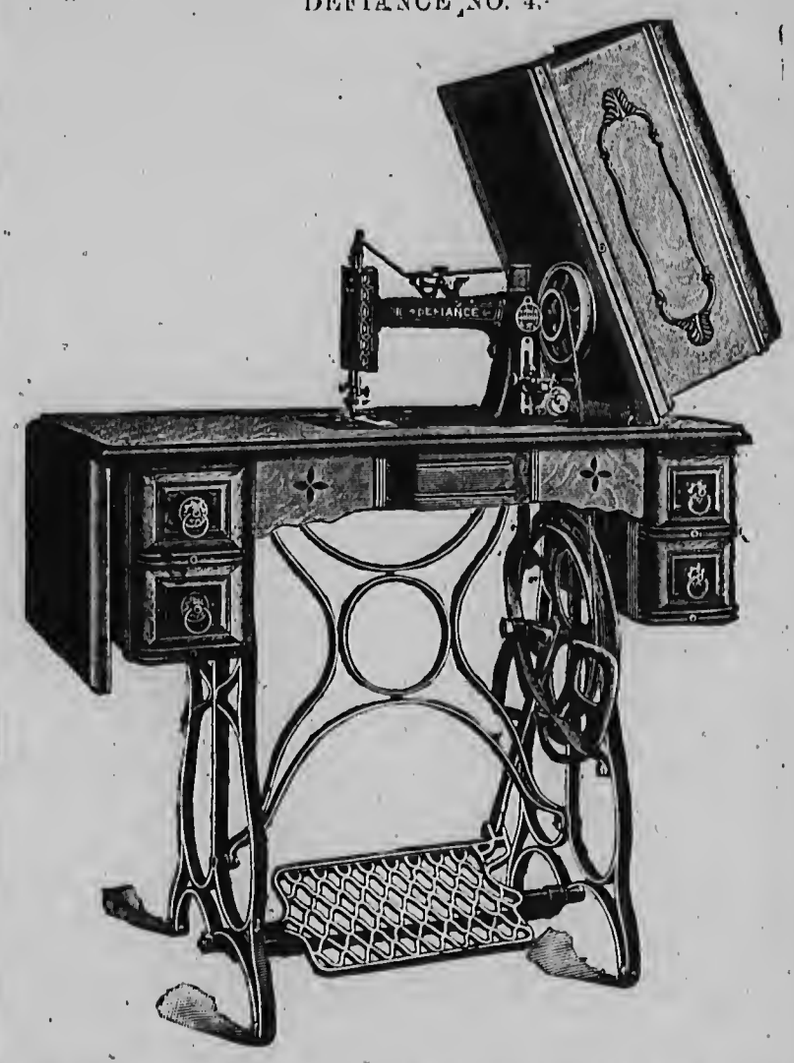
For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.



The Defiance Machine is the perfection of simplicity, durability, speed, strength and ease of operation.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

The Arm is large and roomy, 8x5¼ inches in the clear.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well-oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The Needle is absolutely self-setting. No screwdriver is required in setting, a winged thumb nut being used instead.

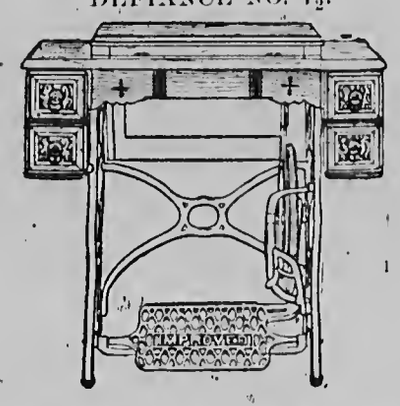
The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbins without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stoppage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on a spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter, 1 Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, Cloth Guage and Thumb screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7¼.



This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7¼ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34. Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

No. 7¼ Machine, Drop head cabinet, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $38. Our price, $23.

All the woodwork is of the best quality, either Light Antique or Golden Oak Finish. For Walnut Woodwork add $2 to above list prices.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address

REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

D. P. HENSLEE, Doe Branch, Ark.

Dear Doctor Woodard:—I write you a letter to let you know that I am now entirely well of cancer. Your oils have worked a miracle in my case, for I did not think myself that it would cure me, as I had tried so many remedies that I had just about given up all hopes of getting well. But just think! I am again sound and well. Oh, how I wish that I had seen your advertising sooner, for it would have saved me much anxiety and many dollars. I will soon be down to the city and I will call on you.

Yours thankfully,
D. P. HENSLEE,
Doe Branch, Ark.

We have discovered a combination of oils that readily cure cancer, tumors, catarrh, bronchitis, consumption, piles, fistula, ulcers, eczemas and all skin and womb diseases. We have cured thousands of afflicted people within the last six years. Many cured by correspondence. Readers having friends afflicted should cut this out and send to them. A book sent free giving particulars about the oil. Address Dr. R. E. Woodard, 502 Main Street, Little Rock, Ark.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The Masonic order of Mobile will build a six-story stone-front temple.

The Canadian government will give $100,000 to relieve the fire sufferers at Ottawa and Hull.

The members of the Boer peace commission will sail from Rotterdam for the United States, Thursday.

The Lord Mayor of London has opened a Mansion House fund for the relief of the victims of the Ottawa fire.

A foot bridge in the Paris Exposition grounds collapsed. Nine persons were killed and a number wounded.

In the fight at Israelsport the British ost 20 in killed and wounded. Three hundred Boers were in the fight.

It is reported the Alabama river steamer "Nettie Quin" sank in the Alabama river, between Camden and Selma.

Andrew Carnegie, in a contribution to a magazine, advocates great aggregations of capital as of benefit both to rich and poor.

The Paris Exposition is still in a chaotic state. It will not present the appearance of completion for a month or more.

The Republican steering committee of the Senate has decided that the Nicaragua Canal bill shall not be passed at this session of Congress.

Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, has appealed to the public to use all private and personal influence to effect a settlement of the Chicago building strike.

Eight thousand washerwomen in Paris have struck for higher wages and shorter hours. Hotels, restaurants and private families are seriously inconvenienced.

London newspapers are unanimous in expressing the opinion that it is the duty of Great Britain to substantially assist in repairing the losses incurred by the Ottawa fire.

A committee representing the striking Southern operators has been in Chicago several days conferring with members of the Order of Railway Telegraphers regarding sympathetic action.

Turkey has not replied to the demands of the United States regarding the indemnity claims. The impression is gaining ground that the Porte will not pay without a display of force.

Orders have been issued at the War Department for the arrest of Lieut. H. C. Hazzard, an officer of the First Artillery, on a charge of absence without leave. It is thought that Hazzard has left the country.

The Navy Department has ordered the gunboat "Machias" to proceed to Chiriqui Bay and Port Limon to protect American interests in that section should they be threatened by the Colombian revolutionists.

The American note to the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs is couched in peremptory terms, demanding immediate payment of the indemnity several times promised to Minister Straus by the Sultan.

The House committee on insular affairs, on April 27, heard representative men from the South and Southwest on the project for an international exposition at St. Louis in 1903 to commemorate the Louisiana purchase.

Hon. William L. Wilson, author of the Wilson tariff bill, says McKinley and Bryan will be the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees. He does not think Dewey's name will be presented in either convention.

The Ecumenical Conference on Saturday discussed the subject of the "Liquor and Opium Traffic." It was stated that pressure had been brought to bear on President McKinley to prohibit its sale in Alaska, Hawaii and the Philippines.

"Gov." William S. Taylor, of Kentucky, who is now in Washington, has received official notification of an indictment found against him by the grand jury, in which he is charged with being an accessory to the assassination of Senator Goebel.

Events have not moved rapidly as far as the campaign by Lord Roberts against the Boers in South Africa is concerned. It is true that Wepener has been relieved, and the Boers who were investing that place have retired northward.

Over five square miles of territory burned over; more than 2000 buildings destroyed; seven lives lost; 7000 men, women and children homeless, and property loss of $15,000,000 according to the latest estimate, insured for about half its value, are the results as viewed of the destructive fire which swept Ottawa, Ontario, and Hull.

Texas was again visited by severe storms, the area affected extending from the northern part of the State to San Antonio. Heavy damage to property and loss of life occurred at Waco, Blum and other places. Heavy rains have fallen in the semi-arid regions of Southwestern Texas. The Southern Pacific bridge over the Colorado river has been washed away.

PAIN NOT NECESSARY

When having dental operations performed. We have a simple, but efficacious method of deadening the most sensitive tooth, even when the nerve is exposed. The cavity can then be thoroughly cleansed and filled without pain.

Teeth extracted by an expert without the least pain, with

GAS, VITALIZED AIR OR BOSTON SPRAY.

The last deadens the gums only. You do not lose consciousness.

We make a specialty of Teeth That Improve the Expression.

Every set mounted on a trial plate. You can try your teeth before taking them.

Good Fillings.....$1.00 up

Gold Crowns, Porcelain Crowns, Bridge Work (Teeth without Plate), per tooth.....$3.00 to $5.00
Sets of Teeth from.....$5.00 to $50

Even the $5.00 sets are guaranteed to fit.

The Rev. Dr. W. C. Black says: "The Boston Dental Company has the patronage of leading professional and business men, many of whom have given testimonials as to the excellent character of its work. A verification of this statement, as a matter of personal knowledge, will be given by the editor of this paper."—Christian Advocate.

A representative of the editor and manager of the Southwestern Presbyterian examined the testimonials from the leading ministers of this city, which showed the excellent work of the Boston Dental Co. (REV.) J. H. NALL, Editor and Manager.

OPIUM, MORPHINE, FREE TREATMENT.

Cure guaranteed at home without pain. Trial free. DR. TUCKER, 18 Broad St., Atlanta, Ga.

The Ahita Springs Hotel, which was destroyed by fire a short time since, is now being rebuilt, larger and better than before. The main building is to be heated by steam, and made thoroughly comfortable for Winter as well as Summer visitors, and hereafter will be kept open all the year round. Baths and sanitary plumbing, modern and of the very best, will be among the attractive features.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

NOTICE.

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

The May Cosmopolitan opens with a profusely illustrated article entitled, When the Novice Goes to Sea, by John R. Spears. American Artists in Paris is the subject of an article by Vance Thompson. Edna Blankart Funston writes on A Soldier's Life in the Philippines. The first of a series of Hiprah Hunt's Journey through the Inferno, depicted by Arthur Young, is no less interesting than it is amusing. The department of Men, Women and Events is well worth perusal.

The American Army Officer in Action is the subject of a paper which Senator Albert J. Beveridge contributes to a forthcoming number of The Saturday Evening Post. During his visit to the Archipelago, Mr. Beveridge was the guest and comrade of Generals Lawton and King, and he tells some stirring stories of the undaunted courage of the tried Indian fighter and of the coolness of the army novelist. The American Army Officer in Action will appear in The Saturday Evening Post of May 5.

GRATITUDE.

BY ANNA WILSON SIMMONS.

I have so much to thank Thee for,
So much of loving care,
The goodness that surrounds my life
And meets me everywhere.

I have so much to thank Thee for—
The blessings manifold;
For daily light and upward sight,
And faith's unchanging hold.

I have so much to thank Thee for—
I can not speak the praise—
The measure of the gratitude
My throbbing heart would raise.

I have so much to thank Thee for,
Dear Father, take my all,
And sanctify and use for Thee
The gift that is so small.

NEW ORLEANS METHODISM.

BY BISHOP KEENER.

The ladies of the W. H. M. S. who came to pay wife and myself a visit, on the first day of their Conference, were most heartily welcomed, and I was only sorry that I was too feeble to pray with them. They requested me to address them. This was my talk:

My Dear Sisters: While holding Conference in Kentucky, a few years ago, at Middlebury, near the Cumberland Gap, I listened to the account of a speech made to cheer the stockholders of an expiring boom, as repeated to me by the secretary of the company. Some fifteen millions had been expended in the venture. "Gentlemen," said the speaker, "where is the richest spot in this world? Doubt less your thoughts carry you to the gold and silver mines of Peru, or to the diamond mines of Brazil, or to the fields of South Africa, with its wealth of diamonds and gold; but, gentlemen, you are now standing on the richest spot of this earth. There, below you, is a mountain of brown hematite, and there, to the right, a mountain of bituminous coal, and over yonder a mountain of sulphuret of copper, and there vast deposits of plumbago, and there you have the red oxide of manganese, etc. Yes, gentlemen, this is the richest spot on earth." Of course, his audience would have been only too glad to think so.

And I now say, ladies, you are standing in the richest spot of spiritual life in the Methodist Church—New Orleans! Since 1848 it has given to our church four Bishops, fifty-one itinerant preachers, and the Mexican Mission,* since grown into three Annual Conferences, of Spanish-speaking ministers. It has also established in Mexico many schools, teaching both Spanish and English.

Besides this foreign mission, we have here in the city two most beneficent enterprises, which are an honor and credit to our church, as well as to our citizens. Each started and is still carried forward, one since 1892, the other since 1896; one by Rev. A. E. Clay, one of our traveling ministers for twenty-eight years—the other by Mr. J. H. Haag, a member of the Dryades Street, South, Methodist Church.

Mr. Clay's Society for the Protection of Children from Cruelty gives the following brief statement of some of the work done for the last eight years, compiled from office records:

Sent to asylums or homes	1,744
Houses corrected or other homes found for children	5,219
Females removed from immoral surroundings	521
Total cases investigated and action taken thereon	6,142
Number of children (exclusive of those in the society's homes) who have been benefited directly in some way	15,253
Adopted in good homes through the instrumentality of the society	2,738

*It was at a missionary meeting during the session of the Louisiana Annual Conference, held in Carondelet Street Church in 1873, that Mr. R. H. Walmsley subscribed a thousand dollars toward starting a mission in Mexico. He also gave a letter of credit for 3,500 dollars. This secured the property in the City of Mexico for both a church and a school. He continued to aid us in the financial management of the mission for several years. The success of this mission gave our church a missionary impulse that continues to this day.

The work by Mr. J. H. Haag—the "Whosoever Will Rescue Mission," at 608 Bienville street—surpasses all that I have ever known elsewhere for spiritual power and for permanent success among the most criminal and inaccessible classes of a city population. I give the full report of this work for the past four years among the slums of New Orleans, since its opening on March 2, 1896:

Number of meetings held	16,470
Total attendance	291,685
Professed a change of life	8,225
Fed at Saturday night love-feasts	35,300
Other meals	68,310
Number of persons lodged	27,425
Number of persons sheltered	62,200
Men's garments distributed	3,560
Men's shoes distributed (pairs)	560
Women's garments distributed	1,740
Women's shoes distributed (pairs)	120
Sent to Charity Hospital	185
Families supplied with food and clothing	460
Employment secured for	970
Assisted to leave the city	51
Lodging furnished above Society	161
Papers circulated	61,000
Other reading matter, tracts, etc	135,000
Visits to Charity Hospital and prison, about	250

This work has been going on every night for four years. All that time there have been at its altar mourners and conversions—averaging more than two thousand each year.

With this statement, I am sure you will not charge me with exaggeration when I say that New Orleans presents to Methodism its "richest spot" of grace in the entire field of itinerant labor. There is in this city crime of every conceivable shape, and there can be no greater ecclesiastical mistake than to send money away from here to any other home work in the church.

There are other items of importance which should be named in connection with New Orleans Methodism. It was largely instrumental through the aid afforded by Governor Wells, of Louisiana, in releasing the Southern Methodist Churches which had been turned over to Bishops Ames and Simpson and Dr. Newman during the war. President Johnson refused to continue this policy against our churches, and gave them back, despite the opposition of Mr. Stanton, the Secretary of War. It released not only those of the far South, but those of East Tennessee, and by the judicious use of the original order "No. 15," at the May meeting of North and Southern Methodist, gave a turn to the decision of that body that virtually returned to the Baltimore Conference its property in the valley of Virginia.

This city has also been largely instrumental in repairing and in holding on to Centenary College, and in securing its present prosperity, against many prophecies to the contrary. It inaugurated and established the Seashore Camp Ground, and has for twenty-six years constantly maintained it, as a Methodist centre of spiritual life for the surrounding Conferences; never more vigorous than at present in its influence for good.

In all this work the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE has had a large share. This paper was established fifty years ago by one of our own people, aided by the two Alabama Conferences. It was the official journal of the General Conference of 1868, which met in this city. It was afterward edited by the four Bishops who, through its columns, became known to the Church, South. It had long before bought the house on Camp street where it is now printed—bought for $16,000 for the ADVOCATE, for a Publishing House depository, and for a missionary room. It was intended to be a place for the meeting of the Methodism of the Southwest, and a rendezvous for those of this city. After the General Conference of 1854 the Mississippi Conference was one of its publishers. During the war it became seriously in debt, and was relieved by a contribution of $2,200 from the Louisiana Conference Ministerial Aid Society.

As I shall not probably come before the public again in behalf of the historic value of the Methodism of the city of New Orleans, I hope that I may be pardoned for the present boasting.

There are three persons to whom New Orleans is specially indebted for all that is mentioned in this paper: Judge Edward McGehee, of Wilkinson county, Miss., who built Poydras Street Church, who bought the Centenary College of the State of Louisiana, and who was the principal contributor towards the erection of its large centre building; Mr. R. W. Rayne, who built the beautiful memorial church on St. Charles avenue; and Mr. J. H. Keiler, whose family have been the chief supporters of the "Whosoever Will Rescue Mission," and who this year liquidated a debt of the Dryades Street Church to the amount of several thousand dollars.

I mention these persons as principal agents, in the providence of God, in bringing New Orleans Methodism to its present advanced state.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Notwithstanding the publication of much gossip on the subject, there has been no material change in the relations between Turkey and the United States during the past week. This government is awaiting the reply of the Sultan to its reiterated demand for the payment of the money claimed on account of the destruction of American missionary property, which is expected within a reasonable time. There has been much misrepresentation, both of the general attitude of this government towards American missionary work in foreign lands, and of those engaged in foreign missionary work in connection with the claim against Turkey. It has been stated in the secular press that the "American missionary element" was trying to force this government into making war upon Turkey to enforce the payment of this claim, and a New York daily yesterday printed the following as part of a dispatch from Washington, "While recognizing the necessity of protecting the missionaries, both the State Department and the naval service would prefer that the missionaries remain at home." These publications are untrue. They slander our missionary workers and our government. President McKinley is not only a believer in, but a supporter of foreign missionary work.

The United States Supreme Court this week heard arguments in the Kentucky contested governorship case, and a decision will be promptly made which will be accepted as final by both parties to the unfortunate controversy. Representative Boering, of Kentucky, who has just returned from a visit to the State, said: "The soldiers of both parties should disband and go back to their work. There is no need of the soldiers being held under arms. The people of the State have determined to obey the law. Business is at a stand-still. This condition of affairs will not last. After the Supreme Court makes its decision, business will pick up. Things will then go on as usual." This statement has reassured those in Washington who feared trouble from the turbulent element in Kentucky.

Observant persons know the powerful influence exercised in social affairs by the President's family. For that reason much regret is expressed among those who believe in the old-fashioned observance of the Sabbath that the President and Mrs. McKinley should have adopted the continental European custom of giving dinner parties and receptions on Sunday evening. True, these entertainments are called "informal," but they are entertainments for all that, and the steady increase of such affairs in other Washington houses is proof that the leaven of the bad example in the White House is working. Last Sunday the President and Mrs. McKinley entertained a dinner party, which included members of the Cabinet, senators and army officers, and later other guests were received in the Red Parlor. The whole party was comparatively small, and was composed of personal friends of the President and his wife, but, except in numbers, the affair differed little from any other White House reception, and the general public is not inclined to accept the term, "informal," as more than an excuse for entertaining on Sunday, and that portion of the public which has no reverence for the Sabbath is naturally pleased to know of such entertainments at the White House.

The joint resolution reported some time ago to the House, providing for a constitutional amendment disqualifying polygamists from election as Senators and Representatives in Congress, was discussed this week, and without a record vote, was recommitted to the Judiciary Committee. The principal objection to the resolution was, that it was too verbosely drawn. Representative Ray, of New York, declared that he could not understand the resolution as drawn, and doubted whether any judge could; that the object sought could be accomplished by an amendment of two lines to the Constitution, simply declaring polygamy unlawful in the United States. The resolution was prepared by the House Committee on the Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress. It is doubtful whether the Judiciary Committee, to which the resolution has now gone, will make a report upon it at the present session.

The following is taken from the annual report of United States Consul Fowler, relating to the missionary troubles in Shangtang and Northern China: "Since Christmas there has been nothing but trouble. Riots, murder, and acts of the most diabolical nature have been committed upon the native adherents of the missionaries. The situation grew so bad that the Germans sent inland a strong military force, burning down one or two villages, and taking back with them several of the leaders of the villages as hostages for future peace. On several occasions Americans and Germans escaped by diplomacy and pinck. The indemnity for these outrages has just been paid, and now the whole western part of the province is in a ferment, and much care will be necessary to pass the Winter without the loss of foreign life."

Washington, May 2, 1900.

A GREAT SUCCESS!

According to announcement the Methodists on last Sunday had their long-talked-of "Twentieth Century Thank-offering Rally." It was a day of "praise and thanksgiving." On a banner suspended from the high arch over the gateway to the church-yard were the words, "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name." Suspended high over the pulpit was the motto: "Attempt great things for God. Expect great things from God." The altar was profusely decorated with lovely flowers. Historic pictures added to the interest of the occasion. In the pulpit, just in the rear of the preacher, was the splendid steel engraving of the General Conference of 1858. In the chancel, reclining against the pulpit, was a large and handsome picture of John Wesley; on his right Bishop Soule, and on his left Bishop Galloway. On the walls of the church hung the following pictures: The Founders and Pioneers of Methodism, The Ordination of Bishop Asbury, The Centenary Conference (1884), The College of Bishops—1870, 1882, 1886, 1890, 1898; John Fletcher and Dr. Rigg, The Mississippi Conference, 1886; The North Mississippi Conference, 1896. A handsome frame on the pulpit contained a leaf from the grave of Susanna Wesley, a bunch of grass and sprig of hyssop from the site of the home of Mary and Martha (Bethany), and a natural flower from the garden of Gethsemane.

A great congregation filled the church and entered heartily into the service, which was exactly according to the program prepared by Dr. Hammond. The singing was general and joyous, and the responsive readings were well rendered. Mr. Lewis preached a splendid sermon from Eph. iv, 13. Immediately after the sermon contributions were called for, which soon amounted to more than thirteen hundred —— dollars. This amount, added to the four hundred twenty-nine and 10-100 dollars cash paid last year, makes seventeen hundred and fifty —— dollars given by the Methodist congregation of Carrollton. The success achieved is gratifying, and is due to untiring effort in circulating literature on the subject, and keeping the matter constantly before the people in various ways. More than a score of articles touching the subject have appeared in our columns. The committee asked us to publish the following resolution, which we gladly do, and are pleased to know that we aided the cause: "Resolved, That we highly appreciate the space given us by the Conservative, and heartily thank the publisher for his kindness."—Carrollton (Miss.) Conservative.

THE CHURCH AND THE NEW CENTURY.

BY REV. W. B. MURRAH, D. D., LL D.

Certainly it is not extravagant to say that there was never a time when so much attention was given the subject of education as now. Governments, through legislative assemblies, and churches, through ecclesiastical councils, are giving to it their best thought, and great streams of wealth are flowing through appropriate channels to promote its interests. Nowhere does the spirit of our aggressive age, in its ceaseless search after new forms, find more striking illustration than in the evolution of ideas respecting educational systems.

Conflicting views, with a boldness and persistence never known before, are struggling for ascendency. We hear a great deal of the old education and the new education, of the relative merits of the classical and the scientific education, of liberal as contrasted with technical education. He is a superficial thinker, and but poorly discerns the signs of the times, who does not discover in this conflict the fierce and, perhaps, decisive battle between the spiritual and the material, as they are related to this absorbing question.

Those who believe that a distinctive Christian idea should be stressed in all our educational processes can not but feel concern about certain dangerous tendencies growing out of false conceptions. This concern is emphasized just now by many considerations. We live in a transition period. Methods are undergoing revision. The forces concentrating about the close of this century will give a tremendous impetus to the views which are carried into the new century.

It is not without significance and warning that a writer, who has had remarkable advantages for making observations both in Europe and in America, should have said not long ago that "the purely practical and material ideas in education will assert their overwhelming ascendency until a race of men shall come upon the stage who know nothing more of religion than a threshing-machine, and have scarcely more social charm than a storage battery." And since Herbert Spencer has said, with characteristic felicity of expression, that "we dress the minds of our children as we do their bodies, in the prevailing fashion," it is of the very first importance that the church shall be powerfully influential in setting the fashion in education.

There have been periods in other centuries when the church spoke the final word. Its voice was authority from which no appeal was taken or even thought of. This is not so now. It has not been so for a long time in continental Europe. It is true only in a modified sense in England. In America the church unquestionably occupies vantage-ground, but whether it is to hold this position in matters educational will depend largely on the developments of the near future. American ideas are rapidly becoming world ideas. So long as the church maintains a position of commanding influence in shaping educational ideals and in directing educational policies, character will be the chief aim in all our processes. If, on the contrary, the church loses its hold, purely secular ends will dominate all systems, and it would be impossible to overstate the disastrous consequences. Education is essentially a life-molding process. During the formative periods of life questions of paramount importance arise. Here the church meets its great opportunity. It alone can answer these questions with definiteness. If it surrenders its high place to others, and allows vagueness or silence to be substituted for its voice of authority, it will soon lose all control over brilliant and influential men who shape the destinies of States and nations. The Roman Catholic Church is thoroughly aroused, and its wise foresight in this regard is worthy of imitation. The various Methodist bodies throughout the world are not indifferent, and some of them are wide awake. The Baptists in the United States notably are displaying commendable enterprise in this great field. There are indications, however, in other churches of a large and increasingly influential sentiment favorable to the policy of relegating the educational work to other agencies. The church ought to be a unit in this great department of Christian endeavor. That there should be hesitation anywhere is a fact to be deplored. The twentieth century will bring responsibilities never faced before. If the church can not help the world to solve its great problems, its mission will not long be respected. "It must inspire and lead, or else it dies."

We can not overstate the importance of the action of the last General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, in reference to the educational work of the church. It put emphasis in the right place. It is to be hoped that the result will be great achievement. We should place our institutions on foundations which will secure their permanence, and enable them to command respect everywhere. In order to this we must evince a vigor unparalleled in our past history. The equipment of the past will not meet the demands of the new century.—Nashville Advocate.

Millsaps College.

Bishop Asbury said that it is as much our business to educate the people as it is to get them converted. Certainly a church that is indifferent to the intellectual life of its people has a small mission in human history. It is a narrow ministry that seeks only to make people good. It is not enough for people simply to be good. They must be great. Christ came into the earth to make a great humanity, and he sought the development of every resource of human nature. The preacher who undertakes to do less than this forfeits his right to lead men in the name of Christ.—Dr. J. C. Kilgo, in Raleigh Christian Advocate.

If the church does not look after the social life of the young people and furnish them with recreation, the devil will attend to it for them.—Texas Advocate.

IT IS NOT DEATH.

BY GEORGE W. BETHUNE.

It is not death to die—
To leave this weary road,
And, 'mid the brotherhood on high,
To be at home with God.

It is not death to close
The eye long dimmed by tears,
And wake in glorious repose
To spend eternal years

It is not death to fling
Aside this sinful dust,
And rise, on strong, exulting wing,
To live among the just.

Jesus, thou Prince of Life!
Thy chosen can not die;
Like thee, they conquer in the strife,
To reign with thee on high.

FROM "REX."

MR. EDITOR: Thinking you might be interested in an account of Dr. Leftwich's "revival meetings" at Jefferson Street Church, in this city, from the stand-point of a layman, I proceed to perform the duty of enlightening you and your readers on that subject.

Dr. Leftwich preached his first sermon on the twelfth instant at night, and then each day at 10 A. M., and at night, except Saturdays and when the weather was too inclement, up to and including the twenty-sixth instant. I consider myself a good judge of gospel preaching (I say this without egotism, in the smallest degree), and I have been hearing "the Word" for more than half a century, and I must do the Doctor the justice to say that I have never heard a series of sermons so exceptionally able, instructive, spiritual, searching and interesting in my life. While this is true, it is also true that in some of the preacher's deliverances I could not concur, but these were few and far between.

During his sermon from the text, "We know that we have passed from death into life," etc, he stressed the proposition that the work of salvation is largely the exercise of the human will, for or against. That is, that all a man has to do is to consent to the work of divine grace, and the spiritual child is born and ready to be dressed. He also disconnted the element of emotion in our religious experience, claiming that we are likely to be deceived thereby, etc. While this sort of theology is very common in this age of push and progressive methods and theories, I beg to deny that it is in consonance either with the teachings of the "Book" or those of primitive Methodism.

It is true that God can not save a human soul without the consent of its will, but it is equally true that such a consent is but a small element in the plan of salvation, because to give that consent any efficacy it must be preceded by a deep conviction of sin and sincere repentance, and be followed by faith in Christ and in his willingness and readiness to pardon. Conviction is an emotion, repentance is an emotion, as is also faith, or belief, as all these have their origin and run their course in the heart. The Book says, "With the heart man believeth unto right eousness and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Again: "His spirit beareth witness with our spirits that we are the children of God," etc.—all of which is a matter of the heart and, per consequence, must be emotional in its character. It is a common mistake in our day to suppose that a man can serve the devil as hard as he can until he gets scared at the prospect of a bed in hell, and then turn about, quit his former meanness, join the church, the Y. M. C. A., the Epworth League and one or two other societies, and get to heaven. There is but one way of salvation, and the way that never approaches the cross is not the right way!

In a subsequent sermon, and considering the matter of acceptable and prevailing prayer, he took the position that the honor and glory of God, and conformity to his will, must be the primal object in all cases. Illustrating his position, he recited the following incident: The child of a Christian mother had been ill with typhoid for five weeks, and was at the point of death, or supposed to be, when the mother sent an urgent message to a minister to come and pray for her child's recovery. On his arrival the mother came to him, and he asked her what she desired. She replied that she wished him to pray for the recovery of her child. He asked, Why? She seemed astonished, but replied, Because I love him! The preacher replied that if that was her only object, she would have to excuse him! (This reminded me of the suggestion of the Pharisees to the man who was born blind, "Give God the glory," etc.) After defining his position to her, and after many tears, she finally met, as he supposed, the conditions; they had prayers. Three weeks afterwards the child's father, who was a physician, informed the preacher that on that morning the child had seemed to relish food, and he had some hopes of its recovery, and three months afterwards the child could walk a little, with the help of its mother! The Doctor evidently considered this an answer to the prayers made three months before, but I regret my utter inability to concur. If the conditions for prevailing prayer had been complied with—and the preacher thought they had—it is only reasonable to believe that the child would have shown signs of amendment in a less time than three weeks! It will be a long time before anyone will induce me to believe that He who pitieth those that fear—i. e, love Him—like as a father pitieth his children, proposes, in his dealings with us, that we shall bury or crucify those natural affections which He has Himself made a part of our being, when we approach Him in prayer. The trend of the Doctor's contention was against selfish or personal ends in prayer, all of which is perfectly right, if you don't go too far. When Peter started across the billows of the sea of Galilee, and was about to go under, the prayer that saved him was much more selfish than was that of the poor mother who asked for the life of her little one, but the answer came in an instant, and Peter was saved. There are a number of other examples to be found in the ministry of the Master where purely selfish prayers were answered to the joy and healing of the supplianta, and with Him there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. God demands no homage from his creatures at the expense of a violation of the laws of natural affection, which laws are the fruit of his own will. But enough of this.

I regret to say that, notwithstanding the high order of the preaching, and the earnest and faithful efforts of both the Doctor and Bro. Carpenter, the visible results of the meeting were small. REX.

SARDIS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

After very interesting and, we trust, most profitable sessions of the W. F. M. and H. M. and P. Societies on April 25 and 26, only a part of which the writer had the pleasure of attending, the brethren of the Sardis district came together in the Methodist Church at Hernando, Miss., April 26, 1900, at 2:30 o'clock P. M., in the thirtieth session of the District Conference of this district, with the live, consecrated presiding elder, Rev. W. S. Lagrone, in the chair. Rev. B. P. Jaco and P. T. Callicott had the honor to be made secretaries.

The Conference was readily organized, and proceeded at once to take up the program as arranged for the Sunday-school Conference, which brought on several profitable discussions, in connection with which some most worthy papers were presented, prominent among which was one by Rev. T. Cameron, and another by Hon. N. A. Taylor, both of which were requested for publication in church papers. The Conference had two special features as regards attendance. First, out of 114 members there were present not over 35, and, second, the presence and earnest activity of so many prominent and useful laymen. The presence and thoughtful address of Mrs. M. I. Hoskins, representing the Grenada College, added interest and delight to the occasion, and commended the wisdom of Bro. McIntosh in placing so able and consecrated a woman in charge of our girls. We are sure our district feels proud of its representation to appear in our next Annual Conference, viz.: Hon. F. Clark Holmes, Hon. Jno. C. Kyle, Mr. P. B. Jones, and Mr. P. T. Callicott. The Conference voted to renew the license to preach of the following local preachers: A. C. Manghan, Wm. Dunoan, J. H. Arnold, J. C. Clark, J. A. Sowel, and J. A. Goode. Rev. J. A Goode was elected to deacon's orders, and recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The preaching was done by Rev. W. W. Mitchell, Rev. J. C. Lowe, Rev. L. D. Worsham, Rev. W. T. Griffin, Rev. B. P. Jaco, Dr. W. B. Murrah, and Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, and was with power in demonstration of the Spirit. Bro. Griffin presented the cause of the Orphans' Home, and received a contribution of over $109 in cash and subscription. Bro. G. W. Bachman was present in full discharge of the duties of his office, and was specially commended by a strong resolution unanimously adopted. A paper respecting the projected paper, The Mississippi Methodist, was before the Committee on Books and Periodicals, and reported on adversely, and report was adopted after some speeches against a new paper, and expressions of desire that some one would represent the other side. Later, however, a member otherwise occupied at the time of the passage of the report found time to arrange to confer with this desire, and moving a reconsideration of the report was successful, upon which the friends of the new paper offered a substitute proposing co-operation with the new paper project, and after about two hours' debate a motion prevailed to table the substitute by a vote of 9 to 7. The report, as originally offered, was then again adopted by the same vote instead of a unanimous one. The new paper idea thus seems to be growing.

The reports from the several charges among others presented these facts: Appointments, 59; members, 3,681; received this year, 112; prayer meetings, 21; church papers taken, 210; family altars, 103; Leagues, 9; Sunday-schools, 49; expended on churches, $415; on parsonages, $1,060; assessed for pastors, $8,325; paid on same, $2,646.50; paid nearly one-third of the assessment for missions, and about one-tenth of amount expected on the Twentieth Century Fund.

Our stirring presiding elder gives a District Conference a briskness and freshness that is both enjoyable and profitable. The work prospers under his able administration. This was a most spiritual Conference, conducted in true Methodist style, with earnest preaching, calling mourners, opening doors of the church, earnest praying, and free shouting under the power of the Holy Ghost. Thank God for such times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

BEN P. JACO, Sec'y.

DISTRICT DOTS.

"It is one of the luxuries of life always to be able to express yourself with some degree of accuracy." Thus wrote Ian Maclaren in that fine little book, "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush." This is one of the luxuries which would harm nobody, and would be a personal adornment to everybody. The inaccuracies of speech are very many, especially among preachers. This seems strange when we consider the object of preaching—to persuade men to live the religion of Jesus Christ. To accomplish this men must be made acquainted with the gospel. This is a matter of such tremendous importance for time and eternity that a preacher ought to spare no pains to attain to an accurate knowledge of the language in which he speaks, and to practice assiduously the best forms of expression. It is a joy beyond measure to listen to a preacher who gives out clear ideas in accurate forms of speech. You feel, then, that you are enjoying a rare luxury. Its very rarity contributes to its enjoyment. And yet so many preachers are contented to use a slip-shod language, and when that fails, to go off into vulgar slang. Slang in the pulpit is at a discount among good men and women, and how much more at a discount it must be with Jesus Christ, whose speech was characterized by intense purity and strictest accuracy!

The work in our district has improved over last year. This is shown by two facts—more members are attending Quarterly Conferences, and better provision has been made for the support of the ministry. There have been also up to this time several successful protracted meetings, where the spiritual life of God's people has been quickened and sinners converted. We are expecting great things from God, because we are pleading his great promises at a throne of grace. We expect to see answers to our prayers in a deepened religious life, and a divine glow of holy enthusiasm kindled in hundreds of souls, and earnest work done for the salvation of men. In my judgment, the finances of our district are improving, the prospect for successful collections being much better than at this time last year. Some of our preachers have entered upon the Twentieth Century Fund campaign with success, and others are preparing for it, and when this part of the work is reviewed at the next Annual Conference, we hope to make a creditable report. The number of people who are always ready to express thanks to God in the form of dollars is small in comparison with those who are always ready to express thanks in words. It is so much easier to talk than to give. What St. Paul calls "the grace of liberality" does not seem to be a very popular grace. Very few people seem to be groaning after it, and when it does visit some, that visit forms an epoch in their lives to which they constantly ever afterwards refer with conscious pride, yet never open their hearts again to receive and welcome a second visit. Notwithstanding this impediment to the success of the Twentieth Century Thank-offering, I believe the scheme will achieve a large measure of success. Some of the brethren have worked out the problem on paper, and shown clearly how easy it is to raise this fund by each member giving one dollar. That is all that is to be done. When Dr. Kelley was Missionary Secretary he showed clearly that all the financial problems of the church would be solved by everybody contributing something. I believe that is true, but when you transfer the question from paper and pencil, and bring it in contact with everybody's purse, you see that somehow your plan don't work. The conditions seem changed, and many people you can not reach at all. I see that one brother, taking his cue from Bishop Candler, has said that this scheme has put the presiding elders on trial before the church. Why the presiding elders any more than anybody else? As far as being on trial is concerned, we are all on trial in every duty and privilege and opportunity of life. The whole of life is simply a being on trial until death closes the scene. P. E.

SABBATH DESECRATION.

MR. EDITOR: I want to say "Amen" to Bro. Lagrone's article on the subject of the Sabbath. It seems to me that it is time to wake up from our slumber and sleep on the subject. The only question to my mind is, Has the Fourth Commandment been abrogated or modified? If so, let some one point out chapter and verse in the Book. If not, then we have to remember it to keep it holy; and if we do not, we are sinners, and God will judge and punish us in this life, and also in the life to come. It seems to me that God is already judging and punishing us now.

A few years ago the Legislature passed a law prohibiting the running of freight trains on the Sabbath, but the fruit and vegetable men brought such a pressure to bear on the professing Christian governor that he vetoed the bill, and God rebuked and chastened them for it, for that Spring, and the following, there came storms, hail and cold, and beat the fruit and vegetables to pieces. Then later the Legislature passed another law to the same effect, and there was such a pressure brought to bear on them that they reconsidered it, and voted it down by three majority, I believe. And then followed storms, cold, and such a drouth the vegetables were dried up; so there was very little to ship. Then the last Legislature would hardly consider a bill at all. One was presented for their consideration, but many spoke against it, and large petitions were presented, and, I believe, only the author of the bill, when brought up, would speak a word in its favor; so it went down in shame and disgrace.

Well, God has asserted himself, and the plague has been sent, several lives have been lost, and millions of wealth have been swept into the creeks, rivers, and ocean, and everything thrown into confusion, consternation, and destruction.

It does seem to me anyone with one eye could see the hand of God avenging himself. I am afraid if we do not speedily repent, God will "bend his bow, and make ready his arrow upon the string." "Because I have called and ye have refused. I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded. But ye have set at nought all my counsel, and would none of my reproof. I also will laugh at your calamity. I will mock when your fear cometh." (Prov. i, 24, 25, 26.)

It may be that if we persist in our sins, we will have a repetition of the Pharaoh and Red Sea tragedy. May God save us from our sins!

The railroad's desecration is no worse than any other, only that it is more extensive and public, and has such influence on everything else.

All public violations of the Sabbath ought to be stopped at once, and, as far as possible, all private, railroads, work shops, factories, barber shops, etc. All ought to close down business on the Sabbath, and if they will not voluntarily do so, they ought to be forced to do it. They are living in open violation of God's law of the Sabbath. They ought to do it voluntarily, and if they will not, there ought to be such a pressure brought to bear on the governor that he would call a special session of the Legislature for the purpose of passing Sabbath laws.

Now, I expect some one will think I am beside myself. Go to the expense of calling a special session! Why not wait two years till they meet? Well, it may cost a great deal more to wait than to have them meet at once. "Oh, Lord, I have heard thy speech, and was afraid." (Habakkuk iii, 2.)

Brethren, Bishops, editors, ministers, lay members, and all, let us come to the rescue of our Christian Sabbath. If we will do our duty, God will bring it to pass speedily.

Brethren, speak out at once. Agitate, agitate, agitate all together for a short, decisive pull, and the work will be done. May God help us to do our duty at once!

Yours for the Christian Sabbath,
A. D. MILLER.

ON WHAT DID CHRIST BUILD HIS CHURCH?

It seems quite difficult for many, even learned men, to decide on what Christ built his church. This difficulty results from Christ's question to his disciples, and also his reply to Peter's answer to his question when he said: "But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." (Matt. xvi, 15, 16, 17, 18.) In his reply to Peter's answer our blessed Lord said, "Upon this rock I will build my church," and the question is, To what did he refer, or what did he mean when he said, "Upon this rock"? Some have thought he meant Peter, while others believe firmly that he meant the faith Peter had when he said, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." But let us now, in the light of God's Word, see if we can not find Christ's real meaning. Our Lord does not say, "on Peter," but, "on this rock I will build my church." In other words, in the Greek he does not say, "epi Petro," but "epi taute Petra." "I will build my church." To be short, "epi taute Petra," on this rock, means Christ himself, and that it does mean Christ himself is evident from what Paul says in Romans, "I lay in Zion a stumbling-stone and a rock of offense" (Rom. ix, 33), or as the Greek has it, "Tithemi en Sion lithou proskommatos, Kai petran skandalou." In this passage we have "petrau," the accusative of petra, not petros, and immediately following what we have quoted Paul says, "Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed," referring to the stone of stumbling and rock of offense just quoted. That Christ himself is the petra, or foundation of his church, is clear from the following passage, "Now, therefore, ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone." (Eph. ii, 20.) But a passage directly to the point is, "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." (I. Cor, iii, 11.) So the matter is settled by the Word of God, and by it made plain that Christ is the rock he referred to on which he built his church.

MOTIVES.

"Base all your actions upon a principle of right, preserve your integrity of character, and in doing this never reckon the cost." It is the motive more than anything else which renders an action good or bad. Do we not find infinite pleasure and satisfaction in performing a kind act for the welfare only of the person concerned? Fidelity involves self-denial, and an act performed through self-denial gives to us true happiness, but do we not generally reckon the cost of our actions? If we stop and examine the motive which lies deep in our hearts for many of our deeds of kindness, we find often the act is performed for the glory which may reflect on us, or often it is for the praise and flattery which comes to our ears. Again, it may be to show our influence, and in so doing bring another to humble himself or herself before us with a deep sense of obligation. We may appear generous to the world by giving largely, and feel a degree of pride at seeing our name heading various lists, but are we generous in the true sense of the word if self-denial is not used in the giving?

Christians and Christianity would do more to honor Christ if, from their lives, they would cast aside the small, petty motives which they allow to creep into their actions, and do all from the purest motive—love of God and your fellow-beings. Every day we live we can honor Christ by some kind act—many there are we meet who need a stronger arm to lean upon. If we are strong, let us put out the arm for the weaker one to lean on, and let them feel. Support. Doubtless many a friend's way lies across a rough path, and they grow weary, disconraged, and sad, but words and acts of tenderness and kindness will make the path less rugged and thorny. Be kind from the goodness of your heart, and bring to yourself sweet peace; to God, honor, and to your friend, happiness.

Years may pass without affording any opportunity for acts of high beneficence, whereas not a day passes but gentleness may promote the happiness of others. There are many faiths and creeds constantly arising, and more than ever do the followers of Christ require to make religion beautiful. The world asks, What has it done for the Christian? If we have been to the world cold, selfish, unsympathetic, acting from selfish motives only, can we wonder that they do not want our belief? But to be tender, gentle, performing acts of generosity and kindness from pure motives, to be above slander and pride, then our religion becomes beautiful and alluring. It brings many a homeless wanderer back to his mother's faith, and to the wavering mind it settles many doubts.—Recorder.

Take up your duty whatever you can do to make the world more bright and good. Do whatever you can to help every struggling soul, to add strength to any staggering cause—the poor sick man who is by you, the poor wronged man whom you with your influence, can vindicate, the poor boy in your shop that you may set with new hope upon the road of life that is beginning already to look dark to him. You know your duty. No man ever looked for it and did not find it.—Phillips Brooks.

Bishop Brooks seldom put into smaller compass a weightier truth than when he said: "Prayer is not conquering God's reluctance, but laying hold upon God's willingness. Our own reluctance to accept God's will has often to be conquered before we can be brought into right relations with the Father, and we sometimes call this struggle prayer, but it is hardly the right name for it.—Exchange.

Duty's path always opens for us as we go on—not before we start, but as we obey and move forward. Yet we must not expect there will never be any difficulties to meet or obstacles to surmount. God never has promised that. Too easy a path is often a bane in life, not a blessing. The difficulties and obstacles that remain may be made stepping-stones by which we shall rise to higher things.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

An humble confession of sin brings shame to ourselves, but glory to God.—Mason.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE BROTHERHOOD AND THE NATCHEZ DISTRICT.

DEAR BRETHREN: The object of the Brotherhood is to relieve the minds of the preacher and his family while living, and the preachers, to some extent, when dying, with regard to his family in the future. Many of the preachers have just a bare living while they live, and nothing to leave for their families when they die. No household or kitchen furniture, no home; nothing. Oh, what a relief it would be to know that soon after death five or six hundred dollars would be placed in the hands of their families to help them start off, or support them in their declining years! And that was the object had in the organization of the Brotherhood: to relieve to some extent and lift the burden off the loved, but sad ones left behind. What a glorious object! And ought not everyone be willing to help in this heaven-born purpose? Every preacher and every layman ought to belong to it. Preachers are beneficiaries, and have to pay 10 cents per annum for incidental expenses, and $5 at the death of a beneficiary member. Laymen are honorary members, and have to pay the 10 cents incidental, and $1 when a minister dies. Is that not a small amount? And yet, when put together, would help to let a little sunshine into the hearts and homes of the sad, but loved ones. Every preacher and layman in the bounds of the Natchez district ought to belong to it. And yet I am informed that only about three preachers and one or two laymen do actually belong to it.

Brethren, do you not want to join now? If so, send your name, inclosing 10 cents for incidental expenser, either in silver or stamps, to me. That is all you will have to pay until the death of one of the preachers who is a member, and you will only have to pay when one dies. It may be one or two assessments a year, and it may not be any, for we are not going to die as long as we can help it. We ought to have about fifteen preachers and at least one hundred laymen in the bounds of the Natchez district.

Brethren, please send your names to me at once, and I will see that you are properly enrolled, and you will always be informed when an assessment is due, and will have thirty days in which to settled it. Send names to my address at Lorman, Jefferson county, Miss. If any brother in any other district wishes to be enrolled, I will gladly assist you in the matter.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY CAMPAIGN FOR THE ARCADIA DISTRICT.

The committee ordered by the Annual Conference have arranged the following plan to work the Twentieth Century cause in the Arcadia district:

We have divided the district into four divisions, and appointed campaigners to work each division as follows:

Ruston Division—Campaigners: Rev. H. R. Singleton and Prof. O. B. Staples. Charges to be worked: Ruston, Downsville, Farmerville, Calhoun, Vernon, and Bernice and Dubach.

Minden Division—Campaigners: Rev. C. P. Smith and Prof. G. L. Green. Charges to be worked: Minden, Lanesville, Valley, and Ebeland.

Homer Division—Rev. W. F. Henderson and Rev. W. W. Nicholson, campaigners. Charges to be worked: Homer, Liabon, and Hanesville.

Arcadia Division—Campaigners: Rev. S. J. Davies and Hon. W. H. Hollis. Charges to be worked: Arcadia, Bienville, Simsboro, and Gans ville.

The pastors are urged to arrange with the campaigners for their charges with reference to the time and places of rallies in the interest of the Twentieth Century Fund.

We also urge that each pastor try to secure his Conference collection in the month of May, in order that we may have an open field for the prosecution of this most important movement of the closing year of the nineteenth century.

Dear brethren, pastors and laymen, your committee is very anxious that the old Arcadia district shall not be second to any district in the Conference in her thank-offerings to God for his goodness and mercies to our church and people, leading us to the accomplishment of our great work in the last century. Praying God's blessings upon you, your churches and homes, we are,

Your fellow-servants,

B. T. CREWS,
C. P. SMITH,
H. R. SINGLETON,

NOTES ABOUT SARDIS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Sardis District Conference, just closed at Hernando, was an enjoyable occasion. The preachers and laymen came in the spirit of the Master. Every service and Conference session was interesting and profitable. The spirit of the Lord was with us, and we served, worshiped and praised the Lord together. The impression and memory of those sermons and services will abide. Before the guests left us they had a pleasant contention about who had the best home—each thinking his was the best. Now that they are gone, the hosts are contending about whose guest was the nicest. They thank me for sending just whom I did to them. The Lord bless and save all the good company.

LEE A CHRISTIAN SOLDIER.

When the armies of General Lee and General Meade were confronting each other at Mine Run, Virginia, in November, 1863, General Lee, with his staff, was riding along his battle line, inspecting his own troops and reconnoitering the opposing lines. In the rear of A. P. Hill's corps he suddenly came upon a large number of men engaged in one of those prayer meetings which we frequently had on the eve of battle. The general at once halted, dismounted, and joined in the simple service; and when those humble private soldiers arose from their knees they found that they had been leading the devotions of their honored and beloved chief.

He closed his order for the observance of the "Fast Day" appointed by President Davis for Aug. 21, 1863, with these ringing words:

"Soldiers! we have sinned against Almighty God. We have forgotten his signal mercies, and have cultivated a revengeful, haughty, and boastful spirit. We have not remembered that the defenders of a just cause should be pure in his eyes—that 'our times are in his hands'—and we have relied too much on our own arms for the achievement of our independence. God is our only refuge and our strength. Let us humble ourselves before him. Let us confess our many sins and beseech him to give us a higher courage, a purer patriotism, a more determined will—that he will convert the hearts of our enemies—that he will hasten the time when war, with its sorrows and sufferings, shall cease—and that he will give us a name and place among the nations of the earth.

"R. E. LEE, General."

I can never forget the effect produced by the reading of this order at the solemn services of this memorable fast day. A revival was already in progress in many of the commands—the day was almost universally observed—the attendance upon preaching and other services was very large. The solemn attention and starting tear attested the deep interest felt, and the work of grace among the troops widened and deepened, and went gloriously on until over fifteen thousand of the soldiers of Lee's army had professed repentance towards God and faith in Jesus Christ.—From "The Inner Life of Robert Edward Lee," by Chaplain J. William Jones. The Chautauquan for May.

LEARN TO CONTROL YOUR THOUGHTS.

Until you have learned to control your thoughts you will never be able to live a godly and righteous life. As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he; and it is because the thoughts that we entertain in the hostelry of the soul are such worthless and vain ones that our words and acts often bring so heavy a disgrace on the name we love. Well might the wise man say: "Keep thy heart above all keeping, for out of it are the issues of life." When the heart is right, the ear and the eye and the mouth and the foot will necessarily obey its promptings; but when the heart is wrong, filled with tides of ink, like the cuttle-fish, it will develop itself in the impurity to which it gives vent. • • If you habitually permit evil things to have their right of way through you, or lodging within you, remember that in God's sight you are held equally guilty with those that indulge in evil acts, because you are withheld, not by your fear of him, but by your desire to maintain your position among men.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

FROM THE WORK.

LETTER FROM SIMSBORO CIRCUIT, LA.

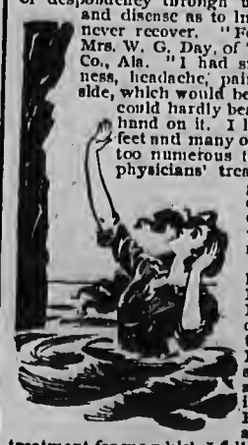
Our second Quarterly Conference is over. Our presiding elder was on hand, and preached in the power and demonstration of the Spirit. We were all helped by his plain, forceful presentation of the gospel. We had a love-feast at 10 A. M., and the administration of the sacrament after the 11 o'clock sermon. The charge is getting on very well in some respects, but we are praying for and expecting a moving forward soon. We need a revival of religion that will bring about more consecrated living and action. We are receiving a few members by certificate; others have promised to join. Finances are badly behind. We expect to push our Conference collections as soon as we get congregations. We have raised some money in cash and subscriptions at two points. We have been hindered some by rain and unfavorable weather; also by measles, la grippe, and whoping cough, which have been prevalent among our people. I have missed only one appointment, Christmas eve.

I have done much visiting from house to house. I find but few ADVOCATES taken—a fact I much regret. Will do what I can to change this condition of affairs.

THOS. J. MARTIN.

"I Thought I Would Never Be Well Again."

One of the saddest things that can happen to a woman is to fall into such a depth of despondency through unnatural weakness and disease as to imagine that she can never recover. "For two years," says Mrs. W. G. Day, of Trussville, Jefferson Co., Ala. "I had suffered with weakness, headache, pain in my back and side, which would become so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my hand on it. I had cold hands and feet and many other bad symptoms too numerous to mention. Home physicians' treatment did me no good. I had become very despondent and thought I would never be well again.



"But with a faint heart I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and described my symptoms as best I could. He promptly answered by letter, and sent me a treatise on 'Woman and Her Diseases'; he also outlined a treatment for me which I followed to the best of my ability, and after taking six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' I can truthfully say that I felt like a new woman. In a few months afterwards, when I was suffering with the many troubles due to pregnancy, I procured 'Favorite Prescription' again and took it through that time. I soon became very stout and felt well. I was in labor only a short time and got along well: better than I ever did before. My baby is a fine boy, now two months old, and has never been sick any. I cannot find words sufficient to express my praise of Dr. Pierce's medicine. I never miss an opportunity to recommend it. I hope all suffering ladies will consult him, for they will be benefited by taking his medicine."

Letters to Dr. Pierce are treated in the most sacred confidence, and never published without permission, and the most careful, professional advice is given by return mail free of charge.

Women would understand their own mental and physical natures better; they would make better wives and mothers; they would be every way healthier, happier, and more capable, by reading and studying Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated book, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is a veritable, complete family medical library in one magnificent volume. More than half a million copies have been sold at $1.50 each, but a free copy, paper-bound, will be sent to any woman on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only; or if a heavier, handsome cloth-bound book is preferred, send 31 stamps.

In California.

The Golden State is seriously considering the necessity of quarantining against consumptives. This means that God's fresh air and sunshine, nowhere more entrancing and beautiful than on the Pacific slope, may be denied to the unfortunate sufferers. Thousands have been greatly benefited and many cured by the delicious atmosphere of California, and it appears a most cruel measure, even though sanctioned by medical stages of consumption, and surely doomed, could have been cured by early resort to that most gracious healing remedy, MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Beef Steak in a Bottle.

That fresh, juicy beef, ready for digestion, can be made into a delicious cordial is a marvel, but chemistry has accomplished it. Sick people at a distance from markets and needing the nourishment afforded by beef tea can procure Dicks' NUTRITIVE ELIXIR and find it the best liquid food and stimulant known. For loss of appetite, weak digestion, debility, typhoid fever, and consumption it is invaluable.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

MUCH REMAINS TO BE DONE.

The lively enthusiasm that has been awakened in many parts of our Zion by the Twentieth Century Movement is gratifying in the extreme, and is a splendid augury of success. A number of large gifts have been received, and several Conferences, notably the Helston, the Tennessee, and the Louisville, have done nobly. Though up to date the amount raised is something over eight hundred thousand dollars, it is evident that our work in this direction is only about half done—that is, if we mean to succeed. The time for resting on our oars has not yet arrived. Our Bishops, gifted and surpassingly zealous as they are, can not do all the talking and collecting.

This campaign for education, if it is to accomplish what we expect, must also be a campaign of education. The less our people know about the movement and about the needs of our colleges, the more unwilling they will be to make a thank-offering, the more certain they will be to conclude that an assessment is being levied upon them. The phenomenal success that has been achieved at Carrollton, Miss., through the wise and persistent efforts of Bro. Bingham, are a striking attestation of the value of intelligent enthusiasm, of the circulation of educational literature, and of vigorous canvassing. The exercise of a like intelligent zeal is almost certain to produce like results in other charges.

While multitudes are being reached by educational mass meetings, it is impossible to reach every member in this way. Hence, house-to-house visitation is necessary in many instances, for no pastor should fail to give every member an opportunity to make a thank-offering. We must see to it, however, that every member is, first of all, thoroughly enlightened as to the purpose and grandeur of the movement, and then, when the matter has been laid upon their consciences, we think there are few indeed who will not respond with a contribution. The pastor who, having obtained several goodly offerings from his well-to-do members, lets the canvass drop, does the rest of his membership a great injustice, and fails to appreciate how vastly the church will be benefited through the bringing of the rank and file of her members into closer touch with her educational work, and through the general awakening of the spirit of gratitude.

The task we have set ourselves, in comparison with what the other branches of Methodism have undertaken to do by the close of the century, seems small indeed. A million and a half of dollars would not be too much to bestow upon simply one of our higher institutions of learning, especially when we consider the vast endowments by which many schools in the North are maintained. While gifts to American colleges last year amounted to over $55,000,000, only $438,000 of this went to Southern schools. Though twenty times the amount asked for as a thank-offering could be utilized to the very best of advantage in the endowment of our colleges, yet, if we succeed in raising every dollar of the million and a half desired as a thank-offering—and there is no reason why we should not—a new era will be inaugurated in Southern Methodist educational enterprise. Unless we have faith in our own schools, and put more money into them, we can not expect any favors from outside philanthropists.

Methodism is the beneficiary in no small degree of endowed colleges and fellowships, for, had it not been for these, John and Charles Wesley would never, perhaps, have been able to go to Oxford, or to obtain university training, and their usefulness would, in consequence, have been sadly crippled.

The pastor who is diligent in circulating educational literature among his flock, who is praying for success, and who is brimful of enthusiasm over this movement, though he may have a discouraging field in which to labor, will, we predict, meet with the most gratifying success in his canvass. Since such generous contributions have been made by our converts in Brazil, China, and other mission fields, what may we not expect here at home? Let every man do his best, and let us count on nothing but success. If this is not a movement for the glory of God and for the uplifting of man, then we have totally misapprehended its significance. Indifference can but result in failure.

BRINGING LYNCHERS TO JUSTICE.

It is an almost unheard-of thing in any part of the country for lynchers to be brought to trial. We are glad to see, however, that a determined effort is being made by the authorities and law-abiding citizens of Amite county, Miss., to secure the conviction and punishment of the parties implicated in the recent lynching of a negro in that county. Thirteen men have been arrested, and the coroner's jury having brought in a verdict charging eleven of them with murder, all save two were placed in jail without the privilege of bail, to await their trial, which was set for Monday, May 7.

Lynching is, under any circumstances, a deeply disgraceful, criminal, and demoralizing method of punishing evil-doers. In the present instance it was peculiarly inexcusable and lawless, on account of the fact that the victim had not committed any grave crime. Having been tried before the justice of the peace on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, he was fined $25 and costs, and sentenced to ninety days in jail. While being taken to prison, he was seized by a mob and hanged. The fact that he was regarded as a bad negro does not justify the crime in the least. Every member of the commonwealth, no matter how unworthy, is entitled to justice and the due protection of the law. The toleration of lynching is the toleration of a species of anarchism. The only effectual way to put a stop to such shameful acts of lawlessness is to ferret out the offenders and have them severely punished. Such misdeeds have too long been winked at among us. The honor of the South, as well as of Mississippi, demands that the perpetrators of mob violence should be brought to justice.

THE M. E. CHURCH ADOPTS EQUAL LAY DELEGATION.

On the second instant, during its first day's session, the General Conference of the M. E. Church unanimously adopted a resolution providing for equal lay representation, and at once the one hundred and forty-one provisional lay delegates who had been elected to the Conference were admitted to seats in the body. A sharp contest over the matter was looked for, but it failed to materialize. The announcement of the vote, it is stated, was greeted with cheers.

Thus at last our brethren of the M. E. Church have wisely followed the example of the Southern Methodists in adopting a measure which was incorporated into our system no less than thirty years ago. The General Conference of 1866, which met in this city, by a vote of ninety-seven to forty-four passed a resolution providing for equal lay representation therein. This action having been ratified by the succeeding Annual Conferences, the General Conference of 1870 witnessed the admission for the first time of laymen.

It is rather remarkable that the Southern Methodist Church, which is usually regarded as being much more conservative than the M. E. Church, should thus early have anticipated that body in so radical an innovation.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH.

A rather sensational feature of last Friday's session was the passage of the following resolution, introduced by Rev. William Wilson, of Iowa, which occasioned a lively debate:

"Resolved, That no Bishop or General Conference officer shall receive anything above actual expenses for services in the dedication and reopening of churches, attending commencements of Methodist educational institutions, or for any similar services which he might render the church."

Evidently the receiving of money by Bishops and general officers has grown to be an abuse in the M. E. Church, else such a resolution would never have been adopted.

Strong effort is being made to bring about the repeal of the special clause in the Discipline prohibitive of dancing, card-playing, and theatre going, it being the conviction of many members of the Conference that a specific rule against such amusements is not for the best, and that matters of this kind should be left more to the individual conscience.

It is thought that the Committee on Episcopacy will recommend the election of five new Bishops. While there is some talk of electing a colored Bishop, there is not the least likelihood that the colored brother will be thus honored.

On Monday a resolution was introduced giving the approval of the Conference to the individual communion cup, but was quickly cried down without the formality of a discussion.

The General Conference of the M. E. Church is a huge body. Over eight hundred delegates are in attendance.

The M. E. Church has had limited lay delegation since 1872.

DEATH OF BRO. BANCROFT.

A brief note from Rev. T. L. Mellen, received a few days ago, conveys the sad intelligence of the death on the night of the first instant of that godly superannuate and faithful servant of the church, Rev. George Bancroft, of the Mississippi Conference. Bro. Bancroft was a man of most excellent character, zealous, consecrated, and self-denying as a minister, and has done valiant service in the Master's cause. On account of his advanced age and feeble health his name has for a number of years appeared on the honor roll of his Conference. His decease will be greatly and widely lamented. A suitable memoir will doubtless be furnished in due time.

A NEW BOOK.

THE BALDWIN PRIMER. By May Kirk. Cloth, 6½ in. x 7½ in., with colored illustrations. 128 pages. Price, 30 cents. American Book Company, New York, Cincinnati, Chicago.

The lessons in this primer have been prepared in accordance with well-established principles of mental science and child study. In addition to the things commonly taught in primers, the lessons in this book are made to include primary notions of language, number, color, and form, which are taught simultaneously with letters, sounds, and words. From the beginning the child learns to read the script alphabet as well as the common alphabet. Besides reading, the book contains lessons in stick laying, paper folding, modeling, and songs which, in addition to the particular facts they are designed to teach, are intended to give the child control over his arms, hands and fingers as a preparation for writing. Throughout the book the child proceeds from the known to the unknown and is at once interested in the familiar objects on which the lessons are based, while his instinct for the beautiful is awakened and developed by the free use of beautiful pictures. Besides a great number of half-tones and pen-and-ink sketches, the primer contains numerous colored illustrations of birds, flowers, animals, fruit, and other familiar objects.

A very successful protracted meeting has just closed at Canton, Miss. Twenty have been added to the church.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Four District Conferences were held simultaneously. I had the privilege of meeting with two of them—the Holly Springs at Hickory Flat, and the Sardis at Hernando. At both of these the pastors were about all present, but the local preachers and lay delegates were largely absent. Of course, the routine business was transacted, and those who were present and participated returned to their homes and charges with renewed spiritual strength and inspiration, while the absentees suffered loss both to themselves and the interests they represent. No preacher or church official will suffer loss from being faithful to duty and in his place in the church meetings of which he is a member. Probably, if pastors would "stir up the minds" of their local preachers, Sunday-school superintendents, stewards and others just before District and Quarterly Conferences, there would be better attendance and more interest on these occasions.

Rev. J. A. Bowen, the faithful pastor in Columbus, is engaged in a protracted meeting this week.

Rev. R. A. Burroughs is being assisted by Rev. W. M. Leftwich in a great meeting in Greenwood. Much good has already been accomplished, and the work is growing in interest and power.

Rev. M. L. Blanton is assisting Bro. Browning at Itta Bena in a revival meeting. The interest at this writing is good and increasing. Bro. Blanton's preaching is eminently scriptural. He preaches not himself, but "the Word of God," and proves himself "an embassador for Christ." There is substance and life in such preaching that will abide after the preacher has gone.

Bro. Park is to begin a meeting to-morrow in Winona, having as assistant Bro. Joe Ramsey, of Epworth League fame.

Other meetings are announced to be held soon. May a great wave of spiritual revival sweep over our Conference this year!

This scribe has been exceedingly busy during the past month, itinerating and doing the work assigned him. During April he visited twelve pastoral charges, including a District Epworth League Conference and two District Conferences. The sale of books has been quite satisfactory. The Young People's Hymnal is going rapidly, and congregational singing is improving in our churches. Let the tide of orders continue until our churches and homes are supplied with this and our very worthy and indispensable Standard Hymn Book.

G. W. BACHMAN.

DR. SAWYER'S IMPRESSIONS OF THE ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE.

Passing through the city on his return home, Rev. Dr. John T. Sawyer expressed himself to the Picayune as delighted with his trip to New York, and declared that the Ecumenical Conference was one of the grandest religious assemblies ever held, by reason of the character and ability of its delegates, the transcendent importance of its object, and the glorious subject of its deliberations, and the world-wide and lasting results sure to flow from it. Dr. Sawyer further said:

"Ex-President Benjamin Harrison was honorary president of the Conference, assisted by eminent men as vice-presidents from all over the world. On the reception night President McKinley and Governor Roosevelt made excellent addresses before an immense audience, many hundreds having been turned away, unable to secure even standing room.

"Missions, or the art of saving men, was the grand theme of every man and woman who read a paper or made a talk; missions, in all of its phases and relations, was ably discussed by practical workers of brains, culture, piety and success. Every topic was treated by master minds, illuminated by the Spirit's light, and buttressed by years of study and experience, born of passionate devotion to this grandest cause that can engage and absorb a human soul. It may well be conceded that the work of the Conference was well done, when it is stated that the principal speakers during the session, and all of them on live and burning questions, were Dr. Arthur T. Pierson, Dr. Mackay, of Toronto; President John B. Angell, of the University of Michigan; Bishop J. C. Hartzell, of Africa; Bishop Ridley, of Caisdonia; Dr. Lindsey, of Glasgow; Dr. Lambuth, of Nashville; Dr. J. M. Buckley, of New York; Bishop Thoburn, of India; Bishop E. R. Hendrix, of Kansas City; Hon. W. T. Harris, United States Commissioner of Education; Miss Coriune Shattuck, of Turkey; Dr. Hartford Battersby, of England; Rev. Canon W. J. Edmonds, B. D., of the British and Foreign Bible Society; S. B. Capen, LL.D., of Boston; Mary Bryan, M. D., of Van, India; Mrs. J. M. Leech, of the Southern Methodist Church, and scores of others just as eminent, gifted and learned.

"One of the most notable and honored members of the Conference was Dr. John G. Paton, for very many years a missionary in the New Hebrides, and two of the most effective speakers were Dr. Chamberlain, of India, and Dr. Ashmore, of China, both of them workers for more than forty years in the foreign field. The main subjects discussed were comity, co-operation, and self-support. There will hereafter be less waste of men and means, and more determined and successful will be the efforts of the home churches and missionary organizations to make every dollar tell for the evangelization of the world. That Conference represented 150,000,000 Christian professors, and should have tremendous weight and momentum in the saving of the race of man.

"Its cost to the church in New York was about $50,000, towards which Miss Helen Gould, who is one of the best types of the American Christian woman of to-day, contributed liberally, as is her way. Adding the expense of travel, etc., of the more than 2,500 delegates, we see that the actual cost of the Conference reached a very great sum. The question was asked there, and by thousands, no doubt, at home, Does this vast expenditure of money pay? I answer emphatically, It does. It will pay in the cheer and uplift given to the missionaries, the heroic men and women from the front, who came to lay their burden afresh on the heart, and pour their cry for greater help into the very ear of the home church. It will pay in the advancement of the slumbering conscience and the fresh firing of the heart of the church, the renewal of Christian zeal, and the loosing of the Christian millions of treasure—all to the end that this old world of ours may by the middle of the coming century be girdled and permeated with the truth that frees men from the dominion of sin and the thraldom of Satan, saving them utterly for time and eternity.

"The facts brought to light at that Conference should silence all objectors to the cause of foreign missions, and unite all Christians and friends of God and man in a vigorous onward movement all along the line, in every clime and under every sun, for the speedy conquest of the world for God and his Christ. That grand body of all nationalities and Christian faiths has shown clearly enough that the universal triumph of the Christian religion is in the hands of the church. There are yet many thousands of consecrated men and women who stand ready to go; and, as if providentially so fixed, the wealth of England, the United States and other Christian lands is in the possession of Christian people. Surely it can not be that such a gathering should fail to send throughout Christendom and the wide world an influence for good that should extend to the uttermost parts of the earth, even to the reaching of the very last man. My trip to New York has been the event of my life, and I am, indeed, thankful I had a chance to go."—New Orleans Picayune.

Leech, of Okolona, Miss., and Rev. J. B. Mitchell, of Millsaps College, are doing the preaching and leading the singing. Several conversions to date and the church moved to a better life."

The protracted meeting which has been in progress at our church in Algiers closed last Friday night. Bro. Dodson reports as among the visible results of the meeting a half dozen, or more, conversions, several reclamations, and nine accessions to the church, seven of these on profession of faith. Both pastor and people have great reason to be encouraged.

Through the courtesy of the pastor, Rev. P. O. Lowerey, the assistant editor had the pleasure, last Sunday morning, of preaching to the faithful and appreciative Methodist flock of Burgundy Street Church. After the sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered, the number of communicants being gratifyingly large. Bro. Lowerey has a live and growing Sunday-school, and is usually favored with splendid congregations.

At one of the military posts of the United States there were recently two "canteens," where intoxicating drinks were to be had, and a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. More room was needed for the troops, and it was found necessary to remove one of the two establishments. It was the Young Men's Christian Association that "had to go." A fine hit of irony, in view of the law of the survival of the fittest.—Youth's Companion.

The Supreme Court of Mississippi a few days ago, rendered a decision in which it is declared that the famous order issued by the State Board of Health last Summer during the yellow fever scare, prohibiting persons from traveling on the trains from one point to another, even when not hailing from infected places, is both unconstitutional and unreasonable. This decision is one of great mean importance, and is exactly in line with the position taken by the ADVOCATE editor two years ago respecting quarantines.

Dr. C. W. Carter, the cnltured and popnlar presiding elder of the Opelousas distriot, spent last Sabbath in the city, and attended the Preachers' Meeting, Monday morning. He was in excellent health and spirits, and reported that the work on his district is, in the main, moving on encouragiogly. He mentioned that a generons-hearted layman at Lafayette has donated a splendid lot for a district parsonage. The good people of the town have made up a song sum in addition as an inducemeot for its location there, and the prospect is that by the end of the year the district will have a neat and comfortable home for its presidiog elder.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

DEAR BRETHREN: Now that onr District Conferences are on, let's bestir ourselves, and by every possible way awaken an interest aloog this line of church extension work. Let our presiding elder see that the snbject is duly emphasized at all the District Conferences, and alsc on all their Quarterly Conferences. ROYAL
Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure

Makes hot breakfast-breads wholesome—no yeast germs, no alum. Makes cake, biscuit and pastry of superior fineness, flavor and delicacy. Makes food that will keep moist and sweet. Is most economical, because it is the purest and greatest in leavening strength. In the easy, expeditious preparation of the finer cakes and pastries, Royal is indispensable.

Care must be taken to avoid baking powders made from alum. Such powders are sold cheap, because they cost but a few cents per pound. Not only will they spoil the cake, but alum is a corrosive acid, which taken in food means injury to health.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss. —EDITOR.

We note that the Meridian District Epworth Leagoe and Sooday-school Convention was announced to be held in Eoterprise, April 26-29. We have noted, too, with deep regret that the bnsiness portion of Eoterprise is in ruins, on account of the overflow of the Chickasawhay river. We jodge that the bridge connectiog East and West Eoterprise was washed away. Happily the Methodist Church there stands on high groond in West Eoterprise.

The Alabama State League Conference is to be at Talladega, May 9 and 10. Rev. V. O. Hawkins, our kinsman, is the Talladega pastor.

The series of papers by Prof. Muckenfuss, of Millsaps College, on "Among the Forces," has begun in the Epworth Era.

A League at Crystal Springs is among those recently chartered; Lilian W. Kathley, secretary.

Dr. DuBose attributes much of the recent League advance in North Carolina to the earnest and tireless canvass made in February and March by blind Joe Ramsey.

The second Annual Snnday-school and Epworth League Institute of Madison cironit will be held at Pearl River Church for two days in the coming Summer. A committee to arrange the program has been appointed by the Quarterly Conference. One hour will be devoted to the Twentieth Century Educational Movement, and one hour to the exercises to be connected with the unveiling of the Lambnth Monument.

We have received from Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hawkins, of Meridian, an invitation to their wooden wedding. Bro. Hawkins is an untiring Leagner, and the League cause in the Meridian district will be the gainer, if he and his fair lady live to celebrate many anniversaries of their wedding day.

Of course, women have no sense. We can prove that by half a dozen young men who part their hair in the middle and smoke cigarettes.—Woman's Edition of Canton Times.

The following is the program of the Rose Social to be given in Epworth Hall, at Vicksbnrg, on the afternoon of the first day of the State Conference: Song, Prayer, Music, Love's Message of Welcome in Roses, Response by Rose Buds and Thorns, Literary Refreshments, Bowl of Rose Salad, Showers of Harmony, Wafers of Wit, Wisdom, and Fun, Binding Broken Hearts; Introductions.

On Saturday afternoon of the State Conference, from 4:30 to 5:30, Miss Estelle Boothe, State Junior superintendent, will conduct a Junior meeting.

On Saturday morning Rev. Richard Wilkinson, of Aberdeen, will deliver an address on "The Twentieth Century Man."

It will doubtless be a rare treat to hear the annual sermon on Sunday morning by Rev. H. M. DuBose, D. D.

The way in which Mrs. Mathis, of Columbus, will give the audience a lesson on the mountains of Palestine, on Saturday night of the Conference, will be novel and interesting.

Some of our Leagues fail to cultivate in the members a devotional spirit, and also to develop in them the power to take part in the public exercises of prayer and talk. Probably a hindrance may be found in the fact that the devotional meetings are too open. It is not everybody that ought to attend the League devotional meeting. Cold, selfish, critical, worldly lookers-on should not be sought after, unless it be occasionally, or when the Leaguers feel their ability to bless such visitors, rather than the danger of being injured by their presence.

We were glad to see that Durant district announces a District League Conference. Those North Mississippi Leaguers move along.

According to the last census, the United States had, out of sixty-four millions of people, more than forty millions who are under the age of thirty. This tells us that a church should direct much of its energy toward the children and youth.

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON, Ruston, La. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Monroe Epworth League was organized last November by our pastor, Rev. J. L. Pierce, with a membership of twenty-two young men and women. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Sadie Handy; first vice-president, Mr. Warren Garrett; second vice-president, Miss Mamie Larche; third vice-president, Miss Julia Wossman; secretary, Mr. Ben Meredith; treasurer, Mr. Albert White.

The League decided the best plan to pursue would be to concentrate all efforts on the Devotional Department at first, and take up the work of the other departments later.

The devotional services are held every Sunday evening half an hour before the regular church service, and are conducted by some member who has been chosen leader the preceding Sunday. These meetings are attended by a majority of the members, and have been beneficial to those who have taken part.

The Literary Department has been organized, and meets every Friday night to read and discuss the books in the course. To pay for these books, each member of the League was required to pay ten cents per month dues. This has been kept up each month, and we have some money in the treasury.

The Charity and Help Department has not yet been organized, but we hope to begin our work in this field very soon. MAMIE LARCHE.

New Orleans Preachers' Meeting.

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 7.

Present: LaPrade, White, Wynn, Dodson, Fontaine, Parker, Lowrey, Atkinson, Parker, Black, G. D. Parker.

Additions reported for April: Algiers, 8; Dryades, 2; Burgundy, 1; Parker Memorial, 6; Carondelet, 4; Rayne Memorial, 8; Louisiana Avenue, 14.

Dr. C. W. Carter, presiding elder of the Opelousas district, honored us with his presence. The Doctor reports that good work is being done by his co-laborers on the district.

Mr. Vaugh, of Centenary College, was present and spoke encouragingly of the religious life of the students.

The Committee on Topics selected R. H. Wynn to lead the thought of the next meeting on, "Christ's Attitude towards the Old Testament."

C. D. ATKINSON,
Secretary.

"PERSEVERE AND PROSPER." Take Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully, and it will cure scrofula, salt rheum, boils, pimples, and all blood humors; also dyspepsia, rheumatism, catarrh, and that tired feeling. It never disappoints.

Sick headache is cured by Hood's Pills. 25 cents.

RESOLUTION.

The following is part of a report made on temperance before the Sardis District Conference by L. M. Lipscomb, and ordered by that body to be sent to several different papers for publication:

"Resolved, That we hereby commend and highly appreciate the action of our last State Legislature for the new and substantial aid they rendered to morals and society by the definite and stringent statutes they gave us looking to the suppression and utter extermination of the 'blind-tiger.'"

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is without an equal for swiftness to cure.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Free to Inventors.

The experience of C. A. Snow & Co. in obtaining more than 30,000 patents for inventors has enabled them to helpfully answer many questions relating to the protection of intellectual property. This they have done in a pamphlet treating briefly of United States and foreign patents, with cost of same, and how to procure them; trade marks, designs, caveats, infringements, decisions in leading patent cases, etc., etc.

This pamphlet will be sent free to anyone writing to C. A. Snow & Co., Washington, D. C.

The New Cure for Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and one dollar sizes are sold by all first-class druggists.

For oh! I love yon so—
Yon are too young to know it now,
Bnt some time you will know!

Some time, whan lo a darksned place
Whare others coole to weep,
Yoor eyes shall look opon a face
Calm in eternal sleep;
The voiceless lips, the wrinkled brow,
Tha patient smile will show—
Yon are too yonog to know it now,
Bnt some time yon will know!

Look backward, theo, loto the years,
And see me here to-night—
See, O my darling! how my tears

THE FOOL KILLER HAS COME.

"If the fool killer shonld come aronnd, he would find plenty of employment." These words were spoken by a yonth of seventeen who had just walked into the dining-room where the rest of the family were being seated for breakfast.

"He has already come," said the boy's father, "and has so mnch to do that it keeps him busy day and night."

"Why, I have not heard of him in this neighborhood."

"Yon may not have heard of him, bnt he has been here, and very recently. He has secured some promisng victims from onr commnnity, I assnre you."

"What do you mean, father?"

"I mean that the fool killer is variously embodied, he is rather spirit than flesh, and does his work constantly, silently, and with dreadful certainty. He works in those he wonld kill very freqnently, and at the same time works in others the fool's destrnction. You remember that yonng preacher who came here for the Baptist Church last Spring. Well, he was the talk of the conntry for awhile, and he took a case of egotism which made him disgusting. He fell into the hands of some giddy parties, at first, then abandoned his books and his religion, it looked like, ruined himself, and had to leave with few friends behind. My son, the fool killer got him. You know the man who was sent to the penitentiary last week for killing yonng Wilson. That man was well brought up. But he thought he could make a living without working for it. He took to gambling. He went on for years. Among others who were led to gambling by his influence was the widow Wilson's son. Friends faithfully warned the boy. They gambled together and with each other, and last Winter, at two o'clock one morning, that man killed Ned Wilson over a game of cards. Now, he is gone to prison for life. The fool killer got them both. Yesterday, Mr. Mason's store was closed by his creditors. Mason was drunk last night. Only four years ago he moved his store next door to a saloon, and began treating his enstomers to draw trade. Now he is a drunkard and bankrnpt. The fool killer got him. My son, the fool killer is abroad in the land. Many a preacher has fallen a victim to him. Many a doctor, lawyer, merchant, farmer, and mannfactnrer has fallen at his hands. He is like Death, sparing neither age or sex. Look ont for him. He whips people to death. He beats them a long time, and finally beats the life ont of them if he can not beat sense into them. No, sir, yon need not donbt his presence. No one is more here than he is."

CANCER CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment Removes All Malignant Growths and Drives the Poison from the Blood and Lymphatic Fluid.

J. N. HATHAWAY, M. D.

Cutting out Cancer does not cure it and can not cure it.

Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment does cure it.

Cutting out Cancer simply removes the local, outward manifestation.

Dr. Hathaway's Treatment Kills the malignant germs of the Cancer, removes the poison from the blood and lymphatic fluid and immnnes the system against future attacks.

Dr. Hathaway has treated Cancer successfully nnder this method over eight years; his experience covering a large nnmber of well defined cases has proven this terrible affliction to be perfectly curable IN EVERY CASE WHERE IT CAN BE REACHED BY THE SYRINGE. This includes all outward manifestations, such as the nose, face, head, mouth, lips, tongue and breast, as well as all internal organs that can be reached direct, such as the womb and ovaries. Besides, many Internal Cancers that can not be reached direct may be reached and treated successfully through the agency of the lymphatic vessels and the blood.

A TYPICAL CASE AND CURE.

The following is one of hundreds of like testimonials:

Several years ago there appeared on the side of my face an irritable rough spot. At first there was no attention paid to it, but after a year or two it began to scale off and bleed easily, and another place appeared on the other side. Two years ago they had developed into what the doctors pronounced Cancer. About this time there appeared a growth on my neck which got to be about the size of a hen's egg, and proved to be cancerous. In August, 1896, I began the use of the Serum Treatment, administered by Dr. Hathaway & Co., and in about six weeks all three of the cancerous masses had been removed and healed up.

C. F. HILL.
Duncan, Ariz., June, 1899.

HOW TO KEEP YOUNG.

If we take a little leaf ont of the mind-cnre books, we can have physical rejuvenation throngh a youthful spirit, which mnst find expression. Cast away sadness—for that is hateful to youth—and cultivate instead a real interest in all that is going on, whether in the world abont you or in the great world. Observe a young girl of normal intelligence who has not been "spoiled." Could anything be more striking than her keen, voracions interest, in contrast to the tired apathy of her elders? Keep yonr interest alive, feeding it on catholicity of subjects, as yon value yonr youth; for if certain mental muscles are not nsed, they will atrophy and you will be old, no matter what is the date of yonr birth. Every hnman being you enconnter is the central point of the universe from his or her point of view; how, then, can snch a one escape the interest of others? Every life has its life aims just as vital as yours. Interest yonrself in others and, with no snch intent at heart, yon will find the spirit refreshed.

Away back in nursery days we learn of the little girl who wept in contemplating the bridge she did not have to eross after all; but the lesson did not go very deep, for we keep on worrying until we have lines up and down the forehead and lines across. "The thirty-year marks" they call them, but that is a mistake. Thirty years of worry wonld wrinkle a marble forehead, but thirty years of optimism would keep smooth the most delicate skin. Worry spoils the digestion and brings ill-health, which, in tnrn, rnins beanty. Worry enwraps the mental faculties and prevents them from free exercise, hampering jndgment and shntting ont light. Even those who do it most know these things well, yet still keep on; for not to worry means a condition of spiritnal strength and elevation which is only attained by gradnal process, and everyone has not learned the way. The lines on the face are the expression of "the body's guest." They will come, but who could object to a crinkling aronnd the eyes that make a smile the merrier, or lines about the corner of the mouth that have a kindly meaning? Such lines stamp the face with nndying yonth.—Harper's Bazar.

THE BIBLE IN THE HOME.

Give the Bible the place it ought to occupy in your homes. Enshrine it in power. Let not the daily newspaper, nor the popular magazine, nor the most eminent standard author come between you and the daily reading of God's Word. Some of you, I doubt not, have precions memories of home where the Bible was a reverenced and studied book. You can hear the tones of the father's voice as he read in the morning, and recall the awfulness with which the old prophetic periods were clothed, or the delight with which the precious promises fell upon your ear. You can see a beloved mother garnering strength and courage and consolation day by day from the Psalms and beatitudes. You know the words which were taught you then have clung to your memory, and will be part and parcel of you through all eternity. Now, by all that is sacred in these recollections, by all the love you bear your little ones, by all the terrors of the judgment before which we must all appear and meet the record of our lives, I beseech you to be faithful in your own homes, faithful to God and to those whom God has committed to your care. It will soon be too late. When these children have grown up and gone into their life work, let it not be theirs to say: "I might have been made familiar with the Bible and its blessed teachings, and through the influences of truths thus learned might, perhaps, have been led into an assured hope of eternal life in Christ; but my parents were not faithful, and the Book divine had no honored place in my early home."

You may not be able to give your children wealth, or the inheritance of a great name, or eminent social advantages; but you can leave them the results of fidelity and precious memories of devotion to the holy task of trying to make them know what God says to us in the Old and New Testaments, and what he wants us to believe and to do and to be.—Frederick Noble, D. D., in "The Divine Life of Man."

HUNGRY FOR A HANDSHAKE.

He was sitting in a park. He looked downhearted and despondent. His clothes were dusty, bnt not ragged. There was a look of despair on his boyish face, almost a look of desperation. Some one, noticing his despondent look, sat down by him, saying: "I judge you are a stranger in the city; I want to shake hands with yon."

Only a word, yon see, bnt a bright look came into the young man's face, and he eagerly held out his hand. "Oh," he said, "I'm so hnngry for a handshake. I left my home abont a week ago with the prayers and best wishes of my friends. Times were hard, and it seemed necessary for me to go into the world to make a living for myself. I snpposed there was lots of work for me in this city, bnt I don't think there is anything, and I am discouraged." He bit his lip hard as he said this, and his mouth quivered. "I will try again," he went on to say, "since someone cares enongh for me to shake hands with me."

That handshake was the beginning of his success. Downhearted and discouraged before, feeling that there was no one who cared for him in a great city, his heart was made glad by that simple thing, a handshake, and he took courage and soon fonnd employment.

There are people on every side of us, perhaps not in these exact circumstances, but who are discouraged and depressed, who need a handshake, a friendly word, a kindly interest. As servants of that Christ who went abont doing good, shall we give it?—Union Gospel News.

IT IS quite generally believed, particularly by large consumers and practical painters, that Pure White Lead is the best paint. It is because of this belief that manufacturers of the so-called White Leads, mixtures of Whiting, Barytes and Zinc, brand them "White Lead," "Pure White Lead," etc., etc. You can avoid these by making sure that the brand is right.

FREE For colors use National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors. Any shade desired is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving full information and showing samples of Colors, also pamphlet entitled "Uncle Sam's Experience With Paints" forwarded upon application.

IN THE HEREAFTER.

Whatever mystery there may be concerning the life which believers in Christ shall live in heaven, we may be sure, at least, that they will carry with them all that is true and divine of their earthly life. The character formed here they will retain through death. The capacity they have gained by the use of their powers they will have for the beginning of their activity in the new life.

So heaven will be a far more natural place than we imagine it will be. It will not be greatly unlike the ideal life of earth. We probably shall be surprised when we meet one another to find how little we have changed. The old tenderness will not be missing. We shall recognize our friends by some little gentle ways they used to have here, or by some familiar thoughtfulness which was never wanting in them. The friendships we began here, and had not time to cultivate, we shall have opportunity there to renew and carry on through immortal years.

Even at the best, human friendships only begin in this life; in heaven they will reach their best and holiest possibilities. There are lives which only touch each other in this world, and then separate, going their different ways, like ships which pass in the night. There will be time enough in heaven for any such faintest beginnings of friendship to be wrought out in beauty.—Selected.

BEWARE OF MISJUDGING.

Perhaps it were better for most of us to complain less of being misunderstood, and to take more care that we do not misunderstand other people. It ought to give us panse at a time to remember that each one has a stock of cut-and-dry judgments on his neighbors, and that the chances are that most of them are quite erroneous. What our neighbor really is we may never know, bnt we may be pretty certain that he is not what we have imagined, and that many things we have thought of him are quite beside the mark. What he does we have seen, bnt we have no idea what may have been his thonghts and intentions. The mere surface of his character may be exposed, but of the complexity within we have not the faintest idea. People crammed with self-consciousness and self-conceit are often praised as humble, while shy and reserved people are judged to be proud. Some whose whole life is one subtle studied selfishness get the name of self-sacrifice, and other silent, heroic souls are condemned for want of humanity.—Ian Maclaren, in the Potter's Wheel.

It is a high, solemn, almost awful thought for every individual man that his earthly influence will never, through all ages, were he the very meanest of us, have an end!—Thomas Carlyle.

OBITUARIES.

McCLENDON—The subject of this notice, Sister HETTIE A. McCLENDON, the wife of Rev. T. H. McClendon, of the Louisiana Conference, was born July 14, 1840, and died at her home on Sicily Island, Catahoula parish, La., March 9, 1900, in the sixtieth year of her age. She was the daughter of the Rev. Thomas L. and Tabitha B. Green, who preceded her to the eternal shore. She was converted to God and joined the Methodist Church when quite a little girl. On the seventeenth of November, 1859, she was married to the Rev. T. H. McClendon. Consecrated to God and his cause from her childhood, her life was spent in his service, and for the good of humanity, until her consecrated spirit winged its way to the pearls of eternal glory.

Sister McClendon loved her Bible, reading some portion of it daily. She read it through nearly every year. Consecrated to God in her childhood, her life regulated by the teaching of God's Word, made her a Christian of much prayer. She loved to communicate with God in secret prayer. It was from God she received strength to overcome the trials of this life, and to strengthen and hold up her husband's hands through the trials of the itinerant life, when the way would seem dark, with a cheerful spirit lighted afresh by a recent communion with God. She would say to her husband: "It is all right; God knows what is best for us. 'All things work together for good,'" etc. She had implicit confidence in the providence of God; she never complained, though her last days were of intense suffering; she was patient in it all, and resigned to the will of God.

Sister McClendon was in the active itinerant service for forty years, going wherever her husband was assigned, cheerfully laboring with him for the salvation of souls. Doubtless she was the instrument in the hands of God in bringing many to Christ. A few years before her death she was called to her mother's home to minister to her dying mother. After the death of her mother she said to her husband, "Go on and preach; I will stay here by the stuff; so, when you can go no longer, there will be a place to call home, until we are summoned to our home beyond the skies."

Sister McClendon was a bright, cheerful Christian; a true friend, a devoted wife and loving mother. Her end was peace. Consecrated from her childhood to God's service, when the message came her armor was bright. She called her husband and children around like Jacob of old, and gave to them her parting advice, sending messages to absent ones. Just before her death she told her husband that Jesus was still with her, and that she would soon join the blood-besprinkled band on the eternal shore; that all was bright. The chariot of fire driving up, she steps in, and was wheeled through the gates of pearl to her home in the city of God, where she awaits her loved ones. C. T. MUNHOLLAND.

BARR—Sister SARAH H. BARR, daughter of Judge Christian Hoover and Mrs. Mary N. Nailer, was born in Pike county, Miss., March 30, 1838; joined the Methodist Church in early childhood; was happily married to Bro. T. C. S. Barr, June 10, 1856, and left this land of the dying for "the land of the living" at 1:30 P. M. on the thirty-first of March, 1900, being sixty-two years and one day old.

These are the salient points in a life whose outline was symmetrical and all the picture lovely. Reared in a Christian home, and afterward wedded to a pious man, it is not wonderful her life blossomed constantly with the "beauty of holiness." She was (and is) the mother of three children. One son died in infancy. Another, Thos. C. Barr, and his sister, Mrs. Mollie Johnson, had the privilege of ministering to her to the last. These and several worthy grandchildren rise up to bless her memory. Much of her earthly life was spent where it came to a peaceful close—three miles northeast of Johnston's Station, in Lincoln county, Miss. Here a host of friends vied with each other in attentions to the sufferer, and attested their love around her honored grave. May all these meet her "where the night dissolves away into pure and perfect day!"

J. P. DRAKE.

Summit, Miss.

RANDLE—Rev. R. W. RANDLE, son of T. S. and S. R. Randle, was born in Bastrop, Morehouse parish, La., Oct. 20, 1874, and died near Alexandria, La., Feb. 21, 1900. His life, except the last two and a half years, was spent in parsonages in Louisiana.

Robert was an obedient, dutiful son. He was converted at a meeting held in Belview Church, Opelousas charge, under the ministry of C. R. Montgomery, who was assisting us in a meeting. His conversion was bright and satisfactory. As the new life entered his soul he felt his call to preach the gospel of Christ, and was licensed at the first Quarterly Conference after his conversion. He commenced the good work at once, and in the Winter of the same year applied to the Louisiana Conference for admission on trial; was not received on account of his age. Not satisfied, he came before the Conference the next year; was admitted on trial and appointed to Jackson Street, Lake Charles, which work he filled with great acceptability; was faithful in all the work, and had a successful year. He was appointed the next year to the Pineville circuit here; also, he made full proof of his ministry. He held on this work some very successful meetings, and did a good work. At the next Conference he was appointed to the Spring Creek circuit, which he served six months, but had to give it up on account of his eyes. His physician told him that he must not study, or he would lose his sight entirely; so he gave up the work and discontinued at the next Conference. He was married to Miss Rosella Wilcox, Jan. 20, 1897. He leaves his wife and little son to mourn his death.

Robert anticipated going back into Conference had he lived, but our heavenly Father saw fit to take him unto himself. He died in sight of heaven in great peace; he rests with the blessed Lord. While we mourn his loss, yet we bow in submission to the divine will, knowing that God doeth all things well. We have the hope of a reunion in our heavenly home. God help us to meet one another there. Pray for us. HIS FATHER.

WEISSINGER—Mrs. G. J. WEISSINGER (nee Kent) was born Jan. 27, 1857; married Jan. 1, 1873, and fell asleep in Jesus, Feb. 15, 1900.

Sister Weissinger became a Christian and a Methodist at an early age, and maintained her Christian integrity to the end of her life. Her God was no far-off sovereign, but a comforting Father; her piety not ceremonial, but real; eternal life not a distant dream, but a present reality with her. Her disposition was sunny, her temper remarkably even, and her patience an example for all who knew her. Her hospitality made her home a welcome resting-place for the weary itinerant. In her home this writer spent the first day of his itinerant life within the bounds of his own charge, and during a pastorate of three years he never heard from her lips a harsh word nor an unkind expression. No stranger went hungry from her door, and no neighbor suffered for help that she could give. "She lived and died a shouting Methodist." A good way to live, a peaceful way to die. Two of her children were waiting on the other side, and six are following on in path of life, led by a Christian father. May the God of all grace keep and comfort them till the great "reunion day!"

J. R. COUNTISS.

GIEGER—Mr. ZACHARIAH GIEGER was born May 1, 1814, and died July 12, 1899. Having chosen a noble lady for a consort, he early gave his heart to God and his life to the church, and he and his wife made the M. E. Church, South, their spiritual home. Having chosen the Lord to be his God, he trained a large family in the way they should go, not leaving them to sow their wild oats. Verifying his word, the Lord honored such efforts, gathered them into his fold, and is making them "the salt of the earth" in their respective communities. Thus are they all blessing the church of their father. He consistently practiced his religion in life's various paths, thereby adorning home, social and business life with the gospel he professed. He delighted to the last in the religious services of the people of God. While languishing upon his last bed of affliction he entered the courts of perfect love by trusting Christ to be his complete sanctifier. He expressed himself as being perfectly ready and willing to meet the Savior, who was his "all and in all." Thus, in spotless raiment, he passed to heavenly glory.

F. L. CROWSON, P. C.

WILKINSON—Mrs. MATTIE E. WILKINSON, daughter of Riley and Permelia Cockerham, was born in 1863; married to A. J. Wilkinson Oct. 7, 1876.

Sister Wilkinson joined the M. E. Church, South, about fifteen years ago, and lived a consistent member until her death. She leaves a husband, four children, and a host of friends to mourn her death. She told those who witnessed her death that she was willing to die. This should be a sweet consolation to her loved ones, that, as the dark angel hovered over her, she calmly expressed herself as being willing to meet her God. Her remains were buried in the family cemetery by her pastor, there to rest till God shall call forth the quick and the dead.

We extend our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved ones, and may each one strive to meet her in the celestial city, where Jesus has gone to prepare a home for all the redeemed of earth! R. A. IRELAND.

Deafness Can Not be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

HANDSOM, VA., Dec. 31.

I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination, with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to May, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

IMPERIAL No. 4.

THE IMPERIAL HIGH-ARM SINGER will be found the perfection of mechanism as regards simplicity, durability and adaptability to the wide range of work embraced in the general family needs.

A Handsome, Light-Running, Lock-Stitch, High-Arm Machine that will not fail to please the most fastidious. Embracing all the advantages, with all desirable improvements of other first-class sewing machines, so simple in mechanism that the most inexperienced need no assistance in operating it. Book of Instructions with every machine. Any child can learn to run it.

Extra Set of Attachments also free with each machine, consisting of the following: One Tucker, One Foot Ruffler, One Set of Plate Hemmers, four different widths up to ½ of an inch. One Binder and One Thread Cutter.

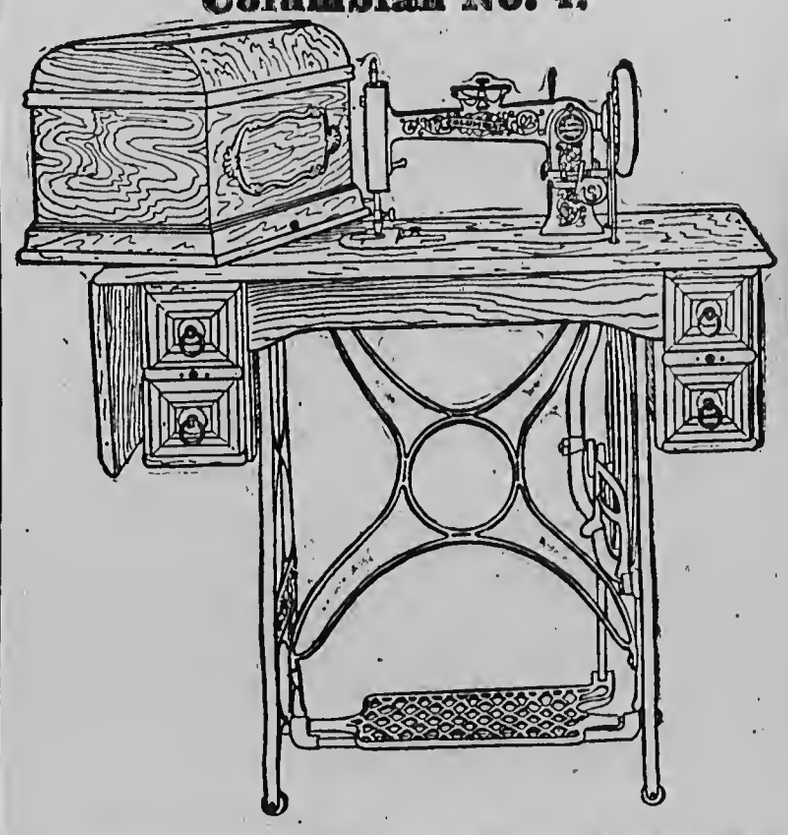
No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $24. Our price, $14.75.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $25. Our price, $15 50.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of three drawers at each end, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $26. Our price, $16.25.

Furnished Free with every machine are the following named accessories: One Foot Hemmer One Screw Driver, One Wrench, One Oil Can and Oil, One Gnage Screw, One Extra Check Spring, One Package of Needles, Five Bobbins and One Instruction Book.

Columbian No. 4.



EXCELLENCE OF THE COLUMBIAN.—All wearing parts are of case-hardened steel possessing great durability, and by the turning of a screw all lost motion caused by wear can be taken up. All parts are fitted so accurately that the machines are absolutely noiseless, and as easy running as fine adjustment and best mechanical skill is possible to produce. No expense or time is spared to make them perfect in every respect, as every machine passes a rigid inspection by competent men before leaving the factory.

NICKEL PLATED.—The balance wheel and many of the fine parts are nickel-plated, with other parts finely enameled and ornamented, giving it a rich appearance.

A Self-Setting Needle and Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle are used in the Columbian High-Arm Sewing Machine. They are so simple that any one can easily operate them in a few minutes' time, as our Instruction Book is fully illustrated, showing how to do all kinds of fancy work with attachments.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

ADDITIONAL ACCESSORIES.—Each machine is supplied with the following extra: 1 Hammer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screw Driver, Oil Can with Oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb Screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated, and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

No. 3—Drop leaf, Bent cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $29. Our price, $17.

No. 4—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $31. Our price, $17.75.

No. 5—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making a seven-drawer machine. Dealer's price, $33. Our price, $18.50.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

D. P. HENSLEE, Doe Branch, Ark.

Dear Doctor Woodard: I write yon a letter to let yon know that I am now entirely well of cancer. Your oils have worked a miracle in my case, for I did not think myself that it would cure me, as I had tried so many remedies that I had just about given up all hopes of getting well. But just think! I am again sound and well. Oh, how I wish that I had seen your advertising sooner, for it would have saved me much anxiety and many dollars. I will soon be down to the city and I will call on you.

Yours thankfully,
D. P. HENSLEE,
Doe Branch, Ark.

We have discovered a combination of oils that readily cure cancer, tumors, catarrh, bronchitis, consumption, piles, fistula, ulcers, eczemas and all skin and womb diseases. We have cured thousands of afflicted people within the last six years. Many cured by correspondence. Readers having friends afflicted should cut this out and send to them. A book sent free giving particulars about the oil. Address Dr. R. E. Woodard, 502 Main Street, Little Rock, Ark.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Enormous numbers of Japanese are coming into this country.

Major General Otis sailed from Manila for the United States on May 5.

The Boers are stubbornly opposing the British advance at all points.

Gen. Roberts has forced a passage of the Vet river after considerable fighting.

A call has been issued for a convention in Honolulu, May 15, to organize the Republicans in Hawaii.

Ex-Secretary of War Endicott died in Boston, May 6. He was a member of President Cleveland's first Cabinet.

The cotton crop report issued by the Houston Post indicates an increase in acreage in Texas of about 10 per cent.

Gov. Wells, of Utah, will issue an appeal for financial aid for the widows and orphans of the Schofield mine disaster.

Gen. Pantelon Garcia, the highest insurgent officer except Aguinaldo, has been captured by Lieut. E. V. Smith, of Gen. Funston's staff.

The Tulane University will erect residences on the campus for its officers and professors. A gymnasium and refectory will also be built.

The army reorganization bill will increase the artillery by 5,478 men at the maximum, and not affect the rest of the establishment numerically.

The fire at the British Columbian mining town of Sandon left 1200 persons homeless. Many fine buildings were blown up in the hope of checking the flames.

Cleveland, Harrison and Olney are possible selections by President McKinley as members of the Permanent Arbitration Board provided for by The Hague treaty.

Cholera is spreading in the famine-stricken district of India. The British government is making ceaseless exertions to relieve the distress of more than 5,000,000 people.

The Right-Rev. Bishop McLaren, of Chicago, occupied the pulpit at St. Paul's Church, this city, on Sunday, and preached an eloquent sermon on the "Knowledge of God."

The Senate will devote the greater part of this week to the consideration of the naval appropriation bill. It is the purpose of the Senate leaders to bring about an adjournment early in June.

Secretary Hay and Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, have signed a treaty extending for several months from August next the period of time allowed for the exchange of ratifications of the Hay-Pauncefote canal treaty.

General H. P. Hurst, of Summit, Miss., has entered suit against the United States Government for $150,000, based on a contract made by the Navy Department with him for certain extensions which he states have been infringed by the Navy and War Departments.

A favorable report was made by Senator Money from the Public Buildings Committee, on May 4, on a bill of Senator McEnery for a postoffice building in New Orleans. The amount is fixed at $1,250,000. Senator McEnery will take the first opportunity to bring it up for passage.

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee has reported the naval appropriation bill. As reported, it represents an excess of $2,500,000 over the measure as adopted by the House of Representatives, the principal portion of this increase being due to a grant of $2,000,000 for the Naval Academy, presumably for new buildings.

More than 200 men were killed, and more than a score of others will be crippled for life, as the result of an explosion in tunnel No. 4 of the Pleasant Valley Coal Mines, at Winter Quarters, 200 miles south of Salt Lake, Utah, on May 1. Of 250 men who went to work on the 8 o'clock day shift less than thirty are known to have escaped. The explosion was caused by gas and dust.

One of the last acts of the old City Council, which went out of office this week, was the passage of a stringent milk ordinance which is intended to prevent the sale in this city of unsanitary and adulterated milk. This new ordinance is, without doubt, a sanitary measure of vast importance, and its proper enforcement will, it is felt sure, bring about a material reduction in the death-rate of the city, especially among children.

The long-expected advance on Pretoria by Lord Roberts' army has now commenced in earnest, the dispatches reporting the capture of Brandfort, a place about twenty-five miles north of Bloemfontein, on the railroad. This of itself indicates a forward movement in force; but there are other indications that a general movement has commenced, such, for instance, as renewed activity by Lord Methuen's column in the direction of Kimberly.

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

In the May number of Success, Hon. J. B. Foraker and Hon. C. E. Littlefield discuss the timely question, Should Young Men Be Trained for Public Life? Hezekiah Butterworth contributes a story entitled Chun Chun—The Angel Bird, and Edward E. Higgins writes on Possibilities of Street Railroading as a Profession. A European Tour for a Song is the title of an article by J. Lincoln Barrett.

In the April number of Cram's Magazine may be found Prof. Allen's valued series on The Foreign Possibilities of American Commerce, The Taxation of Puerto Rico under Spain, a statement of the anti-expansion feeling in Hawaii, entitled, Two Hawaiian Anti-Expansionists; The World-Conquering English Language, by Anna S. Murray-Aaron, and Recent Decisions of the Higher Courts, by H. L. Priestly. Current history is amply represented by an article in continuation of Editor Murray-Aaron's series on American Expansion, in which he uncompromisingly scores the administration for its indefensible Puerto Rican policy; by the regular instalments of Editor Clare's Anglo-Boer War and The Philippine Insurrection, the former illustrated; New-Born Cuba, by Franklin Mathews—an illustrated account of our recent earnest striving to rehabilitate that island; Chinese Civil Service Examinations, by Rev. Arthur H. Smith, D. D., and A. Logan's pungent In Washington Corridors.

Upward of fifty writers and artists contribute to the May Ladies' Home Journal; consequently, variety is combined with excellence throughout its pages. Mary B. Mullett writes of The Real Thrums of Barrie, Clifford Howard, of The Flower that Set a Nation Mad; Mabel Percy Haskell, of A Famous Boston Belle, and the Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady continues his experiences as A Missionary in the Great West. Ian Maclaren's article answers the query, Is the Minister an Idler? and Edward Bok writes of early marriage and of domestic science in the schools. Two pages of pictures, Through Picturesque America—the second of a series—reveal the beauties of our country's scenery. The drawings, The American Girl on the Farm, by H. C. Christy, and The Minister at Tea, by A. B. Frost, worthily fill a page each. Fashions for women and for girl graduates, cooking, and, in fact, every phase of home-making, from the Etiquette of Dances and Balls to How to Treat and Keep a Servant, are included in the May Journal.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It Cures Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Nervousness.

In the Spring the birds are singing
As they build their summer home;
Blades of grass and buds are springing.
O'er the mead the cattle roam.
In the Spring your blood is freighted
With the germs that cause disease;
Humors, boils, are designated
Signals warning you of these.
In the Spring that tired feeling
Makes you every duty shirk—
Makes you feel like begging, stealing,
Rather than engage in work.
But there's something known that will
Man to health and vigor lead.
You will find Hood's Sarsaparilla
Just exactly what you need.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

The Washington Presbytery has put itself on record in favor of a new and briefer working creed by adopting by a vote of 25 to 15 an overture to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, offered by Dr. T. S. Hamlin, asking that the preliminary steps be taken to secure at as early a day as possible the preparation of a brief, evangelical, irenic, Calvinistic creed; such creed to be part of the constitution of the church, and to be subscribed by ministers, ruling elders and deacons in place of the Westminster symbols." In a forcible sermon the day before the meeting of the Presbytery, on "Authority: Its Source and Scope," Dr. Hamlin said: "Not from the desire to escape authority, therefore, but from the desire to rehabilitate it and make it the vital thing that it should be in our religion, has sprung the movement that appears to be widespread in our church, and with which I am in heartiest sympathy, for a new, brief, evangelical, irenic creed, that shall set forth the Christian facts without philosophizing about them, and that shall cogently express the living faith of the living church of to-day in our living tongue.' The Westminster symbols are a priceless legacy from our fathers; a coherent system of theology abreast with the best Biblical knowledge of the time that produced them, to be reverently preserved and studied among the historic creeds of Christendom. That in many important particulars they have ceased to be an authority over Presbyterian minds and hearts is abundantly evident. We urgently need a creed that will be such an authority, not because imposed on us from without, but because cordially recognized as being completely true: in harmony with the Divine revelation in the inspired Scriptures, and with the divinely illumined Christian consciousness. To construct such a creed will be a labor of time, patience, prayer, scholarship, faith, devout piety, broad charity, and deep brotherly love. Who doubts that the Presbyterian Church of to-day, intelligent, fair-minded, missionary, spiritual, is equal to this great task? And when it is done, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit we shall have a creed of authority, because setting forth that truth, and only that truth, which is incarnate in the living Christ."

An address prepared by Dr. Charles Dudley Warner, president of the American Social Science Association, which was read by Dr. Joseph Anderson at the opening of the annual meeting of the association, on "The Education of the Negro," has attracted much attention in Washington, and will, doubtless, attract more elsewhere. Dr. Warner contends that the education of the negro has been all wrong; that he has been offered a higher education when what he needed was an industrial education, and that the only way to undo the evil already done is to start over again, and start right. Speaking of negro colleges, Dr. Warner's address said: "Have these colleges, as a whole, stimulated industry, thrift, the inclination to settle down to the necessary hard work of the world, or have they bred idleness, indisposition to work, a vaporous ambition in politics, and that sort of conceit of gentility of which the world has already enough? If anyone is in doubt about this, he can satisfy himself by a sojourn in different localities in the South. The condition of New Orleans and its negro universities is often cited. It is a favorable example, because the ambition of the negro has been aided there by influence outside of the schools. It is my belief that the condition of the race in New Orleans is lower than it was several years ago, and that the influence of the higher education has been in the wrong direction."

A number of Washington ministers, all of whom were personal friends of the late Dwight L. Moody, held a conference this week to discuss the best methods of securing generous contributions towards the memorial endowment fund of $3,000,000 which is to be used to perpetuate the schools founded by Mr. Moody. One of the methods decided upon was to ask every Protestant minister in Washington to make an appeal from his pulpit for contributions to the fund, but this will not be done until Fall.

The seventy-second anniversary meeting of the Washington City Bible Society was held in Metropolitan M. E. Church this week. Among those who spoke were Justice Brewer and Hon. John W. Foster.

Senator Teller, speaking for his resolution of sympathy for the Boers, which is not likely to get beyond the Committee on Foreign Relations, said: "We ought to declare our sympathy for the Boers—a kindly, brave, wise, and Christian people. I have said nothing against the government of Great Britain, and I do not intend to, except to say that I think the best sentiment of Great Britain and the United States is against this war. I believe that if the great and noble woman who presides over England had had her way, there would have been no war."

The Y. M. C. A. gave a reception last night in honor of Mr. H. B. F. Macfarland, the newly appointed commissioner of the District of Columbia, which was attended by many of the most prominent professional and business men of Washington, as well as almost the entire membership of the association, glad to honor their fellow-member. Mr. Macfarland is second vice-president of the Y. M. C. A. and chairman of the Committee on Religious Work, and has been one of the most active workers in the association for years, and great things are hoped from his influence in his new sphere.

Washington, May 0, 1900.

PROGRESS.

Recently more than a score of letters from presiding elders, pastors and laymen have brought encouragement.

Rev. L. L. Pope reports thirty-nine and 65-100 dollars subscribed at Hebron.

Rev. W. R. McAllister has sent sixteen dollars cash from Kosciusko circuit.

Reports to me from District Conferences held are more or less encouraging—some "more," some "less." The Columbus district effected an unusually thorough organization of its forces, under the direction of a competent committee of preachers and laymen. While much has been done and something accomplished, yet the work necessary to success in Mississippi has yet to be performed. No half-hearted service and no perfunctory performance will meet the requirements of this cause. Wise planning, intelligent execution, and strenuous endeavor, are necessary.

I have just mailed to every preacher and Sunday-school superintendent in Mississippi a copy of Bishop Galloway's review article—The Twentieth Century Movement in Methodism. If anyone who reads this communication has not had a copy of that pamphlet, he can secure one by notifying me on a post card.

Special attention is directed to what follows from the Nashville Christian Advocate.

J. R. BINGHAM.

Carrollton, Miss.

ALL TOGETHER NOW!

Methodism—the genuine article—is a very practical arrangement for preaching the gospel and doing all the work of the militant church of our Lord Jesus Christ. All at it, all together, and all the time, is what it means. There is no provision for idlers in this organization. There is a place for every member in the visible church, which is the body of Christ, from whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, making increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love—as saith the Apostle Paul.

Our Twentieth Century Movement is a test of the effectiveness of our Methodism as a working body. The careful reader will call to mind the article on this page of our issue of last week treating this subject with regard to New Testament teaching, and with obvious pertinency to this present time. It suggests by unavoidable implication what our Israel ought now to do. Get all the parts of the mighty organism ready, and then turn on the power. What is the word in season for the whole church is the word in season for each man and woman in it. The Head of the church deals with its membership one by one. This means, as has been well said, that every pastor is under obligation of honor, conscience, and love to do his part as if responsibility for the success of the whole movement depended on him alone.

One dollar each from our church membership of a million and a half of souls will aggregate just $1 500,000, which is the minimum figure named for the Twentieth Century Thank-offering Fund of the M. E. Church, South. Mark you! it is a thank-offering, not a mere "collection" in the ordinary acceptation of the word. This being remembered, it goes without saying that no contributor will feel limited to the minimum named. It is reasonably expected that the $1,500,000 aggregate will be reached. It would be discreditable to our faith to doubt it. It would be a lasting reproach for us to fail herein. No pastor will feel willing to fall below his pro rata according to membership. Possibly here and there may be found a case of extraordinary providential disability that may be invincible.

But not only a million and a half of dollars from a million and a half of church membership, but one dollar at least from each and every individual member is the mark set for us. Its attainment will multiply the blessing accordingly.

"ENCOURAGED AT THE OUTLOOK."

The indomitable Baker, of Matanzas, Cuba, sends us some sad intelligence, coupled with some cheering notes of his work. He says:

"My wife has been sick, and nigh unto death. I have thought two or three times that she would leave me in the last three weeks. I never saw anyone suffer more than she did. The death of her father, coupled with the fatigue, etc., caused an illness which almost proved fatal. But, thank God! she is now improving. Very slowly, to be sure; weak; can't get into a chair from the bed without my help.

"During all this I have missed but one (Wednesday) service; have been in my place three times every Sabbath, and at Sunday-school besides. I sometimes wonder how I have kept up under the strain, but God has been good—yea, more than I have deserved.

"Yesterday (Easter Sunday) was a great day. The morning service was a time of rejoicing. The house was crowded. Some of the ladies of the congregation had brought flowers and decorated the chapel very neatly. I baptized six adults; received two Americans by letter, and one American and two Cuban candidates for church membership. At the close of the sermon we administered communion. Surely it was a heavenly feast.

"I am encouraged at the outlook. Our congregations improve both in quantity and in quality. Baptized yesterday a young man who heard me preach last Spring, and who went away to the country. I sent some Bibles there, and he purchased one and read it, and was converted. He wrote me of it. Last week he rode more than 150 miles to have me baptize him and receive him into the church. Three of the candidates yesterday that I received were men."

AMUSEMENTS AND SABBATH DESECRATION.

The quadrennial address of the Bishops of the M. E. Church contains the following timely emphatic deliverance concerning amusements and Sabbath desecration:

Whoever watches the daily press can not miss the evidence of shameful degradation in the theater, the concert and dance-hall, and on the race course. And the tendency to great excess also in other comparatively innocent forms of amusement can not escape attention. The seriousness of life seems largely forgotten, its opportunities of usefulness unoccupied, the vigilance necessary for righteousness relaxed, and the love of the passing world gaining in masterfulness.

It is not to be wondered at that every earnest age has tended to reprobate all amusements, as incompatible with the Christian life. The pendulum has often swung toward that extreme of the arc. Here Puritanism and the early Wesleyanism agreed. To their serious spirit all pleasure-taking seemed closely allied to sin. It was easier to forbid than to regulate it. Yet the harder task is undoubtedly before the church to-day. Experience has shown that it is impossible to impose on youthful and immature Christians a law which many a saintly soul, of thoughtful choice, imposes on itself. The attempt to enforce absolute abstention from recreative amusements roots toward unrestrained indulgence. A discrimination between the admissible and the inadmissible is, therefore, imperative. It was an instance of Mr. Wesley's great sagacity that while his personal life allowed no room, and his spirit and tone no desire for diversions, the law which he entered among the general rules of his societies simply declared a general principle by which Methodists were to be governed. They were forbidden "the taking of such diversions as can not be taken in the name of the Lord Jesus."

In this time of excessive and questionable amusements this principle should be often reiterated and strongly emphasized. The peril to the spiritual life of our people is imminent and incalculable. Lovers of pleasure are not likely to be lovers of God. The warrior must not entangle himself with the affairs of this life. Without simplicity, moderation and purity in his pleasures, the Christian can not resist the forces that create an age of triflers and sensualists. So great is this danger that we suggest that it would be profitable to place among the special advices of the Discipline a brief, but cogent statement of the perils which attach to many amusements, of the evils inseparable from others, and of the principles by which the Christian should regulate his choice among and his use of them. The deep interest of the church in this question will appear to you in various memorials from church and individuals, which we are sure will receive your godly consideration.

Obviously there is within the church, as well as in the world without, a serious and rapidly increasing laxity of Sabbath observance. Unnecessary travel, unnecessary work, the Sunday newspaper, social visiting, excursions and amusements, encroach more and more on time which God has consecrated to sacred uses. Hence many among us are weak, and many are dying. The decay of religion is inevitable if the church does not abide in the right use of the holy day. Let us be fully persuaded that a holy Sabbath eminently ministers to holy character, and that without Sabbath sanctity our people will suffer moral decay, our sanctuaries will be deserted, and our ministries will be ineffective. And the interests of the laborer, whether by hand or brain, equally demand the Sabbath rest.

COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The thirtieth session of the Columbus District Conference convened at Brooksville, Miss., at 2.30 P. M., April 25 1900: Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan presiding. After eight years' work in other fields of our beloved Methodism, he comes back to us still filled with zeal, and alive to every interest of the church—the right man in the right place.

The evening was given to delegates of Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the district. They were presided over by their respective corresponding secretaries—Sisters McMorris and Yeates. Secretary pro tem, Sister E. H. Johnston. Address of welcome by Sister Calines, response by Sister Woodard, and addresses by each of the secretaries, indicated that they had the work well in hand, and that their hearts were in the work. A song by the "Little Helpers," and recitation by Louise Hopkins, stirred our hearts.

Questions for discussion by the Conference—State and Needs of the Work, Missions, Sunday-schools, Education and Twentieth Century Movement, and Epworth Leagues—were arranged beforehand, and the leaders had them well in hand, and they were discussed with much interest and profit to all present. We had excellent preaching every morning and night of the session.

Bro. A. H. George, of Winona district, was a welcome visitor.

W. W. McGruder, F. A. Critz, W. V. Connell, and A. J. Clardy, were elected delegates to the next Annual Conference.

Starkville is the seat of the next District Conference.

Preachers and laymen will ever remember Brooksville's kindness and hospitality to them.

OUR MISSION.

BY MATTHEW HUNT.

One's chiefest duty here below
Is not the seeming great to do,
That the vain world may pause to see;
But in steadfast humility
To walk the common walk, and hear
The thousand-things, the trifling care,
In love, with wisdom, patiently.
Thus each one in his narrow groove
The great world nearer God may move.

THE BIBLE AS A MEANS FOR THE EDUCATION OF THE PEOPLE.

(Read before the Sardis District Conference, Friday, April 27, 1900, at Hernando, Miss; and published by request of that body.)

This is the subject given partially to me by our presiding elder for discussion. Not education in any special sense, in any particular line or respect; not religious education, not literary or scientific education, but education in its broadest sense—mental, moral, and physical education; the Bible as a means to this is, I suppose, what is meant.

Of course, we all understand what education is; or, better, what it is not. We know, as we are considering it, that it does not mean, as we sometimes speak of it, the filling out of a certain number of years, or of a prescribed course of study in some school or college, or the accumulation of a required or of a vast amount of information on any subject or subjects. This may sometimes involve it, but often does not even approximate what is meant by the word which refers to the capacity to study, to grasp, to acquire, rather than to the accumulation itself.

Many men and women, after years spent in schools and colleges, and who, by memory, or some sort of absorption or receptivity, have appropriated and retained, at least for a time, the jewels of thought which others who know how to think have gathered, who have in writing conclusive evidence of a finished and brilliant career, are almost wholly uneducated. They were led by some mysterious influence through Paradise, and its glory is upon or about them; but they must have been asleep, for they met not the angels, saw not the tree of life and the pavements of gold, nor caught the strain of its celestial melodies.

On the other hand, we sometimes find in some lonely but in mountain or forest—far away from the maddening crowd—man or woman who never saw a school-house, who is unable to distinguish the characters in the alphabet of our mother tongue from Sanscrit, or the hieroglyphics of Egypt or Mexico, who is richly educated. That is, there is the enlarged capacity to think, to resolve, to act, and, consequently, more of development in the one case than in the other. Circumscribed, perhaps limited, but stronger along certain lines than the other is over many lines. But there is no situation without causes or means for producing education. They exist everywhere, in every life—in earth, air and sky, in surrounding objects. Greater in some cases, but everywhere; plenty of cases, but no deserts in this plain.

The trouble is, that all are not sensitive to their existence, subject to their influence; are not developed by them; and the value of any educational force is to be determined by the chances there are of our becoming interested in it, attached to it, to love it. The greater the probability of this occurring, the greater the probability of its power as an educational force. In other words, that which gets closest to us, or us to it, that makes us think most, feel most, act most, educates us most. That which we love most educates us most.

Various causes may operate to establish this condition, this interest. Some existing, inherent desire, some human necessity, may prompt certain inquiries and searchings after knowledge. It may be a created desire arising out of certain associations or promptings, certain environments, but the condition, the interest, must be established to secure the desired result.

To the lover of the wildwood and forest is whispered the secrets—of leafy shades and sunny glens, flower gardens and bird concerts, murmuring waterfalls and hidden lakes, and mysterious mountain shrines where the voice of the Great Spirit is heard.

To the lover of the beautiful the Goddess of Beauty comes and leads him entranced amid her picture galleries and temples, her sunsets and Summer evenings, her visions of beauty by day, and her dreams of fairy scenes and places by night.

Worship at the shrine of Music, and soon there comes to the listening ear sublime melodies and harmonies revealed only to the worshiper.

And so in literature, art and science, in every department of human thought and labor, that which mind and heart seek after, that which they welcome and entertain, expands and develops them in the process; but it is not so where admission is denied, or where an unnoticed entrance and exit, by uninvited guests, occur.

Nature gives us the tragedy of the sky in dark cloud and lurid lightning, or she gives us some scene of great beauty and peacefulness in Summer's sunset or fleecy beauty of cloud; but to some they are significant merely of the coming storm and the necessity for shelter, or that the morrow will be fair and that the flocks can graze the hills in safety; but others see beyond the dark cloud the anger of God at the sinner, and, in the more peaceful scene, a sketch of the beautiful abiding-place he is preparing for them who love him.

Jacob laid him down at night to rest, but lingering beauty of departed day and fast appearing armies of twinkling, watching stars held him long awake, his soul drinking in their beauties and speeding far above him to the source of all beauty, and so, for such responsive ness, God provided for his access to heaven with angelic escort, while the dull shepherds slept amid their herds, as unresponsive as they.

We must not be either ignorant of or indifferent to the educational forces and influences that surround us, if we would have them educate us. We must not walk as one asleep along life's pathway, having eyes and seeing not, ears and hearing not, as hard and indifferent as the rocks on the shore of some southern sea, feeling neither the giant blows nor the soft and warm caresses of its stormy or love-murmuring waves.

With these preliminary thoughts showing what education is, and the conditions most favorable, most forcible, in its obtainment—in substance—that its developing power, educating power, in any case depends upon some desire, some affinity for it, some interest in it, we may now proceed to see how closely the Bible fills these conditions, and thus determine its value as a great educational force.

What place, then, does the Bible hold in the world of educational forces? is the question. It is unquestionably superior to all others. First, because of the superior chance or opportunity to operate. It is the most widely disseminated book, or compendium of learning, in the world. Its possessors are more numerous, it is in more homes, owned by more people, more accessible from these causes, not considering instances of its public use in society, Sunday-school, or church, to civilized people—and I suppose we are only considering it in such connection—than all other books combined. And the stream keeps at the flood, pouring its millions of Bibles into the hands of the people every year. The English Bible Society alone published last year, as I learn from a reliable source, five tons of Bibles, and I doubt if our American Bible Society is much behind it.

Say what we may about the Bible not being read enough—which is admitted, though foreign to this discussion—but its hold upon the masses of the people is unmistakable, and it is the most widely read of any book in existence to-day. Other books may come and go, be read and forgotten, but it is here to stay, and its teachings to abide forever. It is not sought always for proper purposes, but it is sought, and almost invariably, too, with a recognition of its potentiality. A man may seek it not as an honest inquirer after truth, not as one who, dwelling in darkness, seeks in it the light. It may be to equip him for disputations to down some opposing saint or sinner, but when he finds what he seeks, he knows that he has secured that which must be accepted, be recognized as true, thus recognizing and unawares paying tribute to its excellency.

I have been both astonished and somewhat amused in my experience along this line with some of the most wicked men I have ever known, astonished to find that men I thought never read the Bible possess considerable familiarity with its contents, and amused to find that, despite their own disbelief, they used extracts from it as establishing conclusively their contentions on any disputed point. Some may come to read and scoff, and some to read and pray, but all come.

But there is another reason that shows why it is sought and read; another attraction that draws all men to it—a loadstone. There is in all men a natural desire to worship, which is never completely smothered or eradicated from the most wicked lives, and which leads them to seek directly, or through some agency or instrumentality, some knowledge of the Great Being of the universe revealed only in his one treatise to man—the Bible.

Again, there is also the questionings of every mind as to the future state. Decay and death man reads from nature. Friends fall on his right hand and his left. Where have they gone? Nature shows him the fresh, beautiful flower, or the stately oak, and bids him consider them to-morrow. He knows that he is subject to this great law, that there are no exceptions, and that he, too, must pass away—must die. But, shall he live again, and if so, where, and how, and what in the present, if anything, effects the other life? Nature shows him the re-appearance of the flower after a Winter of sleep, and he sees the young oak—no better, no worse—following the dead giant. He learns, too, that nothing that exists is ever really lost, the indestructibility of matter existing always, though sometimes in lower forms and conditions. But Nature, Science, all turn away their heads and are silent to his eager questionings about himself after he shall have slept and been changed.

There is only one source from which flows down through all the ages this one blessed hope, grasped in faith or not at all, 'I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live again."

What a bold, authoritative declaration! None but a God could make it. Find me, if you please, one human soul that has ever lived since this great truth became known to men, that has doubted his own immortality, or resorted to any other source than the Bible as establishing such much-desired fact.

You see that in all this I am not discussing what the Book is to the Christian merely, but what it is to the people, the masses. Few lives are so bad in this age, in my opinion, that they have not been bettered, developed, by its great prophecies, teachings, and promises.

Away out in the wildwood, where sunshine seldom comes, and where it is dark and the snow lies longest, deep beneath the brushwood a little flower plant is lifting its head to meet the Spring-time, and so, away down in the darkest life, grows a little flower of hope, drawing its young life from God's mercy and promises in his Holy Word. It is much read for other reasons.

This is pre-eminently an age of individual inquiry and investigation. Among Christians there is less disposition to receive truth second-handed, to receive as oracular and conclusive the conceptions and conclusions of others, of councils or ministry. To them He speaks, and they love to catch His voice whispered in His love letters to them, and they read them over and over again, and desire no discordant note of other voice therein.

To those not Christians, with them the same rule obtains. Religion they treat as a science, the principles of which are recorded in its great text-book, the Bible, and they study it as they do other sciences in their great love of investigation and desire to know the knowable in all realms of knowledge, of thought.

Take it along any other line of inquiry, investigation, and how attractive it is! The painter finds in it his greatest subjects, and it is a known fact that most of the great masterpieces have as their foundation persons or places in the Bible. And have you noticed the evolution along this line? From God, the terrible punisher of the wicked, in scenes of "The Last Day," "The Judgment"—with sinners hurled into flaming pits—we have, later, the horrible as ascribed to Him in scenes of "The Crucifixion," with its crown of thorns and His pierced and bleeding side; later, this is left for sad, but more peaceful scenes, "The Last Supper," "The Ascension," in which the sadness of separation is shown; later still, and last of all, we have His loving care and providence shown in "The Tender Shepherd," leading his flocks amid the green pastures and beside the still waters, or gathering them safely into the sheep-fold for shelter and rest.

Our great songs and anthems have, too, their inspiration in its themes; and here, too, we have the same growth, great changes in the world-heart. For instance, from "There is a fountain filled with blood," which is not true, scripturally or otherwise, and that cleanness is secured by plunging into that fountain—a fountain of blood shed by the blessed Savior—and that we should be happy in pinning therein, shocking, horrible—not so very old, but a descendant from that same age of blood—we come on down to the same shepherd idea: "Jesus, gentle Shepherd, lead me;" "Jesus, lover of my soul; let me to thy bosom fly" (the refuge or safety song), and, "All to Jesus I surrender" (the song of consecration or perfect love).

What a wonderful book it is! Its children's stories—what can charm them more than the story of Joseph, and his final exaltation and triumph? What interesting legends we have about Job and about beautiful Queen Esther! Do we want love stories full of romance and endless devotion? Isaac and Rebecca, Jacob and Rachel. Interesting biography? Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, Daniel and Solomon. Strong, constant friendship? Ruth and Naomi, David and Jonathan. What history of ancient times, of Greece or Rome, can compare in thrilling interest with that of the Jews? What stately tread in Isaiah's sentences! What beautiful poems in David! What incomparable logic, blended with choice sarcasm, as that of our Lord in his discussions—for he permitted these—with the learned, critical Scribes and Pharisees!

But I can only pick a gem here and there from this wonderful jewel box. But all these things attract men and women to the Bible—the repository of best, brightest thoughts and sentiments.

In modern application what a solver it is of the problems of the time! One or two: In social life we have wholesale divorces which threaten to disrupt the home life and corrupt society. Listen to the solution: "Wives, be in subjection to your own husbands." "Teach the young women to love their husbands, love their children, to be sober minded, chaste, workers at home, kind, being in subjection to their own husbands." "Husbands, love your wives." (This settles it.) In business circles: It is an age of combinations of labor against capital—brotherhoods, labor unions; of combinations of capital against labor—trusts and combines. Solution: "Servants, be obedient unto them which are your masters, with good-will doing service." "And ye masters do the same things unto them, forbear threatenings." "The wages of him that is hired shall not abide with thee all night until the morning." "Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant." "Masters, give unto your servants that which is just and equal, knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven."

It is an age of fierce competition, in which men, even good men, become very despondent over present and future wants, for bread and raiment. Did not He say, "Be not anxious for your life, what ye shall eat; nor for the body, what ye shall put on"? "Consider the ravens, that they sow not, neither reap; which have no store chamber nor barn; and God feedeth them; of how much more value are ye than the birds." "Your Father knoweth ye have need of these things."

National contests, wars, disturb us. Look forward to that glad time when the principles of this great Book shall govern, when "swords shall be beaten into plowshares, and spears into pruning-hooks; when nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his own vine and under his own fig tree, and none shall make them afraid, for the mouth of the Lord of hosts has spoken it."

But I did not intend to discuss the merits of the Bible; its rules for individual and national guidance; its rules for solving problems in social, business, and political life; the sources of pleasure, aside from its religious testings, to the lovers of the beautiful, the excellent, in literature and art; its logic, its profound philosophy, further than to show that these are attractions that, from many and such divergent sources, draw men to it, so readily accessible to all, and thence deduce the conclusion, first announced, of its almost universal reading by the masses, and its universal potency as an educational force. This, I think, is established.

Now, a few words: Shall we endeavor to extend the influence of this book? If so, by what means? How is it to be brought into fuller play as an educational force? Should it be taught in our public schools, the schools supported by the State? Should not its profound wisdom be found there in the training of those who are to constitute the citizenship and the administrators of the laws of the Republic? Great disputations are along this line in some sections of our country, but they do not exist in our State or section, where there is virtually no opposition to our views on this subject, and where nothing more is needed but some manifestation of popular will on the subject to put it into practical operation. This might require, here and there, some changes as to teachers, but not many, for the importance of Christian men and women in this department of labor is almost universally recognized.

I think it should be used more in Sunday-school work, class work, and that prayer meeting services would be more interesting and profitable if the attendants were converted into a class for Bible readings and comments along arranged lines; and possibly so, to some extent, in the church's Sunday night services.

This is merely suggestive, and I leave it, inviting full discussion by the Conference along all these lines, as well as the more religious aspects of my subject; all that Bro. Lowe, who has it in hand, leaves undisposed of, if anything, and conclude now by saying that our presiding elder must not give me next time such a big subject—one which, in its vastness, its profundity, I realize that I have, at best, only slightly, faintly touched or sounded.

Respectfully submitted, etc.,
N. A. TAYLOR.

THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE AND THE TWENTIETH CENTURY MOVEMENT.

There seems to be a misunderstanding among the leaders of the movement in Louisiana in regard to the amount that we are expected to raise for this fund, and the error seems to have grown out of the fact that the whole church is assessed at the rate of $1.04 a member.

The following facts show just what is expected of us: The New Century Education, of February, 1899, states that the fund is divided "on the basis of the assessment for foreign missions," not of church membership, and gives as the assignment of the Louisiana Conference for collection, $38,700. We reported to the last Conference a total membership of 27,152; so, instead of being asked for a per capita contribution of $1.04, we are asked to contribute $1.425 for each member. The portion falling to the several districts, then, would be: New Orleans district, $3,500; Baton Rouge district, $8,374; Opelousas district, $5,386; Alexandria district, $4,686; Shreveport district, $5,846; Arcadia district, $7,671; Delhi district, $3,237; if the division is made according to the membership in each, and this seems to be the plan in vogue all over the church.

Now, what has been done towards raising this amount? There was paid to the treasurer of this fund, Rev. Robt. Randle, at the last Conference, $378.34, divided as follows: New Orleans district, $69.64; Baton Rouge district, $67.50; Opelousas district, $21.50; Alexandria district, $15.35; Shreveport district, $148.70; Arcadia district, $22.40, and Delhi district, $33.25. Besides this, there has been pledged in the New Orleans district about $2,500, and about $1,000 in the Shreveport district, that I know of, besides various amounts included in the collection of $2,340 taken by Bishop Galloway at the last session of the Conference, that are to be credited to the other districts.

I think we would be safe in saying that we have at least $5,000 in sight of the $38,700 we have started out to raise. This is not encouraging to our schools, and reflects very little honor upon us as a church or as individuals. If we are to raise this amount, we must be at it, and hard at it, too from now on.

The Baton Rouge, Arcadia, New Orleans and Shreveport districts are organized and at work, and we may soon expect to hear good reports from these sections; but how about the other three districts?

Let us all move promptly, and keep moving until the whole amount is raised.
WM. G. EVANS.

When Miss Belle Kearney was in New Orleans, not long since, giving lectures in the cause of temperance work, she gave a lecture at the Dryades Street Methodist Church, and asked the young ladies to join the good cause, which they did. Through the assistance of Miss Myrtle Shively, Mrs. Zabie, and Mrs. B. F. White they formed a Y., calling it the Mary Read Goodale Y. The young ladies have taken up three lines of work. The Medal Contest Work, with Mrs. B. F. White as superintendent; The Press Work, with Miss Alice Miller as superintendent; The Flower Mission Work, with Miss Julia Haag superintendent. All the plans have been perfected, and the young ladies will start this week to visit those who are sick, and read to those who can not see. These young ladies will do their part in scattering sunshine everywhere they go, for with their beautiful flowers, given with smiling faces and cheerful words, they will brighten the lives of all who come in contact with them. This temperance work is a good cause, and we hope that this organization will be successful.

The officers of this organization are as follows: President, Miss Ernestine Doll; vice-president, Mrs. B. F. White; recording secretary, Miss Alice Miller; corresponding secretary, Miss Edna Doll; treasurer, Miss Edna Keller.

HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Holly Springs District Conference met in its thirtieth session at Hickory Flat, Miss., Thursday morning, April 26, at nine o'clock, with Rev. J. W. Hounsell, P. E., in the chair. Religious exercises were conducted by Bro. S. A. Ellis. Bro. D. W. Babb was requested to call the roll, which showed a very full attendance of both preachers and delegates. The writer was elected secretary, and the Conference proceeded with its business. The entire session was harmonious and brotherly love did abound. There was only one preacher absent.

Bro. Bachman was with us a short time, and impressed the Conference with the importance of circulating our literature. He is doing a good work.

Hester Hoskins, lady principal of the Grenada Female College, was a very welcome visitor with us, and delighted, instructed and entertained a large audience with a very eloquent address on knowledge and wisdom. She made a very cheering report of her school, and the work being done by Bro. McIntosh, the president, and his efficient faculty.

T. M. Brownlee was licensed to preach. Rev. T. R. Stronp, from the Missionary Baptist Church, was received into our church, and recommended to the Annual Conference for recognition in elder's orders. Rev. R. W. Evans was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission into the traveling connection, and for deacon's orders. T. J. Wilson was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The Committee on Books and Periodicals offered a resolution looking to the establishing of a Mississippi paper, which was adopted.

The Committee on the Centennial Offering showed that we have a great deal of work to do, that we may be able to report our assessment paid in full.

The preaching, which was done by Bros. R. M. Davis, D. W. Babb, J. Porter, and Dr. Price, was earnest and edifying.

Victoria was chosen as the place for the next meeting of the Conference.
J. A. POE, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM.

PROF W. H. N. MAGRUDER, LL.D.

At his home in Baton Rouge, La., after a short sickness, on March 9, 1900, Dr. W. H. N. Magruder finished his course in the eighty-fifth year of his earthly pilgrimage. He was born Dec. 31, 1815, at "Mt. Ararat," the family homestead, in Jefferson county, Miss. His parents were Capt. Jas. T. and Elizabeth Ann Magruder. They came from Prince George county, Maryland, in the early part of this century with quite a number of their fellow-citizens. The neighborhood where they established themselves was known as the "Maryland Settlement." They were a refined and educated people, and in easy circumstances. Capt. Magruder had been a sea captain for many years before coming to Mississippi. He called his home there "Mt. Ararat," because, said he, "My ark rested here." He was a man of superior intellectual and moral qualities, and his wife was a woman of deep piety and refinement.

Bro. Magruder was the youngest of three children. As a child, he was thought to be physically frail, but mentally precocious. His early training was in the country schools. Among his early teachers was the celebrated S. S. Prentiss. Using all the opportunities accessible, he prepared for college. In those days young men living in the South had to go far from home to secure the advantages of a liberal education. Mr. Magruder made the long and tedious journey on horseback from Mississippi to Washington City, and then by stage to Connecticut. He matriculated in the Wesleyan University of Middletown, Conn. Among his fellow-students there may be mentioned John W. Burruss, his class-mate and most intimate friend, and the now venerable and distinguished Bishop J. C. Keener. After his graduation Mr. Magruder returned to the South. He then engaged in the management of the joint interests of himself, brother and sister, in a cotton planting venture on the borders of Yazoo and Warren counties, Miss.

But this was not to be the life-work of the scholarly young Southerner. In 1839 the original Centenary College was inaugurated at Brandon, Miss. Mr. Magruder was called to the chair of Latin and Greek in this institution in 1840. In 1844 Mr. Magruder moved with the college to Jackson, La., holding his professorship there until 1852. The presidents of the college during his time of service were Dr. Thornton, Judge Hitchcock, Judge Longstreet and Dr. J. A. Rivers. He was connected with Centenary as professor or trustee for nearly sixty years.

In 1852 Prof. Magruder established the Collegiate Institute, which he subsequently moved to Baton Rouge, La., in 1855. For many years he conducted this institution with great ability and success. This was the great work of his life. He was one of the pioneers in educational work of this character in the Southwest. That his work was appreciated found expression in the letters received by him in his later years from students who had been prepared by him for the duties and responsibilities of life.

Prof. Magruder was a man of exact scholarship and a very thorough instructor. His intellectual interests were in the line of classical studies. He was enthusiastic in his advocacy of the classical discipline in college education. About sixty years of his life was devoted to the cause of education. In testimony to his work and great abilities the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him. In 1889 he was appointed superintendent of the State Institute for the Blind, holding this position until the day of his death.

Of the more personal side of his life Prof. Magruder was greatly loved. Especially was this the case in his marriage. While a student at the Wesleyan University he became acquainted with Miss Mary Bangs, a daughter of the late Rev. Heman Bangs, a distinguished minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1837 Mr. Magruder returned to the South, and on Nov. 22, of that year, he and Miss Bangs were married in Hartford, Conn. For almost sixty two years they journeyed together to be separated by death for only a few months. Mrs. Magruder was a woman of very strong and noble nature. She was a devoted wife and mother, and sustained her position with grace and adaptation to all the duties devolving upon her. A large family of children were born to them, of whom four sons are still living.

Dr. Magruder was a man of very strong personal attachments. He held his kindred and friends in high personal esteem. His circle of friends was large. In his later years he was charmed to dwell upon the times of his early manhood and middle age, to call over the names of the noble men and women whose lives had touched his own. I recall the names of many distinguished men of fifty years ago often mentioned by him. Among others occur the names of William Winans and Benjamin M. Drake. Dr. Drake was especially honored and beloved as his distinguished friend and brother-in-law.

Dr. Magruder was a member of the Methodist Church from his youth. My impression is that he joined the church at a camp meeting in Mississippi after hearing a sermon by Dr. Winans. He was a most intense Methodist. He was devoted to the church, and was ever ready to exact its position with friend or foe. For many years he was the main support of our church in Baton Rouge, and was identified with that congregation for nearly fifty years. He served as lay delegate in Annual and General Conferences. He took a keen pleasure in mingling with the brethren in the official and social gatherings of the church. His home was always open to the ministry, and often has the pastor been encouraged by the sympathetic hospitality extended there.

His personal characteristics were pronounced. He was sincere and decided in expressing his convictions. He had a great aversion to shams, and greatly appreciated goodness and ability in others. Bro. Magruder said very little about his own spiritual life, but his hope was fixed in Christ as his only Savior.

During the past three years he often spoke to me upon the subject of experimental religion. As the evening of life closed in upon him his mind dwelt more and more upon the importance of the abiding peace and conscious trust in Christ. A few days before his death he gave assurance to an intimate friend of his trust in Christ. When the end was near, and he was speechless, his face caught the attention of his faithful nurse; he looked up and, slightly waving his hand upward, indicated where his confidence and hope rested—in the All Merciful—into whose presence he quietly passed.

His life was busy to the last; only a few days' interval from work to his final discharge from an honorable and distinguished career.

"Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark;
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark.

"For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crost the bar."

FROM THE WORK.

FARMERVILLE, LA.

The second Quarterly Conference for Farmerville charge convened at Pearson's School-house, April 7. We regret that our worthy pastor, H. B Thomason, could not be with us on account of sickness, but Bro. B. T. Crews, our beloved presiding elder, was on hand, and preached us two most excellent sermons, to the delight of all the people. He has won all hearts here, and his influence will be felt by this people long after he has dropped his cross of self-denial and entered on his great reward. The charge made a favorable report, and we are praying for a revival that will touch every phase of the church work.

We hope, during the year, to build a new Methodist Church at this place.

May God bless the good people this year with good health and crops, and may our beloved pastor be so filled with the Holy Spirit that he may carry the blessed gospel and the love of God into every heart and home in this charge!

We greatly enjoy the weekly visits of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; our hearts are thrilled with the glad tidings it brings.

AMORY, MISS.

We have just closed our meeting at this place. Bro. M. L. Blanton, of Nashville, did the most of the preaching, and while the results were not all we hoped for, yet we had a good meeting. Our membership received a general uplift. Many good purposes were formed, backsliders reclaimed, and six were added on profession of faith, with the prospect of others; and while we have dismissed seven by letter, we have secured fifteen by letter, making a net gain since Conference of fourteen members. Our salary is paid up to date, and we have treasurer's receipt for about one-third of the amounts asked by Conference, and are taking subscriptions for Twentieth Century Fund, and our League is growing in numbers and interest.

I hear good things from the district. Bro. Woollard is hard at it, and is succeeding. He is much in favor with his preachers and people. I hear that both Wilson, of Aberdeen, and Myers, of Tupelo, are now, or soon will be, engaged in a series of meetings. Bro. Porter, of Aberdeen chronic, was with us on the fifth Sunday, and preached us a clear, strong sermon. Bro. Craddock, of Smithville, gave us another good sermon last night. Our preachers are all well, and at work with energy, faith, and zeal. I, therefore, believe that the Aberdeen district will be up toward the front at Conference.

OPIUM WHISKY and other drug habits cured in 30 days. Sanatorium treatment. Book and particulars FREE. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

The engineer misunderstood the signals and there was a frightful railroad collision, with terrible loss of life. The whole country was appalled by that accident.

There is doubtless a far greater loss of life occurring every day, in various sections of the country, for which the only excuse is,—"the doctor didn't understand the symptoms." These cases are not the subjects of special inquest or the country would be aghast at the sacrifice of life to ignorance.

It has been the experience of Dr. R. V. Pierce and his staff of assistant physicians, that ninety-eight out of every hundred persons submitting to their treatment can be cured. People given up by the local physicians, weak, emaciated, with stubborn coughs and bleeding lungs have been absolutely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All letters are held as strictly private and treated as sacredly confidential. Answers are mailed in plain envelopes without any printing on them.

"Last spring I was taken with severe pains in my chest, and was so weak I could hardly walk about the house," says Mrs. G. E. Kerr, of Fort Dodge, Webster Co., Iowa. "I tried several physicians and they told me I had consumption. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and I thought I would try some of it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was very much better; I took five bottles of it and have not yet had any return of the trouble."

THURSDAY, MAY 17, 1900.

THE SUNDAY LAW MUST BE PRESERVED.

Indications are not wanting that during the present session of the Louisiana Legislature, which has just convened at Baton Rouge, determined effort will be made by the whisky men of this city, assisted by a few other enemies of the Sabbath, to have the present excellent Sunday law repealed, or, failing in that, to have it so amended as to make an exception of the Crescent City. No other class of tradesmen that we know of deem this statute obnoxious, or are clamoring for its repeal. The general public is well satisfied with the law as it is, while the better class of our citizens, comprising Christians of almost every name and denomination, consider it as one of the most beneficent measures upon the statute books, and regard all attempts to secure its repeal or non-enforcement as treasonable and highly inimical to public order and morality, and to the best interests of the working classes, who are most benefited by the operation of the Sunday law.

No doubt the plea will be made before the Legislature that the Sunday law is frequently violated, and that it can not be enforced. Such an argument, however, is scarce deserving of notice, for, as everybody knows, the law has been well enforced at times, and could be now with little difficulty, even in this city, if the police and city officials would do their duty. Nobody thinks of calling for the abrogation of laws against theft and murder, and other misdemeanors, because of repeated violations thereof.

Furthermore, if the Sunday law is such a failure, as the saloonists would have us believe, why are they so anxious for its repeal? Why are they so persistent in their efforts in this direction?

The cry is raised by some that the Sunday law is religious legislation; that it is an attempt to make people righteous by statute. This, however, is a gross misrepresentation of the case. One of the main objects of the law is to secure for the toiler his right to one day of rest in seven: to give to the masses the inestimable boon of Sabbath surcease from grinding labor and care. While important moral ends are subserved by the Sunday law, it is, nevertheless, a civil measure of no mean value. The need of one day of rest in seven is written indelibly upon man's physical constitution. Hence, to deny man this rest is to deprive him of one of the essentials to physical well-being and happiness, and true civil liberty.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the New Orleans Sunday Rest League, held in the Odd Fellows' Hall one night last week, a strong memorial to the Legislature was adopted, asking that the present Sunday law be not tampered with. This action is timely, and should be followed up all over the State by vigorous work on the part of the friends of the Sabbath. Let such a flood of petitions, letters and memorials pour in from all quarters upon the legislators requesting the preservation of the Sunday law that they will not dare to repeal or modify it. To be forewarned is to be forearmed.

The memorial mentioned above contains the following weighty utterances from men of national reputation:

"'The philanthropist and the Christian,' writes ex-President Harrison, 'may approach the subject from different directions; but whether we regard man as an animal or an immortal, we should unite in securing for him the rest that body and spirit both demand for their best condition and highest good. Those who do not find the divine command in the Book can not fail to find it in the man.'

"And Mr. Justice Fields, late of the Supreme Court of the United States, reminds us that there are very few points on which so many statesmen, scientists and philosophers are agreed as the necessity and value of the weekly rest day. And Cardinal Gibbons says: 'It contributes immeasurably to the restriction of vice and immorality, and the promotion of peace and social order.'"

Why should the Sabbath be given over to the tender mercies of those slaves of greed, the saloon men? How long will these debauchers of manhood have the audacity thus to abuse the patience of the public by trying to abolish the Sabbath, which, as Emerson rightly declared, "is the core of our civilization"? Well has it been said that "liquor and leisure never meet but for mischief."

We do not believe the good people of Louisiana are so morally obtuse and lethargic as to let the saloon men have their own way in this matter. Let the friends of the Sunday law speak out both long and loud.

GAINS OF THE M. E. CHURCH.

The noted statistician, H. K. Carroll, LL.D., who is a member of the M. E. Church, has an exhaustive article in the New York Advocate, of April 26, under the caption, "Our Gains in the Quadrennium," in which he gives some highly interesting statistics, and points out certain important lessons that should be learned therefrom. We quote the following totals, as given for 1899: Ministers, 17,321; churches, 26,988; probationers, 257,956; members, 2,618,015; members and probationers, 2,875,991. During the past four years, according to Dr. Carroll, the M. E. Church has gained 295 ministers, 1605 churches, and 162,369 members, but meanwhile has lost 53,035 probationers, the net gain in communicants for the quadrennium, including both members and probationers, being 109,334. The per cent. of increase—four per cent.—is mentioned as being the lowest with two exceptions, namely, during the Civil War, and in 18-7983, in the last half century. The M. E. Church last year sustained a net loss in communicants of 20,000, or more, but this was entirely of probationers. After showing that the small increase in the last four years is due to the decline in the number of probationers, Dr. Carroll remarks that if the church is to grow, it must have probationers, for these represent conversions. "Conversions," he rightly says, "are to the church what births are to the population of the country—the source, the sole source, of increase."

The gratifying fact is brought out that the mission fields have been the most prosperous, they being credited with more than thirty per cent. of the total increase. Hence, it is evident that the causes, whatever they may be, that are retarding growth in this country, do not operate abroad. It is rather remarkable that the white Conferences of the M. E. Church in the South are mentioned as being the most fruitful in the United States. The Border States, however, are the ones where the growth is largest. After giving considerable attention to financial statistics Dr. Carroll next makes inquiry as to the probable cause, or causes, of the recent small increase in membership of the denomination he represents. As Southern Methodism has lately suffered a similar falling off, which, though not so marked as in the M. E. Church, is nevertheless too significant to be lightly passed over, what the Doctor has to say upon this point is of vital interest to us, as well.....In our opinion, Dr. Carroll has come nearer locating the source of the trouble than any other writer whose utterances upon this matter have come under our notice. We suspect that the disease pointed out is one that also affects all the churches in considerable degree. Says the eminent Dr. Carroll:

"It is true that the present conditions are not unprecedented. Our church has encountered them before. It is also true that they are not peculiar to us; other denominations share in them. But that does not make our failure to secure continuance of healthy growth one whit more tolerable. Ours is the largest of the Protestant Churches, and affects the lives of more people than any other, as Dr. Buckley has said. We must assume that God is not less willing or anxious to save now than he was fifteen or twenty years ago; that salvation is as necessary to men now as it ever was, though they may be less anxious to be saved. The fault, then, must lie with the church. What is it? He is a bold man who assumes to be able to lay his finger on it. I certainly do not claim to be wiser on this point than others. I simply have impressions and convictions, due to what I have observed and learned, and I am going to advance them for what they are worth.

"I have seen various reasons assigned: (1) the decay of the class meeting; (2) discontinuance of the family altar; (3) the decline of the revival spirit; (4) the Disciplinary prohibition of certain amusements; (5) the limitations of the itinerancy; (6) the results of the higher criticism; (7) the prevalence of the commercial spirit. It seems to me that the chief cause of unfruitfulness is not any one of these, nor all of these together, but that it is something back of or beyond them. These are symptoms, for the most part, which tell of a disease. What is the disease? In my opinion it is this:

"Our pulpit does not put sufficient emphasis on the necessity and conditions of a religious life.

"By necessity of a religious life I mean what I understand to be the fundamental truth of the Gospel: That every person to whom the Gospel comes must choose whom he will serve; that to choose and serve God is life eternal, and that to choose and serve Satan is death eternal. To enter upon this religious life men must be born again; they must pass from death unto life. No other way is indicated in the Scriptures. Everyone must enter in at the strait gate. Those who fail to do this, no matter how excellent their lives in many outward respects, can not be saved. I do not mean to say that our modern pulpit does not exhort men to be saved; I do mean that not enough emphasis is laid on the necessity of repentance, faith, regeneration. 'Ye must be born again.' Almost nothing is said as to the fate of those who are not born again. How seldom do we hear the warning, 'Flee from the wrath to come!' It is the dark and dreadful background of the Gospel picture, and can not safely be neglected. Great emphasis is laid on God's love; not too much—that were impossible; but not enough on the result of refusing to accept it.

"The difference between accepting and not accepting this love needs to be presented with more sharpness. Many people have come to believe that if a man lives soberly and correctly in the eyes of his neighbors he is saved, though he may give no evidence of having been born again, may never connect himself with the church, nor have any fellowship with God's people. They comfort themselves with the belief that God saves all but the persistently wicked, whether they repent or not. This idea creates and fosters indifference—indifference in the church to the salvation of the unconverted, and indifference among the unconverted to their own salvation.

"By conditions of the religious life I mean its obligations. Pastor after pastor has said to me, 'There is a lack of sense of obligation or responsibility among church members.' The differences between members of the church and members of the world are often very, very indistinct. The religious life, as formerly inculcated, was a life of devotion, a life of sacrifice. It used to cost something to be a Christian. Because they were professed Christians men and women denied themselves pleasures and indulgences which they deemed inconsistent with their profession. They could not do everything which worldlings did. They were quite content so to deny themselves. It seems far less so in these days. Not that some do not measure up to high standards of religious life, and make loving and willing sacrifice; not that the morals of the age are not better than they used to be; but the tendency is to personal indulgence, the assertion of individual liberty to consult personal desires and live more to self. The feeling is not so much, 'What I ought,' as, 'What I wish.'"

THE INFLUENCE OF THE SECULAR PRESS.

If the prominence and space recently given by the daily papers to accounts of a disgraceful prize-ring contest are a true index to the condition of public morals, then our country is indeed in a bad way. We do not see how any newspaper that devotes large attention to the doings of professional pugilists can be regarded as innocuous and thoroughly respectable.

The press, by its fleeting and extensive reports of prize-ring encounters, is doing no little to encourage and popularize this relic of barbarism. What cares the average metropolitan daily, however, for public morals? What will it not publish in order to obtain filthy lucre and extend its circulation? Yet, despite its frequent venality and disregard of biblical teaching, the secular daily now and then proudly and pretentiously assumes the role of prophet of righteousness, and even dares to tell the pulpit what it should preach! Could anything be more audacious or inconsistent? Not long ago an influential daily loudly proclaimed that considerations of public health should be above a mere matter of dollars and cents! A worthy sentiment that; but how about public morality and sobriety?

A NEW BOOK.

REMINISCENCES. By R. A. Young. 12 mo. 154 pages. Cloth. 1900. Nashville, Tenn.: Southern Methodist Publishing House.

This modest, but meritorious little volume from the pen of the talented and honored Dr. R. A. Young, of the Tennessee Conference, is the author's latest contribution to the book world, and bears the unmistakable stamp of his originality, humor, and intellectual acuteness.

Having had large experience with men and affairs, the author, who has recently reached the allotted three-score years and ten, is well capacitated to write a book of "reminiscences," nor has he failed to give the public something worthy of attention. The writer's connection with the itinerant ministry dates back to 1845, and in the course of his narrative he gives a great deal of valuable and interesting information respecting leading preachers of Southern Methodism and the history of the church. His pen pictures are superb. Many incidents and impressions of foreign travel are given. One seldom comes across a more spicy or entertaining volume. It will be read with peculiar delight by preachers. An excellent likeness of the author appears opposite the title-page. The book is also adorned by a number of portraits of distinguished Southern Methodists.

THE ANTI-CANTEEN LAW.

The Northern Methodist General Conference, last Monday, adopted the following vigorous resolutions anent the nullification of the anti-canteen law:

"We are chagrined, humiliated and exasperated by the puerile and absurd construction placed upon the anti-canteen law, so called, by the Attorney General of the United States, and with all due respect to his exalted station, we record the fact that we are pained and disappointed at the course of the President in accepting as final and satisfactory an opinion without binding force. Such an abuse of power is nullification in its most dangerous form. Upon the President, as commander-in-chief of our army, rests the responsibility for the canteen saloon—an evil which he has ample power to suppress, and which, to quote the Episcopal address, 'is a more deadly foe to the soldier than bullet or tropic heat.'

"We urge upon the President an early exercise of the power vested in him to the end that the authority of the government, instead of being used to place temptation in the soldier's way, shall be used to save him, as far as possible, from the moral hazards incident to military life."

NOTES.

The Southern Baptist Convention will be held next year in the Crescent City.

An Epworth League Missionary Rally will be held at Louisiana Avenue Church next Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. An interesting program will be presented, and the young people should not fail to turn out in force. Rev. P. L. Cobb, of Nashville, is expected to be present and deliver an address.

A brief note from Rev. M. L. Burton, the zealous and beloved pastor at Enterprise, Miss., says: "We have about recovered from the recent wind and rain. The people suffered very heavy loss, but it is not quite so serious as was at first thought. The church here seems to be doing well in many respects."

***

We are in receipt of a cheery letter from Rev. John A. Miller, of the Louisiana Conference, who went recently to Sour Lake, Texas, for the benefit of his health. After sojourning for a week, or more, at that health resort, he went to Coleman, Texas, a more elevated region, where he is now abiding. He writes that he is improving rapidly, and hopes to be able in a week, or more, to resume work again.

The following note from "Gilderoy" will touch the hearts of many of our readers: "Rev. J. M. Hampton, now in his eighty-fourth year, has been stranded in bed for three weeks, and part of the time very sick. He is some better now, and cheerful and happy in the love of God. It is delightful to be here with him, and to see the strength of his faith and the brightness of his hope. His sun elopes to its setting without a single cloud."

Says the Nashville Advocate, of last week: "The series of excellent articles by Bishop E. R. Hendrix, recently printed in the Advocate, together with a series which appeared more than a year ago, has been revised and somewhat enlarged, and will soon appear in book form under the title of 'Skilled Labor for the Master.' The book, we trust, will meet with great favor. It will be of incalculable benefit, especially to our young preachers. The book will be ready for sale about the twenty-third of this month."

Dr. James Atkins, our Sunday-school editor, says that while our church was entitled to seventy delegates in the recent Ecumenical Missionary Conference, one hundred and four were in attendance.

We have just received a copy of Bishop Candler's book, "Christian Auctor: A Manual of Christian Evidences." A hasty glance into its contents convinces us that it is a book of surpassing merit, and that it is sure to attract wide attention. A more extended notice of it will appear next week.

Rev. W. L. Graves, P. C., at Lula, Miss., thus writes: "We have just closed a great meeting at Lula. Rev. O. L. Savage did the preaching. Each service was attended with Holy Ghost power, and the Word cut its way to the hearts of men. The church was revived, and fifteen, or more, sinners converted. A $65[illegible] parsonage debt was cheerfully paid in full, and money is being raised to complete our church. Peace and good-will prevail among our people, and we hope to close the year with great success. We are in good health and cheer."

The report of the Epworth League Board for the year ending May 1, 1900, gives the following as the net increase for the year: Senior chapters, 441; Junior chapters, 111—total, 552. The gain in membership has been, in the Senior League, 19,845; in the Junior League, 3[illegible]—total, 23,730. The total number of Leaguers is now 245,175; League chapters, 5,583. It is much to be regretted that the official organ of the League, the Epworth Era, is still short several thousand subscribers of having enough to make it self-sustaining. One of the most gratifying facts reported by the Board is the marked growth of the missionary spirit in the League.

The revival meeting which closed on last Friday evening was in many ways a success. Large congregations were present each night, and doubtless a great deal of good was accomplished by the seeds of truth which fell in good ground and will bring forth an abundant harvest. Several valuable additions to our church were the visible result. We feel greatly indebted to Bro. M. M. Black, the efficient assistant editor of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, for laboring faithfully with us during the meeting. Also Dr. LaPrade and Rev. R. H. Wynn, the ex-pastor of this church, each preached able sermons for us.—Algiers Epworth Leaguer.

We are glad to learn that our church in Biloxi has recently been favored with a good meeting. The devoted pastor, Rev. V. V. Boone, was assisted part of the time by Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of the Mississippi Conference. Bro. Boone thus writes about the meeting, which closed on the eighth instant, and about his work in general: "The church has been greatly revived. There have been seven accessions; five on profession of faith. We are getting on fully as well as we have reason to expect. I have never been more kindly received anywhere than I was by the good people here. We have a small band of as faithful workers as I have ever known, and also some very delightful young people. I have found Bro. Mitchel exceedingly helpful in all my work—a true yoke-fellow."

The quadrennial address of the Bishops of the M. E. Church to the General Conference, which was read on the opening day by Bishop Andrews, is an exceedingly able and edifying document. It touches upon every question of vital interest to Methodism, and gives forth no uncertain sound concerning the evils of the day, and the things for which the church should stand. We regret that we have not space to give it to our readers in full. A tremendous outburst of applause greeted the sentence in which strong denunciation was expressed concerning the "inexcusable miscarriage of the anti-canteen law." The Bishops, in their address recommended either the entire removal of the pastoral time-limit, or a return to the three-years' limit instead of five, as at present. The recommendation elicited stormy applause, which seems prophetic of some sort of change.

COMMENCEMENT SUNDAY AT EUPORA, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: On yesterday we had Dr. Cooper, of Centenary, to preach our commencement sermon for the graded school at this place, and I can not forbear writing you of the occasion. We had already had a musical and elocutionary entertainment on Friday night, May 4, and on Saturday night we had another short program, and a literary address of great rhetorical merit from Prof. John L. Smith, of Meben.

When Sunday morning dawned with a cloudless sky, and the day expanded to the full beauty of a perfect Southern "Commencement Sunday," we were impelled to the belief that Lowell mistook May for June when he wrote of the perfect days. An immense congregation assembled in the school chapel at 11 A. M. to hear Dr. Cooper. After some fine music the Doctor announced his text, and went straight into his sermon without circumlocution or delay. To say that he was at his best explains it all to those who know his preaching ability. He preached to the edification of the mental man, and the spiritual uplift that he gave our town was tremendous. I have heard a dozen of our most prominent men of all denominations say on our streets to-day that the sermon Dr. Cooper preached at eleven was the finest they had ever heard. He was invited to fill the Baptist pulpit at four P. M., which he did without detracting from the effect and reputation of the morning. The same audience (which, by the way, was our whole population) came out to hear him at the afternoon service.

I write you this for the columns of the ADVOCATE in order that the Centenary folks may see that their president upholds the high record of the Methodist preacher and the dignity of his office wherever he goes.

Yours, R. P. LINFIELD.

NOTICE.

To the Pastors and Superintendents of the North Mississippi Conference:

The Conference Sunday-school Board begs to call your attention to Children's Day, just approaching. It is a church institution, and should have more than a perfunctory observance, both for that reason and because of the reinvigorating effect upon the school. Not only our own, but the General Board is dependent upon this source for revenue. For aid in purchasing libraries, helping needy schools, paying the expenses of the members and appointees of the Board in carrying out its plans, every dollar we can get is needed.

Let Children's Day be one of real religious service, and not a disorderly exhibition, to be followed by more or less bad feeling. Let it be orderly, not too long, with plenty of good singing and few long speeches. Have the parents there, and so entertain and interest them that they will come back, and so that the attendance upon the school will increase.

REVIVAL AT CANTON, MISS.

Rev. N. B Harmon writes the ADVOCATE as follows concerning the recent meeting at Canton:

"The Canton protracted meeting, beginning the twenty-first of April and ending the third of May, was indeed a gracious revival. Rev. Percy Rivers Knickerbocker assisted the pastor. When some doubting ones objected to attempting a meeting, saying, 'Nearly every leading evangelist has been here, and it's a failure every time,' my answer was, 'You've never had the Knickerbockers.'

"The sweetness and freshness of his sermons, the beauty of his language, his method of pointing to Christ as now present, and picturing those far-away scenes as occurring to-day, when at the same time you are impressed that, back of it all, the great loving heart of the man agonizes for the lost, make him a power in God's hands to revive the church and bring the lost to Christ. There were twenty accessions—four by certificate."

REVIVAL AT LEESVILLE, LA.

We are in the midst of a glorious revival. Bro. J. J. Smylie is doing the preaching. Forty-five accessions since the meeting started, and equally as many conversions. Twelve joined yesterday (Sunday). Last night we seated over 500 in our new church, and some were turned away, because there was no room. This is a coming place for Methodism in Louisiana.

Bro. Smylie goes from here to Melville. Our brethren could not do a better thing than to engage his services for meetings.

At the children's service yesterday I baptized 20 children.

CHURCH DEDICATION AT STONEWALL, LA.

Methodism is not very strong in this part of DeSoto parish, other denominations being considerably in the majority. We have been treated very nicely, indeed by the people of the Grand Cane charge. The parsonage has been furnished in some measure since we came here, and some repairing has also been done. Much more, however, needs to be done.

Our church at Stonewall has been completed and was dedicated on the third Sunday in April by our beloved presiding elder, Rev. John T. Sawyer, who preached a most excellent and appropriate sermon. By request of the pastor, he presented the Conference claims, and when the collection had been counted we found that the amount raised, in cash and subscriptions, amounted to fifty-seven dollars, being seven dollars over the amount assessed the Stonewall Church.

The people of Stonewall community were delighted over the completion and dedication of their new church, and also over the result of the collection. We have three Epworth Leagues and two Sunday-schools, all doing good work. H. J. BOLTZ.

North Mississippi Conference Board of Missions.

The Board of Missions of the North Mississippi Conference will meet at Winona, Miss., May 22 and 23, 1900, in the Methodist Church, at 9 A. M. The presiding elders and officers of the Sunday-school and Epworth League Boards are earnestly requested to meet with us.

An interesting programme has been prepared. Let every pastor send in a report to the treasurer by that time. We are anxious to make a favorable showing of progress in the work of missions in our Conference.

We hope to have Dr. W. R. Lambuth with us, who is worthy of the cause he so ably represents. Bro. P. L. Cobb will be there.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. HENRY G. HAWKINS, Madison, Miss., EDITOR.

At the present writing we are attending the State League Conference at Vicksburg, and have just heard the magnificent address by Dr. Alonzo Monk, of Chattanooga, on the Twentieth Century Thank-offering. He stressed the point that it is a thank-offering, and not an assessment. It is not to be extorted. In the course of his speech we were made to realize the shame that would be on us, if at the end of the year the news flashed over the wires of the world that the Southern Methodists had failed in two years to raise their thank-offering for education.

Thursday morning the Natchez and Vicksburg Packet Company, through its superintendent, Captain Thomas Reper, gave the Leaguers a ride of two hours on the lake and river in the palatial steamer, "St. Joseph." The views were picturesque and historic.

Rev. Geo. D. Parker, of New Orleans, is at the Conference, representing the Tri-State Conference to be held at the Seashore Camp Ground. It is proposed to make that meeting one that shall train workmen in the Leagues that need not to be ashamed. It is a noble enterprise, and some of the best teachers of our land are being secured to guide the workers who go there. Let there be a host in blest accord. There will be one and one-third fare for the round trip and reduced board rates.

President Featheratun, with characteristic enthusiasm, watches and guides the goings of the Leaguers assembled, using the gavel of Tennessee cedar made and presented by blind Joe Ramsey at West Point last year.

Rev. P. L. Cobb, of Nashville, is on hand, representing the foreign mission interest.

At the present writing the committees are diligently at work. The most important of these committees are those on Plan of Work, Nominations, Finance, Tri-State Conference, and Missionary. Much interest is manifest; the League leaders feel that their responsibility for the welfare of the youth of the State is great, and they are anxious to adopt and operate the best plans.

Miss Mary B. Lewis is president of the Crawford Street League, whose guest is the State Conference. She and Pastor Watkins and their committees have provided in an ideal style for the comfort and pleasure of the Leaguers.

Among the visitors is Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, of the British Wesleyan Church. He is a brother of Rev. Richard Wilkinson, of Aberdeen, Miss.

Space forbids a mention of the many interesting features of the Conference—both those that have been and that are to be before the close Sunday night.

The Vicksburg Herald refers to the Rose Social, led by Mrs. G. H. Mathis, of Columbus, as "filled with prayerful reverence, musical joy, mingled with love's messages and other interesting incidents." Sweet, heavenly words like these fit all of the parts of the session.

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON, Ruston, La., ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Why don't you send the League editor some news for the column?

Carrollton Avenue League was the first to pay the State League assessment, having sent the State treasurer $1.15 on May 3. Let all the Leagues do likewise in the near future. The treasurer's address is Lake Charles La., and her name is Miss Emma McNeese.

Lake Charles is building a new church and is putting a large and comfortable League room in the building. It is a wise policy that plans for the fullest equipment of our young people for their work. One great trouble in League devotional services held just before the evening service, is the interruption caused by the congregation constantly coming in through the League service.

The Arcadia District League organized a lecture bureau for the purpose of assisting the Leagues to get lectures and addresses from district talent when they want them, and to encourage our home talent to prepare such lectures. The committee appointed to manage the bureau is: Misses Rhinehart and Tooke, and H. R. Singleton. The first lecture under their management will be given by Professor O. B. Staples at Ruston next week. His address on the Philippines is a literary treat of the first quality.

How many have redeemed the promise made to Dr. DuBose at Arcadia? The Era deserves a much better patronage than it gets, and Louisiana should do its share.

This column can only be used for short articles and news items. Stories or long articles should be sent to the editor of the paper.

In our last number of the ADVOCATE I notice a cheering report from our worthy president of the Epworth League at Baton Rouge, La., of which I claim to be a feeble member. I am glad to see this article and know that our League is "yet alive." The inspired apostle in his first letter to the Corinthians (twelfth chapter) writes thus: "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular;" also, "Those members of the body which seem to be more feeble are necessary." This encourages me to express a few sentiments along the line of League work. I believe this to be a great work, and while much is being done, can we not do more? I have often thought, the distribution of tracts (were the plan adopted in our Leagues) might be the means of untold good. Years ago one little tract given by some good woman resulted in conversion after conversion until the number can not be estimated. Eternity alone can tell. Yes, in this way, I verily believe we timid ones, though

"We can not sing like angels,
And we may not preach like Paul;
We can tell the love of Jesus,
We can say he died for all!"

God's love is broad as the universe, and would that we might more resemble our founder of Methodism who said, "The world is my parish," and feel that we are indeed our "brother's keeper." We who profess Christianity should be so filled with love to our fellow-creatures, that our League motto, "All for Christ," should not only be seen upon our topic cards, Epworth Era, etc., but stamped upon our hearts.

Leaguers, think on these things. One has said the most solemn thought is "Personal responsibility to God." This is placed upon everyone of us, and we can not shake it off. Though we feel greatly our insignificance, we each have an influence. God has use for the "lesser lights," and although we may not be able to do much, let us be faithful to duty, and by our prayers, and in every way possible, let us strive to be a "furtherance," and not a "hinderance" to the Gospel. May God bless the Epworth League work!

WHAT DOES IT MATTER?

It matters little where I was born,
Or if my parents were rich or poor;
Whether they shrank from the cold world's scorn,
Or walked in the pride of wealth secure;
But whether I live an honest man,
And hold my integrity firm in my clutch,
I tell you, my brother, as plain as I can,
It matters much!

It matters little how long I stay
In a world of sorrow, sin and care;
Whether in youth I am called away,
Or live till my bones and pate are bare;
But whether I do the best I can
To soften the weight of adversity's touch
On the faded cheek of my fellow man,
It matters much!

It matters little where be my grave,
Or on the land or on the sea,
By purling brook or 'neath stormy wave,
It matters little or naught to me;
But whether the Angel of Death comes down
And marks my brow with his loving touch,
As one that shall wear the victor's crown,
It matters much!

GOOD MANNERS.

Politeness counts heavily in favor of a man in public life. Some men are polite just before election day, but exceedingly uncivil afterwards. In America such men do not long prosper. Lincoln aptly declared that "you can not fool all the people all the time."

When Alonzo B. Cornell was governor of New York, he had a clerk so ungracious in manner that he frequently remained seated while callers at the capitol were obliged to remain standing as they attempted to transact business with him. One day a delegation came from a city in the western part of the State to plead for the life of a condemned man. The governor was seldom known to grant a pardon, but the visitors hoped, at least, that they would be accorded a proper hearing. After the clerk had kept them waiting for two hours in the outer hallway, he admitted them and accorded them permission to state their case to the governor—all standing. The executive refused to interfere, and told his visitors so.

The spokesman of the little party was Grover Cleveland, then a Buffalo attorney. In one year after the trip referred to, he was himself elected governor of the State. When he visited the executive chamber a few days thereafter, Governor Cornell showed him over the apartments, and inquired if there was anything he wished to have done in advance of his inauguration.

"There is just one thing you can do for me, if you will," said Mr. Cleveland, "and that is to remove the clerk who kept me waiting outside so long when I was last here. It may teach him a lesson in politeness." The clerk was removed.

Aaron Burr attained the vice-presidency because of his magnetic and gracious personality, defeating men with twice his honor and ability. Henry Clay was as charming in private as he was eloquent in public.

How many public men have fallen because they have been discourteous to subordinates, to news-gatherers, to voters after election! How many, on the other hand, have climbed to great heights of power and reputation because they paid attention to the civilities of life! People have long memories. They never forgive the slightest affront to their sovereignty. The moment a public man so far forgets the source of his power as to treat the humblest individual with scant courtesy, he places in action an engine for his own destruction. Per contra, let an official be thoroughly agreeable in manner, and genuinely interested in the welfare of persons whom he may never have occasion to "use," and he places in unknown hands cymbals to proclaim his merits. Popular favor is swayed as often by the personal manner of a candidate as by the principles he represents.

American Presidents have been celebrated for their uniform dignity of bearing and consideration for others. In a crowded Washington street car a late President of the United States occupied a seat, when an infirm colored woman came in, carrying a market basket. Nobody else offering her a seat, the chief executive of the nation got up and gallantly helped the negress into his place. General Arthur was one of the most scrupulously polite men that ever occupied the chair of Washington. When he found he could not give a photographer a sitting as agreed, he wrote a courteous note with his own hand, saying he was obliged to leave the capital on business, but would go to the studio upon his return. He did so, and the pictures proved very satisfactory to him. A day or two afterwards the President called in person to thank the photographer for the work.

While President McKinley was still governor of Ohio, he rode in a parlor car one day with a number of men who were of his party. There was only one lady passenger, and she occupied a seat near the rear end. In leaving the car, the governor and his friends passed the lady, who was unknown to them; but, catching sight of her, the governor removed his hat deferentially, and did not replace it until he had left the car. The lady did not know who he was, but remarked to the conductor that that gentleman at least was polite. "Why, of course he is," said the conductor; "that's Governor McKinley."—Success.

STRENGTHENING THE MEMORY.

How to strengthen the memory is an interesting question. I think the best way is to use it steadily, making it serve you by giving it definite facts and events to carry, as a pack horse might on a journey. There are many phases of the problem, some people finding that they can not fix dates in their minds, others forgetting the faces and names of friends, and others still having great trouble in committing anything by rote. Devices of rhymes and associations help some persons, and others simply depend on memoranda, and do not tax their memories at all. As a rule, the more we give the memory to do, however, the more quickly and faithfully it will respond to our wishes. In little children memory is very retentive, because their minds are at the stage when impressions are easily made; you know the line which says that in childhood our minds are "Wax to receive, and marble to retain." So that we should be very careful indeed about what we say, what we do, and what we teach, where the dear little ones are concerned.

Some girls have a great deal of trouble in remembering the rules of syntax, the Latin conjugations, and the pages of history which the teacher requires to be recited exactly as they are in the book. Try the method of studying aloud. Go away by yourself to commit your lessons to memory, and then, over and over, slowly, carefully, with your mind and attention fixed on what you are doing, read phrases, sentences, and formulas over and over, and over and over, and by-and-by you will have them by heart. I have often done this when I have wished to learn a hymn or a poem, and I know that hearing what one is studying assists the mere seeing. Then, having other people in the room, talking and laughing, is very distracting to the attention. Try my method, and report results.—Harper's Round Table.

DOING HER OWN WORK.

In her article on "The lady who does her own work," Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe dwells on the value of housework in giving the very healthiest form of exercise, and for the average woman shows it to be far preferable to the work of the masseurs, who, even in those days, more than thirty years ago, seem to have found plenty of patients.

"Would it not be quite as cheerful and less expensive a process," she asks, "if young girls from early life developed the muscles in sweeping, dusting, ironing, rubbing furniture, and all the multiplied domestic processes which our grandmothers knew of?" and then adds: "I will venture to say that our grandmothers in a week went over every movement that any gymnast has invented, and went over them to some productive purpose, too." Here is a hint that women with thin arms would do well to take. It is said to be really a fact that Clara Louise Kellogg, the singer, when a young girl, was much annoyed by the attenuated appearance of her arms when she began to don evening dress at her crowded concerts. Some one recommended a brisk use of the broom, which advice she followed, and soon had a round, plump member as the reward of her labor. If a thin, listless girl, with a dull eye and stare, can by any means be persuaded to try the "broom cure," she will be astonished to find what a beautifier it really is.—Selected.

WORRIMENT A STRANGER TO EDISON.

Two things are unknown to Thomas A. Edison—discouragement and worry. His associates claim that his freedom from these afflictions comes from the fact that he possesses absolutely no nerves. Recently one of his associates had to report to him the failure, in immediate succession, of three experiments involving enormous expenditure of money and labor. But the inventor simply smiled at the recital. The associate, worn out with the nervous strain of his long watch, and disheartened by his disappointment, said impatiently: "Why don't you worry a little about it, Mr. Edison?"

"Why should I?" was the inventor's reply. "You're worrying enough for two."—Ladies' Home Journal.

WHAT WHISKY DOES.

Chauncey Depew says: "Twenty-five years ago I knew every man, woman and child in Peekskill, N. Y. And it has been a study with me to mark boys who started in every grade of life with myself to see what become of them. I was up last Fall and began to count them over, and it was an instructive exhibit. Some of them became clerks, merchants, manufacturers, lawyers and doctors. It is remarkable that everyone of those that drank is dead; not one living of my age. Barring a few who were taken by sickness, everyone who proved a wreck and wrecked his family did it from rum and no other cause."—Exchange.

PAY PROMPTLY.

An important point in building up a business is to get a reputation for prompt pay. That's a big advertisement in itself. If you can pay cash for everything you buy, you'll get the best, and you'll get it cheaper than the thirty or sixty days' man could. People will be glad to deal with you, are sure to talk favorably of you, and you'll get plenty of first offers or "options" on goods that credit men would not be asked to buy. The big businesses that have been built up in this and other countries were chiefly started and managed on the above lines.—Printers' Ink.

A beautiful anecdote is told of Wendell Phillips, the famous American orator, illustrating his lover-like devotion to his invalid wife. At the close of a lecture engagement in a neighboring town, his friends entreated him not to return to Boston.

"The last train has left," they said, "and you will be obliged to take a carriage into the city. It is a sleety November night, cold and raw; and you will have twelve miles of rough riding before you get home."

To which he replied: "But at the other end of them I shall find Anne Phillips."—Exchange.

WHAT is the value of a guarantee that a paint will last if at the end of the time it must be burned or scraped off before you can repaint.

The only paint that presents a perfect surface after long exposure, without special preparation, is Pure White Lead. Employ a practical painter to apply it and the result will please you.

FREE For colors use National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors. Any shade desired is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving full information and showing samples of Colors, also pamphlet entitled "Uncle Sam's Experience With Paints" forwarded upon application.

A little girl told a friend who was visiting her father that her brothers set traps to catch the birds. He asked her what she did. She replied, "I prayed that the trap might not catch the birds." "Anything else?" "Yes," she said, "I then prayed that God would prevent the birds getting into the traps;" and, as if to illustrate the doctrine of faith and works, she continued, "I went and kicked the traps all to pieces."

This reminds us of the story of the boy who, when his father had prayed earnestly that God would feed the hungry, said: "Why don't you answer that prayer yourself? You've got enough wheat in the granary and potatoes in the cellar to feed all the poor people about here." Let us show our faith by our works.—Christian Leader.

If you wish your children to be respectful to you, then you should make a point of being respectful to them. The boys and girls who are always spoken to in a harsh, rough tone of voice naturally fall into the habit of responding in the same way. Parental dignity and authority may be asserted with the utmost firmness, and yet without coarseness or arrogance. In fact, it can not be well asserted in any other way. A rude father or mother is likely to have rude sons and daughters.—St. Louis Advocate.

There is one dreadful evil overspreading the whole land, which makes havoc of our workingmen—the evil of intemperance. Unless you make distinct and positive efforts against it, you will be neglecting an evil which is eating out the very heart of society, destroying domestic life among our working classes, and perhaps doing greater injury than any other cause that could be named in this age.—Lord Archbishop of Canterbury.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

Excursions.

The New Orleans and Northeastern railroad announces that, commencing with Wednesday, April 25, it will inaugurate the popular Wednesday excursions to St. Tammany parish, including Covington, Abita Springs, Pearl River, Slidell, and all intermediate stations.

The attractions to sportsmen, as well as the healthfulness of St. Tammany parish, are constantly increasing the popularity of these resorts.

Great improvement has been made, both by the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad and the East Louisiana railroad, in the track, which is being rapidly relaid with heavy steel rails, and in the equipment, thereby affording the excursionist the best of accommodations.

PRICE REDUCED.

CUNNINGHAM—Mrs. BETTIE CUNNINGHAM, wife of Madison Cunningham, was born on the twenty-sixth day of February, 1843, and died in March, 1900. She joined the M. E. Church, South, when about ten years of age, and no one was a more devoted and consistent member during her life. She was active in all church work, but it was in the Sunday-school that the beauty of her exalted Christian character shone with the brightest lustre. She loved to teach the children, and impress them with the sublime truths uttered by the meek and lowly Nazarene. Her faith in our risen Christ was simple, but intensely earnest and deep. It was no mere lip service that she gave the Master, but from the innermost depths of her heart she worshiped him. Her life was one of consecration to the service of her Lord. In the neighborhood where she lived no one will be more missed. The seed she has sown in the hearts of her friends and loved ones will bring forth much fruit to the glory of God, and her Lord will give her a crown of many jewels. She cared nothing for the world, but was rich in faith, and left a legacy to her husband and child that will never perish, but will grow brighter and more beautiful day by day.

Our sister was ill only a short while. She realized that dissolution was near at hand, but it gave her no anxiety or uneasiness. Her mind was clear and her faith strong up to the last moments. After placing those she loved in the hands of that God in whom she had so long trusted, she passed over the river and entered the realms of eternal bliss.

Let all the readers of this memoir emulate her example, and death will possess no sorrows that heaven can not heal. Such a life is a sermon that should be an inspiration to all that knew her, and one that speaks more than language can express. We hope to meet her again where partings are no more.

"In the Christian there is no death;
The stars go down to shine upon some brighter shore;
But bright in heaven's jewelled crown
They shine forever more."

MULLIN—Mrs. MARY LEDBETTER MULLIN (nee Watton) was born in Lebanon, Tenn., Jan. 17, 1821. She professed religion and joined the Methodist Church in early life, and was ever a consistent and valued member of that communion. In 1842 she was happily married to Robert Mullin, who preceded her only a few years to the mansions above.

Sister Mullin was a splendid character. She was a loyal and devoted Methodist, but was not a sectarian. It was said of her that no harsh criticism ever fell from her lips against even the outcast and supposedly worthless. She could always find something to place to the credit of everybody.

Sister Mullin enjoyed the good-will and esteem of a large circle of acquaintances, and especially was she regarded with fondness by the young people. The poor never went from her door but with blessings on their lips for her, for she was the soul of charity. Her home life was beautiful. Her devotion to her husband and children was such as to hold their hearts' love to her above all else. Her children rise up and call her blessed. Such a life was not lived in vain.

Our dear sister was suddenly called home. Only a few moments before going to her room she was talking playfully with the members of the family, though complaining some of a pain in her arm. On reaching her apartments, attended by her loving and thoughtful daughter, Mrs. Cora Griffin, and getting ready to retire, she said, "Cora, catch me," and gently supported in her bed, the spirit of the noble woman was ready to ascend the heavenly heights, for she spoke not a word, a gasp or two, and the life had fled. We all mourn the loss of one so joyous, so true, so good, but our loss is her gain. We hope to see Sister Mullin, with an unbroken home circle, some day.

MADDEN—Mrs. P. A. MADDEN (nee Conley McGuire) was born in Madison county, Miss., March 12, 1840, and died Oct. 21, 1899. Her parents moved to Biloxi, Miss., in 1843, and thence to Pearlington in 1847. In the year 1851 a Methodist Church was organized at the latter place by a young preacher sent out by the Mississippi Conference. Sister Madden became a member. Her fidelity to the church was above the ordinary, having been constant in the faith and love to the end. She often talked about her future state, and was a great lover of the gospel. When she was not able to attend church she always wanted to know the text used, and would search the Scripture in connection with same. Within the last three years previous to her death she was reading her Bible through the third time consecutively. Her devotion to her husband and children was beautiful. Self-sacrificing in her attention to the sick and suffering caused her to contract a disease that made her an invalid for the last several years of her life.

Sister Madden was twice married; first to F. D. Conley in 1857, who died in the first part of 1865. The second time she was married to J. H. Madden in 1867. A husband, two daughters and one son remain to mourn her loss. May they imitate her worthy example, and at last get home to heaven, where there will be no more broken ties!

H. W. LEDBETTER, Pastor.

ALLEN—WILLIAM P. ALLEN was born in DeSoto county, Miss., Oct. 31, 1851; was married to Miss Ellen Mobley the twentieth of April, 1875, and died, after a lingering illness, at home, Jan. 31, 1900.

It is not fulsome eulogy to say that a purer, better man than Wm. P. Allen never lived in the community where he was reared. His name was a synonym for honor; his word was his bond.

In early life he joined the M. E. Church South, and, though quiet and unobtrusive in his manner, yet his influence was always thrown on the right side of any question at issue.

As a citizen, he was patriotic; as a neighbor, he was generous, lending a helping hand; as a father and husband, he was kind and loving; as a Christian, faithful and true.

There was no dying testimony, no farewell word spoken to his loved ones; but there was no need of this. His life had been a benediction to the home circle, and his faith in God never faltered on any contested field. He was patient, though the pain was great. No murmur ever escaped his lips. The Lord's appointment was his servant's honor.

Such a life is a rich heritage to companion and children, who mourn his going away, for the void can not be filled for them. They will join their loved one some sweet day.

T. W. DYE.

WILKINSON—Mrs. ADDIE R. WILKINSON, wife of James L. Wilkinson, and daughter of Rev. James E. and Elizabeth Jagers, was born Feb. 5, 1853, and died March 25, 1900. She joined the M. E. Church, South, when but a child, and lived a consistent member until her death. Being the mother of eleven children, her life was full of domestic cares. To say that she loved life, and was devoted to her family and friends, is but to say that she appreciated God's best gifts to men. She was a kind neighbor, a faithful wife and mother, and a friend to the needy. We can of a truth say her death creates a painful vacancy in her home and among her many friends.

To her bereaved husband and children her death carries with it every mitigating feature of which such a bereavement is susceptible. Strive to meet her in heaven, where sickness, sorrow, pain and death are felt and feared no more.

R. A. BRELAND.

HARPER—ROY HARPER, infant son of J. H. and Ella Harper, was born Feb. 13, 1900, and died April 8, 1900.

Roy was a sweet babe, the pride of his fond parents and grandparents, whose hearts were made glad by his life, only to be made sad by his early death; but since our Savior has said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven," we bow with humble submission to the will of God. He has gone to be with God, and now waits with beckoning hands for parents and grandparents left behind.

To the bereaved I would say: Let the little voice calling from the other shore encourage you amid the battles of life, and increase your love for God.

Deafness Can Not be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A man once complained very bitterly because he had to work so hard on account of Adam's sin. He knew that he would not have been so foolish. A rich friend offered to give him home and board so long as he would eat alone and not touch a certain covered dish that was on the table. It was not long before he peeked under the cover, when out leaped a mouse. He was told to go to work for his living, for he was no better than Adam. Exchange.

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is without an equal for swiftness to cure.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to May, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

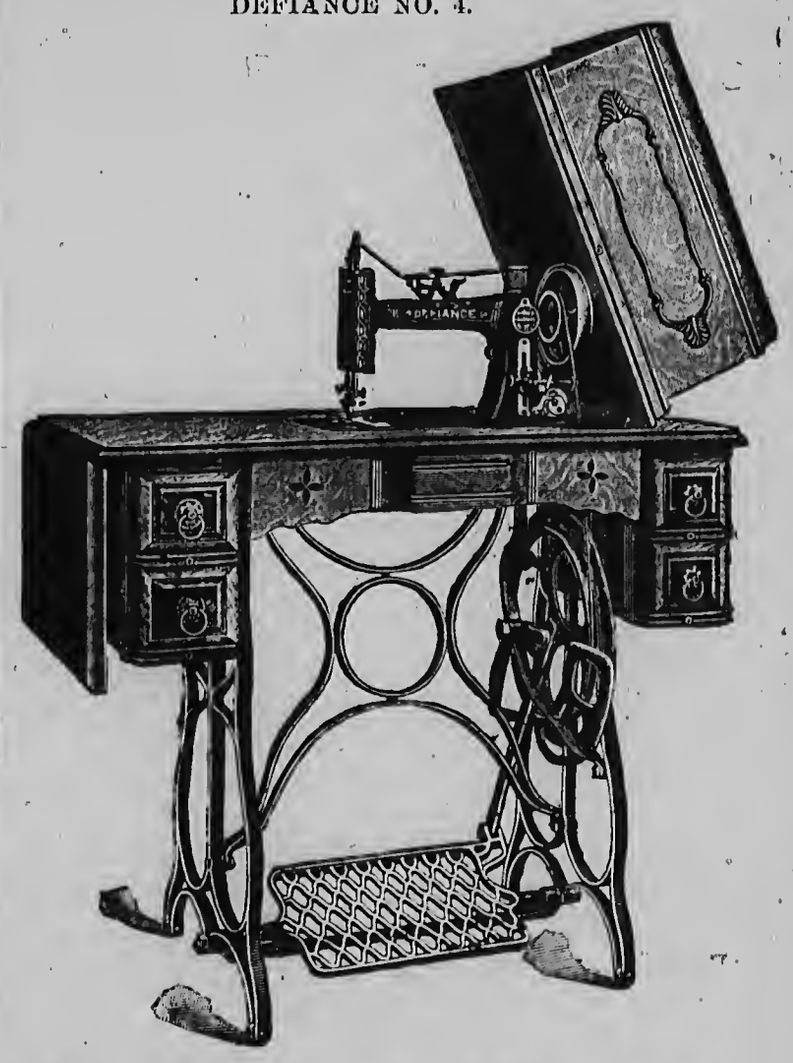
P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.



The Defiance Machine is the perfection of simplicity, durability, speed, strength and ease of operation.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

The Arm is large and roomy, 8x5½ inches in the clear.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well-oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The Needle is absolutely self-setting. No screwdriver is required in setting, a winged thumb nut being used instead.

The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbins without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stoppage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on a spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler, 1 shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider, 1 Foot and Slide, 1 Thread Cutter, 1 Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 8 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, 1 Gauge and Thumb-screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.

This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34. Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

No. 7½ Machine, Drop head cabinet, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $38. Our price, $23.

All the woodwork is of the best quality, either Light Antique or Golden Oak Finish. For Walnut Woodwork add $2 to above list prices.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address

REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Admiral Dewey was given an ovation by the citizens of Knoxville, Tenn., on May 14.

The first letter mailed at the United States postoffice at the Paris Exposition was addressed to President McKinley by Commissioner Peck.

The Southern Presbyterian Church will hold its regular annual session in the Central Presbyterian Church in Atlanta, beginning Thursday.

The United States pavilion at the Paris Exposition was formally handed over to Exposition officials on May 12. The ceremony attracted a large assemblage.

A great crowd gathered in Synod Hall, Edinburgh, to hear Rev. T. De Witt Talmage. A second discourse was delivered to a large assemblage of those who could not gain admission.

Prof. Pettie's work last Winter in Egypt at Abydos and other points virtually added 1000 years to written history, authenticating the heretofore almost mythological first dynasty.

Gen. Roberts on May 12 has entered Kroonstad without opposition. This gives the British control of the Orange Free State. President Steyn has transferred his seat of government to Lindley.

By the terms of the naval appropriation bill, passed by the Senate on May 14, the Secretary of the Navy is directed to purchase five Holland torpedo boats at a price not exceeding $170,000 each.

After the adjournment of Congress President and Mrs. McKinley will go to their Canton home to remain the greater part of the midsummer, and will visit Poland Springs, Me., during August.

A delegation from the Citizens' Protective Association has called on the Mayor and tendered him all the aid possible in the establishment of a permanent Isolation Hospital in New Orleans.

The street car strike on the Suburban Company's lines in St. Louis was settled on May 14. It is believed the differences between the employees and the Transit Company are also nearing settlement.

Admiral Endicott, who was in the city on official business, has left the city for Washington. A wet dock for the temporary storage of war vessels has been suggested in addition to the new dry dock at Algiers.

John Arbuckle, who forced and maintained for years the disastrous cut rate war against the sugar trust, is credited with being behind the complaint that will be filed against the American Sugar Refinery Company in the chancery court at Trenton, N. J., seeking to make it disclose its business.

It is rumored that the Transvaal Raad, in secret session, has resolved to order all residents, irrespective of nationality, to assist in the defense of the republic, in accordance with the terms of the amended military law. It is said the Boers recognize that they are now in the last extremity, and all sorts and conditions of men are being commandeered.

On Saturday the United States Senate decided, by a close vote, not to authorize the construction of an armor plate factory. The result of this vote will bring Congress face to face with the alternative of either paying the price asked by the armor plate factories for armor plate, or putting a stop to further building of armored ships until the armor plate matter is settled.

Lord Roberts, after a march which is regarded as worthy of being ranked with his famous march to Kandahar, has thus covered another stage of his campaign—a stage which, although successful and without the mistakes and misfortunes that characterized the earlier stages, leaves the Boer forces quite intact, not having lost a gun and having lost very few men. Experience has taught the critics to be chary of expecting result of Boer demoralization.

A long siege of Pretoria has become a remote contingency. A series of rear-guard actions, with constantly retreating forces, are taking place, and then by June, or perhaps earlier, peace, and occupation. Such is the average forecast in England of the struggle in South Africa. Maybe it is altogether too optimistic, but the present success of the British arms and the evidence of their well-defined plans and excellent organization forms much excuse for optimism.

The last act of the Ancient Order of Hibernians just before adjournment in Boston was the adoption of a long resolution. The present war in South Africa was alluded to at some length, and words of sympathy with the Boers were unanimously adopted. The recent utterances of Lord Salisbury in regard to the people of Ireland were strongly condemned. The vote of the convention was also with great unanimity against any alliance with England or with any other nation.

THE NEW CANCER CURE.

All forms of Malignant Growths Cured by Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment.

J. NEWTON HATHAWAY, M. D.

Dr. Hathaway's New Serum Treatment for the cure of Cancer and other malignant growths is as much of an advance in medical science as was vaccination for small-pox. Thousands of cases treated and cured by him have proved this. The method is entirely unlike any other.

T. T. Oshy, of Tula Rosa, N. M., stated: "For several years I had what was supposed to be a pipe sore on the lip. It finally developed into a Cancer. In Oct. 1898, I consulted Dr. Hathaway & Co., and they applied their Serum Treatment. One injection cured me."

Mrs. I. N. Rogers, 133 N. Rozborn St., Memphis, Tenn., states: "I had a Cancer in the corner of my eye that extended down on my check and nose. Several so-called Cancer doctors and their burning treatments failed; but Dr. Hathaway's new Serum Treatment cured me in six weeks without pain."

Full information, together with Dr. Hathaway's New Book on Cancer, will be mailed free.

ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.
Even Bright's Disease Is No Longer Regarded as Hopeless.

If you are suffering from kidney, bladder or uric acid trouble, and have despaired of getting help, you should try Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. Every reader of CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE may obtain a sample bottle free by mail, so you may test it for yourself and fully realize the truth of what your friends and fellow citizens say as regards its marvelous efficacy and worth.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root has been tried and tested by thousands who stand high in this community. It is not recommended for everything, but if you have kidney, bladder or uric acid trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It brings back the rosy flush of health and strength: it is a purifier and rebuilder, and is a boon to the weak and ailing.

To be confronted suddenly with the knowledge that Bright's disease had hold of one was, at one time, equivalent to hearing a death warrant read: but to-day, thanks to the discoveries of science and the researches of Dr. Kilmer, no case is entirely hopeless. Even those in advanced stages have been rescued and life prolonged by Swamp-Root.

This great remedy is purely vegetable and contains nothing that could harm the most delicate child. It is pleasant to take and the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes are sold by all druggists.

Send your name and address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and a sample bottle and a book telling all about Swamp-Root and its wonderful cures will be sent to you free.

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

The June number of The Delineator contains several articles of general interest to women. American Women at the Paris Exposition is illustrated with seventeen portraits. Founders of Women's Colleges contains ten portraits and valuable biographical matter. Clinton Ross, the well-known litterateur, contributes a clever revolutionary story, The Perfidy of Bess Doane. Among the practical household articles is one on Housekeeping in Apartments and Flats. The regular departments of Social Observances, Practical Gardening, Girl's Interests, Club Women and Club Life, and House Furnishing, are interesting and valuable for practical women.

Among the twelve striking papers in the May Forum may be mentioned Mr. Clark's article on British Policy toward the Boers; The Constitution and the Flag, by Hon. Charles Denby, late United States Minister to China; Uncle Sam's Legacy of Slaves, by Henry O. Dwight; The Approaching Presidential Campaign, by Henry Litchfield West; The Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, by Henry Wade Rogers, of Northwestern University, Illinois; The United States and the Future of China, by Hon. William Woodville Rockhill, the well-known writer and diplomat, late Assistant Secretary of State; and Journalism in Japan, by T. T. Nakagawa, secretary of the Japanese Legation at Rome.

In the American Monthly Review of Reviews, for May, the special features are a sketch of the Hon. Charles H. Allen, the first governor of Puerto Rico, by Henry Macfarland; sketches of Generals Joubert, Cronje, Botha, and other military leaders of the Boers; an account of the methods used in fighting the plague at Honolulu and throughout the world; an intimate account of the home life of the late R. D. Blackmore, the author of Lorna Doone, by R. W. Sawtell. In The Progress of the World the subjects of Admiral Dewey's candidacy, the government of Puerto Rico and Alaska, the recent strike epidemic, the Carnegie reorganization, the opening of the Paris Exposition, the Queen's visit to Ireland, and the South African campaign, are editorially treated.

The American Illustrated Methodist Magazine, for May, contains, among others, an article on The General Conference of the M. E. Church, by Levi Gilbert, D. D. The eleventh chapter in the Famous Hymn Writers series deals with the personality of Thomas Ken, Bishop of Bath and Wells. Ken's name will ever be associated with the Protestant service as the author of the Doxology. Robert McIntyre, the well-known Chicago preacher, contributes an attractive poem entitled, When the Gold is on the Willow. The fifteenth chapter of The Illustrated History of Methodism has for its subject The Episcopate on Its Trial. It deals mostly with Francis Asbury, his personality and labors. Sermons on Canvas is a beautifully illustrated article. In it the author calls attention to the fact that almost all of the world's greatest paintings are closely associated with the Christian idea. A timely and interesting article, Chicago Methodism, is contributed by D. D. Thompson, of the Northwestern Christian Advocate. It gives a comprehensive account of the growth and development of the church in the city of Chicago, and is illustrated with portraits of the men who have been instrumental in bringing Methodism to the place it now occupies in that city.

FORGIVE ME NOW!

Wait not the morrow, but forgive me now;
Who knows what fate to-morrow's dawn may bring?
Let us not part with shadow on thy brow,
With my heart-hungering.

Wait not the morrow, but entwine thy hand
In mine, with sweet forgiveness full and free;
Of all life's joys I only understand
This joy of loving thee.

Perhaps some day I may redeem the wrong,
Repair the fault—I know not when or how;
Oh, dearest, do not wait—it may be long—
Only forgive me now.

A PASTORAL LETTER FROM THE BISHOPS.

To the Ministers and Members of the M. E. Church, South:

DEAR BRETHREN: We, your chief pastors, feel moved to address you concerning the Twentieth Century Thank-offering, which is now engaging the attention of our church in common with other Christian bodies, and especially with all the Methodist bodies of the world.

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and praise is comely for the upright. Thanksgiving well becomes the people called Methodists, who, during the eventful century now so nearly ended, have received from Almighty God such signal manifestations of the divine favor. From the smallest and feeblest beginnings in the eighteenth century they have become a great host to the praise of the glory of his grace who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ. Surely he hath not dealt so with any people. They have seen the glory of the Lord and the excellency of their God.

Our own branch of Methodism has received abundant and peculiar blessings. Through appalling difficulties our God hath brought us out into a wealthy place. The blessing of the Lord hath made us rich. But we do not believe he hath blessed us, caused his face to shine upon us, that the gifts of his love may be used to gratify selfishness or to nourish pride. Through his mercies he hath called us to gird ourselves for the increased responsibilities which now rest upon us, to the end that as far as in us lies, his way may be known in the earth, his saving health among all nations.

Accordingly the twentieth century proposal has been brought forward by order of the General Conference assembled in the city of Baltimore, Md., May, 1898. It calls for a thank-offering from every member, with a view to raising not less than $1,500,000 for the support of the educational work of the church. We earnestly commend to all our people this most important and timely movement. In what better way can we express our gratitude to God for his blessings to our fathers, and for his mercies to ourselves, than by a thank-offering devoted to the making of ampler provision for the education of the children and youth of the church in both the home and foreign fields, who must inevitably meet opportunities and responsibilities such as have confronted no former generation? How better can we transmit to posterity—not only unimpaired, but enhanced—the rich inheritance which we have received from the past?

Upon the purity and power of Protestant Christianity depends the redemption of the world, and much of its purity and power rests upon the character of the education prevalent in the United States during the next twenty-five years. If that education shall be secular and faithless, moral standards will be lowered, evangelical zeal will be quenched, Christian liberality will be arrested, and missionary enterprise will be paralyzed. And let us be well assured that education will be both secular and faithless, except the Christian churches make it otherwise. In view of their numbers and influence, upon the Methodists is imposed no small part of the duty of seeing to it that the education of the people is not of a sort to lead to the doom of the nations who forget God. It is, therefore, in no spirit of sectarian bigotry, but from motives of both piety and patriotism, that we exhort all our ministers and members to give their cordial and generous support to this great movement. Its influence will not be confined to our own communion, but will extend to other Christian bodies, and will tend to quicken zeal, and to enlighten public opinion in furtherance of that Christian culture upon which the future of our own and all lands so greatly depends.

In this connection we beg to remind you that the time is short during which this work must be done. The next six months will determine the fate of this movement, and both the reputation and character of the church are involved in its success or failure. Being, with one exception, the largest Methodist body in the world, the success or failure of our church in this matter must be conspicuous and influential. Moreover, the reaction of victory or defeat upon ourselves will be very great. If impelled by the inspiration and momentum of this world-wide movement, we now go forward to success, the event will mark the beginning of a new and glorious era in the history of our educational institutions. If, on the other hand, we submit to failure, when can we hope for an hour more favorable in the near future for strengthening these institutions?

We are convinced that the success or failure of this inspiring movement is largely in the hands of the pastors of the churches. Pastoral faith and zeal are forces quite equal to the achievement of the great object proposed. Nothing else can accomplish it. We appeal, therefore, to these captains of the Lord's host for the leadership required in this momentous hour.

We rejoice to report that gifts and subscriptions amounting to about $900,000 have already been secured, although a large majority of the members of the church have not yet responded to the call. We are most happy to observe throughout all the Conferences a deepening interest in this great enterprise. By every token the fullest success is within our reach. Only let there be no longer delay in any pastoral charge, and presently the high end which we have set before our faith and effort will be accomplished.

In what has been said touching the collection of the proposed thank-offering, we have not lost sight of the higher spiritual results contemplated by this movement. We call for a revival in every church and a thank-offering from every member. Nor do we admit that there is conflict or competition between these objects. Covetousness is an ever-present peril to our people. Nothing so hinders the spiritual life of the church as the covetousness which in godless greed hoards, or in luxurious worldliness wastes, the treasure so sorely needed for the extension of the kingdom of our Lord. We can not reasonably hope for any profound or extensive revival of scriptural religion until this covetousness is repented and renounced. What can be better adapted to produce such penitence than calling for thank-offerings in view of God's mercies to our fathers and to their children? The word of the Lord cries against our sin: "Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." We invert the divine order, and confuse the principles of the divine government, when we condition our repentance upon his blessing being given in advance.

Surely, if our people come to reflect upon the glorious things of the past, when God's candle shone upon our heads, and when, by his light, we walked through darkness, they will repent of having left their first love, and will return from all their backslidings. The holy memories of prodigals who have wandered away will, when touched by the Divine Spirit, impel them to seek again the father's house.

There is in this movement the possibility of a great revival to both preachers and people. It calls for a re-study of Methodist history. Will not our cold hearts, when they touch again the remains of our triumphant fathers, revive and stand up, as did the Moabite when he was let down into the sepulcher of Elisha and touched the prophet's bones? It requires a re-reading and renewed preaching of the staple doctrines of Wesleyan theology. Will not the Holy Spirit honor his truth, as in the former years, and cause our souls to burn within us while he talks to us by the way?

"We beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." Let his goodness lead us to repentance, that his salvation may draw nigh.

In conclusion, we recommend that the week preceding Sunday, July 8, be observed in all our churches as a week of prayer and self-denial, that the God of our fathers would mercifully visit us with the power of his Spirit, reviving his people and saving sinners. On that day let the people bring thank-offerings, praying that their gifts may be graciously accepted and blessed to the furtherance of the divine kingdom in the earth. In thus naming a particular day, however, it is understood that it is not proposed to terminate the movement at that time, but that it shall continue to the end, according to the provisions of the plan unanimously adopted by the last General Conference.

"And now, brethren, we commend you to God and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them that are sanctified."

A SPECIAL PROVIDENCE.

BY BISHOP J. C. KEENER.

The visible and the invisible are the two departments of the universe that the Son of God solves and reveals as one—the true Kosmos.

It is on this dim horizon that infidelity, skepticism, materialism, agnosticism, and all anti-theistic theories flourish. Creation is doubted; immortality, the existence of Angels, Providence, Revelation, Heaven, Hell, all are set aside as incomprehensible, as mere mental, insubstantial visions, which must at last dissolve as a chimera and vanish forever.

Fortunately for us, the Son of God has stated the truth dramatically, as well as by formula. He came into the world to this end. The world then, as now, was full of unbelief. Visiting the temple daily, surrounded with casuists astute and fierce, disputants, learned Scribes, self-satisfied Pharisees, priests and Levites, he made the revelation that he had a conscious existence before he came into the world—the only man that ever made such a claim. And also that he was sent into the world by God the Father; that he was the I Am of the burning bush; that he had essential being before Abram was born. He came to the synagogue and to the temple that all might have full access to him, and, if possible, refute or confirm these truths by reason, by all natural, moral or intellectual tests. This proffer was accepted to the full, and gave birth to those marvelous chapters in St. John which, more than any other part of the gospel, reveal the deep things of God, the power of God, and the history of the presence of the Son of God on earth.

It was in the line of these subtile controversies that those who farmed the income of the temple approached the Savior, through Peter, for his poll tax, and also for his tribute to those representing the Roman Government. The poll tax was 37½ cents—half a shekel. It was the atonement tax, levied for the base of silver under the tabernacle, which consisted of one hundred silver ingots, with one hundred sockets. (See Exodus xxxviii, 27.) It was due but once in a life-time. The amount for Peter and the Master would be 75 cents. The point, doubtless, was whether One who claimed to be King of kings and Lord of lords, and heir of all things, could consistently, with such inherent right, pay tribute. Could one to whom all tribute was due pay tribute? It was a small thing in itself, but the tribute of an arrow-head was enough in evidence of an acknowledged fealty. In this dilemma, so adroitly conceived by his foes, the Savior answers by a miracle. He reveals himself as the Lord of the floods, of all creature life, and one capable of exacting tribute from the universe. Then from the sea-depth he collects the precise sum due by Peter and himself, a single coin, from the mouth of a fish, and pays it to the temple treasury. The coin was a Greek imperial stater, worth exactly seventy-five cents.

The various steps of the Savior's ordering, in securing this money, leave no room for accident. They display the minutest mastery of the universe. All is made tributary to him who is now paying tribute. His omniscience searches the sea; his omnipotence segregates the fish, in whose mouth lies hidden the half ounce of silver. He sends Peter for it; he is to cast a hook, and the first fish which he shall take will have the stater in its mouth—the amount wanted for both.

Nor was this all. He anticipates Peter, tells him as soon as he enters what has happened, and says: "What thinkest thou, Simon? Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers. Jesus saith unto him, Then are the children free. Notwithstanding, lest we should offend them, go thou to the sea, and cast an hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up, and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt find a piece of money: that take and give unto them for me and thee." (Matt. xvii, 27.)

This occasion brought out the sublime assertion of his Sonship that, as Son of a King, no tribute to his Father was due from him, who was Lord of all. And this he proves by a miracle of the sea. A disciple was made the vehicle of his attributes. He will pay this tax out of the wealth of the Godhead; out of "The fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas." (Ps. viii, 8.) It is evident that with God nothing that he has made is small, nothing large. Under his eye the ocean is as a bubble on the wave. Islands are as dust in the balance, and animalculæ as a comet. At his word the stars were created and came forth as fire-flies out of the dark.

In such a universe there is no room for chance, because man is face to face with God at its every conceivable point. His presence scatters all darkness from all depths, and fills the lowest fathoms of the sea with the glory of the throne. There is no dead spot anywhere—all is thought, all is law, all is a Person. Chance, as held by unbelievers, is the absence of law, but substitute for it, which they accept in place of God, and all responsibility. Chance and fatality were the two governing principles of atheism among the ancients, as now with agnostics. Under the indefinable idea of "luck," myriads of men have a superstitious fear that a superior force, an unchangeable fate, controls all the events of life. It is the spectre of unbelief, the ignis fatuus of those who wander far off, away from the truth, and remain in the wilderness of doubt. Whereas not a sparrow falls but he sees it; not a groan is uttered by the prisoner but he hears it; all the hairs of our heads are numbered, our wants remembered, our daily bread measured, as manna from heaven. In him we live who is Lord of the harvest, who feeds the lion and the raven when they cry for food.

"Plato said there was no difference between the rejection of a special Providence and atheism; that a God like that of the Stoics, who cared only for the great matters of the world, and was indifferent to the persons, the conduct and the fortunes of individuals, was one in whom none could rest or believe, and was tantamount to one who really had no place in the government or in the thoughts of men, and was disregarded by all."

Nothing "has happened" this past year. Every storm or disaster—the arrow by day, the pestilence by night—all is a part of God's tender and thoughtful mercy toward us. Doubtless many have questioned God as never before, and were ready to die rather than "bear all things" from his hand. But the isolated, individual sorrows of life are often the gracious occasion of God's entrance to the heart, because he is then enquired after and his voice is then heard, "Let not your heart be troubled." Drive away your complaints; recognize that he is by you, in your house, in your bed-chamber, in the deep night, in the glowing morn. He knows your boys and your girls by name; he will not leave you nor forsake you. It will be a great grief to us, at the end, that we have spent so much of life in complaint that might have been spent in thanksgiving. Be cheerful. "Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands." (Job xiv, 15.)

He comes very near to us when he shares our tax bills. The natural and the spiritual world met in his person—the one miracle that engrossed all miracles. The interpenetration of a divine sight and a divine power into all the affairs of men must be set forth, and must be received. The clothing of the forest, the color of the lily, all pass under his fatherly eye. No power of evil can so secretly come against us but he is at hand for our defense. Every sweet babe in its night-clothes is safe under the curtain of his gracious protection. It is this, all this, or nothing; there is no middle ground. "It would be strange indeed," said Socrates, "if there should be mind in us and mind nowhere else in the universe." In our attempt to fathom the vast ocean of law and beauty which stretches away on all sides of us, we are but as swallows skimming the water, and now and then barely tipping it with our wings. The sky and its countless hosts, the sea and its myriad tribes, the earth and its various harvests, confound and overwhelm our thought. We are to ourselves, in power and duration, but as the short-lived butterfly, nourished by flowers as frail as itself. All the generations that have preceded us have left behind them only the dew on the fields and the stars in the sky.

But is there no voice coming to us from all this silence and invisible presence, which carry forward the generations of life, the motion of the spheres, and which has so long presided over worlds, harvests, and men? Will he never show himself? Is there no record in all the past of his visitation to man? If the one Infinite Majesty were to speak, there could be no mistaking that it was he. What depth and height of word! What fullness of wisdom! What beauty of holiness! What mighty volume of thought! Enough to nourish the minds of men for ages! More precious than rubies those lips! And how long could he be held to our entertainment? A day? a month? a year? Then would all other intelligences of the universe murmur, "That He was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner."

THE LESSON OF CONTENT.

BY PRISCILLA LEONARD.

Never fret yourself to see
All the things that others have;
Take your lot contentedly.
It is better to be brave.
Cheerful, self-reliant, strong,
Craving naught by God denied,
Than to join the restless throng,
Sated, yet unsatisfied.

Never fret yourself to do
More than lies within your power;
Let your work be always true,
Steady, patient, hour by hour.
It is better far to build
Good foundations, slow and sure,
Than to rear in haste unskilled
Towers whose strength is insecure.

GEORGE STUART IN VICKSBURG.

The Methodists of Vicksburg have recently closed an interesting protracted meeting, in which the pastor was assisted by the Rev. George R. Stuart, of Cleveland, Tenn., and Charlie D. Tillman, of Atlanta, Ga.

While the effort did not result in the sweeping revival so much needed in Vicksburg, the good accomplished was so evident and widespread as to make the meeting the most successful held in our city for many years, and one of the best in its history.

It lasted fifteen days, during the last ten of which the evangelist and his associate were with us, and the religious interest, evident from the beginning, widened and deepened from service to service until, at the closing service on Sunday night, the magnificent congregation that crowded the new church seemed stirred to its depths by a sense of the presence of the spirit of the Lord.

It is always difficult to marshall the results of such a meeting; but results are the things for which we labor, and it is well that there should be an enumeration of the visible evidences of the good accomplished. There was the finest popular singing that this writer ever heard. There is no question as to the importance of good popular music in a revival meeting, both as an attraction to the irreligious and a source of inspiration —a means of grace—to the believer, and much of the power of the Vicksburg meeting was due to the fine music.

Charlie Tillman is worthy of unqualified endorsement. His clear, sweet voice is an inspiration, his kindly and considerate spirit seemed equal to the strain of any provocation, and his management of his large choir and the congregation was admirable.

There was a very widespread evidence of personal interest in religion, as shown in the large number who confessed their sins and declared their determination to live better lives; there were many who professed conversion; there were a score, or more, who told of the newly erected family altars in the home.

Forty persons have been received into the Methodist Church since the close of the meeting, and there are about twenty more of adult applicants for membership. Besides these, there are at least fifty children of the Sunday-school who have expressed their wish to unite with the church, and whom it is our purpose to receive into the church on the fourth Sunday in this month. It will be seen from the above that more than a hundred persons will unite with the Crawford Street Church as the result of this meeting. Add to the above the indefinite, but very evident and very important item—the spiritual uplift to the church—and some idea will be had of the success of the meeting.

This report can not close without a more special reference to the lovable man and brilliant preacher around whom the popular interest of the meeting mainly gathered. George Stuart is gracious and cordial in social intercourse, and graceful and strong in the pulpit. He is clear in his convictions, and very honest in his declarations of them. He is a student of human nature, and has learned his lesson well. The sunniness of his nature makes him attractive to the young, and the mature respect him for his strength. He is somewhat unconventional—but not injudicious—in his deliverances. He has no fad that I could discover, but he has a passion for persuading people to "cease to do evil and learn to do well."

George Stuart is a safe man. Whatever may be the objections, fanciful or real, to the evangelists as a class, no pastor need fear to welcome the coming of this man among his people, and, if necessity should compel the ten days' absence of the pastor, he may return, knowing that nothing but good has resulted to the people whom pastor and evangelist alike love.

George Stuart should not be invited to hold a meeting in the church, for the house will not be big enough. He should have prepared for him a tabernacle or tent, into which the crowds may come, and when you invite George to come, you should not fail to have Charlie come with him.

The presence of Mrs. Stuart during our Vicksburg meeting, due to a visit to San Antonio, Texas, for the benefit of her little girl, was a great pleasure to our people, and her skillful and willing services added much to the excellence of the music.

THE GROUND OF OBLIGATION TO SUPPORT MISSIONS.

(The substance of this article was spoken before the District Conference of the Columbus district, North Mississippi Conference, and a copy asked for by said Conference for publication in the ADVOCATE.)

1. Our relation to God. We are his creatures, preserved by his power and provided for by his abounding mercy and grace. He has a purpose in all this, and that purpose is, that we may glorify him in our bodies and spirits, which are his. But how may we do this? By learning and doing his will. As concerning ourselves Paul says, "This is the will of God, even your sanctification" (I. Thess. iv, 3). As to the human family he "will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth" (I. Tim. ii, 4). He created man a holy and happy being; by his own act man made himself a sinful and miserable being. Now God is seeking to restore him to holiness and happiness. This is the meaning of all the promises, prophecies, types and shadows of the Old Testament. "God so loved the world as to give his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (Jno. iii, 16). Our first and most binding obligation is to make this fact known to the world. We are "workers together with him" to this end.

2. Our relation to Christ. Jesus said, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke xix, 10). This was the only object of his coming; so that all that he was as the Son of God and the Son of man was appropriated to the accomplishment of this purpose; and this was the purpose of all that he said, did, and suffered. In that memorable prayer for the disciples, recorded in the seventeenth chapter of John, he clearly states the relationship of all believers to himself and the Father. He says: "As thou hast sent me into the world, even so also have I sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth. Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word. That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." Could relationship be more clearly and definitely stated? The Father and the Son were one in providing the plan of salvation; we are to be one with them and one with each other in carrying it out. Hence the commission: "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you. And lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. xxviii, 19, 20). This commission was not to the twelve alone. In the first place, they could not reach the whole world and every creature in it; but the work was to be continued to "the end of the world." In the next place, the responsibility was not only on those who were to "go," but was to be shared also by those who were to stay. Hence the church at Antioch was to separate Barnabas and Saul for the work wherennto the Holy Ghost had called them, and they sent them away. We have no means of learning how near the church came to discharging its duty in supporting these men. Paul tells the Corinthians that he robbed other churches to do them service; that when he was with them and wanted the brethren who came from Macedonia supplied him (II. Cor. xi, 8, 9). He writes to the Philippians that while he was in Thessalonica they sent once and again to his necessity (Phil. iv, 16, 17). They that preach the gospel shall live of the gospel, but the living is to come from them who know and appreciate the gospel and not from those who are ignorant of it.

3. Our relation to humanity. The gospel teaches that we are to do unto others as we would have them do unto us. This is the very essence of Christianity. She would be a selfish bride who would sit and feast upon the luxuries prepared by her groom without offering to share the same with other invited guests. The church is the bride of Christ, and the gospel feast is as much for the outside world as for her; and history teaches that the church which disregards this fact, both in theory and practice, soon dies itself for want of the bread and water of life. The church which lasts, grows and prospers at home is missionary in spirit and practice.

4. Our relation to personal salvation. The first impulse of a truly converted soul is to praise God for what he has done, and the second is to tell it to others. And in exact proportion to the completeness and consciousness of this salvation will be the desire, the disposition to tell it to others. The Psalmist promises the Lord that if he will create in him a clean heart, renew within him a right spirit, restore unto him the joy of salvation and uphold him with his free Spirit, that then will he teach transgressors his ways, and sinners shall be converted unto him. That kind of religion makes preachers, missionaries and earnest and liberal workers in the church. Such are the facts constituting the ground of our obligation to support missions.

DISTRICT DOTS.

It is wonderful with what apparent ease some people find out things—make great discoveries! Some persons travel right along the edge of a great discovery all their lives, and never get to it. Others stumble along in a harum-scarum sort of way, and the first thing you know, they have found out something, and they awake in the morning, and, lo! they are famous forever. For a number of years I have been trying to find a modern equivalent for St. Peter's word, "virtue," which he uses in the fifth verse of the first chapter of his second epistle. I knew he could not mean virtue in its modern sense. The word "bravery" did not seem to me to contain all the meaning the apostle wished to convey. There seemed to be also something lacking in the word "courage." Least of all did I think the word "stubbornness" would do, though a good many appear to have adopted that word. So I finally quit thinking about it. Now the other day I was reading the Epworth Era, and the editor, as if it were the easiest thing in the world to do, gave me the modern equivalent for St. Peter's word "virtue." He read and published the passage this way, "Add to your faith, backbone." Now, I am satisfied I can make it plain to the hundreds of people in our district who are sadly in need of just that thing. Of all the pitiful people, the most pitiful are the wishy-washy, unstable souls who are professing to follow Christ. Unstable people never do accomplish anything great or good neither for themselves nor for others. I think it would be a good thing if everyone of our preachers would make and preach a rousing sermon on the Era's text, "Add to your faith, backbone."

Having quoted from the Epworth Era leads me to say further that I find it a fine paper for our young people, and was astonished a short time ago to receive from the publishers a notice that they were losing money in publishing it, and calling upon us to make special effort to extend its circulation so as to make it self-sustaining. This ought to be done easily, and will be done if all our preachers will make a special effort to this end. As it is now conducted, the Era is worthy of the support of every Methodist in the land. It is one of our "institutions," and everyone of us has solemnly promised to "support the institutions of the church." I fear the preachers are too often forgetful of Paragraph 128 of the Discipline. In view of what Christ has taught, what a sad comment it is on the frailty of natures that we let go by unimproved so many opportunities for doing good to our fellow-men! If I understand the teaching of Christ, he tells us that what we do for our fellow-men is the measure of our love for him! If Christianity means anything, it means devotion to the cause of humanity, because Christ loved that humanity and died to redeem it. So it seems strange that any Christian should fail to make use of any opportunity of doing good, and in that fail to exhibit to the world the sincerity of his love for Christ.

I have been interested in a communication to the Nashville Christian Advocate, of March 29, by Rev. P. L. Cobb, on the subject of "Domestic Mission Problems." I have long thought that we were not working our home fields as successfully as we might. It has been demonstrated time and again that there are many preachers who can not successfully do mission work. And yet some of these very preachers are appointed year after year to do mission work, and year after year they fail to make a success. Then, we have kept works on the mission list for ten or fifteen years, and they are apparently as far from being self-supporting as when we began to help them. I do hope some of our wise men will take up this subject, and study it, and tell us the best way to succeed in our home mission work. It is a poor economy that wastes mission money as we are constantly doing.

One of our preachers said to me the other day, "We are complaining about the falling off in the acquisition of new members, but if the Lord should deal with the church now as he dealt with it in the days of Ananias and Sapphira, it would be as if a cyclone had swept over it from one end to the other." If that is so, then it is time for the church to get down on her knees before God, and open the old Book at the fifty-ninth chapter of Isaiah, and "weep and lament and mourn," and cry to him for mercy. Of all the sins in the catalogue, lying is the most abominable.

P. E.

THE HOLY SABBATH.

The time has come for Sabbath lovers to do something that will result in such laws as are necessary for the protection of this holy day. Some may think of one thing and some another that should be done in order to such an end, and likely all will concede that preaching on the subject is very, very necessary; but the question arises, How are we to preach to the great numbers that never attend church? And also, How are we to preach so as to convince those who only attend church occasionally? Many are the difficulties that appear when we begin to study about this matter seriously, but, thanks to our God, there is a possibility for us to gloriously triumph, and, therefore, let us dream of nothing but decided success.

Now, what must we do in order to accomplish what we desire and what must be done in order to avert the impending wrath of our insulted Lord? We must preach on the subject of the Sabbath often, and that, too, in a way to bring conviction to all who may hear us who are not scriptural in their belief on this subject. We must talk on the subject in our pastoral visits, and in our social intercourse with the people generally. We must pray daily to God to help the people to see this matter in its true light and to become willing to his will in the same. We must write on the subject in the religious and secular papers. We must circulate such literature as will give needed information on the subject. We must talk on the subject to our children at home and also to our Sunday-schools. We must organize Sunday Leagues in every community, for if we wish to be sure of success we must organize and continue organized, for without organization we can not hope for much, and in order to make Sunday Leagues what they should be, we must strive to enlist everybody, and in the regular meetings of same we must have earnest and spicy talks, papers, speeches and earnest prayers with a faith that believes that "all things are possible to him that believeth."

Let us not delay organizing, but organize at once, and thereby gain an irresistible strength before the next Legislature. We must vote only for men for the Legislature who are not only in sympathy with us, but who are heartily and actively with us in this cause. Let us mean business and success and we shall succeed. "All things are yours" (I. Cor. iii, 21), says Paul, and what more can we ask if we will do our part? Let us be sure to do our part. Let us organize at once. Let us see who will organize first. We purpose to organize next Sabbath, the Lord permitting.

Correspondence.

LETTER FROM BRO. SCURLOCK.

MR. EDITOR: As I can not write to all my brethren of the Louisiana Conference, I send you a letter for your very readable paper, that all of them may read it. I love my brethren of my Conference, and would be delighted, if I could, to greet each one in person, commune with them in the social circle and at the altar of the church, and with them, from the pulpit, declare the words of eternal life. They are self-sacrificing laborers, devoted to the cause of Christ, and faithful to their ministerial vows at the altar. Many of my co-laborers have already crossed the river, and are enjoying the blessedness of the eternal world. Sometimes, when I look over the past, and call up the names of those who have already entered the pearly gates, the attractions for heaven become brighter and stronger to my earnest and waiting soul. Now and then this contemplation brings with it a degree of loneliness which makes me feel that I am left to battle on without their prayers and tears until the end shall come. But I am not alone. No, no; God is with me, the blessed Savior is with me, and the Holy Ghost is with me. In my lonely walk, in my trials and in my battles, I find the Savior precious to me; more precious than tongue can tell. The religion of Christ is adapted to every character, and to every condition in this life. "My grace is sufficient for thee."

I am almost a stranger in a strange land. I only knew three persons here before I came. These have been friends to me in this, my time of need. Their kindness to me has endeared their persons and their names to me for the remainder of this fleeting life. A friend in need is a friend indeed. In this case I have found it so. Bro. F. G. Hocutt and wife, and Dr. Tolson, have placed me under the greatest obligations, which I cheerfully acknowledge, whether I am ever able to repay them or not. A true friend—not one from sinister or pecuniary motives—is what we need in our extremity. I have made the acquaintance of several persons, who seem to be kind and obliging, and I have no doubt if there should be any necessity for it, they would also prove friends. But I am out off from my brethren for the time being, but I feel that they have a deep interest in me, and that they pray for me daily, that I may recover and enter again the ranks of the itinerants, and march forth with them to battle for Christ and his kingdom.

My physician in New Orleans advised me to come to this place for my health. The climate here being purer, and having less dampness in it, he said, was better adapted to my restoration than the city. Having the greatest confidence in his judgment, I accepted the advice with cheerfulness, and came, arriving here on the tenth of April. The weather much of the time was bad, and not calculated to improve me much. Since the clouds, the cold and the rains have passed away, a change for the better is not only perceptible to myself, but to all who saw me when I came. My strength has increased greatly, and my color indicates a better condition of the body. My physician here tells me that I am improving rapidly, and he ought to know, as he has the best of opportunities on which to base his judgment.

I can not write advisedly with regard to church matters. The Methodist, the Episcopalians, the Presbyterians and the Catholics all have churches for the whites. How many the colored people have I am not informed. The Methodist have services twice a month, and to that church I have gone once, as the pastor has only preached one Sunday since my arrival. I have attended the Presbyterian Church once, at which time there was the installation of the pastor. I liked the charges to the pastor and the congregation. The Catholics seem to have a larger following than any other religious body. The Methodist pastor, Rev. F. G. Hocutt, is repairing his church; putting it in fine condition, and rendering it quite attractive. It occupies the most eligible locality in the town, and when completed will be very attractive.

The town of Covington has about two thousand people in it. It is well located, and embowered in trees of many kinds. It has a great many boarding-houses open to the accommodation of any and all visitors and invalids for the Summer, at a good round sum. Board is not cheap, by any means, and those who come for the season must expect to pay their prices. It is claimed that it can not be furnished any cheaper, as house rent and food is so dear that those who take boarders can not afford it. A close calculation must be made before one can make any engagement. Abita Springs is only three miles away, Claiborne Hotel half a mile and Mulberry Grove mile and a half. Many people in the country take boarders. I see many old people here; the climate favors longevity. The place has communication with the city both by rail and schooner.

The Christian Life.

EXPERIMENTAL KNOWLEDGE OF GOD.

The knowledge of God is gained as the knowledge of man is gained by living much with him. If we only come across a man occasionally and in public, and we see nothing of him in his private and domestic life, we can not be said to know him. All the knowledge of God many professing Christians have is derived from a formal salute which they make to him in their prayers, when they rise up in the morning and when they lie down at night. While this state of things lasts, no great progress in the Christian life can possibly be made. No progress would be made, even if they were to offer stated prayer seven times a day instead of twice. But try to draw down God into your daily work; consult him about it; ask him to bless it; do it as to the Lord, and not unto men; refer to him in your temptations; seek a refuge under the shadow of his wings until the tyranny of temptation is overpast; go back at once to his bosom when you are conscious of a departure from him, not waiting until night to confess it, lest meanwhile the night of death should overtake you, or, at best, you should lose time in your spiritual course. In short, walk hand in hand with God through life (as a little child walks hand in hand with its father over some dangerous and thorny road), dreading above all things to quit his side, and assured that, as soon as you do so, you will fall into mischief and trouble; seek not so much to pray as to live in an atmosphere of prayer, lifting up your heart momentarily to him in varied expressions of devotion as the various occasions of life may prompt, adoring him, thanking him, resigning your will to him many times a day, and more or less all day; and you shall thus, as you advance in this practice, as it becomes more and more habitual to you, increase in that knowledge of God which fully contents and satisfies the soul.—E. M. Goulburn, D. D.

Many who are born into opportunities for signal usefulness refuse to embrace them. The pleasures of the world absorb all their energies, and they devote their time to frivolous pursuits. Their lives, which might be singularly useful, are devoted to pleasure. If anyone has the hardihood to suggest that they owe an obligation to God as well as to their humble brethren, they wax impatient and declare that they are of age, and do not care to receive either advice or instruction concerning the ordering of their lives. They forget the old maxim, which ought ever be kept in mind by those who, possessing superior advantages and opportunities, are thereby endowed with the chance to serve their fellows—"Rank confers obligation." It is a tragic spectacle, the sight of men and women capable of helping and blessing a community, frittering away their time in idleness and selfish enjoyment. What sort of an account will they be able to render at the final judgment?—Exchange.

It is not talent, nor power, nor gifts that do the work of God, but it is that which lies within the power of the humblest; it is the simple, earnest life hid with Christ in God.—Frederick W. Robertson.

WINONA DISTRICT MEETING OF THE W. H. M. S.

Near Maryland, Miss., on the bank of Roebuck Lake, in a beautiful grove, has recently been erected a little gem of a church. The ladies composing the W. H. M. Society of McNutt charge are to be congratulated on their success in building this church. There, on May 5 were assembled a small, but faithful band of workers to hold the district meeting for the societies, both Home and Foreign, in Winona district. Mrs. Ben L Jones, the efficient district secretary of the W. F. M. S, presented the work of that society in this district, and presided over the morning session. Reports—some verbal, some written—were heard from most of the societies in the district. While all had their difficulties to contend with, we think the tendency is onward. Mrs. Jones told us of the death of the Bible woman, Dolores Rio, in Laredo, whom we had been supporting several years. She has only exchanged the cross for the crown. We presume her place will be filled as soon as the missionaries can find another to take it.

The ladies of the surrounding community had prepared an elegant luncheon, which was served in the grove. After thus refreshing ourselves, we assembled for the session of the Woman's Home Mission Society. The district secretary, Mrs. E. T. Buckley, of Carrollton, not being able to attend, had requested Mrs. J. B Stone to act in her stead, which was done.

The society of McNutt charge reported the building of the church as their work—a work alike creditable to Mrs. Ben Jones as president of the society, and to each member as an individual worker. For years the congregation has worshiped in the old court-house at McNutt. This is beautifully situated, and is still the home of the faithful pastor, Rev. John Ritchey, and his family. But it has served its day and generation, and they hope in the near future to have a home for the pastor right near the church.

After hearing the various reports and announcing the names of two new societies—one at McAnerney, the other at Itta Bena—Mrs. Stone read an account of the meeting of the H. M. Board at New Orleans, gleaned from the daily papers.

Throughout the entire meeting the monotony of business routine was broken by beautiful recitations and songs by the children and choir.

In the evening an interesting program was rendered. Mrs. Jones presided. A paper on "Our Twentieth Century Offering" had been prepared by Mrs. H. T. Cunningham, of Vaiden, by special request. This was read by one of the young ladies, Miss Mary Cayce. Mrs. Stone read a paper called 'Recollections of Some Missionaries." Committee on Resolutions read their report. A resolution was presented and adopted, that our next meeting be held in conjunction with that of the District Conference.

Miss Frances Gardner, of Moorhead, returned missionary from Japan, was introduced to the audience, and gave a few words of greeting. Bro. Ritchey's talk was full of encouragement to the ladies in their different lines of church work.

Sunday morning the worthy superintendent of the Sunday-school kindly gave way, and Miss Gardner for an hour gave us an account of the progress of Christianity in Japan. The children were not alone in their appreciation of this talk; we all enjoyed it. Then followed a sermon by Bro. Ritchey. His theme was Abraham, the father of the faithful—the friend of God—the model missionary, who went out, he knew not whither. He told of Abraham's faith—his victory over self—his consecration of all he had to God, and of the result: "And God prospered Abraham in all things." This service closed the meeting.

We have attended many meetings, but, all things considered, this was one of the most interesting to all concerned, and, we trust, may prove a blessing to the noble little band who so royally entertained it. Personally, we feel very grateful to Bro. and Sister Ritchey and Miss Mollie and Mr. and Mrs. Jones for the many courtesies showered upon us in their home, and we shall long remember our visit to McNutt and beautiful Sunnyside. FROM THE WORK.

VICTORIA, MISS.

The itinerant wheel at last Conference rolled us from the southeast border to almost the northwest corner of our Conference, to the pretty little village of Victoria. We are domiciled in a comfortable parsonage, on a beautiful lot of two acres, having associated with it a little gem of a church. The people received us quite cordially. We have been in almost every home in our membership, and know nearly every person in our bounds. Two of our quarterly meetings have been held by that sturdy presiding elder, J. W. Honnoll, who is by no means a novice.

Our work presents an encouraging outlook. We have five splendid prayer meetings, the interest in which is increasing, and four Sunday-schools. All the arrangements are made to commence holding Children's Days next Sunday (the second Sunday in May), to continue in consecutive order to the first Sunday in June. We have assessed us for Conference collections $175; have in cash $91.25—the remainder secured in good subscription except $9. A people who work more harmoniously with the pastor we have not found. Nearly half of the amount assessed for ministerial support has been paid. We are endeavoring to get the regular collections out of the way, in order to give proper attention to the Twentieth Century Thank-offering. We hope to do something creditable and substantial for this sacred call. With it we expect a gracious revival. In fact, we are having it now. All the interests of the church are reviving. We report many new subscribers to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. Success to it. Our next District Conference will be held in Victoria.

BAY ST. LOUIS.

We close to-night a meeting of ten days' duration. The meeting was held under a large canvas tent. The preaching was done by Rev. T. J. Norsworthy. We had good interest and encouraging congregations from the first. Much good has been accomplished. Quite a number professed conversion, and many church members have been greatly revived. Twelve persons have applied for membership in our church. One comes to us from the Presbyterian Church; four by certificate. When you consider that seventy-five per cent. of the popniation of this place is Roman Catholic, and Methodism almost the only representative of Protestantism, such a meeting, with such results, is cause for rejoicing.

Rev. W. W. Simmons, our presiding elder, held our second quarterly meeting last Sunday, the thirteenth. He filled the pnipit at 11 A. M. in Bay St. Louis, and preached to an interested and interesting congregation five miles south of town at 4 P. M. same day. We had a good Quarterly Conference at 8 A. M, Monday.

Since the beginning of this year we have raised the money to wire our church for electricity, which cost $36, and paid $57 on a debt of $350 to the Board of Church Extension. We are well cared for by this kind people. We believe the Lord's cause is prospering in our midst. I am not given to reports in the paper, but think it will interest some to know that there is much to do on this coast, and that much can be done.

THE MEETING AT CANTON, MISS

Praise to our Savior shall resound for the "glad tidings" we joyously give from Canton. What a pleasure to write how God has blessed our church and city through the preaching of our pastor, Bro. Harmon, and the Rev. Percy Knickerbocker!

Bro. Harmon conducted the meeting a week previous to the coming of Bro. Knickerbocker, preaching twice a day to large congregations. The logical, forceful and spiritual sermons of this truly consecrated man of God gave us a spiritual uplift, and prepared our heart to receive the message to be delivered by Bro. Knickerbocker. This gifted young man preached in the power and demonstration of the Holy Spirit. How our hearts burned within us! We felt a flame of "sacred love" rekindled under the inspiration of his earnest, persuasive, gentle and eloquent reasoning. In his soul-searching sermons he revealed the Eternal as the God and Father of us all, and the Judge over all. Especially did it seem that he had brought a message to the young people—the hope of our churches. With a heart young and aglow with divine fervor, with tenderness and exquisite pathos, he told them the sweet story of "Jesus and his love." At the same time he warned them to flee from the wrath to come, and the doom that awaited the unsaved. These appeals found a responsive chord. Many hearts were made receptive, and God sent his reviving power and baptized them with his Spirit.

What an impressive and beautiful picture was given on last Sabbath morning, when our beloved pastor administered the rite of baptism, and received twelve young converts into the church! Solemn and sacred the hour when, kneeling around the altar, they each partook of the Lord's Supper, by this act consecrating themselves to a life of service in his vineyard. The music of the choir, conducted by Mr. J. A. Bell, by its sweetness touched many hearts, and contributed to the successful results. Twenty were added to the church.

Out from the meeting goes a fragrance that has been blessed of God, and will be wafted into eternity. The church was always filled to its utmost capacity with eager and attentive listeners. Regretful expressions welled from each heart when they found the time had come to close this precious meeting.

We feel grateful to this consecrated young man for his labors among us. His coming was a benediction to our community. May his ministry be blessed with an outpouring of the Spirit of God, and the work of the Lord ever prosper in his hands! And we pray that the graces and gifts, so largely developed in him, may grow more and more unto the perfect day. X X X.

"To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow,
Creep on in petty space from day to day
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way of dusky death."

Procrastination is the thief of health as well as the thief of time. There are few things in which procrastination is so much indulged as in letter writing. We mean to write, but "to-morrow and to-morrow creep on" and we neglect it. This is bad enough when the correspondence is social or business in its character, but when it concerns the vital issue of health it is infinitely worse.

This touches you, if you are one of the women who have felt inclined to take advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of a consultation by letter, free. You have studied the evidence which shows how other women have been cured. You cannot doubt but that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does cure diseases peculiar to women; irregularity, ulcerations, inflammations, bearing-down pains. You cannot doubt it, because of the force of the testimony of hundreds of thousands of weak women made strong, and sick women made well, and you mean to write—to-morrow.

Write to-day. Your letter will be read in private, its contents guarded as a sacred confidence, and an answer promptly mailed you in a plain envelope without any printing upon it. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"When I wrote you about my ailments I was living in Richland, Iowa," writes Mrs. M. Vastine, of 647 South Liberty Street, Galesburg, Ill. "I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Before I had taken four bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I was a new woman. I cannot make pen describe my heartfelt gratitude, but will confirm the truth of all I say if those who write inclose stamped envelope for reply."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are a natural aid to beauty. They clear the complexion.

In California.

The Golden State is seriously considering the necessity of quarantining against consumptives. This means that God's fresh air and sunshine, nowhere more entrancing and beautiful than on the Pacific slope, may be denied to the unfortunate sufferers. Thousands have been greatly benefited and many cured by the delicious atmosphere of California, and it appears a most cruel measure, even though sanctioned by medical

Many persons now in the advanced stages of consumption, and surely doomed, could have been cured by early resort to that most gracious healing remedy, MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Beef Steak in a Bottle.

That fresh, juicy beef, ready for digestion, can be made into a delicious cordial is a marvel, but chemistry has accomplished it. Sick people at a distance from markets and needing the nourishment afforded by beef tea can procure Dicks' NUTRITIVE ELIXIR and find it the best liquid food and stimulant known. For loss of appetite, weak digestion, debility, typhoid fever, and consumption it is invaluable.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

THE DETHRONEMENT OF SELF.

Light is not more opposed to darkness than is the spirit of Christ to the spirit of selfishness. The life of Jesus was the only perfectly unselfish life that the world has ever seen. Not the slightest taint of self-love or self-pleasing can be detected in his matchless example. Not a single instance can be pointed out in which he fell short of the noblest altruism. Even while hanging from the cross and enduring its awful agonies, he manifested the greatest concern for the welfare of others. To the penitent thief by his side he spoke words of peace and pardon. To the women who were lamenting him he said, "Weep not for me, but for yourselves and your children." To the beloved disciple he committed the future care of his mother, Mary, who was weeping before the cross. It is impossible to conceive of a more self-disinterested life, of a more perfect ideal of benevolence and unselfish love. As some one has strikingly said, "Jesus gave mastery to ministry and supremacy to service."

The holiest lives are those which resemble the example of Jesus, not simply in purity, but also in self-abnegation and in beneficence To be truly Christ-like is to be perceptibly meek and self-forgetful and self-denying. This does not mean that it is not a part of our sacred duty to make provision for our wants and for those dependent upon us, but it does signify that the rights, the needs, and the welfare of others must be given a large share of our attention. The bane of the world to-day is that such vast multitudes are lovers of self and lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God and their fellow-men. The natural desire of man is for self-gratification and self-exaltation. The world regards self-enjoyment and self-advancement as the supreme good. But such a spirit is utterly antagonistic to the teaching of Him who "pleased not himself," and whose chief joy was in doing good.

Says the distinguished English divine, Rev. F. B. Meyer, with much truth: "Self is the pivot around which the natural man revolves. It is the essential principle of every sin, and has been ever since that first sin, in which Adam preferred what was pleasant to the eyes and good for food, and calculated to make him wise to the will and word of God."

The subjugation of self, the eradication of selfishness, is the one great purpose which Christianity has in view both as regards the individual and as regards society. The regeneration of society will never be accomplished until "all men's good shall be each man's rule." While we who have put on Christ are to reckon ourselves dead to sin and to self, our souls will be in great peril if we imagine that the struggle with self and with Satan is over. The self-principle is astoundingly subtle and pervasive. It suddenly reappears oftimes just when we are about to congratulate ourselves that it has taken leave of us forever. The man who is surest of having mastered himself, and of being free from all taint of selfishness, is the one most likely to be betrayed by the reassertion of the old sinful self-principle, which, to quote again from Mr. Meyer, "we detect in moods and dispositions where we never expected to discover it. It puts off filthy rags, and attires itself in the somber garb of humility or religious zeal. It takes a foremost place in acts of self-denial and devotion. It multiplies its activities. It glories in its unobtrusiveness. It congratulates itself on its conquests and growing perfection. And all the while, in its self-complacency, it shows that it is a mere mimicry of that genuine holiness which is the direct product of the Holy Spirit." How important, then, that we should take heed, lest, in an unsuspecting moment, we give place to the evil spirit that dominates the unregenerate.

The most unselfish lives are ever the happiest. None are so subject to disappointment and vexation of spirit as those who care for nothing save their own interest and pleasure. As Fenelon has forcefully said, "Whoever will labor to get rid of self, to deny himself, according to the instructions of Christ, strikes at once at the root of every evil, and finds the germ of every good." The only way by which we can effectually dethrone self is to yield ourselves fully to Christ, and to renew that consecration day by day, so that his love completely and constantly fills our souls.

We thoroughly agree with Mr. Sheldon in the following utterance, which appeared several weeks ago in the Topeka Capital during the time it was being conducted as a Christian daily. Said he: "Selfishness is at the bottom of all the world's trouble. There is not a social wrong, not a ruined home, not a tangled condition of life anywhere that does not have for its real cause a selfish life. The greatest need of the world is to get rid of this horrible selfishness. It is the sin of all generations. And as fast as it is taken away by the power of Christ as he is allowed to come into the daily life, so fast will the life of men on earth become the happy, strong, beautiful life that God loves to have it."

WORTHY OF IMITATION.

For the sake of the stimulus which it may afford to Leaguers everywhere to "go and do likewise," we invite attention to the work of the Epworth League of First Church, Jackson, Miss. During the quarter ending May 1 the members of this League who serve in the "Charity and Help Department" made one hundred calls on the sick, and visited thirty strangers. They distributed fifty-five garments to the poor. They furnished provisions, medicines, etc., to seventy-six persons in need. And although a large part of the money expended was paid out for nurses for the sick, which is always expensive, yet with such skill have the finances of the department been administered that the cost has been only $65. And the good work is still going on. Who can measure the beneficent results of work like this? The results, which can be statistically tabulated, are insignificant in comparison with those moral and spiritual results that lie beyond the reach of the statistician's art.

What a benediction are such ministrations to those who are groaning under a load of poverty and misfortune almost beyond their strength! A friendly call, a sunny smile, a cheery word—who can estimate their influence in the dismal abodes of affliction and want? Blessed is the pastor who has such helpers. Blessed is the church which has thus learned to follow the example of the Good Samaritan. "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye did it unto me."

DEATH OF GEN. GILMORE.

In the death of Gen. J. Y. Gilmore, who passed away at his home in this city, on Wednesday, the sixteenth instant, New Orleans has lost one of its purest, most useful, and highly esteemed citizens. He was at the time of his death Major-General of the Louisiana Division, United Confederate Veterans, and also editor of the Sugar Planters' Journal. He was a devoted Methodist, as well as a most exemplary Christian, having united with the Rayne Memorial Church in 1894, and has ever been true to his vows. He left a wife, three sons and one daughter to mourn his loss. Their grief is shared also by a wide circle of friends.

The commencement sermon of Belhaven College will be preached by Dr. W. B. Murrah. Rev. R. Wilkinson will deliver the literary address.

NEW BOOKS.

The Southern Methodist Bi-monthly Review for May-June is, without doubt, a magnificent number. Following is the table of contents: (1) "Church Unity: How Far Practicable?" By Herbert Cushing Tolman, professor of Greek in Vanderbilt University. (2) "St. Anselm of Canterbury as the Type of Early Scholasticism Judged on the Basis of his Treatise, 'Cui Deus Homo.'" By Rev. Robert T. Kerlin, of the Missouri Conference. (3) "Our New Educational Policy." By J. H. Reynolds, professor in Hendrix College, Arkansas. (4) "In His Steps." By John F. Bonnell, M. A., professor in Emory College. (5) "The Fourth Gospel and Its Author." By J. C. Calhoun Newton, D. D., of the Virginia Conference. (6) "A Story of Wayfarers and Homeless Men." By B. W. Arnold, Jr., Ph.D., acting professor of History and Political Economy in Emory College. (7) "The Relation of God the Son to God the Father." By the Rev. Jas. A. Anderson, of the Little Rock Conference. (8) "Wanted—A Newspaper." By the Rev. R. F. Bishop. (9) "Academic Criticism." By Henry Snyder, M. A., professor of English in Wofford College.

In the editorial departments a number of live and important topics are discussed, and much valuable information is given concerning missions and recent books. The article by Bro. Bishop, in which the need of cleaner, more wholesome daily papers is graphically set forth, is one of the most timely and suggestive that we have seen on that line. We wish it could be read by every layman in Southern Methodism. All of the articles are highly meritorious, and afford the thoughtful reader a rich feast. Specially noteworthy is the paper by Prof. Reynolds on our new educational policy, and also the one by Prof. Arnold telling about tramps and homeless men. The layman or the preacher who does not take the Review is no small loser thereby.

CHRISTUS AUCTOR: A Manual of Christian Evidences. By Warren A. Candler, D. D., LL.D. 12mo. 253 pages. Cloth. Price, $1.25. Nashville, Tenn.: Southern Methodist Publishing House.

This new volume from the pen of our versatile and gifted Bishop Candler is a fresh, scholarly, and able presentation of the credentials of Christianity, and is destined to take high rank in the field of apologetic literature. While not an elaborate treatise, it covers the whole ground of Christian evidences thoroughly and satisfactorily, and is all the more valuable by reason of its conciseness. In the marshalling of facts and in the elucidation of the arguments involved in demonstrating the truth of the Christian religion, the author evinces striking originality of method, irresistible power of logic, and complete mastery of the subject.

On account of recent archæological discoveries in Bible lands, and the claims of certain scientists and higher critics of the present day, there is eminent need of a more modern setting forth of Christian evidences than is found in a good many standard works upon this subject. Bishop Candler, perceiving this deficiency, has endeavored to remedy it in some measure, and remarks in the preface with great pertinence: "The older writers have seemed to take too much for granted, and, besides, since their days the field of controversy has been entirely changed. Not a few of the modern writers, on the other hand, have appeared to grant too much, and to make concessions to rationalism which may be justly regarded as betrayals of the truth."

This is undoubtedly a faith-strengthening, doubt-dissipating book of extraordinary value, and is calculated to convince truth-seeking skeptics and unbelievers as well as to greatly edify the disciples of Jesus. It is splendidly adapted to class-room work, and ought to be given a place in the curricula of all our higher institutions of learning. Both laymen and preachers will find it a brain-nourishing and enjoyable book. It is sure to prove wonderfully helpful to young ministers, especially. The book is attractively printed and bound, and is written in the clearest and tersest of English.

Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, the energetic pastor at Coldwater, Miss., sends us the cheering news that his charge has paid $95—its entire assessment for foreign missions.

SOUTHERN STUDENT CONFERENCE.

The seventh annual Southern Student Conference will be held in Asheville, N. C., June 15 to 24, inclusive. This meeting is a Conference of the leaders of College Young Men's Christian Associations throughout the South for training in Bible teaching, and in methods of developing religious work and missionary interest in college. It is held under the auspices of the Student Department of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations. The use of the buildings and grounds of the Bingham School has been extended to the Conference by Col. Robert Bingham.

The daily program of the Conference consists of platform meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life, normal Bible classes, missionary institutes for the discussion of methods of creating and fostering missionary interest in college, conferences for the discussion of methods of promoting Christian work among students, and life-work meetings on the mountain-side at sunset for the presentation of the Christian callings that need college men. The afternoons will be devoted to athletics under the direction of a committee of athletes from the leading universities of the South. Walking trips and excursions will be taken to the finest points of view.

Among the prominent leaders of Christian thought and work who have been secured as speakers are Mr. Robert E. Speer, of New York; Rev. Charles R. Erdman, of Germantown, Pa.; Rev. E. C. Dargan, D. D., of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.; Dr. Walter R. Lambuth, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Rev. R. G. Pearson, D. D., of Asheville, and Rev. Carl E. Grammer, D. D., of Norfolk, Va. Mr. C. K. Ober, Field Secretary of the International Committee, will preside at the Conference.

Bible classes will be taught by Mr. F. M. Gilbert, of Boston, and Mr. Augustus Nash, of Cleveland, Ohio. The College Conferences will be directed by Messrs. H. M. McIlhany, Jr., George Gleason and H. P. Anderson, Secretaries of the Student Department, while the missionary interests will be in charge of Mr. F. P. Turner and Dr. C. W. Ottley, Secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions.

Last year fourteen States were represented by over two hundred delegates from sixty-eight different institutions. It is expected that the attendance this year will be even greater. A rate of one fare for the round trip has been granted by all railroads in the South.

In connection with this Conference there will be held a Conference for city and town Young Men's Christian Association workers, who will participate in the platform meetings with the student delegates, but will have separate sessions for the discussion of methods of work. This will be in charge of C. K. Ober and C. L. Gates, Field Secretaries of the International Committee, assisted by various Southern State and local secretaries. It is expected that secretaries, officers and other workers of the Young Men's Christian Associations throughout the South will attend this Conference.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

The attitude of this government towards the peace envoys from the South African republics, who arrived in New York this week, and will shortly come to Washington, was freely discussed at yesterday's Cabinet meeting, and a member of the Cabinet says the sentiment shown was to be as liberal toward the envoys as the diplomatic proprieties will permit, and not to raise any unnecessary technical points against them. Just what the status of this delegation is, is as yet unknown at the Department of State. Publication of their address to the people of the United States led the officials to suppose that they have no diplomatic credentials, as it would be a violation of diplomatic etiquette for the diplomatic representatives of other countries to take part in agitation and public demonstrations in the United States, as these delegates have announced their intention to do. If they come merely as a delegation of citizens of the Orange Free State and the Transvaal Republic, they will be courteously received by the Secretary of State and by the President. If they have official credentials as representatives of those governments, the matter will be complicated, and their official reception somewhat doubtful. It is the intention of our officials to be as cordial as circumstances will permit, but to do nothing that can be construed as a violation of neutrality.

Mr. Clark's voluntary resignation of his seat in the Senate removed the necessity for the adoption by the Senate of the resolution reported unanimously from the Committee on Elections, declaring him not entitled to the seat he has occupied since the opening of Congress. Most of the senators would have been pleased with this ending of the unfortunate case, had it not been followed by Mr. Clark's appointment to the vacancy.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow left Washington today for Havana, where he will take full charge of the entire Cuban postal system, and conduct a rigid investigation of the irregularities which have caused such a scandal, and which, it is feared, will result in a loss of American prestige with the Cubans that will do much harm. After four hundred years of it the Cubans expected peculation on the part of Spanish officials, and were a little suspicious of American claims of honesty in the administration of public affairs.

Rev. Charles S. Wilson, who was the first white missionary to Uganda, Central Africa, and who is now a resident of Jerusalem, has been telling Washington audiences some of his wonderful African experiences. He went to Uganda with two other missionaries. His two companions were murdered, and he worked for a year and a half alone, the only white man in that section of the world. To-day, in the villages about Lake Nyanza, upon the shores of which he worked, there are 500 churches, with thousands of members—all converted heathen. He predicts that within ten years every human being in the world will have heard the gospel.

Senator Daniel made a short speech while the Naval Appropriation bill was under consideration, in which he stated a platform, in a few words, that might with appropriateness be adopted by the Christian statesmen of America. He said: "This is a peaceful nation, and I would preserve in the hearts of our people the conservative doctrine that would keep it a peaceful nation. The object which leads me to vote for liberal appropriations for the navy is simply that we may have necessary weapons of defense, and not that we may have a vast navy, which shall go about the world seeking whom we may devour."

Rev. James McNaughton and Mrs. McNaughton, for a period of years connected with American missionary work at Smyrna, Turkey, are visiting Washington relatives.

Mr. Eugene Stock, of London, England, who attended the recent Missionary Conference in New York City, delivered an address on foreign missions in Washington this week. Of missionary work in general he said: "What use was it for God to suffer death and again live, if the people are not to be told of it? This telling is the missionary labor. Every man in the world has a claim to hear about Christ, and he must hear it from those who know." Referring to the disposition in some quarters to slur at foreign missionary work, Mr. Stock said: "A little while ago one of your great daily newspapers said that no follower of the Mohammedan religion had ever been converted to Christianity. One of the greatest honors of my life was when I was permitted to shake the hand of a Mohammedan divine who had renounced his faith and accepted the Word of God as the living truth. One of his friends had been converted to Christianity, and thinking to save him from this, the Mohammedan official sought to write him letters refuting the truths of the Christian religion. He secured a New Testament in his own language, and began to read the Scriptures of Luke, and was himself converted to Christianity."

Washington, May 16, 1900.

Bishop Galloway returned on Wednesday, the sixteenth instant, from Chicago, where he took in the General Conference of the M. E. Church. Our brethren across the line made good use of him in the pulpit and on the platform.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The meeting in Winona resulted in much good. There was a revival in the church, and twenty added to the membership by profession and eleven by letter. Grenada has had a successful meeting, in which the pastor was assisted by Rev. J. B. Culpepper. A goodly number professed conversion and the church was greatly revived. Grenada College shared largely in the blessing. We regret that Rev. H. D. Estes has been compelled by failure of health to give up his work, Tunica circuit. His place is being supplied by Bro. B. C. Trigg, a student in Millsaps College.

Rev. H. C. Pittman writes hopefully and cheeringly of his work on Charleston circuit. One new church is completed, several are being repaired, and financial reports are gratifying.

In this age of book-making it is gratifying to us to know that our own great Publishing House is keeping in the procession. Two new books have recently been issued that deserve and should have a place in the libraries of all our preachers and people, to-wit: "Japan: The Country, Court and People," by Rev. J. C. C. Newton ($1); and "Christus Auctor: A Manual of Christian Evidences," by Bishop Candler ($1.25). The former is a very attractive and interesting book, brimful of matter concerning Japan, that is of concern to all who are interested in the Christianization of that great country. The latter is indeed a great book which our preachers and others should possess and read as soon as possible. I shall be pleased to send it postpaid to any address for $1 only.

This writer enjoyed very much his meeting with the Forest District Conference at Forest. Bro. Mellen and his preachers are a body of noble fellow-laborers. They know how to treat a connectional worker with courtesies and helpfulness. A Sabbath at Morton with Bro. Linfield and his people was spent with pleasure and profit.

The Winona District Conference, held at Indianola, has just adjourned. Bishop Galloway addressed a large audience last evening on the Twentieth Century Movement. H. W. Whitnell, W. G. Harbin, T. H. Lipscomb and H. H. Estes were licensed to preach, and the three first named were recommended for admission into the traveling connection. J. R. Bingham, A. H. George, R. Thayer and J. B. Streater were elected delegates to the Annual Conference. It has been an occasion of spiritual refreshing and sweet fellowship to those present. Three pastors were absent, and but few laymen were present. Bro. Sanders purposes continuing the meeting through next week with the assistance of Bro. M. L. Blanton. May it result in great spiritual good to the church and community!

NOTES.

President Chambers has kindly sent us a cordial invitation to attend the exercises of the forty-second annual commencement of Whitworth College, the program of which will be found in another column.

The Epworth League Missionary Rally, held at Louisiana Avenue Church last Sunday afternoon, was a well-attended, enthusiastic, and highly enjoyable service. Rev. P. L. Cobb, of Nashville, was on hand, and delivered an exceedingly impressive and instructive address on missions.

The Methodist congregation at Crowley, La., last Sunday voted their pastor, Rev. P. R Knickerbocker, leave of absence for three months in order to give him opportunity to take a trip to Europe, and possibly to the Holy Land. He expects to leave New York, June 6 During his absence his place will be filled by Rev. C. B. Duncan, of Missouri.

We are in receipt of an invitation to attend the marriage of Miss Elise Ahrens, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. A. Ahrens, of New Orleans, to Dr. John Thomas Crebbin. The happy event will take place at 7:30 P. M., June 5, 1900, at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 3464 Constance street. The ceremony will be performed by the bride's father. The bride is a bright, highly cultured, and most estimable young lady, and the groom, who has just received a medical diploma from Tulane University, is fortunate indeed to capture so splendid a prize. We extend in advance our heartiest congratulations and wish them a life of unalloyed happiness.

AN APPEAL.

The Epworth League Board, at its recent sitting, having carefully looked into the interests of the League Department, finds it prospering in a satisfactory way, except that the circulation of the Epworth Era, the League organ, is far below what it should be, and far below the financial needs of the League Department, the sole support of which is the subscription patronage of the League paper. Twenty thousand subscriptions are needed to make the Era and the League Department self-sustaining.

We now earnestly appeal to our pastors and Leaguers to make an immediate and thorough canvass in the interest of the extension of the Era's circulation. The League has brought a great blessing to our young people, and has proven a helpful force in every part of our church work. The necessity for an immediate and thorough canvass in every League in the church is, therefore, earnestly asked by this Board. A great interest of the church and the spiritual well-being of our hundreds of thousands of young people are involved in the faithfulness with which this call is met.

We are very faithfully yours in the work,

J. W. NEWMAN, 1st Vice-Pres.;
W. T. McCLURE, 2nd Vice-Pres.;

Corinth District Missionary Institute.

The Missionary Institute and Sunday-school Convention of Corinth district met in Iuka, May 8 and 9. There were but nine of our preachers present. It, however, was one of the most delightful and interesting Conferences I have ever had the pleasure of attending. Our much-beloved presiding elder was in the chair from first to last, and presided to the great delight of all present. He has as many qualifications for a presiding elder as any man I ever saw. Bro. Young is no surface man. He goes down to the tap-root of things. While he puts all necessary stress upon the finance side of the work, he puts great emphasis upon the spiritual side also. He evidently loves his preachers and people, and makes them feel that their sorrow shall be his sorrow and their joy shall be his joy. He has, undoubtedly, found his way into the hearts of all the people of Corinth district—the land of his nativity. W. R. WILLIAMS.

REPORT FROM FANNIN CHARGE.

Earnest Moor, a young man well known by several of our preachers, has been quite sick with small-pox. Now, after five weeks, he is improving slowly, and Aunt Caroline, his faithful cook, has the dreadful disease. Many earnest prayers have gone up in behalf of both of them. Aunt Caroline, for many years, has been a faithful friend to the occupants of the parsonage, which is located just across the street from her house. Though the dreadful disease is so near us, we are not afraid. Our trust is in God; our faith is well founded; we will follow our Guide and fear no danger.

So far I have met all my appointments, except when extreme cold and rain interfered. Our congregations are good. Our Sunday-schools are doing well. Our people are growing in liberality, and promise to do better, in a financial way, than formerly. We have some splendid people on this work, but, my! how family prayer and our church papers are neglected. Our people are simply charmed with Bro. Holloman, our faithful presiding elder. His preaching helps us. H. P. LEWIS.

INDIAN MISSION.

Dear Brethren and Sisters—Friends of the Indian Mission in Mississippi: I want to appeal to you again in behalf of the mission. The mission is growing. We now have three missionaries—one white and two Choctaws—under the supervision of our faithful and efficient presiding elder of Forest district, Bro. T. L. Mellen, and now, as the work enlarges, we need more land and about two new church buildings. The Indians are not educated to feel the need, nor are they able to build the churches, or buy the land; so, if it is done, we, the friends of the mission, must do it, and you may be sure Bros. Mellen and Donnell will use it to the best advantage, and it will be secured to the M. E. Church, South. So there is no danger of your money being lost. I think it is as needy a cause, and as worthy an object, as you could possibly give your money to.

Now, brethren and sisters, think of this poor, destitute, wandering people, and then the garden of Gethsemane and the cross. The five bleeding wounds received on Calvary ought to plead for this poor, destitute people. Will they not?

Brethren and sisters, let's furnish what money is needed for this worthy purpose, and let's do it at once. Please, when you lay this paper down, write to me at once, enclosing me a contribution for the mission. Send all you can. Make your gift so large to this and other missions and worthy objects that you will feel it. Make the hands of your pocketbook sore. They will be no sorer than were the hands of Him who was nailed to the cruel cross for you and me. Send, send, send at once. Send by money order, registered letter, or otherwise, to me at Lorman, Jefferson Co., Miss. Mrs. R. A. Harris, of Oak Ridge, Warren Co., Miss., has sent me $1, and some brethren promised at Conference to send a contribution. Please be prompt. A. D. MILLER.

Forest District.

To the Preachers in Charge in the Forest District, Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South—

DEAR BRETHREN: Let me know at once the amount of cash and the amount of subscriptions to the Twentieth Century Thank-offering Fund contributed in your respective charges last year and this year up to date. Do not add the cash and the subscriptions together. Keep the two items distinct in your reports to me. Prompt attention, brethren, if you please.

Yours faithfully,
T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

If you Lack Energy

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

It vitalizes the nerves, helps digestion, and relieves fatigue so common in mid-summer.

Attention, Opelousas District.

The College of Bishops, in the Pastoral Letter issued in the Nashville Christian Advocate, of May 17, "recommend that the week preceding Sunday, July 8, be observed in all our churches as a week of prayer and self-denial, that the God of our fathers would mercifully visit us with the power of his Spirit, reviving his people and saving sinners. On that day (July 8) let the people bring their thank-offerings, praying that their gifts may be graciously accepted and blessed to the furtherance of the divine kingdom in the earth."

Let every pastor, the Official Boards co-operating, make preparation to carry out this recommendation, and carry it out in the right spirit, and then we shall see "the pleasure of the Lord prospering" in our district. A week may be well spent in prayer and self-denial when we remember "the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich." I am sure if the pastors and officers of the church will co-operate in the work and "apply all diligence" during that week to succeed for the sake of the glory of our Lord, our Twentieth Century apportionment will be collected and all the other collections and salaries will be paid in full, and revival fires will be kindled on every charge to the saving of sinners and the upbuilding of saints.

Brethren, let every one prepare to keep the week set apart, so that when the time arrives, we may be able, without distraction, to give the time ungrudgingly, and expend our energies honestly and faithfully and prayerfully in carrying out the recommendation of the College of Bishops.

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. THOS. H. DORSEY, Arcola, Miss., EDITOR.

The Epworth Leagues of our great State are now beginning a new year, with the brightest prospects of any year in their history.

Prof. H. A. Hayes, of West Point, Miss., our new president is eminently qualified for the high position to which the Leaguers of the State have called him. He is a young man, full of energy, and a natural leader; so we may expect in him safe and successful leading.

Hon. V. E. Pollard, of Greenwood, Miss., our newly elected first vice-president, is a young attorney of high culture and deep spirituality. We may be sure that the spiritual part of the Leagues will have a spiritually intellectual leader.

Miss Dudley Jones, of Greenville, Miss., our new second vice-president, is a young lady who has no superior in our State in all lines of service in our Zion. She is now in the Scarritt Bible and Training-school, which will help her in this very work.

Mrs. Sophia Stephens, our third vice-president, is, from all account, the woman for the place. She lives at Lake, Miss.

Miss Josie Critz, of West Point, Miss., is well known to the Leaguers of the State, she having been for a number of years in her place at the State and District Conferences, as well as a most successful worker in local League department. She is our new State recording secretary and treasurer.

Miss Vic Thompson, of Tupelo, Miss., needs no introduction by this editor. She has been identified with the League work since we had such an organization. We may expect the same faithful work from our corresponding secretary this year that she has given us in the years past.

Miss Annie Estelle Boothe, of Sardis, Miss., was re-elected State Junior superintendent in recognition of the fact that this important office could not be better filled, though search might be made in every nook and corner of the State. We may expect her former faithful service continued.

Let each of these officers have the hearty co-operation of every Epworth Leaguer. They can not succeed without such co-operation.

Now, officers and Leaguers are introduced to each other. Begin your work at once. No League should try to exist another week without the aid of that indispensable paper, The Epworth Era. No League can do half so well without it as with it. So don't delay. Get it and read it.

This editor very earnestly requests that every Leaguer shall contribute to make this department of the work succeed. Let this office hear from you frequently.

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON, Ruston, La., ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Commencement Day is near, and many of our members will soon step out into the world for themselves. Stick to the Epworth League, for the older you grow the more will you need what it gives you.

Let no League think of disbanding for the Summer. That is the finest time for work, for you haven't much else to do; certainly nothing more important.

Don't count too much on numbers. A splendid League can be carried on with six or eight members. If you have no one to take the lead, select one most promising and most likely to be with you for some time, and send him or her to the Tri-State Conference in August. The business of that Conference is to train a leader for you. But, of course, they can't do that if you have no one there.

Ruston Junior League is a live institution. They were organized on Jan. 7, 1900, with 25 members, and now have 55. Within two months of their organization they had built a neat fence around the church, and have pledged themselves to contribute $100 to the new parsonage. Their devotional meetings on Sunday afternoon are well conducted and interesting, and every time a business meeting is announced they flock to it in drover. The treasurer collects dues from each member monthly. They hold elections quarterly, so everyone can have a turn at being officers. And then, too, the election is the part they all like best. The present officers are: Stella Henderson, president; Fannie Proctor, Lena Turrentine, and Epsie Bond, vice-presidents; Edith Cann, secretary; and Sallie Colvin, treasurer. The pastor attends their meetings and superintends their work.

The districts that fail to organize are the ones which will fall to the rear of the procession, and stay there. Two or three live Leagues in a district, well organized, can soon arouse enthusiasm on the subject all through the district, and soon double the number of Leagues and increase vastly their own interest. Then that district is in position to try the Holston, or some other plan, to bring up the Conference collections in full. We hope to be able soon to announce that all the organizers have gone to work, with a view to fully organizing the State. If we will do it, we can do it, and we can put Louisiana up with the best of the Conferences in League work.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Leaguers of Louisiana and Mississippi—

Please remit to me at your earliest convenience all money subscribed at the recent session of your Conferences for the Tri-State League, to be held at Seashore Camp Ground, Aug. 1-9, 1900.

Worth, Galveston, Shreveport or Savannah. Best patronized Business Colleges in the South. For particulars address, The Illustrated Youth and Age, Nashville, Tenn.

BOSTON DENTAL COMPANY.

Owing to excellent work and satisfactory prices, this firm has a large and constantly increasing practice. It includes among its patrons leading professional and business men.

Excursions.

The New Orleans and Northeastern railroad announces that, commencing with Wednesday, April 25, it will inaugurate the popular Wednesday excursions to St. Tammany parish, including Covington, Abita Springs, Pearl River, Slidell, and all intermediate stations.

The attractions to sportsmen, as well as the healthfulness of St. Tammany parish, are constantly increasing the popularity of these resorts.

Great improvement has been made, both by the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad and the East Louisiana railroad, in the track, which is being rapidly relaid with heavy steel rails, and in the equipment, thereby affording the excursionist the best of accommodations.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.

I KNOW NOT WHY.

BY S. J. METCALF.

I know not why dark clouds aronnd us
Often gather all the way,
Bnt I know that Jesus loves us.
And he leads to brighter day.

I know not why loved ones have gone,
Held for awhile in death's cold embrace,
But I know Jesus lives forevermore,
And they shall behold His face.

I know not why less joy than sorrow
Is the lot of some to bear,
But I know if we are faithful,
We shall all His glory share.

I know not why earth's choicest favors
Oft seem showered on the faithless ones,
But I know all things are ours,
When the King of glory comes.

—World's Crisis.

LEARN TO EXPECT A GREAT DEAL OF LIFE.

An infinite benefit comes from forming the habit of expecting the best of life for oneself. Do not go abont with an expression of discontent on your face, giving everybody the impression that the good things of this world were intended for some one else. Practice the art of stretching your mind over great expectations. In this way yon will broaden yonr position. If yon learn the art of expecting great things for and from yonrself, yon are more likely to prepare yonrself for great things. A sort of discontent has led to all the great things which have happened from the time of the earliest Hottentots to that of the Lincolns and the Gladstones.

No one can accomplish anything great in this world who is contented with little, who is confident that he was made for little things, or is satisfied with what happens to come in his way.

A man who expects great things of himself is constantly trying to open a little wider the doors of his narrow life, to extend his limited knowledge, to reach a little higher, to get a little farther on than those aronnd him. He has enongh of the divine disposition within him to spur him on to nobler endeavors. He looks to get the best of the things offered to him.

That most delightful character, John Burroughs, tells ns of a woman who complained that no birds ever came to her orchard, while he counted a score or more there. This was because he loved birds and was looking for them, and found them, while she did not care for birds, and hence rarely saw them. "Yon must have birds in your heart, Madam," said this great natnre-lover, "before yon can find them in the bushes."—Success.

SAINTLY FACES.

Sometimes, in passing through a crowd, we see a face that attracts us by its sweetness of expressiou. Perhaps it is an old face, crowned with a glory of hoary hairs; yet love, joy and peace shine out of every dot and wrinkle in it. Sometimes it is a young face that beams with health and purity and beanty. But whether old or young, when we see that unmistakable soul-light in a face, we know that the heart behind it is pure, the life is good, and that the body thus illuminated is the temple of the Holy Spirit. To keep the mind occupied with good, pure, useful, beautiful and divine thoughts precludes the possibility of thinking about, and thus being tempted by, things sinful, low or gross. It is because Paul knew this that he says so earnestly: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report, think on these things." In the well-formed habit of thinking pure thoughts lies the secret of being pure in heart; and in the daily and nightly meditation in the law of the Lord is a safeguard against many of the sins which defile the carnal heart, and debase and blacken the countenance.—Scottish Reformer.

THE BIBLE IN THE HOME.

Give the Bible the place it ought to occnpy in your homes. Enshrine it in power. Let not the daily newspaper, nor the popular magazine, nor the most eminent standard author come between you and the daily reading of God's Word. Some of you, I doubt not, have precious memories of home where the Bible was a revereuced aud studied book. Yon ean hear the tones of the father's voice as he read in the morning, and recall the awfulness with which the old prophetic periods were clothed, or the delight with which the precions promises fell upon your ear. You can see a beloved mother garnering strength and courage and consolation day by day from the Psalms and beatitudes. You know the words that were taught yon then have clnng to your memory, and will be part and parcel of you through all eternity. Now by all that is sacred in these recolleetions, by all the love you bear your little ones, by all the terrors of the judgment before which we must all appear and meet the record of our lives, I beseech you to be faithful in your own homes, faithful to God and to those whom God has committed to yonr care. It will soon be too late. When these children have grown up and gone into their life work, let it not be theirs to say: "I might have been made familiar with the Bible and its blessed teachings, and through the influences of truths thus learned might perhaps have been led into an assnred hope of eternal life in Christ; but my parents were not faithful, and the book divine had no honored place in my early home."

You may not be able to give your children wealth or the inheritance of a great name, or eminent social advantages; but you can leave them the resnlts of fidelity and precious memories of devotion to the holy task of trying to make them know what God says to us in the Old and New Testaments, and what he wants us to believe and to do and to be.—Dr. Frederick Noble, in "The Divine Life of Man."

GENIUS.

"I never do a thing thoroughly," Mary said to me the other day. She had jnst been competing for a prize in composition. "I read my composition only once after I wrote it, and I never practiced it in the chapel at all." She was naturally far more gifted than Alice, who was her principal competitor. Alice wrote and rewrote her article, and practiced it again and again. The day came. Alice read her composition in a clear, distinct voice, without hesitation or lack of expression. It was condensed and well written. Mary's could not be heard beyond the fifth row of seats, and was long and uninteresting. Alice won the prize. One remembered and the other forgot that trnth so trite, but so aptly pnt by Carlyle: "Genius is an immense capacity for taking trouble."—Christian Observer.

THE COST OF A BOY.

It would be a good thing for all boys, and girls, too, to get some idea—in real figures—of what their parents do for them. P. B. Frisk gave a lectnre on the cost of a boy. He computes that at the age of fifteen a good boy, receiving the advantages of a city life, will cost, counting compound interest on the sum invested, not less than five thousand dollars. At twenty-one he will not cost any more unless he goes to college, when it will cost nearly twice as much. A bad boy costs about ten thousand dollars at twenty-one, if he does not go to college. If he does, it costs as much more. And when a man has put out ten or twenty thousand dollars into a boy, what has he a right to expect of him? What is fair? Is it fair for the boy to work himself to death, to run, jump, play ball, or do in snch a way as would disable or break him down? Is it fair for him to despise his father and neglect his mother? Is it fair for him to ruin himself with drink, defile himself with tobacco, or stain himself with sin? Some of us have put about all of our property into boys and girls, and if we lose them, we shall be poor indeed; while if they do well, we shall be repaid a hundred-fold. Boys, what do you think about the matter?—Exchange.

CURE FOR WEARINESS.

There is nothing which will give a change for rest to the over-tired nerves so surely as a simple religious faith in the overruling, wise and tender Providence which has us in its keeping. It is in chafing against the conditions of our lives that we tire ourselves immeasurably. It is in being anxious about things which we can not help that we often do the most of our spending. A simple faith in God, which practically and every moment, and not only theoretically and on Sundays, rests on the knowledge that he cares for us at least as much as we care for those who are the dearest to us, will do much to give the tired nerves the feeling of the bird in its nest. Do not spend what strength you have, like the clematis, in climbing on yourself, but lay hold on things which are eternal, and the peace of them will pass into your soul like a healing balm. Put yourself in the great everlasting currents, and then you can rest on your oars, and let those currents bear you on their strength—Anna C. Bracken, in Harper's Magazine.

Another fault in young people is lack of respect for their superiors in age. This fault is largely the fruit of conditions peculiar to this generation. There have been many changes and improvements in nearly everything in this country within the last half century. It is a very common remark that children now have much better advantages than their parents had in childhood. The country is blessed with better schools, supplied with more improved methods, and enlightened by far better facilities for gathering and disseminating information now than it was a few years ago. This is calculated to breed egotism in young people if they are not carefully guarded against that danger. It develops not only undue confidence in themselves and respect for their own ways and wisdom, but also a degree of contempt for aged people who missed advantages in their childhood which every boy and girl now enjoys. When this fault is fully developed, it manifests itself in uncomplimentary remarks of boys and girls about aged people being old fogies, behind the times, out-of-date, and all that sort of thing. All this makes a sort of breach in feelings between the old and the young which is unfortunate and very dangerous to both classes. No boy or girl of refined feelings and good breeding will ever use an expression that is not kind, gentle, loving, and respectful when referring to old people. It is very ugly manners in a young person to say or do anything which will impress old people with a feeling of humiliation on account of advantages they missed in childhood. Whenever a disposition to do such a thing crops out in a boy or girl, some gentle, loving friend or parent ought to take the young one aside and talk with tears in eyes and pathos in voice about the ugliness of the fault and the danger of the tendency.—Youth's Advocate.

SUGGESTIONS TO MOTHERS.

Children should be accustomed as soon as possible to sleep in a dark room. Unless they have learned to be afraid of it, the darkness is soothing to the nerves, and the rest is more profound and refreshing than when there is the unconscious stimulation of light. It is particularly desirable for children of a nervous temperament that light should be excluded, yet it is most often the nervous, sensitive child whose imagination has been filled with fears of the shapes the dark may hide. Silly tales told by cruel servants or mischievous brothers, thoughtless speeches of the elders, stories half understood and brooded over, make the kindly darkness a terror to many an unfortunate child. The mother should try by every means in her power to remove these fears. The child who is subject to them should never be forced to stay alone in the dark. Much gentle persuasion and reasoning appeals to common sense and the example of older persons will be necessary before they are overcome, but patience will conquer them at last.—American.

A PIECE OF HIS MIND!

Abraham Lincoln said a great many wise things, but perhaps he never gave better advice than at one time to Secretary Stanton. Mr. Stanton, it seems, was greatly vexed because an army officer had refused to understand an order, or, at all events, had not obeyed. "I believe I'll sit down," said Stanton, "and give that man a piece of my mind." "Do so," said Mr. Lincoln, "write it now while you have it on your mind. Make it sharp; cut him all up." Stanton did not need another invitation. It was a bone-crusher that he read to the President. "That's right," said Abe, "that's a good one." "Whom can I get to send it by?" mused the Secretary. "Send it!" replied Lincoln, "send it! Why don't send it at all. Tear it up. You have freed your mind on the subject, and that is all that is necessary. Tear it up. You never want to send such letters; I never do!"—Christian Work.

OBITUARIES.

DOUGLAS—JAMES H. DOUGLAS was born in the north of Ireland, June 8, 1815; came to America on a visit in 1834; located at Satartia, Yazoo county, Miss., after he decided to stay in America; settled at Franklin, Holmes county, Miss., in 1836; was married in 1840 to Miss McClusky, who died five years afterward, leaving two daughters, Mrs. Pope and Mrs. Pickens, now living in Texas. In 1847 he married Miss Augusta Wade, by whom he had nine children, two sons and two daughters surviving. In 1849 he went to California, staying two years. His home was three miles south of Richland, from 1847 to 1892. Removing to Durant, Miss., he made his home there till the death of his wife—March 31, 1896. Meantime his home has been with his son, Mr. Wm. Douglas, near Goodman. January 7, 1900, he died at the residence of his son, Mr. Hamilton Douglas, in Yazoo county. January 9, 1900, he was buried at Durant, Miss. He was a pure man all his life; a faithful churchman, steward and recording steward as long as he was able to serve; Sunday-school superintendent, thirty years; master of his lodge, fourteen years. He was stainless in character, cheerful in heart, full of love for men and faith in God; a servant of men, a king in purity and usefulness. He lived in Holmes county sixty-four years with a stainless record. Honored, trusted, revered, loved, he was a faithful witness to the power of the gospel to save from sin. A long, pure, consistent life made him a notable man for the power of his life and influence. A man more loved, trusted and revered the writer has never known.

N. G. AUGUSTUS.

Durant, Miss.

MOORE—FRANK CHARLES MOORE was born in Marshall county, Miss., Dec. 27, 1853; professed religion in 1873 or '74, and joined the Methodist Church; was happily married to Miss Mattie E. Crook, Dec. 18, 1878, and died at his home near old Wesley Chapel, Marshall county, where he had spent almost all of his life, March 11 1900.

Bro. Moore left us at a time when it seemed he was most needed. Six manly boys and one little girl certainly need the guiding hand of a wise and loving father in assist a feeble mother in finishing their character for heaven. Again, he had just ripened into a very helpful church character. Dr. Kelsey, the old stand-by of Wesley Chapel, died last year, and it looked as if we could not give up Bro. Moore. How selfish we are! God knew best. May his mantle fall on his noble boys!

Bro. Moore was taken violently sick, and all good physicians and loving friends could do could not arrest the disease. His mother tells me that he said he wanted to live for his family's sake, but it was all right if God saw proper to take him.

Bro. Moore will be missed. He was a prosperous, aggressive citizen in all that it takes to build up a good community; a faithful attendant at church; led in our music; was liberal to the enterprises of the church; a devoted husband, a good father. He leaves, in addition to his own family, an aged mother, brother, and two sisters, to mourn their loss. May they all get to heaven! D. W. BANN.

ADAIR—WM. THOMAS ADAIR was born in Catahoula parish, State of Louisiana, Nov. 16, 1878, and departed this life Feb. 11, 1900. He was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1894, under the preaching of Rev. Robert Davis, and ever afterwards lived a consistent Christian life. He was a dutiful and obedient son, and was never more happy than when doing the will of his parents.

Bro. Adair was a loyal Methodist, and while his church was shaken with dissension, which drove some from our communion, he could not be driven about by every wind of doctrine, but stood firm, and would not go with the disorders. He was a shining star in his church and community. We can not understand why this blooming youth was thus "snatched away by death's resistless hand," but we put our trust in Him who doeth all things well. It did not take a long life to purify the gold of his character, but thus early was he taken, a fit jewel to decorate the crown of his Master.

H. N. BROWN.

BARBER—Miss MOSSIE BARBER, the beautiful, rosy-cheeked young lady of seventeen summers, and daughter of H. H. Barber and wife, was attacked eight or nine months ago with that unrelenting disease, consumption, against which she fought with all the heroic womanhood she could muster, until forced to yield to the disease, which terminated in death the twelfth of April, 1900.

Miss Mossie made a bright profession of religion two or three weeks before her death, and we received her into the church in the midst of the home circle, and many loving friends. Certainly the services were delightful. We felt as if the angels were waiting around to accompany the redeemed spirit home. She was so patient in her sickness; said so many loving things to her family and friends about her going home, telling them good-by. She leaves a doting father, loving mother, and a number of brothers and sisters, to regret her untimely death. She goes out from a host of friends, as was attested on the day of her burial, as well as by their kindness all through her sickness. May the Lord reward them, and comfort her grief-stricken parents, brothers and sisters, and finally save them in heaven! D. W. BANN.

SIRMAN—Died in Sabine parish, La., Dec. 3, 1899, ELIZABETH J. SIRMAN.

Sister Sirman was born in South Carolina, Feb. 10, 1814, making her at death eighty-five years nine months and twenty-three days old. She joined the M. E. Church at the age of sixteen years, and ever after lived a consistent member of the same. She believed in the doctrines of our church, and was ever found, when able, in her place to listen to the preached Word of God. For a long time before her departure she had been confined to her room, but she never forgot to talk of the goodness of God. The writer of this never failed to stop in passing by and talk with Grandma Sirman, and the last time I ever saw her I preached for her, as she lay upon her bed, by special request, and as I bid her farewell she said, "Meet me in heaven."

Thus another good woman has crossed over the Jordan of death to reap her reward, which, I have no doubt, is a bright one. She leaves a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss, but we weep not as those who have no hope. We expect to meet Grandma Sirman again in the sweet bye-and-bye.

JOHN FRANKLIN.

GRIFFITH—Little GERALD, son of J. D. and Mrs. Mattie O. Griffith, death claimed as his victim the twelfth of March, 1900.

Little Gerald was just climbing the twelfth step of the ladder of his first year, lacking only nine days reaching his first mile-post; but this tender bud in the early spring-time of life was taken from its mother's bosom and carried to the friendly arms of Jesus, for "of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Weep not, bereaved ones; earth's nursery was no longer accounted worthy of your little boy, but the great Florist claimed him as his own, and transplanted him on the other shore, to bloom forever in the sonlight of God.

THOS. J. O'NEIL.

MRS. HESTER ANN TWINAR.

This venerable matron fell asleep in Jesus on Saturday, April 7, 1900, at her home on Short Creek, a few miles south of Yazoo City, Miss. She was born in Claiborne county, Miss., March 26, 1827, but her parents moved to Yazoo county while she was a child, so that almost her whole life was spent in the neighborhood in which she died. She joined the Methodist Church more than fifty years ago, and was a member of Short Creek Church almost, if not quite, from the beginning of its existence. She was a good woman, widely and favorably known, and her funeral, which was held on Sunday afternoon, April 8, at Short Creek Church, was attended by a large number of sorrowing friends. She leaves a husband and five children. May they all meet her some sweet day in a better world!

TEMPLE—Resolutions passed by the Woman's Missionary Society:

Whereas, God, in his all-wise and mysterious providence, has seen fit to remove from our midst our friend and co-worker, Mrs. ALICE TEMPLE, who had endeared herself to us by her bright, cheery disposition, that carried sunshine and gladness into our homes; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of Mrs. Temple our society has lost a most zealous worker, the Methodist Church one of its most loyal and faithful members, and the community a valuable friend and neighbor.

Resolved, That she loved her church and God's people, often expressing a desire to become a more useful laborer in the Master's vineyard.

Resolved, Her many friends can testify to her noble Christian character. She was not very demonstrative, but lived a simple, consistent life.

Resolved, That we bow in humble submission to the will of our God, "who doeth all things well." Her life's work has ended, her sufferings and sorrows are over, she has passed over the river and is resting in the sunlight of God's smiles.

Resolved, That we tender to her bereaved husband and family our deepest sympathy in this sad hour.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband and father and brother, Rev. W. A. Freeman, pastor of the Hernando Street Methodist Church, Memphis, Tenn.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of our society.

Resolved, That the Durant News and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE are requested to publish these resolutions.

Deafness Can Not be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMEN WHO WORK.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Aug. 12.

Though only 19 years old, I suffered from pains and female trouble two years. Last spring I got so bad I had to quit work. I had to support myself, and could not afford a high-priced doctor. I got one bottle of Wine of Cardui and that made me feel better. Have now used several bottles and am well. My mother used the Wine for Change of Life and was greatly relieved.

MISS MARGARET WALSH.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Many girls and women find it necessary to earn their own living in various kinds of employment. Their work is often so hard and confining that the health breaks down. Their delicate constitutions are unfitted for tiresome tasks. Weakness nearly always makes its appearance in the peculiarly delicate womanly organs. Constant standing on the feet, and coming and going at the beck of a superintendent or foreman, induces falling of the womb, leucorrhœa, headache and backache. The pay of women workers is often so notoriously small that when sickness comes they have no money to engage skillful physicians. To them Wine of Cardui is truly a blessing. It cures them of their ills at a small cost, and they can act as their own physicians. No doctor can do as much for "female troubles" as Wine of Cardui.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to May, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

Embracing all the advantages with all desirable improvements of other first-class sewing machines, so simple in mechanism that the most inexperienced need no assistance in operating it. Book of Instructions with every machine. Any child can learn to run it.

Extra Set of Attachments also free with each machine, consisting of the following: One Tucker, One Foot Ruffler, One Set of Plate Hammers, four different widths up to ¾ of an inch. One Binder and One Thread Cutter.

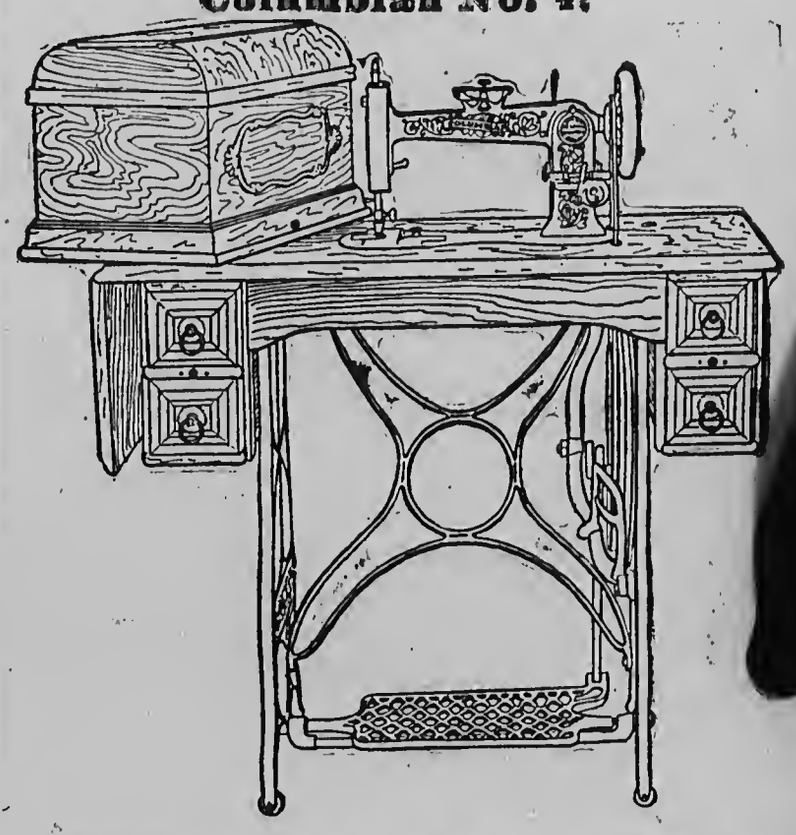
No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $24. Our price, $14.75.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $25. Our price, $15.50.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, gothic cover, case of three drawers at each end, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $26. Our price, $16.25.

Furnished Free with every machine are the following named accessories. One Foot Hemmer, One Screw Driver, One Wrench, One Oil Can and Oil, One Gauge Screw, One Extra Check Spring, One Package of Needles, Five Bobbins and One Instruction Book.

Columbian No. 4.



EXCELLENCE OF THE COLUMBIAN.—All wearing parts are of case-hardened steel possessing great durability, and by the turning of a screw all lost motion caused by wear can be taken up. All parts are fitted so accurately that the machines are absolutely noiseless, and as easy running as fine adjustment and best mechanical skill is possible to produce. No expense or time is spared to make them perfect in every respect, as every machine passes a rigid inspection by competent men before leaving the factory.

NICKEL PLATED.—The balance wheel and many of the fine parts are nickel-plated, with other parts finely enameled and ornamented, giving it a rich appearance.

A Self-Setting Needle and Self-Threading Cylinder Shuttle are used in the Columbian High-Arm Sewing Machine. They are so simple that any one can easily operate them in a few minutes' time, as our Instruction Book is fully illustrated, showing how to do all kinds of fancy work with attachments.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

ADDITIONAL ACCESSORIES.—Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screw Driver, Oil Can with Oil, Cloth Guage and Thumb Screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated, and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

No. 3—Drop leaf, Bent cover, case of two drawers at one end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $29. Our price, $17.

No. 4—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $31. Our price, $17.75.

No. 5—Drop leaf table, Bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making a seven-drawer machine. Dealer's price, $33. Our price, $18.50.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK, 512 Camp St., New Orleans.

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The British relief column entered Mafeking on May 16.

The fight between local ice dealers has driven the product down to 8 cents per hundredweight.

The Boer peace delegates have been invited by the Knoxville (Tenn.) City Council to visit that city.

A statue of William Ewart Gladstone was unveiled in the Central Hall of the House of Commons on May 19.

The Russian war debt has been canceled. In the past eight years 742,000,000 rubles, equivalent to $571,340,000, has been paid.

William Wright Heard is now governor of Louisiana. He was inaugurated at Baton Rouge, on May 21, with most imposing ceremonies.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Lourenzo Marques says the entire Boer force around Mafeking, including the guns, was captured by the British.

It is reported that over 300 volunteer officers have tendered their resignations rather than serve another rainy season in the Philippines, but that the resignations have all been refused.

Rear Admiral Ahmed Pasha, chief engineer of the Turkish navy, is in this country to study navy architecture; possibly, he announces, with a view to buying an American cruiser.

The fight between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Allied Building Trades League of Philadelphia, which was begun nearly three weeks ago, has been officially declared off.

The San Francisco Board of Health has declared that bubonic plague exists in that city. There are no cases now, but six deaths have occurred in the past three months. Precautions are being taken.

The Peace Bureau created by The Hague Conference has decided to appeal to the twenty-five countries signing the convention to join in an offer of mediation between England and the Transvaal.

The strike of the St. Louis street railroad employees has resulted in bloodshed. One boy was killed and three men and a girl wounded on May 21. Riots were frequent all over the city during Monday.

Rev. George C. Lorimer, pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist Church, of Boston, and for many years a leading Baptist clergyman of Chicago, has been invited to accept the presidency of the Columbian University of Washington.

The Queen has telegraphed her congratulations to Field Marshal Lord Roberts and Col. Baden-Powell, eulogizing the gallantry of the troops, and making sympathetic inquiries concerning the women and children of Mafeking.

Commandant De Wet offered to surrender to the British with 1000 Burghers on condition that they were not sent to Cape Town or St. Helena. The condition was not accepted, and reply was sent to him, saying that he must first submit.

The Transvaal government had decided to apply to Lord Roberts for a cessation of hostilities with guaranteed safety to all colonials in the Boer armies. Krueger opposed this proposition, and the women in Pretoria urged that the fight be carried on.

Assistant Surgeon A. S. Lloyd, of the United States Marine Hospital at Chicago, has been ordered to San Francisco to assist in the work of preventing the spread of bubonic plague. Assistant Surgeon Amesse, of Detroit, has left for Honolulu on a similar mission.

Three more Mississippi counties have acted on the Democratic State Executive Committee's order for a primary to select Presidential electors and National Convention delegates. Landerdale and Lowndes ordered the primary, while Montgomery has left the matter to a mass meeting of citizens.

The Kentucky gubernatorial imbroglio, which, at one time, threatened that State with a bloody and most ferocious political internecine war, has been settled peacefully by the highest judicial tribunal in this country. The case in point has been decided in favor of Beckham, who succeeded Goebel, the Democratic nominee, who was assassinated some time ago.

French papers are indignant because a representative of the Paris Matin, after going all the way to St. Helena to interview Crouje and his fellow-prisoners, was not even permitted to land, but was ordered to take his vessel out of the harbor. The general appears to be thriving in exile. Since his surrender he has gained thirty pounds of the forty he lost in his recent campaigning.

THE NEW CANCER CURE.

All forms of Malignant Growths Cured by Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment.

J. NEWTON HATHAWAY, M. D.

Dr. Hathaway's New Serum Treatment for the cure of Cancer and other malignant growths is as much of an advance in medical science as was vaccination for small-pox. Thousands of cases treated and cured by him have proved this. The method is entirely unlike any other.

T. T. Osby, of Tula Rosa, N. M., stated: "For several years I had what was supposed to be a pipe sore on the lip. It finally developed into a Cancer. In Oct. 1898, I consulted Dr. Hathaway & Co., and they applied their Serum Treatment. One injection cured me."

Mrs. I. N. Rogers, 133 N. Rozborn St., Memphis, Tenn., states: "I had a Cancer in the corner of my eye that extended down on my cheek and nose. Several so-called Cancer doctors and their burning treatments failed; but Dr. Hathaway's new Serum Treatment cured me in six weeks without pain."

Full information, together with Dr. Hathaway's New Book on Cancer, will be mailed free.

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

In the Woman's Home Companion, for May, there are many excellent stories, including a serial by Mrs. Burton Harrison and the opening chapters of a Summer romance, called The Confessions of a Camper. A clever dissertation of managing burglars is given by John Kendrick Bangs in The Idiot at Home papers. In this number, also, Madame Sembrich, the famous prima donna, offers valuable advice to parents on the training necessary for the girl aiming to become a singer. The finely illustrated article, Social Life in the United States Army, by Mary Breckenridge Hines, affords a comprehensive and entertaining glimpse into the private lives of Uncle Sam's soldier-boys.

The leading article in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly, for May, gives an interesting account of The Coming Total Eclipse of the Sun of May 28. It is fully illustrated with maps and diagrams. Prof. F. H. Bigelow, the author, is the Professor of Meteorology at the United States Weather Bureau at Washington. The second of Professor Shaller's articles on the negro question is published in this number. Senator George Chahoon contributes an attractive natural-history sketch under the title, The Birds of the Adirondacks. Prof. F. W. Clarke's valuable article, giving a popular account of the advance of chemistry during the nineteenth century, is concluded in this number.

Health-Culture, for May, opens with an article discussing The Food Value of Flesh Meat, by Dr. W. R. C. Latson, in which it is shown that meat is not an essential article of diet. Dr. James H. Jackson talks of the usefulness of pain as an evidence of wrong conditions. Dr. Charles E. Page offers some sensible suggestions on Summer Comfort and Health, and another sensible article is, Bicycling and Beauty, by Mary Sargent Hopkins, with some sensible suggestions for riders. Under the title of A Proposed Novelty in Theological Education, James Leonard Corning, Sr., suggests that a knowledge of health and hygiene should be made a part of the clergyman's education.

McClure's Magazine, for May, gives an intimate, vivid presentment of General Lawton as a man and a soldier, with special reference to his Philippine campaigns, in an article by his close associate in the Philippines, Prof. Dean C. Worcester. An article by Professor Simon Newcomb tells all about the time and course of the total eclipse of the sun which is to occur on May 28, and also what astronomers have previously learned by such eclipses, and what they hope to learn by this one. Dr. Watson ("Ian Maclaren") writes of the relations of Jesus to the Samaritans and Pharisees, and of the social feud between these two classes. The paper is fully illustrated by C. K. Linson, four of the illustrations being in color. There are good short stories by Conan Doyle, Robert Barr, Clinton Ross, Tighe Hopkins, and Charles Warren.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, for May, is a Springtide number. A Klondiker's Diary, from Seattle to Dawson City, pictures step by step the hard road traveled by the gold-seeker in Alaska. Joaquin Miller writes upon the thoughtful and poetic side of life in a Klondike cabin. Ramon Reyes Lala writes about the fierce Moros, natives of our newly acquired territory of Sulu, in the Philippine Islands. Captain W. P. Moffet pays an appreciative tribute to Dr. Jose Rizal, the martyred Filipino poet, novelist and patriot. English Royalty and the Fashions, by Mrs. E. C. Clarke, gives an intimate and authorized account of what is worn by Queen Victoria, the Princess of Wales, and other royal ladies. Bret Harte's inimitable story, How Reuben Allen Saw Life in 'Frisco, heads the short fiction. Other contributions in the current number of this magazine are: Women in Club Life, by Jennie June Croly; May Parties Hereabouts, by Roselle Mercier; Bird Mimics, and Others, by J. Oliver Nugent.

This Office.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Secretary Hay made a public explanation of the reasons this government had for refusing the request of the Boer envoys that it should stop the war in South Africa by intervention, in which he said: "The President sympathizes heartily in the sincere desire of all the people of the United States that the war which is now afflicting South Africa may, for the sake of both parties engaged, come to a speedy close; but, having done his full duty in preserving a strictly neutral position between them, and in seizing the first opportunity that presented itself for tendering his good offices in the interests of peace, he feels that, in the present circumstances, no course is open to him except to persist in the policy of impartial neutrality. To deviate from this would be contrary to all our traditions, and all our national interests, and would lead to consequences which neither the President nor the people of the United States could regard with favor." The President received the Boer envoys very cordially as private individuals, and had a short talk with them, and that probably ended the mission of the envoys, so far as the Federal government is concerned. The Senate, by a vote of 36 to 21, defeated a resolution to extend the courtesy of the floor of the Senate to the envoys during their stay in Washington. Senator Hoar explained that he voted against the resolution, not from lack of sympathy for the Boers, but because he thought the adoption of the resolution would be an official recognition of the envoys, and that would be an encroachment upon the diplomatic field, which belonged to the executive branch of the government.

The Boer envoys attended the morning services at the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday, and at the close were invited to the pulpit platform, where they held an informal reception, most of the congregation remaining to shake hands with them. Rev. Donald C. McLeod, pastor of the church, preached a sermon expressing strong sympathy for the Boers, in which he said: 'I think everyone here this morning feels that this conflict has gone as far as it ought. Surely a way can be seen to an honorable peace. The great powers of the earth should act as arbitrators, and see that justice is done. If the strong is to triumph solely because it is strong, what a rebuke it will be for the Christian nations of the earth! As a strong man should take up his burden, so should the strong among nations assume the obligations that come with their strength. They should not cringe and cower before their duty. God speaks when man refuses to raise his voice, and he will right the wrongs and work out the destiny of those who are strong in the faith. Let them go bravely forward with courageous hearts and a firm belief in the wisdom of God who reigns in heaven and upon the earth."

Rev. James Hyde, pastor of the Argyle Square Church, London, England, preached at the New Church, Sunday morning, on "Character."

Dr. J. E Rankin, president of Howard University, preached the baccalaureate sermon in the university chapel, taking his text from Jer. xlv, 5: "Seekest thou great things for thyself? Seek them not."

Dr. Merrill E. Gates, formerly president of Rutgers and Amherst Colleges, occupied the pulpit of Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, who attended the Presbyterian General Assembly in St. Louis, Sunday morning, preaching on "Peace in the Heart a Power in Life," with his text from Isaiah xxvi, 3, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee; because he trusteth in Thee."

Hon. W. S. Chambers, of Alabama, who was Chief Justice of Samoa under the joint protectorate of the United States, Great Britain and Germany, delivered an address from the pulpit of Mt. Vernon Place M. E. Church, South, this week, on "Methodism, in Relation to Important Public Questions of the Day."

It is generally regretted that there should have been four dissenters in such an important decision as that of the United States Supreme Court in the Kentucky case, upholding the State courts and confirming Mr. Beckham's right to the governorship of the State. While a decision by a bare majority of the court carries just as much legal authority as one that is unanimous, a decision that is supported by more than a bare majority certainly has a greater moral effect.

A resolution providing for the adjournment of Congress on June 6 is now before the House Ways and Means Committee, and will be reported to the House and adopted, but it is likely to be amended by the Senate, making adjournment a few days later.

The trustees of Columbian University express regret that Dr. George C. Lorimer, pastor of Fremont Temple Baptist Church, of Boston, should have declined the presidency of the university, which was recently tendered to him.

The State Department has issued a warning to the public to beware of all advertised schemes which hold out inducements to American heirs to estates in England and to fortunes awaiting heirs in the Bank of England, and emphatically declares them all to be fraudulent. There are no great estates in England unclaimed, and there are no large deposits in the Bank of England awaiting claimants.

THE JACKSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The undersigned was requested by a resolution adopted by the Jackson District Conference, which convened at Yazoo City, May 17 19, to write up the proceedings of that body for publication in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The Conference was called to order, after appropriate religious exercises, at nine o'clock A. M., by the presiding elder, Rev. T. B. Holloman. The entire day was devoted to holding a Missionary Institute, and the following prearranged program was carried out: "The Bible in Missionary Work," H C. Brown and J. D. Crymes; "Schools and Missions," H. G. Hawkins and W. B. Lewis; "Financial Plans in Missions," N. B. Harmon and C. F. Emery; "Epworth Leagues and Schools in Missions," J. A. B. Jones and J. D. Ellis; "Woman's Work in Foreign Missions," G. M. Hull and J. N. Ware. All were present and participated except Rev. H. G. Hawkins, who was detained by sickness. The papers and addresses were interesting, and seemed to be enjoyed by the fairly large congregation. Rev. W. C. Black, D. D., who was announced to preach at night, was unavoidably absent, and Rev. C. F. Emery preached in his place.

The District Conference proper was called to order at nine o'clock A. M., Friday, by the presiding elder, and after religious exercises Rev. H. C. Brown, who had made such a capital secretary of the Missionary Institute, was unanimously elected secretary of the Conference, with Rev. G. M. Hull, assistant.

The roll was called, and the following answered to their names: Revs. G. H. Thompson, J. A. B. Jones, W. A. Terry, J. N. Ware, C. F. Emery, N. B. Harmon, F. M. Williams, J. D. Ellis, H. C. Brown, G. M. Hull, T. B. Cottrell, J. N. Tucker, W. B. Lewis, W. D. Dominick, J. D. Crymes.

The following delegates answered to their names: Rev. J. F. Robinson, C. L. Dickerson, Rev. E. L. Langford, C. L. Ray, Wm. Hemmingway, T. P. Barr, H. C. Lampkin, L. A. Magruder, N. A. Mott, A. H. Courts, W. S. Field, Julius Crisler, E. L. King, Robert Tate, A. M. Johnson, J. R. Elliott, J. L. Singletary, L. W. Ellis, W. H. Ewing.

Rev. W. B. Lewis in a few happy remarks gave the Conference a hearty welcome to Yazoo City.

A communication from Dr. H. M. DuBose was read calling attention to the general prosperity of our League work, setting forth the advantage of taking up the League Reading Course, and urging the necessity of extending the circulation of the Epworth Era, which is not self-sustaining. Also a communication from Rev. W. T. Griffin urging pastors and Sunday-school superintendents to organize their Sunday-schools into missionary societies, as required by the Discipline.

The presiding elder called for reports from the various charges, and careful inquiry was made into every item required by the Discipline. Space will not admit of a detailed account of these reports, which showed, on the whole, a marked advance along some lines of the state of the church over that of last year, and revealed a healthy and gratifying condition of the affairs of the district under the present efficient administration. There have been some gracious revivals in some charges, and others would have reported the same but for the prevailing epidemic of small-pox.

The best report was made by the Yazoo City Church, which is enjoying a phenomenal degree of prosperity. All its financial claims have been met to date, and still there is a balance in the treasury. The utmost harmony prevails, the church is being repainted and refitted, the spiritual condition is at high tide, and the only specter in the distance is the fact that three years hence they must have another pastor. The present incumbent is justly held in the highest esteem by all classes of citizens.

Dr. J. B. Fearn, our medical missionary to China, was introduced to the Conference. He gave a most interesting account of his labors, and urged the church to meet the imperative demands that confront her in that vast and important territory.

Rev. W. T. Griffin, agent of the Mississippi Orphans' Home, was also introduced, and gave a most gratifying report of the condition of this noble institution. Everywhere he is receiving a most cordial welcome, and his appeals in its behalf are meeting with liberal response. With his genial address and other splendid qualifications, Bro. Griffin is emphatically the man for his place.

The licenses of the following local preachers were renewed: Revs. H. G. McGowan, A. S. Cameron, Claude M. Simpson.

The following resolutions were offered and adopted:

By C. F. Emery: That we use every means in our power to raise, as a minimum, an amount equal to one dollar per member throughout the district for the Twentieth Century Thank-offering.

By W. B. Lewis: That we endeavor, by every legitimate means, to raise every dollar of all the assessments on the district this year.

By G. H. Thompson: That we rejoice in the gracious revival recently at Millsaps College, and endorse the resolution passed by the Annual Conference looking to the location of a church near the college.

By J. A. B. Jones: That Rev. W. D. Dominick be recommended for readmission into the Annual Conference in elder's orders.

By F. M. Williams: Thanking the citizens of Yazoo City for their kind hospitality, and the presiding elder for the courteous and efficient manner in which he had conducted the deliberations of the Conference.

The various committees made their reports.

A communication was read from Mr. John A. Young, proprietor of the Greensboro Nurseries, Greensboro, N. C., offering to the trustees of the parsonages of the M. E. Church, South, in the State of Mississippi, ten dollars' worth of nursery stock of his selection, seventy-five cents to be first remitted to cover cost of packing, goods to be delivered f. o. b., and freight or express charges to be guaranteed by donee at place of destination. A resolution was adopted thanking Mr. Young for his generous offer, and that mention of this be made in the report of proceedings in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The preaching during the session was done by the following: Revs. W. T. Griffin, G. H. Thompson, J. D. Crymes, N. B. Harmon, W. A Terry.

Steen's Creek was selected as the place for holding the next District Conference.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: T. P. Barr, J. F. Robinson, J. L. Singletary, N. A Mott. Alternates: J. R. Elliott, H. C. Lampkin.

The Committee on Public Worship made the following announcement for Sunday: At the Methodist Church at 11 A. M., preaching by Bishop C. B. Galloway; at 4 P. M, love-feast conducted by Rev. J. F. Robinson; at 8 P. M, rally in behalf of the Twentieth Century Movement conducted by Bishop Galloway.

At the Presbyterian Church at 11 A. M., preaching by Rev. C. F Emery.

At the Baptist Church at 11 A. M, preaching by Rev. H. C. Brown.

At Bennett's Chapel at 4 P. M, preaching by Rev. G. M. Hull.

At the M. E. Church (colored), preaching at 4 P. M. by Rev. T. B. Holloman, and at 8 P. M. by Rev. C. F. Emery.

Conference adjourned at 6 o'clock P. M., Saturday, with benediction by Rev. F. M. Williams.

More than one thousand dollars was raised Sunday night for the Twentieth Century Thank-offering.

C. F. EMERY.

THE WINONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Winona District Conference met in thirty-first annual session at Indianola, Miss., May 18. Rev. J. H. Mitchell, P. E., was president, and Rev. W. H. Sanders was host. Each performed his duties to the entire satisfaction of the Conference. The weather was pleasant, and the hospitality of Indianola was perfect. The only drawback was the great number of absentees. Of ninety members of the Conference, only thirty were present. How can a pastor who refuses to attend upon and support this institution of the church, or who appoints a meeting of his own to conflict with his District Conference, complain if his members show a like disregard of and contempt for meetings arranged by himself? I venture the assertion that such a pastor will be loudest and longest in his complaints at such indifference. If the attendance of laymen in other districts of the North Mississippi Conference be no better than in the Winona district, then the Annual Conference should legislate on this subject. There is no good reason for burdening the record with, say, seventy-five names, when only fifteen or twenty attend the sessions. Some radical resolutions were adopted on this failure to attend, and the presiding elder was requested to read them in every Quarterly Conference.

The Sunday-school Conference met on Thursday. Bro. Mitchell had prepared a suitable program, but on account of the absence of a majority of those appointed, only a remnant of it could be given. Mr. R. V. Pollard, of Greenwood, made a splendid address on "Preparation for Teaching." H. H. Estes organized the Conference into a Bible class, and taught the lesson for May 13, showing how that should be done; not omitting the collection, which amounted to six dollars and forty-two cents, and was added to the Twentieth Century Fund. R. Thayer taught a class of girls in the Intermediate Quarterly. W. O. Harris illustrated the manner in which the superintendent should conduct the school. Miss Daisy Lester read a paper on the library and the librarian.

The work of the District Conference was taken up on Friday morning. A very thorough investigation of the condition of the work was made. Excellencies were commended, defects pointed out, and remedies suggested. A good part of one session was devoted to a free exchange of views on personal and family religion. There were heart-searchings and earnest inquiry, which must result in lasting good, if we be not "like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass."

The Conference, by formal resolutions unanimously adopted, pledged to raise the entire assessments ordered by the Annual Conference, and at least one dollar per member for the Twentieth Century Thank-offering. Eight charges reported twenty-seven hundred twelve dollars and seventy-seven cents subscribed to this fund, of which thirteen hundred thirty-two dollars and ninety-seven cents have been paid. Plans were laid for a thorough canvass of each charge. The representatives of one station and of one circuit feel hopeful that each will add five hundred dollars to what they reported to this Conference, which will make a total of thirty-seven hundred dollars, to say nothing of the amounts to be secured by the four charges not reported, and additional amounts from others. (Let Bro. Woollard and the Aberdeen district take due notice.)

Bishop Galloway cheered and helped us by his presence and wise counsels on Friday. He addressed an audience that taxed the capacity of the church on Friday night, in the interest of the thank-offering. The address convinced, confirmed, and inspired us. The audience responded with a voluntary offering of one hundred eighty-two and 10-100 dollars.

There was a prayer meeting of thirty minutes preceding Saturday morning's session, and preaching each day and night. The preaching was done by Jno. Ritchey, T. W. Lewis, R. A. Burroughs, J. C. Park, W. E. M. Brogan, J. H. Mitchell, and M. L. Blanton, and was profitable. The love-feast was a spiritual meeting.

The Conference was favored by the presence and counsels of M. L. Blanton and Joe M. Ramsey. Rev. W. T. Griffin represented the Orphans' Home, and Rev. T. Y. Ramsey, Grenada College.

License to preach was granted to each of the following-named persons: Henry W. Whitnell, Walter Gray Harbin, Thos. H. Lipscomb, and H. H. Estes; and all except the last-named were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial into the traveling connection.

J. R. Bingham, R. Thayer, A. H. George, and J. B. Streater were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, with J. B. Small, H. H. Estes, and W. T. Johnson as reserve delegates.

The Conference voted in favor of a Mississippi paper.

Black Hawk was chosen as the place for the next session of the District Conference. SECRETARY.

THE LEGISLATURE AND ELSE.

MR. EDITOR: Baton Rouge has some signs of life just now, especially in the neighborhood of the State House. Just prior to the meeting of the Legislature, it was interesting, if not pleasant, to see the enterprise of the saloons and club-rooms. They were for several weeks busy giving new coats of paint, cleaning up, beautifying, and laying in new stocks, as though they expected a season of unusual prosperity, which, from outside observation, they have only partially realized. It is claimed by those who have observed for years the gatherings of this important body, that the change in the personnel has been considerable and favorable. The predominance of young men is noticeable. The increased numbers who attend the Protestant Churches, and the general moral tone of both Houses, gives hope to the good people, and sends terror to those who had hoped to repeal the "Sunday Rest law," or take a backward step in the public morals of the State.

The inaugural ceremonies were well attended, orderly, and unusually impressive. There is one part of these ceremonies that is always a surprise to us. Just why those in charge of these occasions will hold on to the old custom and heathenish practice of the so-called "inaugural ball" we are not prepared to understand or appreciate. This class of people are exacting and even persistent in their demands. They care but little for the moral or religious sentiments of the community, or of the governor. They have their way, and their time; but, all honor to President Boyd, of the State University, they got one check and well-deserved set back.

The ball was held at the new auditorium of the university. In the afternoon the managers sent up a cartload of liquors, with a request that it be stored away till the time for serving. President Boyd returned it to the senders, with the information that the rules of the university prohibited the bringing of any liquors on the grounds. The cart came again, but was returned with a positive declaration that the rule would be strictly enforced. This act is bitterly condemned by the few who drink, but most highly commended by all good and right-thinking people. The patrons of the university—fathers and mothers whose boys are in that student body—will not complain; nor will the governor be mad about it. It will not hurt the university or diminish its large and increasing patronage; nor will it lessen its influence and usefulness in the State.

One of the great and complex problems confronting the incoming administration is that of inaugurating a new convict system. If the Legislature will give the authority for the appointment of the commission asked for, and leave them with power to act in conjunction with the administration, we shall soon have a system sufficiently humane without making the State's prison an Immigration Bureau; reformatory in character instead of being a school of vice and hot-bed of crime.

Upon the whole, the outlook for the State was never brighter. The new State officials are all in, and addressing themselves to the arduous tasks now before them. Both Houses of the Legislature will get down to business, and we shall see what we shall see.

Yours truly, E. N. EVANS.

Twentieth Century Movement in the Baton Rouge District.

MR. EDITOR: The Twentieth Century Thank-offering is being brought before the people of the Baton Rouge district by our energetic presiding elder, F. S. Parker, and his corps of workers. It has been my privilege and pleasure to be with Bro. Parker at Deerford on the sixth, and with Bro. H. W. Rickey at Amite City on the thirteenth. At both these places, although the waters had done much damage, especially at the latter place, the giving, I think, was a good beginning, and indicated that, as prospects improved, the people would realize the expectation of the great Educator by handing to their pastors an amount that will meet the one dollar per capita, or more. At both these places we found the pastors, Bros. Benton and Upton, in good favor with their people, and rejoicing in the Lord. ISAAC D. WALL.

GROWING SOULS.

BY SUSAN COOLIDGE.

How does the soul grow? Not all in a minute;
Now it may lose ground, and now it may win it;
Now it resolves, and again the will faileth;
Now it rejoiceth, and now it bewaileth;
Now its hopes fructify, then they are blighted;
Now it walks sunnily, now gropes benighted;
Led by discouragements, taught by disaster;
So it goes forward, now slower, now faster,
Till, all the pain past, and failure made whole,
It is full-grown, and the Lord rules the soul.

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

I am just home from a long trip over the eastern half of the Grenada district, across Yalobusha, Calhoun, Webster and Grenada counties, and well into Chickasaw and Montgomery counties. When the other fellow is on a district, the districts are too small; and when this fellow is on, they are too large. The standpoint from which one views any subject makes a great difference.

Some of the circuits in this part of this district cover as much territory as some of the central districts in our church. The hills are sparsely settled, and the people live along the creeks and branches, where the land is level and fertile. They have to be hunted up in order that the gospel may be preached to them. This is a white man's country. There are comparatively few negroes in it. One-half—perhaps two-thirds—of the white women work in the field regularly. In some sections of our country every field hand has six months to fill and six backs to clothe, but this is not true of the country over which I have just been traveling. Most of the consumers are producers. They earn their bread by the sweat of their faces. The people are poor, but they manage to live comfortably, and the majority of them are out of debt. The rule is to grow all the meat, grain and molasses they need at home. Many of them spin and weave most of the cloth they use. The homespun blankets and counterpanes are comfortable, and some of them beautiful. Now and then you find a man who is pretty full-handed, and, generally, he is close-fisted. As a general rule, the more a man gets of this world's goods, the tighter he holds to it. Few give as the Lord hath prospered them.

The provision made for the support of the ministry in this section is not liberal, and yet the average farming man, who grows his living at home, thinks the preacher ought to get rich on the salary he gets. The preacher has to buy all that the farmer grows on his farm. It takes time to get him to count up the worth of his corn, meat, meal, soap, milk, butter, sorghum, chickens, eggs and wood. These things are the big end of one's living. "Oh! but," says the farmer, "I make my own milk, butter, chickens and eggs at home." The preacher has to buy a cow and chickens to start on. At the end of the year, when the preacher has to move and can't wait, that same farmer will generously give him about one-fourth of the cost price for his cow and chickens, and for the pigs, if he has them. "But," says the farmer, "we make our soap at home." That is wise, and the preacher would do so, too, but he has no soap grease. He has no land, and no time to grow corn and sorghum cane. The farmer cuts and hauls his own wood, but the preacher has to buy his wood. It takes time, patience, and an abundance of good humor, to go into all of these details, but it has to be done. The uplifting and enlargement of men is slow work. It takes time. It can not be done in a day, week, month, or in a year. When an assessment is once made, it is very difficult to have it increased. There may be an increase of one hundred members and of one hundred thousand dollars in the financial ability of a charge, but they want the assessment for the support of the preacher to remain as it was. The preacher plants a vineyard, but he is not allowed to eat the fruit thereof; he tends the flock, but must not drink the milk. In this way the increase in many of our churches is prostituted to unholy purposes. It is an increase of numbers, and of nothing else.

On this trip I have been to four quarterly meetings, and not one of the preachers has received as much as one hundred dollars since last December. These four pastors have families ranging from one wife and two children to one wife and eight children. I need not say they are hard pressed to live. However, they are cheerful and hard at work, looking for the good time coming next Fall, when the next crop is marketed. The faith of these holy men seems to be to them the substance of things hoped for; anyway, they are living upon it.

Perhaps things would have been better in this territory but for a scourge of measles all Winter and Spring. This has kept the people at home, and has greatly interfered with all church work. One charge has had the small-pox in every neighborhood, and the excitement has been great. The pastor has had to be careful where he went, and he had to make a good report of himself where he did go. He is just now beginning to have congregations, and one neighborhood is greatly wrought up over a new case of small-pox. The pastor has gone round and round, and has visited all the families and all the sick where he dare go.

The preachers are laying all their plans for a full round of protracted meetings when the crops are laid by. We are stressing the general collections and the Twentieth Century Thank-offering. GILDEROY.

LOCAL PREACHERS' MOVEMENT IN MISSISSIPPI.

DEAR BRETHREN: I come to you with a message in the interest of souls. We claim to be loyal men to our great church, her doctrines and Discipline. And beyond all questions we have our duties to perform in the salvation of sinners. Shall we stand back in idleness, and absolutely do nothing, comparatively, on account of false supposition that our church law has been so changed that local preachers are debarred from doing their Master's work? Shall we believe the erroneous idea that is being circulated of late that "local preachers are a thing of the past"? Neither statement is correct, as can be clearly shown from both law and facts governing the matter. Any local preacher who will turn to our Book of Discipline and read the law for himself can see at once that the duties of local preachers are now just as they have been for a long time. Yet, many, if not a majority, of our dear brethren in the local ranks are laboring under impressions concerning our "new law," that are almost altogether imaginary.

I admit that misinterpretations put upon Par. 301 have crippled to a great extent the usefulness of many of our most godly local preachers. But everything we hear going in the air is not law. The General Conference aimed at fair dealing with us. Par. 301 applies to all of our ministers alike—whether itinerant, local preacher, or laymen. So far as the writer is concerned, that was a law of his conscience long before he ever saw it in our Discipline. Local preachers are under exactly the same law to-day they were years ago, when their voices were heard in revival meetings in the disconnected and out-of-the-way log school-houses in the rural districts.

Since our local preachers, as a rule, have discontinued their former zeal in saving souls, our membership has decreased. And this is one of the causes of our loss of revival power in late years. Our local preachers have quit the work of saving souls as in other days, and have left it all for the pastors to do, and the pastors have so many other things to look after that they do not give sufficient time to the saving of sinners. The salvation of souls has not been put into the hands of any one class of ministers. Every man has his calling to fulfill. When the time comes that I can not do my conscientious duty as a loyal local minister in the church I love, I shall step out.

As to "local preachers being a thing of the past," is a statement that is not according to facts, as reference to our Annual Conference journals show. The Minutes of the North Mississippi Conference for 1899 show that we have 122 local preachers in our own Conference. Under the supposition that the Mississippi Conference has an equal number, we have about 244 local preachers in the State. To this number and class of godly men I address this message:

Dear Brethren: We claim to be loyal ministers of the gospel of Christ. Let us put on the whole armor of God, and cry, "The sword of the Lord," and of the local preachers. What are we doing to clear our skirts of the blood of souls at the bar of God? What are we doing to aid our pastors in bringing about a revival in our respective charges? What are we doing for Cuba and other mission fields? What are we doing for the Twentieth Century Movement? What are we doing for the circulation of our church papers and other good literature? Shall we answer all of these questions by saying, "The new law hinders us"? There is no law to this effect whatever. This impression is on the minds of not a few (Par. 119), which, at first reading, is liable to convey the idea to the minds of some that the pastor has charge of all the services to be held in his pastoral charge, when it has no such meaning, from the simple fact that it contains no such language. But it makes it the duty of the pastor "to control the appointment of all services to be held in the churches in his charge." This is as it should be. For how could a man be "preacher-in-charge" with authority less than this? Now, compare this law with Paragraph 168, which says: "It shall be the duty of local preachers to aid the preacher in charge of the circuit, station or mission to which they belong, in supplying the people with the ministry of the Word. They shall accordingly be applied to by the preacher in charge, as soon as he enters on his work, to state what amount of service they are able and willing to perform. He may then draw up a plan by which their labors shall be regulated, and they (the local preachers) shall be authorized to form new congregations"—"receive members into the church," and "report such congregations and members to the preacher in charge," etc.

Now, where is the ground of excuse, under the law, that a local preacher has for not saving souls? I know, of course, that the writer holds revivals with pastors, and some call him an "evangelist," and since the term is good English, and scriptural, I have no objections to it. I have the same right to preach the gospel of Christ anywhere on the globe that any other preacher has, so long as I am true to my church. This everybody knows. But this message is from the standpoint of a local preacher to others of the same official relation. And the motive that calls it forth is from a deep desire to encourage a forward march on the part of one of the best class of men in our church. God bless our local preachers! As an attempt to move them to greater and more consecrated efforts in the salvation of souls, I offer for their prayerful consideration the following resolutions, to-wit:

"Resolved, 1. That we, the local preachers in the State of Mississippi, recognize the great need of a genuine revival of old-fashion religion in all of our pastoral charges throughout our entire State, and that we feel a deep desire to see sinners of all classes converted to God.

"2. That, as the Mississippi band of local preachers, we unite and agree to begin on the third Sunday in July (1900), and spend a while every day in secret prayer and supplications to God for an enduement of power on ourselves, and for each other, and for a general revival and the conversion of sinners in all of our congregations in the State. And that we will begin on the same date to make greater efforts by preaching revival sermons, and making public and personal private appeals for the conversion of souls.

"3. That, as our church law declares and recognizes us authorized ministers and constituted helpers of our pastors, we will be more diligent in complying with Par. 168 wherever practicable, and make special efforts to build up neglected and waste places among the poor within the bounds of pastoral charges where we hold membership—and elsewhere as we may be employed by those in authority. This includes those poor churches and school-houses that have been left off of circuits and missions.

"4. That we will, each and all of us, secure one or more subscribers to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; and, as far as our ability and influence goes, we will do our best to help our pastors collect all of the regular claims and assessments upon our church for this, the closing year of the nineteenth century."

Now, brethren, I have no doubt but that a united, consecrated, loyal action of this kind on the part of the local preachers in connection with the labors of our pastors would result in the conversion of thousands of souls and the greatest revival Mississippi ever had. Let every local preacher who is willing to join the prayer and work union as above stated, write me a card to that effect at once at Corinth, Miss.

May God bless you all!

IMPRESSIONS OF THE ECUMENICAL MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

I deem it one of the greatest privileges of my life that I was permitted to attend the recent notable missionary conference in New York City. The attention of the ADVOCATE readers has been called to the many distinguished speakers and the grandly appropriate missionary music which thrilled the listener at the Ecumenical Missionary Conference. But I wish to give a few of the special impressions made upon me by this crowning event of the nineteenth century.

First, the scene itself. Thousands of people gathered from the various points of the compass, representing personally the different tribes and nationalities of earth, constituting a magnificent personnel of cheerful faces, glad hearts, and joyful souls—all fired with a living faith in the best outlook the world ever saw. Hundreds—perhaps, at times, thousands—were turned away from Carnegie Hall; meetings being held also at ten or twelve other places. To see the multitudes crowding to the doors, and begging for entrance to get the latest and most reliable news concerning the spread of the gospel to "the uttermost parts" of the earth, was a sight that increases our faith in the ultimate and complete triumph of the gospel.

Second, the unity of the body in believing that Christ is the leader of the church, and all in all for personal salvation and Christian development; that he is the Son of God, the Son of man; that through him from the Father must come the Holy Spirit to save the sinner and guide the believer; that the more entirely we surrender ourselves to him, whether at home or abroad, the greater will be the prosperity of the church.

Third, the Word of God was emphasized as the direct revelation from the Father to man. The Book was noticeably revered and wholly accepted. No "higher criticism" was offered or intimated. The Holy Bible, now translated into more than four hundred languages and dialects, was ably and earnestly held up as the mind of Jehovah—as the fountain text-book in the church of Christ.

The missionaries evidently see the need of sending out the Scriptures and getting the heathen to read them. They understand and appreciate the essential benefit the missionary cause has derived from the Bible Societies. They should be well supported. The missionaries practically live federation. They dwell together in unity. They do not confuse the people among whom and for whom they labor by heated discussions on the doctrines and creeds of the various churches. Their idea is to win souls to Christ and edify his followers.

We should imitate them at this point. They are a noble, earnest, consecrated band. How wise it would be for us who labor in the whited harvest of the home field to emulate their Christly spirit and example! J. M. WYATT.

FOREST DISTRICT CONFERENCE, MAY 10 AND 11, 1900.

Pursuant to the appointment of the presiding elder, the Forest District Conference convened in Forest, Miss., at 8:30 A. M., May 10, 1900. All the itinerants except three answered to "roll call," and are the session closed a goodly number of local preachers and laymen were present. The pastors were all cheerful, well-dressed, and showed indications of having been well fed, though some of them are of the lean kind. With the exception of the writer, it would be difficult to find a better-looking and more jolly crowd than the preachers of the Forest district. The laity, as well as the clergy, seem much enthused over the progress of the work of the church. There were many expressions of determination to keep full pace with the forward march and the current demands of our Lord's coming and growing kingdom. The routine business of the Conference was dispensed with in a careful, yet expeditious manner. The papers read exhibited evidences of deliberate preparation. The discussions were very general and friendly. The sermons were replete with intellectual and spiritual food. The singing seemed blended into the symphonies of heaven. Surely the prayers ascended to a throne of grace, for the Lord deigned to meet with us, and his Spirit fell upon the people. There must have been rejoicing in heaven. I know there was in the Forest Church. There was a beautiful manifestation of mutual interest and brotherly love; indeed, "prominence was given to religious exercises." The financial reports show a considerable advance over last year, notwithstanding the District Conference was held much earlier this year than last. There is an upward tendency in the spiritual state of the church. More women are being enlisted, new women's auxiliaries are being formed, additional Epworth Leagues are being organized, with an increasing enrollment, and the payment of larger contributions; a greater number of Sunday-schools are being organized into missionary societies; more territory is being occupied. We are, in fact, "enlarging the place of our tents, and stretching forth the curtains of our habitations, and lengthening our cords, and strengthening our stakes."

THOS. J. O'NEIL, Sec.

CORINTH DISTRICT MISSIONARY INSTITUTE AND SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONFERENCE.

The Corinth District Missionary Institute and Sunday-school Conference was held at Iuka, May 8-10, 1900. The attendance was small. Some of the preachers were sick, and the busy season prevented the most of the laymen from attending.

The first day was devoted to the discussion of missionary topics. Much interest was manifested in these discussions, and wise plans were laid to secure the entire assessment for this year. The pastors are pushing the work, and we confidently expect to report every dollar at Conference. Bro. Rogers will report Corinth circuit paid in full by District Conference. Bro. Williams will do the same for Booneville circuit. Good news also comes from Bro. Frost at Kossuth. We have no direct report from the other brethren, but they, doubtless, are doing as well.

The second day was devoted to Sunday-school work, and at night the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and Home Mission Society had a very interesting service. The papers read, the beautiful recitations by the sweet little girls, together with the charming music by a well-trained quartette, were inspiring to all present.

Bro. Gaines and his good people gave us a royal welcome, and we came away feeling stronger in spirit, and more fully realizing the honor conferred upon us in being permitted to work in the service of our Lord.

A RESOLUTION ANENT THE TOBACCO HABIT.

The following resolution was passed by the New Orleans District Conference, which was held in the Carondelet Street Church in March, 1900: "That we hereby petition the next session of the Louisiana Annual Conference to recommend to the Committee on Admission to report negatively upon any applicant for admission into our traveling connection who is a habitual user of tobacco, and who will not promise to refrain from the use of the same."

Should other brethren desire to bring a similar resolution before their District Conferences, they will thus give the laymen an opportunity to express themselves.

YOUR BESETTING SIN.

1. The sin you do not want to be reproved for.
2. The sin you are readiest to defend.
3. The sin your thoughts run most upon.
4. The sin which leads you captive the easiest.
5. The sin you find the most excuse for.
6. The sin which offenest beclouds your spiritual sky.
7. The sin which causes you remorse of conscience the most frequently.
8. The sin which makes you doubt your entire acceptance with God.
9. The sin you are most unwilling to acknowledge you possess.
10. The sin you are most unwilling to give up.
11. The sin you are all the time trying to persuade yourself is an infirmity.
12. The sin which must be laid aside in order to enjoy full salvation.
13. The sin which is as dear as a right eye, but which must be given up.—Selected.

A HANDSOME SOUL.

One day a boy who was taking his first lesson in the art of sliding down hill found his feet in too close contact with a lady's silk dress. Mortified and confused, he sprang from his sled and, cap in hand, commenced an apology.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am; I am very sorry."

"Never mind that," exclaimed the lady; "there's no harm done, and you feel worse about it than I do."

"But your dress is ruined. I thought you would be angry with me for being so careless."

"Oh, no," she replied; "better to have a soiled dress than a ruffled temper."

"Oh, what a beauty!" exclaimed the lad as the lady passed on.

"Who? that lady?" returned his comrade. "If you call her a beauty, you shan't choose for me. Why, she is old, and her face is wrinkled."

"I don't care if her face is wrinkled," replied the other; "her soul is handsome, anyhow."—Zion's Herald.

Jesus sought not his own pleasure while he tarried here in the flesh. Indeed, pleasure, as the world understands the word, was not in his vocabulary. That which gave him supreme felicity was the return of man to the way of righteousness. That way he came to make plain, so plain that no one need mistake it. His disciples ought to be like him in aim and aspiration. It should be their meat and drink to do the will of God. In these Summer months there should be renewed consecration and deeper anxiety on behalf of those whom Christ came to save, but who are yet indifferent to the solicitations of the Spirit and the prayers of the church.—Central Advocate.

Nothing is more inconsistent than to accept atonement through our Lord Jesus Christ, and then deny the possibility of working out the purpose of the atonement in individual cases. We must believe either that the atonement is powerless to save all men from all sin, or that any man who wills may be cleansed and made full partaker of its benefits. The idea that sin must necessarily remain in man as long as he is in the body is repugnant to reason and Holy Scripture. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."—Nashville Advocate.

No man can resolve himself into heaven. If the water in the well is poisoned, you do not try to remedy it by taking out the pump. We are naturally all bad. Who in this audience would be willing to have his heart photographed, with all its real thoughts and passions brought to light? I have no use for the man who thinks he is so good that he wants a little harp all for himself when he gets to heaven. "My husband is so good," say some foolish wives, "he lacks only one thing—he is not a Christian." Well, all a dead man lacks is one thing—life.—Moody.

The great St. Teresa is reported to have said: "The love of God does not consist in shedding tears, nor in experiencing sweetness and tenderness of heart, but in truly serving God in justice, strength, and humility." That sets a great truth in a bright, clear light. Tears have their place, and so of sweetness and tenderness, but neither nor all of them can substitute the true service of God.—Central Methodist.

If there are obstacles in the way of the approach of a human spirit to God, it is certain that they are in the spirit. Human approach to God is quite easy; wonderfully so when the difference in rank is remembered. That a weak, sinful being should have such ready access to one so great and perfect is the most remarkable of facts. Yet it is true, and all that the world has of goodness and joy it owes to this fact.—Pittsburg Advocate.

THE GIFT OF THE HOLY GHOST.

Your correspondent (J. A. Parker), in the ADVOCATE, of May 3, makes a deliverance on the snbject at the head of this article, in which he comes short, I think, of the Bible teaching on this important matter. In Mark xvi, 15, 16, we learn that the apostles were to go and preach the gospel to every creature. "He that believeth and is baptized" (confesses Christ) 'shall be saved: bnt he that believeth not shall be damned." This charge is found in nearly the same words in Matt. xxviii, 19, 20. This was all after his resnrrection. Just before his ascension he 'commanded them that they shonld not depart from Jernsalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me. For John trnly baptized with water; bnt ye shall be bapt'zed with the Holy Ghost not many days hence. . . . Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come npon you" (Acts i). The gift, the baptism, the endnement, specially meaning an endowment of the anctnons power to "preach the gospel to every creature." It has ever been with Methodists to seek this divine nnction and commend this power. We esteem it needfnl in preaching the gospel to any sinner, as well as "to every creature." I will here postniate that this "baptism of the Holy Ghost" is as essential to the development of Christian character in the "creature" after he is preached to, as in the preacher.

Listen to what the prophet Joel says (ii, 28, 29): "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will ponr out my spirit npon flesh. And your sons and your danghters shall prophesy, and your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions: and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids I will pour out my spirit in those days." In this prophecy all flesh can not be less extensive than "every creatnre" is under the ministry of the apostle; but more than that, it specifies different characters: Old men, young men, sons and danghters, servants—men servants and handmaids. This prophecy of Joel, Peter quotes when preaching to the mnltitnde on the day of Pentecost, and adds in connection, "The promise is to you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call" (ii, 39). Peter said on the day of Pentecost that Joel's prophecy is fulfilled.

This was not, as some imagine, confined to that day, bnt we read of it five years afterwards, when Peter was justifying himself for preaching to the Gentiles. Cornelius, whose prayers and alms had gone up before God, had sent for him that he—Cornelius—might hear words of him. Peter said: "And as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning. Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how that he said, John indeed baptized with water; bnt ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost" (Acts x, 44; xi, 15, 16). This brings the Gentiles under the same relation to the gift of the Holy Ghost with those who received it on the day of Pentecost. Then more than twenty years after Pani fonnd some disciples at Ephesus and asked them: "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said nnto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. And he said nnto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? They said, Unto John's baptism. And Pani said, John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying nnto the people, that they shonld . . . believe on Christ Jesus. When they heard this they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. And when Pani laid his hands npon them the Holy Ghost came on them" (Acts xix, 1-6). No snch gift or baptism of the Holy Ghost had ever been given before as fell on the day of Pentecost. It was not meant to begin and end there, bnt, as promised, it was meant for "all flesh," for "every creature," was a promise to us. "And your" (onr) "children and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." After, and on another occasion, the shaking was repeated (Acts iv, 31), but the noise and the shaking were ontside circnmstances, nowhere named in any promise. They were filled with the Holy Ghost, not with wind and noise. They were baptized with the Holy Ghost. The tongues of fire fall in the same line.

The subjects of this first baptism on the day of Pentecost formed a promiscnous assembly. After the ascension of the Lord Jesus the company with him at the time returned to Jerusalem. "And when they were come in they went up into an upper room" (the eleven apostles.) "These all continued with one accord in prayer and snpplication, with the women and Mary the mother of Jesus. . . . The nnmber of the names together being abont a hundred and twenty." (Acts i, 12-15)

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions adopted by the Forest District Conference at Forest, Miss., May 11, 1900:

"Whereas, The amount of Conference collections apportioned to us by the proper authorities of the church is within the ability of our district to easily meet; And, whereas, We feel it our duty to pay these claims; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we solemnly pledge ourselves, as pastors and laymen, to do our best to secure the full amount apportioned to our several charges.

"Resolved, That we begin at once, and by public appeal and private solicitation impress on our people the privilege and duty of paying these claims.

"Resolved, We will see that every member is asked to contribute—not asking the rich only, but also the poor; the young as well as the old."

"Resolved, That we, the pastors of the several charges of the Forest district, are in hearty sympathy with the Twentieth Century Educational Movement.

"Resolved, That we will appoint a committee, as suggested by the General Board of Education, in our several charges to assist in making a thorough and faithful canvass, and making personal solicitations for contributions."

FROM THE WORK.

AMITE CITY, LA.

Amite City has been made a station since the last session of the Annual Conference, and in the four months of station life is meeting all the demands of its new position.

1. The young ladies have had the out-houses and fencing of the parsonage premises nicely whitewashed, and furnished the paint for painting the interior of the parsonage.

2. The entire amount for all the Conference collections (and a considerable margin besides) has been subscribed by the congregation, and very nearly 50 per cent. of amount for the Twentieth Century Thank-offering has been secured.

3. The parsonage larder is pretty well supplied with the necessities and good things of this life, as the result of a very delightful pounding on the eighteenth, which was the seventieth birthday of the pastor.

4. The stewards, too, are constantly looking after the financial interests of the pastor, and, I have no doubt, have collected more for ministerial support to date than has heretofore been collected from the entire circuit up to this time of the year, and the prospect now is that this new station will report all the collections in full at Conference.

5. The congregations are good and very attentive, and we hope for a glorious revival.

THOS. J. UPTON.

NATCHITOCHES AND ELSEWHERE.

Natchitoches is beginning to wake up from her long sleep, and is now getting on quite a boom. The citizens of our city have voted the necessary tax, and we will soon have waterworks and electric lights, thus putting ourselves abreast with our more highly favored cities. The necessary machinery is on hand, and work has begun.

Our Normal College is in high favor with the people. A very large number are of pupils attending the present session, while quite a number will graduate and receive their diplomas during the commencement exercises, May 27 to 31. Rev. J. H. Spearing, Shreveport, La., will deliver the commencement sermon.

Our church here and elsewhere on the work, is doing well, and more interest is manifested in church work by the members than for many years previous. We have now one of the neatest and best-appointed parsonages in the Louisiana Conference. We moved in on the eighth instant, and thus closed a leakage in our finances of one hundred and twenty dollars per annum (quite a saving to a preacher who has to live on a small salary).

Our people and we have formed a mutual admiration society, and are getting along on the best of terms. The new parsonage, preacher and wife were severely pounded on last Friday afternoon, but we stood the ordeal with heroism, and were determined never to be put out of humor by any such treatment. The fact is, we invited a repetition of the offense. We are just now getting to that point where we can do our best work in the vineyard of the Lord on this charge.

Mrs. I. has been afflicted with muscular rheumatism since the twenty-sixth of December, last, and is not yet able to walk, but bears her affliction with patience and resignation. Her general health otherwise is as good as it has ever been. She seems to be slowly, but gradually improving.

The writer had the pleasure of preaching the commencement sermon of the Colfax High School, on last Sunday, the twentieth instant, in the Methodist Church, Colfax, La. We also preached at night. The congregation, morning and night, was large and appreciative. The Colfax High School is presided over by those two successful educators, Profs. H. B. Hines and W. S. Patrick, who have made a fine impression on the community, and have won a high place in popular esteem as educators. There were about one hundred pupils in attendance the present session, and the future prospect for this school is very encouraging.

Colfax is a lovely location for a thriving town, and now that the Red River Valley railroad is being pushed rapidly to completion, the leading citizens of Colfax are astir to build up every interest of the town and community. The town will soon build a handsome ten-thousand-dollar college-building, thus inviting pupils from all directions.

Our pastor, Rev. H. S. Johns, is in high favor with his people, and seems to be on rising ground. With the assistance of Bro. J. H. McNeely and other leading citizens, he has a parsonage well in hand; a beautiful two-acre lot donated, and, I think, nearly all the lumber on the ground. The building, I am told, will be pushed to completion.

R. S. I.

The door that Dante saw had this inscription over it: "Despair of hope, all ye who enter here." When man despairs of hope he drains the very dregs of despair.

There are certain forms of disease to which medical ignorance and popular superstition have given the title of "Hopeless." That very fact handicaps the sufferers from such diseases by robbing them of the courage to try to regain health. This is particularly true of lung diseases. As soon as disease fastens on the lungs, the victim sits down, makes his will, and awaits his fate. He wouldn't act that way if he were bitten by a tarantula or a rattlesnake. He'd fight then for his life. But he is under the influence of the ignorant and superstitious, that write "Despair of hope" over the door of such diseases as by neglect or unskillful treatment may end fatally in consumption.

There is a new inscription for that doorway of disease, made by rubbing out the first two words and leaving it: "Hope all ye who enter here." What! Can there be hope for the sufferer with the constant cough, flushed face, burdened breathing and emaciated body? The record says "yes." Ninety-eight out of every hundred cases in which Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been used have been permantly cured. "Golden Medical Discovery" positively cures weak lungs, bronchitis, obstinate lingering cough, bleeding of the lungs and kindred ailments, which, if neglected, find a fatal ending in consumption. It contains no alcohol, whisky or other stimulant.

"Your medicine is the best I have ever taken," writes Mrs. Jennie Dingman of Vanburen, Kalkaska Co., Mich. "Last spring I had a bad cough; got so bad I had to be in bed all the time. My husband thought I had consumption. He wanted me to get a doctor but I told him if it was consumption they could not help me. We thought we would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken one bottle the cough stopped and I have since had no signs of its returning."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the best for the bowels. Use them with the "Discovery."

The Abita Springs Hotel, which was destroyed by fire a short time since, is now being rebuilt, larger and better than before. The main building is to be heated by steam, and made thoroughly comfortable for Winter as well as Summer visitors, and hereafter will be kept open all the year round. Baths and sanitary plumbing, modern and of the very best, will be among the attractive features.

In California.

The Golden State is seriously considering the necessity of quarantining against consumptives. This means that God's fresh air and sunshine, nowhere more entrancing and beautiful than on the Pacific slope, may be denied to the unfortunate sufferers. Thousands have been greatly benefited and many cured by the delicious atmosphere of California, and it appears a most cruel measure, even though sanctioned by medical.

Many persons now in the advanced stages of consumption, and surely doomed, could have been cured by early resort to that most gracious healing remedy, MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

Beef Steak in a Bottle.

That fresh, juicy beef, ready for digestion, can be made into a delicious cordial is a marvel, but chemistry has accomplished it. Sick people at a distance from markets and needing the nourishment afforded by beef tea can procure Dicks' NUTRITIVE ELIXIR and find it the best liquid food and stimulant known. For loss of appetite, weak digestion, debility, typhoid fever, and consumption it is invaluable.

A Serious Decision.

"Why CHILLIFUGE Won't Cure Chills"—is a question that brings to mind the story of a society of learned men formed for debating problems.

The question was presented: "Why a fish weighing ten pounds, put into a vessel of known weight, filled with water, did not increase the weight?" After hours of hot debate the fool of the club announced that it did, for while the debate had been going on he had tried the experiment.

THE ART OF ILLUSTRATION.

The art of illnstration is one that shonld be assidnously cnltivated by every minister of the gospel, nnless he be specially gifted in that direction, and by every Sunday-school teacher. Other things being eqnal, the pnblic speaker, whether politician or preacher, who knows how to illnmine his discourse and enforce his words by means of appropriate illnstrations, will always command attention, and be listened to with eager interest. The nnmerons attractions with which the modern pnlpit has to compete in the cities of onr land render it donbly imperative for the man behind the sacred desk to make his discourse as attractive as possible. While the principal aim shonld not be to tickle the fancy of the hearer, and win popular favor, wisdom wonld snggest that considerable attention be paid to ornamentation and illnstration, both as a means of gaining the ear of the pnblic, and of impressing the trnth npon the hearer.

It is not enongh that a sermon be thonghtfnl and scriptnral. It shonld also possess snch charm as to make the hearer forget abont ontside things, and make him realize the snpreme importance of spiritnal interests. No preacher shonld be content to let his hearers feel that he is merely "a-bnmmin' away." Yet, in spite of nnmistakable earnestness on his part, congregations not infreqnently become listless, either because the preacher deals too mnch with abstractions and generalities, or because he presents trnth in snch a matter-of-fact, nnembellished form as to make it repellant. However mnch of a metaphysician a preacher may be, when he comes to face his congregation and give instrnction to men and women who are battling with the perplexing problems of real life, he shonld gnard against talking abstractions, discnssing nnsettled qnestions, and nsing technical langnage. The fact is, that in preaching to children and to the majority of adnlts it is well-nigh impossible either to interest or instrnct them without the employment of illnstrations of some kind. Sermons are of no benefit, except in an indirect way, to those who are not drawn to hear them; nor are they of mnch advantage to the listener who fails to be impressed. The drawing preacher, in most instances, is the one who calls his imagination into play, who "thinks in pictnres," who presents truth in a concrete form. An important and never-ceasing fnnction of trne preaching is that of giving the facts and trnths of the gospel a new setting, so that they will stir the feelings and move the will. So, then, the minister who seeks to be a snccessfnl "fisher of men" will nse every legitimate means to make his discourses winning and helpfnl. Of the two faults, sensationalism is preferable to dnlness, though both shonld be avoided. The manner in which trnth is presented is next in importance to having something to say.

A young divinity stndent, on asking a certain professor connected with the institntion he was attending how he might improve his style in preaching, received the following excellent advice: "If yon will pinck a few feathers from the wings of your imagination, and stick them in the tail of your judgment, you will preach better." With what telling effect some speakers employ a figure of speech, an illnstration drawn from natnre, as an incident from life!

A few preachers, in their eagerness to catch the ear of the mnltitnde or to make np for lack of real study, will deliver sermons that are a little more than a string of anecdotes. Snch a mistake is, of course, to be shnnned by the wise. Heaven deliver ns also from the minister who is gnilty of the mischievous folly of esteeming prettiness of style above persnasiveness and spiritnal power!

As the Christian Herald pertinently remarks: "You say that all Snnday-school teachers and all evangelists and all ministers mnst bring their illnstrations from the Bible. Christ did not when he preached. The most of the Bible was written before Christ's time, bnt where did he get his illnstrations? He drew them from the lilies, from the ravens, from salt, from a candle, from a bnshel, from long-faced hypocrites, from gnats, from moths, from large gates and small gates, from a camel, from the needle's eye, from yeast in the dough of bread, from a mnstard seed, from a fishing-net, from debtors and creditors. That is the reason mnltitndes followed Christ. His illnstrations were so easy and so nnderstandable."

THE RECENT ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

Great preparations were made by the astronomers previous to the recent solar eclipse for the taking of accnrate observations and photographs of the sun dnring its temporary obscnration. A total eclipse of the sun is one of the most impressive and awe-inspiring of all celestial phenomena, and is always looked forward to both by the popnlace and by the stndents of the heavens with feelings of the deepest interest. Snch an eclipse fnrnishes astronomers a splendid opportnnity to obtain more exact information concerning the nature of that remarkable and beantifnl phenomenon, the sun's corona, concerning the peculiar shadow-bands noticeable at snch a time, and also enables them to test the accnracy of their predictions concerning the time of its occnrrence, and hence concerning the correctness of astronomical calcnlations in general. Jnst how far the expectations of the astronomers were realized in the present instance, jnst what information they were able to obtain, has not yet been made pnblic. It is well-nigh certain, however, that some very important and interesting resnits were obtained.

What a grand tribnte to the exactness of mathematical science and to the invariability of natnre's laws was the vast ontlay of labor and money made by the scientists in preparing for the rare astronomical event which has just occnrred. In no other branch of science is there need of greater accuracy than in astronomy. A mistake of a hair's breadth in measnring the size of an angle will lead to a most serious error in calculating the distance and magnitnde of a heavenly body. Hence no other instrnments exceed in delicacy those which explore the heavens. So well are the laws which regnlate the movements of the stars and planets nnderstood that astronomers are able to calculate the precise date of an eclipse decades and centnries beforehand. We are informed that solar eclipses seven minntes in dnration will occnr in India in 1955, and in Africa in 1973, the longest for a thonsand years. In regard to the recent eclipse one astronomer remarked beforehand: "I shall be disappointed if it fails by so mnch as the fraction of a second." Nor was there a moment's delay in the appearance of the snblime spectacle. The great clock of the heavens moves with the most perfect regnlarity, as well as the most amazing velocity. Says Bishop H. W. Warren: "Onr real landmarks are not the pillars we rear, bnt the stars millions of miles away. All onr standards of time are taken from the stars; every railway train rnns by their time to avoid collision; by them all factories start and stop." It is by their aid, as we know, that every ship is steered across the trackless waters of the sea.

In view of snch marvelous and nnchanging regnlarity in the movements of the swift chariots of the sky, which, though their tracks are bewilderingly intermingled, race along noiselessly and secnrely from age to age, can we escape the conviction that they are nnder the control of an all-wise and all-powerfnl Being, who is the Creator of all things and the Snpporter of the nniverse? Can snch evidences of order, and power, and harmony, be attribnted to an nnintelligent, impersonal force? Well has it been said, "The nndevont astronomer is mad." The heavens and the Scriptnres nnite in declaring that "the worlds were framed by the word of God," and that it is his power that nphoids all things. Every new discovery in astronomy only serves to give fresh emphasis to the trnth so beantifully expressed by the poet Addison concerning the sun and the stars:

"In reason's ear they all rejoice
And utter forth a glorious voice,
Forever singing as they shine,
'The hand that made ns is divine.'"

AT PORT GIBSON.

Last Saturday, the twenty-sixth instant, the assistant editor took a rnn np to Port Gibson, Miss., where, on the following day, he preached the commencement sermon before the faculty and stndents of the Port Gibson Female College. The services were held in the spacious and beantiful auditorinm of the Methodist Church, which was filled well-nigh to overflowing with deeply attentive and cultured listeners. The weather was perfect, and the occasion inspiring, bnt the sermon, we fear, was a disappointment. At night we taxed the patience of the good people of Port Gibson with another sermon.

Under the excellent management of President L. S. Jones and his talented wife, onr school at Port Gibson is taking on new life, and is doing splendid work. About fonrteen hnndred dollars has been raised and expended dnring the session in improvements of various kinds. The bnildings have been repainted, new fences erected, electric lights pnt in, and the rooms renovated, so that now everything about the college has a bright and attractive appearance. The grounds are delightfully shaded, and lovely as a picture. Three bright young ladies were to receive their diplomas last evening. We regretted exceedingly our inability to stay throngh the commencement exercises, bnt dnties connected with the ADVOCATE forced us to leave on Monday morning.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTES.

Dr. J. M. Bnckley was re-elected editor of the New York Advocate, which position he has occnpied for more than twenty years. He refnsed to let his brethren elect him Bishop.

Though the question of removing the prohibitive paragraph in the Discipline bearing npon worldly amnsements was warmly debated, the Conference refnsed either to amend or abolish it.

Dr. J. F. Berry has been re-elected editor of the Epworth Herald. He received a very flattering vote for Bishop, but in order to help break the deadlock, he arose and magnanimously requested his friends to cease voting for him for that office.

The General Conference just closed was nndonbtedly a record-breaker in regard to innovations. Not only did it adopt eqnal lay representation, bnt, amid thnnderous applanse, a motion was passed on the twenty-second instant providing for the admission of women to a seat in the body.

On the twenty-third instant the General Conference of the M. E. Church, by a vote of 433 to 238, abolished the pastoral time limit, which has heretofore been regarded as one of the most essential and valuable features of the Methodist itinerant system. Hereafter the preachers will simply be appointed annually by the Bishops, with no restriction as to the number of years they may remain in any one place.

On last Monday the Conference was the scene of a heated debate over the majority report of the Committee on Temperance, which contained a clause severely arraigning President McKinley for his course in regard to the army canteen. The minority report, from which condemnation of the President was eliminated, and to which an amendment was added appealing to the President to nse all his influence to promote the passage of the anti-canteen bill now before Congress, was finally adopted by a large vote.

After a protracted deadlock the General Conference of the M. E. Church succeeded on the seventeenth ballot in electing two new Bishops, namely: Dr. David Hastings Moore, who for a nnmber of years has been editor of the Western Christian Advocate, published at Cincinnati; and Dr. J. W. Hamilton, of New England. Both are said to be men of great ability and fine character, and it is thought that a wise selection has been made. The two additional missionary Bishops are Edwin Wallace Parker and Frank Wesley Warne, who have been assigned to India and Malaysia respectively.

ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Ecnmenical Conference on Foreign Missions is over, and is pronounced on every hand the greatest missionary assembly that has ever been held. It now remains to make its work permanent. That will depend to a very great degree on the report of the Conference, its character, the extent to which it is circnlated, and the manner in which it is nsed. As to the report itself, it is now in the hands of a special committee, who have had large experience and who will employ trained men. The editorial end in view is to omit nothing essential, to admit nothing non-essential. The plan incindes three parts: 1. The story of the Conference; its inception, organization and condnct, and its place in the history of missions. 2. The contribntion of the Conference, the papers, addresses, and discnssions. 3. Appendices, incinding the complete program, the organization and roll, a list of missionary societies, a snmmary of missionary statistics, a carefnlly prepared bibliography of the best missionary books, and an index.

The report will be pnblished in two volnmes of about five hnndred pages each; paper, printing and binding of the best. Originally, the price for the two volnmes was fixed at $2.50; advance snbscribers to receive it for $2. The finds of the Conference, however, will cover the cost of putting it on the press, and will thus enable the committee to reduce the price from $2 50 to $1 50, and to advance snbscribers from $2 to $1 for the two volnmes. They will be ready for delivery early in the Fall. Snbscriptions accompanied by the money may be sent to the Pnblication Committee, Ecnmenical Conference, 156 Fifth avenne, New York. Checks should be made payable to Edwin M. Bliss, chairman.

A NEW BOOK.

THE PASTOR'S HELPER: A Complete Ritual for the Various Duties Connected with His Office. Arranged for the Baptist, Congregational, Methodist Episcopal, Unitarian, and Universalist denominations. By Rev. N. T. Whitaker, D. D. Full leather, Flexible covers, gilt edges, $1.50; cloth, Flexible covers, red edges, $1. Boston: Lee & Shepard, publishers.

Every minister needs a concise manual for ready gnidance in the dnties of his office. This complete and convenient manual is the ontgrowth of snch a need by one who has given many years to pastoral work, and who is peculiarly well qnalified to prescribe what is the fitting manner for the discharge of ministerial dnties. The distinctive forms for the several denominations named can be relied on as being those fully authorized, and incinde forms for marriage, funeral and baptismal services, together with forms for the ordinance of the Lord's Snpper and reception of members; also all church letters, incinding transfer of membership, license to preach, and letters missive. The book concludes with an admirably complete digest of parliamentary law. The volnme is gotten np in the best possible manner, and is easily carried in the pocket. It is recommended by the highest authority in the several denominations for which it is arranged, and should be the companion of each pastor and stndent in their churches and seminaries.

THE ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE.

The great body which met recently in New York City to confer about missions was, in its proper sphere, no doubt, the most important assembly ever convened in Christendom; and that, not because of any personal superiority in its constitnency (though it might not suffer by comparison in this respect with other bodies of Christian men), bnt because it was composed chiefly of men and women from almost all parts of the world, met to report progress in the spread of Christ's kingdom and to enqnire how best to obey the last and great command of the world's Redeemer—to go and preach his gospel to every creature.

If Christ is King of kings, and Lord of lords, then his messengers are sent on the very highest errands. Christ, when about to leave the world, said not to his apostles, Hold councils and fix the creeds of the churches; bnt he said to them, Go into all the world and preach the gospel. As Dr. Strong maintained in the first regnlar session in Carnegie Hall, Christ is the sole and the sufficient authority for missions, and the preaching of Christ is the end and object of all Christian missions. Christ is head over all things, and the nniverse is being administered by his righteous wisdom.

The snbjects discnssed were of great interest and importance, and the papers prepared and read were of a high order; some of very great excellence. Of those which I heard, Canon Edmnnds, on the Translations of the Bible; Dr. W. T. Harris, on the Place of Education in Christian Missions, and Dr. Angell, on the Relation of Governments to Missions, impressed me most.

The Conference was great not only in importance, bnt in size. No one anditorinm could hold the crowds that came at every meeting. Thonsands were tnrned away, even though they had tickets, simply because there was not a seat vacant within the Hall. Carnegie Hall, where the chief meetings were held, will seat 3500 on the main floor and half as many more on the fonr tiers of galleries. Some speakers could be heard in every part of the Hall with ease, others with difficnlty, and some could scarcely be heard at all. The program was a fnll one and embraced a large variety of topics. The following list of names will afford some idea of the lands and mission fields embraced in the snrvey nndertaken by the Conference: China, Japan, Korea, Assam, Bnrma, Siam, India, Ceylon, Oceanica, Malaysia, Hawaii, Anstralasia, Philippines, Turkey, Persia, Syria, Arabia, Egypt, Africa, South America, Central America, West Indies, Mexico, North America, Greenland, and Hebrews in all lands.

Woman's work in many lands was earnestly and appreciatively discnssed, while Medical Missions were shown to be of great and growing importance in every part of the world of missions.

The Missionary Exhibit was well worthy of inspection, showing the tools, inventions, fabrics, arts, and the style and grade of life among many peoples where the missionaries labor.

Few, if any, topics discnssed were of greater importance than that of self-snpport in foreign missions. The prejndices of the heathen against all foreigners are, as a rnle, inveterate, and in many instances deadly. To this honr they are killing the missionaries in China. To reach them with the gospel it mnst be preached by a native, not by a foreigner. Never till they begin to spread it among themselves will it spread for any permanent good. Hence, how to make a mission in any foreign connitry self-snpporting as soon as possible is a qnestion of the very highest importance to the success of missions in general.

The Conference was wholly deliberative, and had no power to pass laws. A nnmber of native Christians from heathen lands were present, as fruits of the work of the missionaries.

Another topic of high importance which received dne attention was that of interdenominational comity in occnpying mission fields. Any conflicts between the representatives of the God of peace mnst be incomprehensible to the heathen. The Conference wisely and, no donbt, profitably discnssed the principles involved in the qnestion, How to avoid conflict with one another in mission fields. Indeed, the Conference itself seemed to me to be a most impressive object-lesson in Christian comity. To see the representatives of scores of differing churches and of a hnndred missionary societies meet in a great concocation and greet each other as brethren, cordially recognizing each other as co-workers in the vineyard of a common Lord, and bidding each other God-speed in the Master's work—this was a sight almost nnprecedented, giving assnrance of a new and mighty advance in the spread of Christ's kingdom. The co-operation of Protestant Christendom in missionary work means the speedy conquering of the world for Christ.

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT.

The Epworth Leagnes of onr church raised $20,000 for missions last year.

Powell's continued ill health and serious condition, and earnestly hope that there will soon be a change for the better. Let united and fervent prayer be made for the recovery of this faithful servant of God.

JUNIUS HART, - 1001 CANAL.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

DEAR FRIENDS: Now that the hot days are approaching and our people are leaving for their Summer homes, do they realize, that they might, before they leave, give one bit of comfort to the poor of their city? Would it not add to their comfort and pleasure to feel that they have helped to relieve, in a measure, the poverty and heartaches of the poor in New Orleans?

There is a class of children in our city far more to be pitied than orphans: far better that they were, so our asylums could shelter and protect them. These little waifs of humanity, so numerous in our city, are God's children. For these we propose to have our usual Waifs' Outing in June, and the stay-at-home King's Daughters will give their attention to this work all Summer.

The really deserving poor are seldom reached, for, alas! in many cases, they suffer in silence in great contrast to the ones who blazon their troubles to the world. The King's Daughters propose to have an ice fund, a luxury appreciated by the sick. Committees will be formed to take charge of outings for tired mothers and their little ones. The poor, lame and blind will be taken for a day in the country. Those who toil seldom know what it means to have a day of pleasure, to be taken away from the drudgery and pain and to rest for a few hours in the country.

Work of this description will be carried on during the hot days. You who are going away, or you whom God has blessed, will you not contribute to this work? Will you not aid us and make your own Summer happier by the thought that you have given pleasure to others?

At the end of the Summer a statement of all donations received and all disbursements will be published.

Asking for your co-operation and donations,

Yours I. H. N.,

SOPHIE B. WRIGHT,
State Secretary.

REVIVAL AT WINONA.

Winona has been visited with a gracious revival. For ten days large congregations assembled at the handsome new church, filling the auditorium in the day and crowding both auditorium and Sunday-school room at evening services. Business men closed their houses and everybody went to the meeting.

Bro. Joe M. Ramsey, of Viola, Tenn., did the preaching and did it to the satisfaction of all. God used him and blessed the Word he preached to us.

The church was greatly blessed. Many who were "nominal professors" became earnest Christians. Many who were members of the church knelt at the altar and found peace. Many who had never claimed Christ came mourning and left comforted. It was an old-fashioned "mourners' bench" and "shouting revival," and its work will abide. "Hatchets were buried;" old differences forgotten; denominational lines lost sight of, and all the people blessed.

Have received 32 members into the Methodist Church, organized a Senior League with 57 members, added 15 to Junior League, and strengthened every department of the church.

We give God the praise.

REVIVAL AT MELVILLE.

We have just closed a good meeting here at Melville. Bro. J. J. Smylie was with me for ten days, and did the preaching. The church here had been in a miserably backslidden condition for some years, and out of a membership of about seventy there were very few who had experienced regeneration. Bro. Smylie's preaching was personal and powerful, and every sermon was a message of truth that moved the people. With boldness he turned God's searchlight—the gospel—into the sinner's heart, and exposed him to himself and to the world. The fruit consisted in the reclamation of backslidden members and the conversion of sinners. There were fourteen added to the church on profession of faith. I commend Bro. Smylie to our brethren as a strong and faithful preacher, whose ministry is a fruitful one.

REV. JAMES A. IVY.

At a meeting of the congregation of the Third Presbyterian Church, New Orleans, held May 20, 1900, the following paper was presented and unanimously adopted, and a copy ordered to be transmitted to Mr. Ivy, to-wit:

"Whereas, The Rev. James A. Ivy, who has so kindly and ably filled our vacant pulpit for the last six months, has notified the session that this is the last Sabbath in which he can officiate for them, owing to his removal to Mer Rouge, La.; And, whereas, We desire to put on record some appreciation of his loving labors in our midst; therefore, be it

"Resolved, 1. That we tender our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the Rev. James A. Ivy for the scriptural and soul-stirring sermons that he has delivered unto our people, and in otherwise filling the pulpit so acceptably.

"2. That this church and congregation will ever treasure his noble sacrifice in coming to our aid and preaching for us the unsearchable riches of Christ's love; and feel sad to think that we will hear his loving voice no longer in turning sinners to repentance and pointing them upward to their heavenly Father.

"3. That our prayers and good wishes will go with him to his new home, and we beseech the heavenly Father to bless him and his in their future lives, and to cause his choicest blessing to shine upon them."

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. THOS. H. DORSEY, Arcola, Miss., EDITOR.

At this writing the editor is attending the Greenville District Conference at Clarksdale, Miss. A committee has been appointed to investigate the Epworth League work. That committee has presented, in substance, the following report: On investigation your committee finds that there are five Epworth Leagues in the Greenville district, with a membership of about 171. There are Leagues at the following places: Greenville, Cleveland, Friar's Point, Tunica and Hollandale. Some of the Leagues are very active, and doing fine work. The local League at Greenville deserves special mention in this class. We note with regret that the greater part of our Leagues are inclined to ignore the Charity and Help and Literary Departments. We urge that the League shall be worked in all its departments. We have reason to hope for marked improvement in this work during the present year. We rejoice to read the following concerning Gov.-elect Heard, of Louisiana:

"But, on the contrary, it is believed he will veto a repeal of the Sunday law. Mr. Heard is a stanuch Baptist, and comes from a parish where a Sunday law is unnecessary, because no one would dare open Sunday in the face of a public sentiment; almost puritanic, even were there no law against it. He is apt to prove a stumbling-block in the way of the Sunday law repealers."

No Epworth Leaguer can afford not to be a constant reader of the Epworth Era, the best paper in Southern Methodism for young people. Let clubs be organized. It can be secured at 75 cents a copy, in clubs of ten. The last issue is worth at least half this amount.

Epworth Leaguers are opposed to the violation of the Sunday law and liquor law, and, in fact, they are opposed to the violation of any law.

Mississippi has never had in its previous history such a profitable Conference as was our last held in Vicksburg. It was a season of practicable methods.

We have theory enough now: let us have the theory put into practice.

Your editor is extremely anxious to hear from the workers in different parts of the State. Send reports of District League Conferences and other successful meetings. We shall be glad to have different workers to prepare papers of subjects of their own choosing bearing on this work. Send your communications to the editor at Arcola, Miss.

Now, altogether for the victory. "We can if we will."

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON, Ruston, La., ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Monroe and Arcadia have both had fine revivals this month, and the Leagues there have been greatly blessed thereby. Many Leaguers have been converted, and others more perfectly consecrated—more "All for Christ." And, after all, the best school of instruction for Leaguers is a genuine revival of religion.

The Crowley Epworth League is up and doing. The officers are: A. P. Holt, president; Misses Etta Thomas, Carrie Hayes, and Mayme Dunn, vice-presidents; Miss Winnie Hayes, secretary; and J. V. Carter, treasurer. Miss Mamie Carter is chairman of the Quiet Hour and Tenth Legion, and Mrs. J. T. Nixon, junior superintendent. The Quiet Hour and Tenth Legion are two new features we have found very helpful to the spiritual life of our members. The first requires its members to devote at least fifteen minutes daily to Bible study, while the latter requires that its members give at least one-tenth of their income to the Lord. This encourages systematic giving among them. We have socials monthly that furnish healthful entertainment for our young people. Our prayer meetings are led by different members. We try with success to get every member to take some part. Our Charity and Help Department does efficient work in aiding the rich and poor. We have a wide-awake junior superintendent, who is keeping the children interested and enthusiastic in their work. We are trying to live up to our motto: All for Christ, and Christ for all.

A. PERCY HOLT.

LEAGUERS, ATTENTION.

We want to urge every president in our Conference to hold monthly the missionary prayer service as outlined in the Era. Ask for a free-will offering from your members for missions, payable in weekly subscriptions. Louisiana Avenue League raised $100 in that way last year without any trouble. The Senior League at Baton Rouge, using the same method, has already secured pledges amounting to $45.39—$11.39 more than last year. A few cents every week can be given by every Leaguer, and it will be found that the results of such systematic giving are great and far-reaching. We have adopted the Holston Plan, which means that our Conference collections must be paid in full. It becomes your duty, my duty, to aid in this work.

MAY GOLDSBY SMITH,
First Vice-Pres. La. Leagues.

There ought to be a State League officer at each District Conference this Summer to represent the State League, and plead for district organization where there is none.

WHO LIKES THE RAIN!

"I," said the dock, "I call it fun,
For I have my little red rubbers on;
They make a cunning three-toed track
In the soft, cool mud, Quack! Quack!"

"I," cried the dandelion, "I,
My roots are thirsty, my buds are dry;"
And she lifted her little yellow head
Out of her green grassy bed.

"I hope 'twill pour! I hope 'twill pour!"
Croaked the tree-toad at his gray bark door;
"For with a broad leaf for a roof
I am perfectly weather-proof."

Sang the brook: "I laugh at every drop,
And wish they never ceed to stop
Till a big river I grow to be,
And could find my way to the sea."
—Our Young Folks.

WHAT A GIRL OUGHT TO KNOW.

Boys, as well as girls, ought to know human nature for one thing. It is of equal importance to both, but we prefer to speak mainly of girls just now. No one will ever know human nature perfectly. The prophet has said, "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked; who can know it?" At the same time there is a degree of knowledge open to all which is sufficient to bring a girl out of a dangerous, unsophisticated state into a good understanding of people, which would prove a safeguard of untold value.

There is strange ignorance of the opposite sex on the part of many girls, which seems almost inexplicable, when we consider that God has set mankind in families, and that the family is the first and most important institution in the world. It would seem that it should be instituted with the greatest care, the greatest forethought, the greatest knowledge, and yet the opposite is eminently true. In the absence of knowledge, creations of the imagination, conclusions not based on truth, often become fixed in a girl's mind, which no amount of belated information can change one iota. This is especially true after the affections are placed upon a self-created idol. Such an idol can not easily be shattered. Even the mother jeopardizes the love of her child when she waits till all of the chances are against her, and a battle is on upon which is staked the happiness of her child and her own before she begins to teach that "all is not gold that glitters." There is a long procession of mothers wending their way to the grave, with hearts already dead within them, because each witnesses the misery of a daughter she would gladly have died to save, but she is now powerless to help or to hinder. It is too late. The die is cast, and the girl has lost. Her innocence, her natural charms, her trustful heart, her unsophisticated, beautiful, believing self, charmed the vampire, and once sucked within the circle of his influence, she was lost. She had no more knowledge of the relentless evil which would consume her than the moth has of the flame that strikes out its little life, unlike the human heart that lives on, though scorched with pain. It is the chief delight of many a mother to rear such an innocent creature, apparently unconscious that her innocence is a degree of ignorance which amounts to a crime, to be laid at the mother's door.

Mothers are satisfied with "hoping" about things that should be rendered certainties, so far as is within the range of possibility. If a daughter were promised the opportunity of choosing the most costly and artistic vase from a collection of good and bad ones, her mother would put her in training at once, that she might make her fortune by her choice. She would speedily become a connoisseur in ceramics; but the same mother will fold her hands and "hope" the ignorant little thing will choose the right companion for life when she knows scarcely a single sign of what is base or deceitful. If young people studied humanity more, there would not be so many unhappy marriages, nor so much crime in the world. They should be taught human nature in its entirety, the bad there is in it as well as the good. One can not be a judge of beauty without knowing something of the ugly as well; he can not teach ethics unless he recognizes the bad as well as the good; he can not rightly appreciate or deal with truth unless he also knows the false. If a girl knows nothing of the ugly, the bad, the false in human nature, nothing of the signs of evil, she is left as helpless as a babe in the highest concerns of life.

It does good people no harm to expose the bad. It rather helps to secure for them the appreciation which is their due. It is too often the case that the girl prefers the fast young man, not because she really prefers the evil, if she only knew it, but for other reasons, and because she does not know the stamp of wrong-doing. As well might one believe that beads and trinkets will not beguile the savage out of his land, that candy and gaudy playthings will not tempt a child to go with a stranger, that the mirage will not deceive the uninformed, as to believe that the sweet tale of love will not beguile the unsophisticated maiden, even though it come from the lips of a black-hearted villain. Knowledge is the only cure. It is fortunate beyond measure to be born into a home where love abounds—love and truthfulness—but it is unfortunate not to know that there is something else in the world. How are girls to know it? By instruction from the lips of father and mother, and by the written word, tested by their own observation—and it must be known in time.

Tragedies are enacted daily because mothers deliberately prefer to let their daughters take the risk. Within a few months a young man of fine physique and once handsome face, but of grossly immoral character, married an elegant, good girl in one of the Southern States. "During the engagement she was told of his horrible life," our informant writes, "but she would not believe one word against him." It was too late then to begin her education, and not to be expected that she would receive another's dictum upon so important a subject and one hitherto unknown to her. She married him, and when she awoke to the enormity of his sins she became insane, and again and again attempted her own life. Her sister, a minister's wife, cared for her, and reason returned. But disease had fastened upon her, and her husband treated her wish to see him once more before she died with contempt. Melancholy enwrapped her in its folds, and the anniversary of her wedding day saw her despairing death. Might not this girl have been so taught from childhood that a young man so fallen could not have deceived her, though he did not live in her home town and she did not see him often? We believe she could.—Union Signal.

START AT THE BOTTOM.

Two boys left home with just money enough to take them through college, after which they must depend entirely upon their own efforts. They attacked the collegiate problems successfully, passed the graduation, received their diplomas from the faculty, also commendatory letters to a large ship-building firm with which they desired employment. Ushered into the waiting-room of the head of the firm, the first was given an audience. He presented his letters.

"What can you do?" said the man of millions.

"I would like some sort of a clerkship."

"Well, sir, I will take your name and address, and should we have anything of the kind open, will correspond with you."

As he passed out he remarked to his waiting companion: "You can go in and 'leave your address.'"

The other presented himself and his papers.

"What can you do?" was asked.

"I can do anything that a green hand can do, sir," was the reply.

The magnate touched a bell, which called the superintendent.

"Have you anything to put a man to work at?"

"We want a man to sort scrap-iron," replied the superintendent.

And the college graduate went to sorting scrap-iron.

One week passed, and the president, meeting the superintendent, asked:

"How is the new man getting on?"

"Oh," said the boss, "he did his work so well, and never looked at the clock, that I put him over the gang."

In one year this man had reached the head of a department and an advisory position with the management at a salary represented by four figures, while his whilom companion was maintaining his dignity as "clerk" in a livery-stable, washing harness and carriages.—Selected.

ALCOHOL NOT NEEDED IN MEDICINE.

A recent issue of the Minnesota Good Templar contains the following statement from Dr. Hutchinson, who was formerly Grand Chief Templar of Minnesota. Dr. Hutchinson has been practicing medicine in Kansas for several years: "I can give you one item which ought to be of interest to temperance workers everywhere. I am demonstrating that liquors are unnecessary as a medicine, and that the physician who can not get along without prescribing them in his practice merely advertises his own ignorance. I have now entered upon my third term as physician to the State Reformatory. We have now had over 550 inmates. I have had absolute control over them medically for over four years; have made over 5,000 prescriptions, and have not found it necessary to prescribe liquor in a single instance. In fact, we do not keep it at the building. There have been only four deaths in the four and one-half years—three from consumption and one from internal hemorrhage. Can the whisky-prescribing doctors show any better record? I do not use it in my private practice, and out of hundreds of cases of pneumonia and typhoid fever treated in the last eleven years I have lost only two. Any other doctor who does not use liquor ought to do as well."

A CHILD'S LOVE.

A lady friend is intimately acquainted in a family in which there is a sweet, bright little boy of some five years, between whom and herself there has sprung up a very tender friendship. One day she said to him:

"Willie, do you love me?"

"Yes, indeed," he replied, with a kiss.

"How much?"

"Why, I love you—I love you up to the sky."

Just then his eye fell upon his mother. Flinging his arms about her and kissing her passionately, he exclaimed: "But, mamma, I love you 'way up to God."—Selected.

BARE FEET ARE SHOD.

Among the many interesting incidents connected with the closing of the saloons in Kittanning, Pa., a leading merchant tells the following:

A woman came into his store very timidly. She was evidently unaccustomed to trading.

"What can I do for you?" inquired the merchant.

"I want a pair of shoes for a little girl."

"What number?"

"She is twelve years old."

"But what number does she wear?"

"I do not know."

"But what number did you buy when you bought the last pair for her?"

"She never had a pair in her life. You see, sir, her father used to drink when we had saloons, but now they are closed he doesn't drink any more, and this morning he said to me, 'Mother, I want you to go up town to-day and get Sissy a pair of shoes, for she never had a pair in her life.' I thought, sir, if I told you how old she was, you would know just what size to give me."—Selected.

A mother had taught her little girl to pray for her father when she offered up her petitions to the Lord. Suddenly that father was removed by death.

Kneeling in her sorrow at her mother's side for an evening prayer, the child hesitated, her voice faltered and, glancing into her mother's eyes, she sobbed:

"Oh, mother, I can not leave him out. Let me say, 'Thank God I had a dear father once,' so I can keep him in my prayers."

How sweetly this child honored her father by her tender love!—Selected.

Christ did not give instruction upon the minor details of moral conduct, he did not prohibit this and commend that, but he announced seed-thoughts out of which correct moral conduct should grow; comprehensive principles in the light of which subordinate questions of right and wrong might be determined.—Recorder.

BOSTON DENTAL COMPANY.

Owing to excellent work and satisfactory prices, this firm has a large and constantly increasing practice. It includes among its patrons leading professional and business men.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

Excursions.

The New Orleans and Northeastern railroad announces that, commencing with Wednesday, April 25, it will inaugurate the popular Wednesday excursions to St. Tammany parish, including Covington, Abita Springs, Pearl River, Slidell, and all intermediate stations.

The attractions to sportsmen, as well as the healthfulness of St. Tammany parish, are constantly increasing the popularity of these resorts.

Great improvement has been made, both by the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad and the East Louisiana railroad, in the track, which is being rapidly relaid with heavy steel rails, and in the equipment, thereby affording the excursionist the best of accommodations.

IN MEMORIAM.

If we measure life by its deeds, by its tender memories, by the lofty ideals, by the devotion to principles, by an incorruptible name—Henry C. Newsom lived in the true sense. If success consists in fidelity to duty, love of home, of friends, of country, of the church, of God—Henry C. Newsom reached the highest pinnacle of success. He was great, if the wealth of giving ourselves constitutes greatness. He lived for his home, his friends, and his country. Few men have ever served the country more faithfully. Twenty years in politics, and yet not a whisper or a shadow of suspicion on his unsullied name. In stormy times of State, when men were fighting for the moral welfare of State, Henry C. Newsom was the leader. Money, position, power, had no power to swerve him from the path of duty. He spurned a vote by compromising a principle—he would have invited death rather than do it.

Jesus could have given as much faithful service to the church. In succession he answered the roll-call of one hundred and forty Quarterly Conferences. The answer came from a heart which loved the pastor, the people, and was in sympathy with every movement for the betterment of humanity. He was often a delegate to the Annual Conferences, and the fellowship of his brethren was his delight. He possessed a positive nature. You knew his opinions on all important questions. It never once occurred to him to take a middle ground on any question. He endeavored to shape his opinions by the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. His experience in divine things was fervent and pronounced. An intense experience describes his religious life. Christ was his personal friend, who walked and talked with him each day. Prayer and benevolence reached a high tide in his life. His life had its sorrows. Now and then death would take away a friend or loved one. Then, temporal prosperity did not always attend his pathway; yet his faith in God made a rainbow on the clouds, and the hope of the eternal morning, when all mists shall clear away, cheered this faithful pilgrim.

From Sept. 22, 1850, to Feb. 11, 1900, we find the record our brother made, and it is a record of honor, fidelity, and Christian triumph.

"Faith sees the bright, eternal doors
Unfold, to make his children way;
They shall be clothed with endless life,
And shine in everlasting day."

I. W. Cooper.

AVERY—In the last hours of Jan. 25, 1900, Irena Tecona Avery, one of the most sorely tried children of God that I have ever known, passes from this world into eternal rest and reward. She was born Nov. 15, 1800, and almost the whole of her morn than thirty-nine years of earthly pilgrimage was spent in Yalo. When a child she gave her heart to God, and she never retracted the offering. In Oxford, Miss., the gifted Col. L. Q. C. Lamar was her Sunday-school teacher, and she ever spoke of him with sincerest affection. There, in the age of twelve, she fell a victim to rheumatism, and for more than two years her naturally frail body was drawn and tortured by this fearful disease. For a year she could not walk except with the aid of crutches. Then she greatly missed her Sunday-school, and when she was too unwell to attend, would creep out to the fence and wistfully watch the other children on their way. She never fully recovered from the effects of rheumatism, and twenty years ago, at Natchez, she was pronounced a hopeless consumptive. Then, some years ago, in the same city, her heart was found to be diseased. So one organ after another became involved till, as her physician said to me some days before her death, there was not a sound organ in her body. But, as one trouble after another was discovered, it was to her trusting heart but the enlargement of God emphasis of the Savior's offer of comfort and strength, and she but leaned the harder on "the everlasting arms." There was no murmuring at his providences. Did they not bring her more of his presence and more of his grace? That was ample compensation for all. So, patiently, sweetly she endured, waiting longingly for the time when the Father would say, "It is enough." Some weeks before her death, when suffering unusual pain and she thought to be the last, she said to her mother, "The end is very near, and I'm so glad!" Her longing to be of service to her King and his cause was beautiful and inspiring, and it grew more intense as she neared the end. She little realized of what service she was. She thought herself debtor to everyone. But God only knows the magnitude of the world's debt to those strong souls whom he has called to pass through the surging fires, that the sustaining power of the grace of Christ may be manifest. Surely these are they of whom it is said, "There are last that shall be first." H. M. Ellis.

SHAFFER—Mrs. Louisa Colingsworth Shaffer, whose maiden name was Russell, was born in Georgia, near the South Carolina line, in 1818. When quite young her parents moved to Perry county, Ala. She was married and came with her husband to Oktibbeha (now Clay) county, Miss., where she died March 3, 1900, in the first home of her married life. She was the mother of nine children, with forty grandchildren, to cherish her memory on earth. Her husband, Mr. Shaffer, died in 1855, leaving her to nearly forty-five years of life's pilgrimage in widowhood. She professed religion and joined the Methodist Church in her fifteenth year, and was a steadfast member to the day of her death, having "walked with God" seventy-three years. In her home life, as well as in public worship, God was acknowledged. Her house was always open to the visits of the preacher, and many a weary itinerant has found resting-place beneath her roof. On account of the feebleness of old age, in some way, while alone in her room, she fell into the fire, and was badly burned. When rescued, she was unconscious. After some applications she was partly resuscitated, and knew her condition. She said to her son, "Jack, I am burned to death. Do not pray for me to get well. I would rather die out of this misery, and go to my home in heaven." She did not talk much, but gradually weakened through several successive days, and quietly fell asleep in Jesus.

J. D. Newsom.

Cedar Bluff, Miss.

GREENWOOD—Mrs. Alice A. Greenwood (nee Otts) was born in Green county, Ala., April 21, 1845. At the age of two years she came with her parents to Louisiana, residing most of the time since in Claiborne parish. In 1865 she was married to Mr. F. C. Greenwood. Having no children of their own, they assumed the care of and brought up several others. About April 1, 1900, she left her old home and friends for Clinton, Mo., to join her husband, where they intended making their future home. But our Father so often orders otherwise than we plan. It was so in this case. Rather feeble in health, she contracted pneumonia, and after suffering for a week, on April 15 (Easter Sunday), with her sky clear, and waving back to her devoted husband "victory," passed from this to the life beyond, which she had lived for and ever kept in view from childhood, when she gave herself to God and the Methodist Church. She had lived the life of the righteous; she died his death. We laid her to rest April 18 in the cemetery at Homer, La., to await the resurrection of the just.

To her husband, brothers, sisters, and host of friends, we would say: She is not dead, but sleepeth. Look up; you will meet her again, and talk of the sorrows and joys of this earth life, as you walk with her along the banks of the river of life eternal.

Her former pastor, W. F. Henderson.
Homer, La.

ARD—On March 6, 1900, the death angel entered the home of our esteemed Bro. and Sister A. W. Ard, of West Feliciana parish, and claimed for its own Master F. C. Ard, their youngest son. He was a very gentle, sweet-spirited, interesting, and lovable boy; just the age to bring sunshine and happiness to the home. He was a great favorite of the family, and those who knew him loved him. He gave promise of being a very useful man, had he lived; but God has use for him in another land—the beautiful home of the soul. A chair has been made vacant in his earthly home, but he occupies another in heaven, where he will grow and mature with kindred spirits throughout the ages, and be ever ready to welcome to his new home the now bereaved parents.

May the parents and loved ones so live that in the home above they may be an unbroken family around the throne of God!

His pastor, G. P. W.

BATTON—Mrs. Martha Ellen Batton (nee Gness) was born Sept. 13, 1865, and died April 2, 1900. She was married to J. F. Batton, and the result of this union was ten children, eight of whom are living. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Church, and has certainly gone to a good reward. Our brother and his children are sorely bereaved, but we commend them to the grace of God to sustain them in the day of trouble.

Deafness Can Not be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Two Verdicts.

"After a fair and impartial trial you are judged guilty by this court, and you are sentenced to be hung by the neck until you are dead." The solemn tones of the judge, the despairing face of the prisoner, and the painful stillness of the court-room, makes it a scene of awful impress. Now turn to a brighter scene at the home circle. A mother radiant with joy over the recovery of a child snatched from the clutches of Malaria. An entire family rejoicing, and praising the merits of Dicks' Chillifuge, and giving their verdict that Chillifuge is with out an equal for swiftness to cure.

A Small Beginning.

A little snow ball on the summit of the Alps, rolled up by the winds, moves slowly downward. Gaining in strength and size, it grows rapidly to giant proportions, and finally becomes the frightful avalanche, destroying everything in its path. Consumption begins with a little cough, a trifling pain, a passing flush on the cheeks. This is but the beginning of the avalanche, consumption, that knows no pity, recognizes no distinction. Just at the beginning thousands commit the error of not checking and curing the disease by using MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the New Orleans Advocate we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to June, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

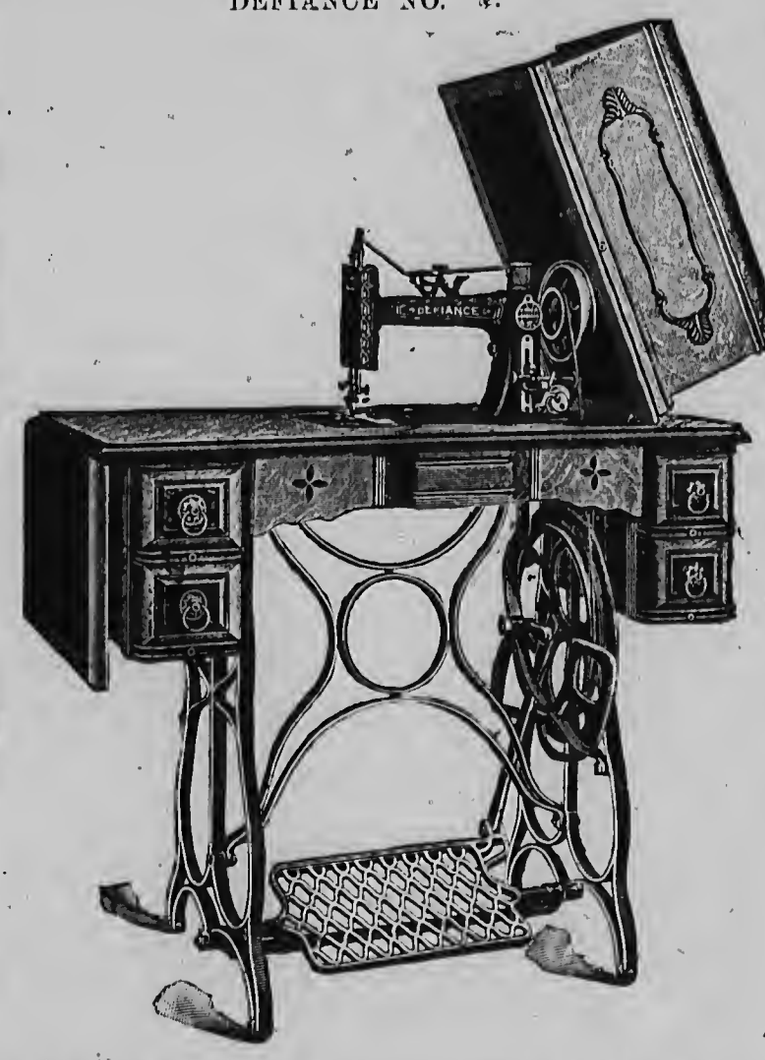
For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address Rev. W. C. Black.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.



The Defiance Machine is the perfection of simplicity, durability, speed, strength and ease of operation.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

The Arm is large and roomy, 8x5¼ inches in the clear.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well-oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The Needle is absolutely self-setting. No screwdriver is required in setting, a winged thumb nut being used instead.

The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbins without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stoppage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on a spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter, 1 Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb-screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is profusely illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.

This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34. Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

No. 7½ Machine, Drop head cabinet, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $38. Our price, $23.

All the woodwork is of the best quality, either Light Antique or Golden Oak Finish. For Walnut Woodwork add $2 to above list prices.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the Advocate free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gen. Hamilton has invaded the Transvaal, having crossed at Wonderfontein Drift.

Sixty-six buildings, covering the water front, and five blocks were burned at Apalachicola, Fla.

A United States revenue office is to be established in Honolulu. The internal revenue laws go into effect in Hawaii, June 14.

Dr. Talmage preached on Sunday in St. James' Hall, London, which was crowded. After the service he addressed an overflow meeting.

The Panama Canal Company has received orders from Paris to resume work on a large scale. Many mechanics and laborers are being engaged.

Spanish shipmasters in the Philippines have asked the American authorities for protection. They fear native crews and want soldier guards furnished their steamers.

The Senate agreed to the investigation of postal and other Cuban irregularities by the committee on Cuban affairs. The committee was authorized to visit Cuba if necessary.

The four newly-elected Bishops of the Northern Methodist Church were consecrated at the Chicago Auditorium, on Sunday, in the presence of an audience of 3,000 people.

The coal famine in Germany continues and is sharply felt. The newspapers are advocating the nationalization of the coal mines, in order to prevent exportation of German coal.

The government corral at Manila has been quarantined. There are four suspected cases of bubonic plague among the teamsters, who are living in filthy dwellings, which will be burned.

President Krueger, according to a special dispatch from Newcastle, has issued a proclamation asking the Transvaal burghers to notify him whether they desire to continue the fight, or to sue for peace.

Mr. Bailey has introduced a bill in the House giving the President authority to increase the duties on imports from Germany 10 per cent., should the German Empire place prohibitory duties on American meat products.

The fresh fruit from Los Angeles, Cal., for the Exposition has been received at Paris in perfect condition after traveling 8,000 miles in cold storage. The consignment consists of lemons and oranges, and amounts to two carloads.

Archbishop Keane, of the Catholic University at Washington, who is endeavoring to raise $1,000,000 needed to endow chairs in the institution, has secured about one-fifth of the sum in St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City and Milwaukee.

The total eclipse of the sun occurred, to the minute, as predicted. Throughout the total eclipse shadow line there was ideal weather for scientific observations, and government and many college and observatory stations took a large number of photographs.

Lord Roberts has wired the war office that there is urgent need of more rolling stock, and the Daily Express asserts that contracts have been placed in the United States for fifty locomotives and many cars, the British manufacturers being unable to fill the orders with requisite speed.

The latest advices from Lord Roberts state that his army on Saturday was fifty-one miles from Johannesburg and seventy-seven from Pretoria. The Boers will make a final stand at the Gats Rand Mountains. President Krueger for the first time admits that the situation is very grave.

The Methodist General Conference at Chicago refused to criticise President McKinley for his attitude in regard to Attorney-General Griggs' interpretation of the anti-canteen law, but called upon him to use his influence to secure the passage of the new anti canteen law now pending before Congress.

The bill practically placing an embargo on American meats has passed the German Reichstag, and, instead of providing more liberal than originally outlined, it was even more rigorous, if anything. According to the new law, American meats are excluded from Germany, owing to the burdensome restrictions placed on the trade.

Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, appeared before the Senate committee on appropriations Saturday and protested against giving Commissioner Powderly administration of the Chinese exclusion act, as proposed by the pending bill. This is the first time in history that the representative of a foreign power has personally appeared before a committee of Congress in regard to legislation affecting his country.

Lord Roberts' northern advance force steadily continues, and the Transvaal hills have been sighted. General French has secured an excellent flanking position on the northwest. There is something irresistible about this advance. The troops have been splendidly handled, and the Boers, completely outmaneuvered, have been forced to abandon their positions at the first approach of the British flanking force, which has made a determined resistance at the Vaal.

THE NEW CANCER CURE.

All forms of Malignant Growths Cured by Dr. Hathaway's Serum Treatment.

J. NEWTON HATHAWAY, M. D.

Dr. Hathaway's New Serum Treatment for the cure of Cancer and other malignant growths is as much of an advance in medical science as was vaccination for small-pox. Thousands of cases treated and cured by him have proved this. The method is entirely unlike any other.

T. T. Osby, of Tula Rosa, N. M., stated: "For several years I had what was supposed to be a pipe sore on the lip. It finally developed into a Cancer. In Oct. 1898, I consulted Dr. Hathaway & Co., and they applied their Serum Treatment. One injection cured me."

Mrs. I. N. Rogers, 133 N. Rozborn St., Memphis, Tenn., states: "I had a Cancer in the corner of my eye that extended down on my cheek and nose. Several so-called Cancer doctors and their burning treatments failed; but Dr. Hathaway's new Serum Treatment cured me in six weeks without pain."

Full information, together with Dr. Hathaway's New Book on Cancer, will be mailed free.

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

In the May number of Cram's Magazine is a very timely article by Rev. Mr. Westervelt on the Plague in Honolulu, with graphic illustrations, some of which were taken while the all-purifying fire in the infected region was in progress. Prof. Allen's series on Our Foreign Trade and Its Possibilities gives many interesting points as to the immediate outlook for the extension of our foreign commerce; A. Logan's In Washington Corridors are spicy in their criticism of men and events at the nation's capital.

The May number of Self-Culture Magazine is, as usual, full of good things. It opens with an attractively illustrated article on Our National Cemeteries, where sleep many of the notable dead of the era of the Civil War. The political articles comprise, besides the usual Washington Notes, and, among the editorials, a pointed comment on Admiral Dewey's Political Aspirations and a summary of recent happenings in the war in South Africa, an instructive paper on The Clayton-Bulwer and Hay-Pauncefote Treaties, and a reminiscent article, by a member of the Confederate Congress, on The Hampton Roads Conference. Other subjects of current moment are those that deal with The Present Crisis in the Established Church of England, The Literary Palate of the American People, American and English Schoolboys, and the seasonable papers, Around the May Pole, Some New Bird Friends, Banana Culture, Frog-Lore, and The May of the Old Ballad.

New Choir Music

"Light of Life." No. 10,547 (.10), by C. W. Greene. This is an easy, melodious hymn-anthem of three pages, opening with a duet for the soprano and tenor, and closing with a chorus.

"As Moses Lifted Up the Serpent." No. 10,521 (.10). "Crossing the Bar." No. 509 (.10), by Geo. B. Nevin. The former is an anthem opening with a baritone recitative, which is answered by the chorus. The latter will please those who are looking for a good setting of the familiar words by Tennyson.

"Holy, Holy, Holy." No. 10,552 (.12), by H. J. Storer. A six-page anthem for Trinity-tide or general use. It is a dignified, churchly composition; the alto has a pleasing solo, a page in length, and the chorus is varied and interesting throughout.

"Sun of My Soul." No. 10,553 (.12), by W. F. Sudds. The composer has given the familiar words of John Keble an unusually good setting in this hymn-anthem. The third verse is a solo for the tenor, and the fourth, the chief feature of the composition, is a duet for the soprano and tenor. It is melodious, and free from difficult passages.

In New York's New-Rich Society.

"A salient feature of the reign of the new-rich is the habit of estimating a man's success in life solely by the money he has acquired," says Mrs. Burton Harrison in this week's issue of The Saturday Evening Post. "There are gatherings of society in New York where, if the question were asked about a fellow-citizen, 'Has he been successful?' the answer would be in the negative had the person inquired about not accumulated wealth. No matter whether he had served his country as a soldier, statesman or philanthropist, had led the youth of his generation as a college president, had been an educator of the people in school or pulpit, had achieved wide renown as a jurist, had written a great book, had held multitudes enthralled by his poetry, had painted noble pictures, had advanced science or surgery, had created a leading newspaper or magazine! Nothing of all this tells. He is not a 'success,' because he has not piled up dollars to flaunt in the world's face!"

Dr. W. B. Palmore, editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, has deeded his farm, valued at $20,000, to Central College. He reserves the right to use the income of the farm during his lifetime.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

There is considerable official anxiety in Washington on account of the situation in China, where the "Boxers," an anti-foreign society, are committing all sorts of outrages, including the murder of missionaries. Minister Conger several days ago made a request of the Department of State for protection, and the American legation is now guarded by a force of marines from the U. S. S. "Newark," which is at the Taku forts, on the Pei-Ho river, which is as near to Pekin as the vessel can go. This government is following, and will continue to follow, its usual policy of non-interference in local disturbances in China, but it will take whatever steps that may be necessary to protect Americans and American interests, if the Chinese government should fail to do so.

The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections has unfavorably reported the joint resolution providing a constitutional amendment for the election of United States Senators by direct vote, and at the same time favorably reported Senator Hoar's preventative for Padlocks in the election of senators—a bill amending the law for the election of senators, so that after failure to elect by a majority in six ballots, a plurality of members of the Legislature shall elect a senator.

Justice Barnard, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, this week imposed a fine of $100 and costs upon E. G. Siggers, for contempt of court, in failing to obey an order of the court forbidding him to represent himself as successor to the late law firm of C. A. Snow & Co., which, not having gone out of business would have no successor, or as in any other way connected with that firm. In imposing the fine Justice Barnard said it would, doubtless, humiliate the memory of Mr. Siggers to such an extent that he would not again forget that an order of the court was made for some purpose, and meant what it said.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has made practically an adverse report on [illegible] resolutions proposing constitutional amendments by reporting them back to the Senate, with the recommendation that their consideration be indefinitely postponed. Among them ware the following: That no money of the United States should be appropriated for the aid of any institution or undertaking which is wholly, or in part, under sectarian control; giving Congress exclusive authority to regulate marriage and divorce throughout the United States, and authorizing Congress to impose a tax on incomes.

Senator McMillan, chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, this week favorably reported a bill exempting from taxation the property of the Young Men's Christian Association. This is a very important measure for the association. Its becoming a law will add materially to its resources, and, consequently, to its good work.

Washington will, unless present plans miscarry, very shortly have one, or more, branches of the "Expansion Army of the M. E. Church"—a movement which has the endorsement of the Bishops and Missionary Secretaries. The organizers contemplate the enrollment in the United States of 500,000 volunteers, who will enlist for ten years, each volunteer pledging himself or herself to give $1 per year during that period for the purpose of sending missionaries to the inhabitants of the islands recently brought under the control of the United States. The pledge also includes a promise not to allow this gift to detract from interest in or contributions to other great benevolent enterprises of the church, making this $1 a year a free-will offering for the salvation of those for whose liberty so many Americans gave heroic service, and in not a few instances their lives. The Bishops and Missionary Secretaries, in approving this movement, requested that the pastors of all churches in the denomination act as recruiting officers for the army. When 25,000 names are enrolled the payment of the first dollar will be due, and payable to the pastors upon call of the Missionary Secretaries. The inaugurators of the movement estimate that there are 500,000 members of the M. E. Church who can and will willingly give $1 a year for ten years without reducing their contributions for other church purposes. If that estimate proves to be correct, the denomination will have a missionary fund to be proud of, and that will undoubtedly enable it to do grand work in our island possessions.

Rev. R. P. Williams, in an annual sermon to the Knight Templars, made the following prediction: "I look forward to the time when we shall have to draw our swords against religious intolerance and oppression, just as our ancestors enlisted under the banner of the cross for the relief of their suffering fellow-Christians in the far East. The conditions which aroused their enthusiasm and added fuel to the flames of their ardor even now exist in the East, where the profession of Christianity is attended with great dangers, and the holy places of our faith are in the possession of the unspeakable Turk, the arch-conspirator, whom, from motives of policy, Christian Europe does not expel to the wastes of Asia, whence he came."

Washington, May 30, 1900.

EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

MR EDITOR: As one of the Visiting Committee, it was my privilege to attend the commencement exercises of E. M. F. College from Saturday until Monday night. Bro. Mellen, Dr. Parker, of the Louisiana Conference, and myself arrived at Meridian on the same train, and were met at the depot by Prof. Besson and carried up to the college, arriving in time to get a splendid vegetable dinner supplied from the college garden. Bro. Beeson assigned us to separate rooms in the college, and entertained us in a truly brotherly style. I found Dr. Parker a scholarly, consecrated Christian minister, worthily wearing the mantle of his now sainted father, Bishop Parker, and my association with him was truly a benediction to my soul. The commencement sermon delivered by him on Sunday was one that will not soon be forgotten, and was listened to from beginning to end with marked attention by, I believe, the largest audience I have ever seen assembled in Central Church. (He also preached a fine sermon for us again on Sunday night.) The college girls, in their white uniforms, marched from the college to the church, and occupied seats reserved for them in front, and gave close attention to the sermon throughout, and, I trust and believe, were greatly benefited by it.

The exercises Monday night, rendered by the elocution and physical culture classes, were truly entertaining, and reflected great credit both upon the teachers and pupils. The audience in the college chapel was packed to overflowing. Quite a number of Methodist ministers were present, among whom was Bro. Burton, the other member of the Visiting Committee.

I was truly sorry that my trip to the Reunion of the old Confederate soldiers in Louisville, Ky., prevented my remaining through the remaining exercises of the commencement; but Bro. Burton remained, and, I have no doubt, will report through the ADVOCATE.

I found the college in truly a flourishing condition—marvelously so to me, having been connected with it as trustee for several years in its earlier history. I have ever been the warm friend of the college from its beginning in 1869, and I am truly rejoiced to see its prosperity. It was leased to Bro. Beeson some three or four years ago, and his success I attribute largely to the blessing of God upon the institution under his management, for he seems to be a man of great faith and abundant prayer. During his presidency the college has enrolled six times its largest number of boarders of any previous year of its existence, and nearly trebled its total enrollment.

From what I saw and learned of the college, I regard it as one of the best and most flourishing institutions of learning in the South. For thoroughness of work, religious advantages, careful and conscientious oversight of pupils I do not think it is surpassed anywhere in the South. Taking religious training into account, it surpasses any college it has been my pleasure to visit, and I feel sure that Christian parents and all others may safely risk their daughters in this college without any fear of their religious life deteriorating. Thank God for Christian education and for Christian teachers! Total enrollment of pupils this session has been 361; music pupils, 242; elocution pupils, 47; art pupils, 15; vocal pupils, 46; teachers and officers, 30; graduates, 12; boarding students in college, 185; in the city, 30; total number from a distance, 215. The health record in the college this session has been fine. They use artesian well water, and I really fell in love with it during my short stay.

I would be glad to say more, but space forbids. IRVIN MILLER.

E. M. F. COLLEGE.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE STATE OF THE E. M. F. COLLEGE.

To the President and Members of the Board of Trustees of E. M. F. College, Meridian, Miss.—

Your committee on the state of the college beg leave to submit the following report:

We have heard with much gratification the report of President Beeson as to the work done during the session just closing. The school has not only overflowed, but filled the annex to its uttermost capacity. There have been 185 boarders within the walls of the college, 30 in the city, making a total number of boarders 215, while the total enrollment reached the gratifying figure of 361. The musical department exceeds anything in the South, so far as we know, as to enrollment, numbering 242 pupils, and is equal to the best in character and thoroughness of work. The president announces it as his purpose to still further raise the course, having already added one year to the course and another department of work, viz: the Department of Domestic Science. A young lady specially preparing for the work will assume charge of this department. It is with intense satisfaction we note the recognition being accorded this school by the colleges and universities of the United States. Her graduates are admitted for special post-graduate courses in Wellesly, University of Chicago, University of Mississippi, Vanderbilt University, and other high institutions with advanced standing without examination. The first two schools mentioned having no special interest in our Southern institutions is of itself unanswerable proof of the high grade and thoroughness of work being done here.

We owe it to our Southern institutions of learning to publish to the world this flattering recognition accorded East Mississippi Female College. Nor can we relegate to a second place the spiritual influence at work. Ninety of the boarders have made a profession of salvation since the opening of school. This is an average of ten per month, or more than one for each of the Sabbath services throughout the entire session. As God can not make a mistake or be deceived, we can only conclude that our eternal Savior is with our work. To him be all the praise.

J. R. ENOCHS,
B. F. LEWIS.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE COLLEGE PROPERTY OF THE E. M. F. COLLEGE.

To the Trustees of the E. M. F. College—

We, your committee, make the following report on college property:

We find the building in good repair. We find from account of the president he has spent of his private means $756.92 in permanent improvement on buildings and grounds since the last annual meeting; has erected four new music-rooms, president having purchased all the furniture and furnishings of the college, including pianos, desks, apparatus, bed-room, dining-room and kitchen furniture. We note with pleasure he has replaced the old furniture with new; has also added several new pianos, apparatus, etc. We note the excellent sanitary condition of the grounds, buildings, etc. We are pleased with the quality and unlimited quantity of pure water that is pumped daily from the deep well bored by the president on the college ground. It, doubtless, adds much to the fine health record and physical appearance of the student body. We find the college has so increased in attendance, the college building does not meet the demands for room. The president has partly supplied this demand by procuring additional building as an annex. The college is yet crowded for dining-room capacity; also needs more recitation-rooms, as well as dormitory.

Respectfully submitted.

WOMAN'S COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

This institution was founded in 1838 by the M. E. Church, and was chartered as a college in 1854, at which time it passed into the hands of the Cumberland Presbyterians. The new management began one year ago under a new charter and a new name, with the purpose of being really and truly, as the name implies, a "woman's college." When we take into consideration the fact that the school had to be organized and started again almost "de novo," the year's work just closed has been marked with phenomenal success—almost, if not quite, without a parallel in the history of Southern colleges. Eighty-nine boarding pupils have been in attendance, with a large patronage from the town of Oxford. The work done in all departments has been highly gratifying. The plan of having the advanced classes in physics and chemistry attend the lectures and experimentation on these subjects once each week at the university has worked perfectly. The university students have given the management no trouble at all.

Special mention should be made of the Conservatory of Music. One hundred and sixty pupils have received instruction in the various branches of music, requiring the attention of five teachers. The graduating class numbered thirteen, and ten other young ladies were awarded department diplomas.

Dr. W. B. Palmore, of the St. Louis Advocate, preached the sermons, and completely captured the school and the entire town of Oxford.

"The Model Woman and Her Sphere" was the subject of Mr. J. E. Holms' address to the class. Mr. Holms is a rising young attorney of Oxford, and by his effort on this occasion he has won for himself the highest praise as one of the most eloquent and thoughtful young men in the State.

All the closing exercises were pleasing and successful. The majority of the faculty will be retained, and others of like high grade will be added to the teaching force, and all will be ready for work when the next session opens, Sept. 12.

J. W. MALONE, Pres.

THE FOREST DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL.

This institution has just closed a very satisfactory session under the principalship of Rev. O. H. Wingfield.

The commencement sermon was preached May 20, at 11 A. M., by Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D., president of Millsaps College. The Doctor was at his best, and those who know him understand what that means. The sermon was strong, eloquent, comprehensive, and accompanied by the Holy Ghost. At night he gave us an eloquent and unique discourse on the subject of Christian education, which elicited many favorable comments from our people.

The redoubtable and indefatigable presiding elder, Rev. T. L. Mellen, was with us, and on Tuesday, at 11 A. M., delivered the annual address, which was one of depth, breadth, and thickness, and, in our estimation, could not be excelled. No one who listened to him would have thought for a moment that the principal took snap judgment, and used him as "a chinker."

The pupils all acquitted themselves well, and reflected credit both on themselves and on the institution.

The healthfulness of the locality, together with the moral and religious atmosphere which pervades Monrose, makes it one of the most desirable places for the location of a high school to be found anywhere; and if the Methodists of the Forest district would come to its support, we could make it the best high school in the State. What say you, brethren?

BRAINS AND BEAUTY.

On Sunday morning, in Oxford, Miss., we were greeted by one of the most interesting and appreciative audiences we have ever addressed. There were not more than 1,000 present, but we have never seen an audience of its size combining so much brains and beauty. The population of Oxford is not more than 3,000, composed largely of educated people, who have located their homes here to educate their children in the State University and the Woman's College. We were called to this pleasant service of preaching the commencement sermon of the Woman's College by President Malone.

The day was ideal and idyllic. The profusion of flowers was a surprise to eyes accustomed to the later seasons further North. The platform was splendidly adorned with the rarest and richest of semi-tropical flowers. One side of the audience was a charming sea of rosy cheeks and flashing eyes, whose snow-white gossamer garments looked as if they were woven from the ocean's spray. The other wing of the audience was the professors and students of the State University. The body, or intermediate section, was filled with the hospitable, high-bred citizens and visitors of Oxford. We congratulate Dr. Standifer, in whose home we were so delightfully entertained, in having such an inspiring pastorate.

The Woman's College has a great future, having now 160 students in its musical department. Oxford being so much higher and healthier than other parts of the State, this school will eventually surpass all other girls' schools in the State. The teachers and pupils will do a very wise and gaurous thing in sending President Malone to Europe and the Paris Exposition this Summer. Many other schools and churches are making a great mistake in not doing likewise with their presidents and pastors.

We will long remember our delightful visit to the Athens of Mississippi.

A LESSON FROM THE ECLIPSE.

The astronomers will, doubtless, derive many interesting results from their observations of the total eclipse of the sun. But the lesson for the South in the event is not astronomical, but educational.

Great men and great instruments were sent from every part of the world to observe this striking phenomenon in the heavens, but the South had no great instrument of its own. The black line of eclipse rested on our territory, but there was a wider and darker belt brought conspicuously into notice, viz.: our educational eclipse. Our people hung around Siloam and Thomaston and other points as curious observers of the astronomers from abroad. They had no instruments of their own with which to participate in this great work, and so they did the staring.

Our section must have impressed the distinguished scientists from abroad as being fearfully behind the rest of the world—behind even "the wild and woolly West." California, a region won from Mexico by Southern soldiers, sent the Lick observers with their splendid equipment, but not a Georgia institution had a decent instrument to offer.

The event has set in the very heavens the destitution of our colleges and the shameful stinginess of our men of means. All the world witnessed our disgraceful lack of adequate educational plants.

Surely the occasion ought to emphasize the importance of our Twentieth Century Movement. That movement has not come too soon. It ought to mark the beginning of a better era. It is high time that our people were aroused to a realization of their situation. Let every preacher, and every layman who does really appreciate our humiliating condition, speak earnestly and often to others until all the people are awake to the urgent need of doing something worthy of ourselves and worthy of the times in which we live.

Let us lay to heart the lesson of the eclipse. We are an earth-bound lot of people when we have to stand by with our fingers in our mouths while other people study for us the heavens which God has stretched over our heads.—Wesleyan Advocate.

WHAT WE HAVE TO COMPETE WITH.

The need of assistance for Methodist colleges is emphasized by the fact that in their work they are forced into direct competition with institutions possessing enormous funded interests and very large annual incomes. Girard College has $15,250,000 at interest; Leland Stanford University has $13,500,000; Harvard, $10,000,000; Columbia, $9,500,000; Cornell, $8,000,000; the University of Chicago, $6,500,000; Yale, $4,500,000. Most of the State universities of this country have incomes which the authorities of a Methodist college would consider princely. The number of Methodist institutions that have funds enough for self-support may be counted on the fingers. Every dollar of assistance rendered to them enables their managers to compete more successfully with the wealthy institutions, and, therefore, brings Methodism into greater prominence, and insures a wider extension of its influence.—Central Methodist.

The Christian is always in the school of Christ. This does not mean that he always has a book in his hand. Many of the most needful lessons are learned amid the hard experiences of daily life.—Churchman.

THE LITTLE ONES HE BLESSED.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

I wonder if ever the chil'dren
Who were blessed by the Master of old,
Forgot he had made them his treasures,
The dear little lambs of his fold.
I wonder if, angry and willful,
They wandered far astray,
The children whose feet had been guided
So safe and so soon in the way.

One would think that the mothers at evening,
Soft smoothing the silk tangled hair,
And low leaning down to the murmur
Of sweet, childish voices in prayer,
Oft bade the small pleaders to listen,
If haply again they might hear
The words of the gentle Redeemer
Borne swift to the reverent ear.

And my heart can not cherish the fancy
That ever those children went wrong,
And were lost from the peace and the shelter,
Shut out from the feast and the song.
To the day of gray hairs they remembered,
I think, how the hands that were riven
Were laid on their heads when Christ uttered,
"Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

He has said it to you, little darling,
Who spell it in God's Word to day;
You, too, may be sorry for sinning,
You also believe and obey;
And 'twill grieve the dear Savior in heaven
If one little child shall go wrong -
Be lost from the fold and the shelter,
Shut out from the feast and the song.

SPARKS FROM THE CARNEGIE ANVIL.

Among the many other things that impressed one at the great Ecumenical Conference, held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, was the thought that personality has much to do with eloquence. The profoundest impressions that were carried away by delegates and visitors were made by words that they heard from actual witnesses who had come back from the ends of the earth. The old and tried missionaries, with their simple narratives, turned the eyes of multitudes toward heathen lands, and sent them away with the "impetus of enthusiasm," and with fresh views of the work of missions in principle and practice. It takes a man that has spent years on the firing-line to make a soul-stirring appeal. The people have confidence in his integrity, for there is something about him more impressive than the words he utters, and that is the spirit and presence that utters them. Five minutes of earnest heart-to-heart story-telling from J. Hudson Taylor was worth an hour of suggestions and platitudes from college presidents and other learned "stay-at-homes." The rifle shots from the forward trenches had the farthest range, and did the most execution, simply because those that held the rifles had the best perspective and the most experience. Not so much what was said as the man that said it, and the strong conviction and earnest purpose that overflowed from a Spirit-filled life, made those addresses eloquent. John G. Paton's face was a benediction. With Jacob Chamberlain and Dr. Hepburn before them the great throngs were conscious, as they had never been before, of the existence of an irresistible purpose in the world to carry out the last command of our risen Lord.

Another reason why they were influenced more by simple, unadorned narrative than by grandiloquent discourse was, that the multitudes felt that men who were sent out originally were just as able as the committee that sent them, and that now, with some years on the field, were a hundredfold more able for missionary leadership. They looked to them for counsel and for encouragement. They crowded to hear them speak, and always found their addresses stimulating, satisfying, and inspiring. As Dr. Charles Parkhurst so beautifully expressed it:

"It seems to me that the consummating feature of the occasion has been the missionaries—not what they said, nor the statistics which they reported, nor the thrilling scenes which they delineated, but the missionaries in their own proper personality, standing before us in all the sweet and chastened resignation of themselves, and of all earthly hopes and comforts, to the gracious ownership and loving, but supreme, will of their Divine Master.

"We can read about such things and such people, and not be greatly affected, but it is another thing to listen to the living voice of a man or a woman who has no will but to do the will of God, and no ambition but to contribute to the eternal life of God's children, seeing in dollars no value but as a means of extending the kingdom of Jesus Christ, and in beauty and culture no significance save as appliances for lifting the ignorant and degraded into truth and holiness.

"And, as our friends, some of them hoary with multiplied years of apostolic labor and trial, return to their distant homes of service among those who are beginning a little to know God and his Son, Jesus Christ, they can go back there feeling that the lights in the golden candlesticks on this side of the Atlantic burn brighter because of their replenishing, and that the Christian church in America is more truly Christ's church because of the benediction of their spirit and presence."

From the thousand of sparks from the Carnegie anvil we select from Rev. J. Hudson Taylor:

"Truly our opponents and hindrances are many and mighty, but our God, the living God, alone is almighty. God tells us through his prophet that the men that know their God shall be strong, and they that understand the people among men shall instruct men. If it be true that knowledge is power, this is supremely true in the case of the knowledge of God.

"God's commands are always absolute. If we believe the commandment to be from God, our only rule is to obey! Further, God's power is available power. We are a supernatural people, born again by a supernatural birth. We wage a supernatural fight and are taught by a supernatural teacher. In our supernatural fight we are led by a supernatural Captain in right paths to assured victory.

"Here is an important fact to remember. The church is not a number of isolated organizations, but an organized body. The church, as a whole, must reorganize its responsibility and go forward. Not only must the missionaries go forward, but their parents and friends must give them up to the work. Soul-saving work can not be carried on without soul suffering."

Mrs. I. B. Bishop:

"The study of oriental creeds and their fruits compels me to the conclusion that there is no resurrection power in any of them, and that the sole hope for the religious, political, and moral future of the countries of Asia lies in the acceptance of that other and later oriental creed which is centered in that Divine Person to whom, in spite of her divisions, Christendom bows the adoring knee.

"Of the Christless population of the world, over 500,000,000 are women. We are chiefly concerned with them to-night. Throughout Asia the natural distrust of women by men, and of the degrading views concerning women, results in seclusion behind high walls, in separate houses, known to us as the harem, the zenana, and the anderun. I have seen much of the inmates of all, owing to the detentions in travel which have made me frequently their unwilling guest, and have unveiled for me the mysteries of their secluded lives. Such contact has banished from my mind, so far as Asiatic countries are concerned, all belief of purity in women and innocence in childhood. We know what Christianity has done for us. We realize it more or less fully to-night as we meet to discuss the important and unfettered work of women. We know, or rather guess, and that only in part, what Islam and heathenism have done for our sisters. May God give us sympathetic instincts, by which alone we may realize their contrasting lives!"

Dr. John Cross, of China:

"Quackery in mission work must be an abomination to God. Medical quacks in China, consisting of missionaries who have very little or, perhaps, no training at all in medicine, finding their work somewhat unproductive or unattractive, take to distributing quinine, pouring oil on sores with hen feathers, praying over those they are helping to die, must be an abomination to God. I emphatically do not believe in half doctors, and I do not think you are wise in subscribing one cent that tends to produce such.

"What China needs to-day is an army of well-equipped, liberally supported, unsectarian surgeons. It is not with the point of the bayonet, but with the point of the lance, that we are to Christianize China."

Bishop Thoburn:

"I pause to say a pressing need for the evangelist is among the baptized Christians. We find there about the same conditions as you have in English and American cities. We need men there to do a work such as was done by Moody among the professing Christians.

"In all matters of religion we, much like the printer, are inclined to follow the copy. We pay much respect for precedent, forgetting that precedent was first an innovation. We must, therefore, expect to part some from old methods. If the women of India are to be reached, it must be done by women. It is the blessed heritage of their sex ever since Mary was chosen to tell that Jesus had arisen and was alive for evermore.

"It is just possible that too many have been resting their belief on the Bible, and trying to maintain the sustaining belief that the church of Christ rests upon the Bible for a foundation, forgetting that other foundation—that is, our Lord Jesus Christ. Revelation is infinitely precious, but the revealer is worth infinitely more than the thing revealed."

John G. Paton:

"A rifle is a dangerous thing in the hands of an irresponsible cannibal at all times, and more so when his reason is dethroned by drink. There are still 40,000 or 60,000 cannibals in the New Hebrides group.

"In my field every church member becomes an earnest worker. If Christians in America were as much in earnest as this people, what multitudes would be brought to Christ! In every family daily worship is held, and everyone, old and young, faithfully attends the house of God."

W. F. Oldham, of India:

"Much, too, will depend upon the presence of a deep, sympathetic love. We win not because we love not. Attempt to disguise it as we may, if there be in us any secret contempt for the people, any lofty feeling of haughty superiority, any idea of comparative worthlessness in the race, or poverty of salvable material in the person's address, the message is without power, and rarely affects anything.

"How often have we been amazed at the comparative unfruitfulness of splendidly equipped men, while again others, with no special mental outfit, seem to have found the secret hiding-place of power, and the most stubborn oppositions have broken down before the love-persuaded earnestness of men who came from mounts of vision, where they looked upon God, that they might learn to look with conquering compassion upon the sore needs of their hearers. They heeded not any poverty in them, but saw only their recoverableness and their potential riches, and the might of the divine Savior."

Bishop Ridley, of British Columbia:

"But do you suppose we were wanted there? No, indeed. If we went only where we were wanted, we should probably stay at home. We were not wanted; we were needed. When I tell you that there are no more Christian-like homes anywhere than among these erstwhile savages, do not think that all this was brought without trials."

Jacob Chamberlain:

"I speak to you to-night for India—my India, to which I have already given forty years of my life, and to which I hasten back to give the remainder of my days. My India, did I say? No. Christ's India, for which he has given his blood, and which, though now in revolt, is to be brought back to allegiance to him by you, by me, by us, the representatives of the churches gathered here to-night.

"The outlook is one of cheerful hope if the church of Christ springs up to her duty at the present time; but of direst blackness if the church halts in the work she is carrying on."

J. R. MOOD.

DISTRICT DOTS.

As I travel about and "oversee the temporal and spiritual interests of the church," it does not occur to me that very many of our people have formed the habit of giving to the Lord's cause "as God hath prospered them;" nor "according to their ability." I have read church history with some degree of attention, and since I "came upon the scene," I have tried to keep up with the majority, and my belief is, that from the days of Paul until now the church has had enough instruction and exhortation on this subject to have created and set to work a sort of law of heredity whose operation would keep the church coffers full to overflowing! By this time there ought to be a "habit" of giving descended from our fathers and mothers. But it seems that every new generation needs the same instruction and exhortation on this subject that its predecessor needed. The golden age of the church treasury is apparently as far away as ever.

The foregoing paragraph must not be construed so as to leave the impression that we have no Christians who give of their means to further the Lord's cause. There are some who are really the Lord's stewards, dispensing their goods "as" he directs and "whenever" he makes a demand. They are the converted Zacchenses of the church, and by means of their influence and giving they have kept the church going. But it has to be confessed that the spirit which they manifest has not become epidemic. They are, it is true, a respectable minority, but it is one of the smallest minorities of which we know. It has been said, however, by some sage that nearly every minority wins in the end, and I am sure such will be the case with these few, true givers to the Lord's cause. I believe it was these our Lord addressed when he said, "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." The Christian who holds his possessions as God's steward, and dispenses his benefactions under the guidance of God's Spirit, will certainly come into the kingdom. He has the spirit of the kingdom within him, and by virtue of that spirit he is a citizen of the kingdom, and nothing can keep him out.

Solomon, with all his wisdom, was bothered by some things. He said there were four "ways" that were too wonderful for him. Now, it is my opinion if he had had any experience in modern church finance, he would have said "five" instead of "four." The ways of some people's giving "are too wonderful for me." Have we not seen the preacher, loaded for the occasion, stand before a Christian audience, and instruct and exhort and plead and persuade and invite and pull and push and tug and stamp and rave and scream and cavort, and then flatter and cajole and tickle and lash and slash and out and thrust and bemean that people out of a few dollars, and then sit down and write a great letter to the ADVOCATE in praise of the liberal giving of a generous people? Well, it took a good many hard blows to develop that bump of liberality! But is that Christian giving? It is neither giving nor Christian in any sense. The only thing to commend it is the exercise it affords the preacher. The money gotten under such pressure—a sort of hydraulic ram process—all it does is to count up in a column of figures when reports are made to the Annual Conference. Christian giving indeed! It is giving in the same sense a cow is said to "give" milk. It has to be squeezed out of pockets puckered with penuriousness.

There are many people who give, and the act is always set to the music of a groan. These are the people who give "from a sense of duty," and they are extremely careful to let you know it every time. No doubt duty done can not be substituted by anything else, but helping the Lord's cause "from a sense of duty" is not Christian giving. One of our poets says:

"He gives nothing but worthless gold
Who gives from a sense of duty;
But he who gives but a sleuder mite,
And gives to that which is out of sight,
That thread of the all-sustaining Beauty
Which runs through all and doth all unite,
The hand can not clasp the whole of his alms,
The heart outstretches its eager palms,
For God goes with it and makes it store
To the soul that was starving in darkness before."

That is the gospel of Christian giving set to the music of a glad heart, appreciative of its privileges. I believe that the Christian, under the tuition of the Divine Spirit, can learn to turn everything into a means of grace, and make it contribute to his spiritual growth. It is the spirit in which a thing is done which makes it of value to the doer. Every deed has its reaction, and the reaction carries back into the soul the tone and spirit of the deed, and the soul absorbs that tone and spirit. This, I suppose, is the reason our Savior put such a tremendous emphasis on righteousness or right doing. Giving from a sense of duty has its reaction, and the soul absorbs the tone of a grumbler and the spirit of a slave. Oh, man, woman, get out of those shadows into the light and beauty and joyousness of the true grace of liberality! Learn to give with a glad heart, and realize the reaction flooding the soul with the brightness of God's blue skies, and filling it with the melodies of the upper sanctuary.

MARY ANDREWS,
Conf. Treas.

The Christian Life.

SOUND ADVICE.

Bishop Vincent made some telling remarks recently at the Newark Methodist Conference, in session in Paterson, N. J., on the relation of the rich and poor to the church, which deserve to be published abroad. In the course of his address he said:

"It is not riches alone that work evil to men. It is the over-reaching desire to be rich that does the damage. It is covetousness, not cash. There are men who will be rich—they can not help it. If all the money in the world were distributed to-day, to-morrow one man would have twice as much as another. But the rich should also be rich in good works. I am glad, indeed, that some men are rich. We ought to keep them with us in the church. But we ought to keep the poor in the church. They should be welcomed and made to feel at home. I wish we could get back to the old-time fine art of silence and sociability. I wish we could have absolute silence in God's house—none of the clatter of criticism of Sarah's new bonnet or Jane's new dress. Then, after the service, strong in silence, we should blossom out in Christian sociability. Why are we so stupidly neglectful of strangers? If we do not show an interest in those who come to us, how can we expect them to retain an interest in the church? Throw off the frigid element of reserve, that air of superior dignity that is so much of sham and a show in social life. Be more social, more friendly. Welcome the stranger with Christian cordiality, with reverence and respect."—Christian Intelligencer.

THE DUTY OF MINISTERS.

I want to press upon the clergy that it should be made a part of the ordinary teaching that they should lead their people, by all means in their power, really to feel for missionary work, and to care for it as part of the work which the Lord Jesus Christ has called upon every one of us to take his share in. I want the clergy to be aroused to their duty in this matter, and to be constantly bringing it before their people, not merely on the occasion of a deputation coming down, or when there is a meeting for the purpose, but time after time in the course of the year, as a matter of Christian instruction.

The people should be instructed that this is a part of the work which is essential for their own Christian life. It is not merely a duty which they owe to perishing heathen, or to those of their own countrymen who in the colonies, are running a risk of forgetting all that they learned at home, but it is a duty which they owe to their Lord, and which they can not disregard without very certainly falling short of the standard of true Christian life.—The Archbishop of Canterbury.

After all that we say about the beauty and the brightness and the joyfulness of life and the beneficence of God, we live in a very stern world. There are evils that must come, and there are some that certainly will come. Young people are buoyant in hope, and take short views, and are glad, where older folk, that have learned what life is generally, have sober estimates of its possibilities, and our radiant visions have toned down into a very subdued grey. Sorrow, disappointments, broken hopes, hopes fulfilled and disappointed—and that is worst of all—losses, inevitable partings when the giant shrouded figure of Death forces its way in at the rose-covered portal in spite of the puny efforts of Love to keep it out, sicknesses, failures in business, griefs of many kinds that I can not touch—the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, and all the ills that flesh is heir to—these lie waiting somewhere on the road for every one of us. Are you going to stand in the unsheltered plain, a mark for all these? Do you think you can front them in your own strength? Are you able, calmly and soberly, remembering the possibilities that lie in the black clouds over your head, to say "Pour on! I will endure?" Nay verily; you need a refuge!—Alexander Maclaren, D. D.

Christ is ever passing by. He may come again—he does continually come again; but he is ever moving, and the blessing we would get from him at any time we must get as he passes. All the days seem alike as they come to us; but each day comes with its own opportunities, its own calls to duty, its own privileges, holding out hands offering us rich gifts. The day passes, and never comes again. Other days as bright may come, but that day never comes a second time. If we do not take just then the gifts it offers, we shall never have another chance to get them, and shall always be poor for what we have missed. We need to be alert to take quickly from each day the blessing it brings.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Happiness does not consist in intellectual power and culture. The woes of genius are proverbial. The largest knowledge would prove no panacea. Gifted men have been more than ordinarily vulnerable. Many a literary career has been a tragedy from start to finish. He who makes erudition the chief good misses the way. He may climb the thorny steeps of learning unavailingly. He may stand upon the dizzy heights unsatisfied and unsolaced. The eye of genius has never traced the path to true repose. Heart's-ease distills from sources other than books.—Texas Advocate.

PREACHERS' INSTITUTE OF FOREST DISTRICT.

The Forest District Preachers' Institute convened in the Methodist Church at Forest, Miss., May 8, at 8:30 A. M. After religious services conducted by P. H. Howse, the presiding elder, Rev. T. L. Mellen, took the chair, and directed the secretary to call the roll. The following members responded to their names: T. L. Mellen, P. D. Hardin, W. L. Linfield, D. C. Langford, J. E. Williams, J. H. Foreman, W. M. Sullivan, J. M. Carley, B. W. Lewis, P. H. Howse, J. G. Galloway, E. L. Alford, M. L. White, H. J. Moore, T. J. O'Neal, D. Scarborough, W. P. Donnell, E. B. Partin, Amos Kendall, D. E. Vickers, J. W. Thompson, J. L. Redd, and Simpson J. Tubby (Choctaw) It was noticed with pleasure that some of the lay brethren were in attendance.

The first thing on the program was an interesting paper prepared by Dr. J. Miller on "Charles Wesley and His Hymns." P. H. Howse next read a good paper on "John Fletcher," and H. J. Moore followed him with a well-written sketch of the life of "J. W. Lambuth." B. W. Lewis then reviewed the life and labors of "William Carey" in a carefully prepared paper, and was followed by J. M. Carley with a stirring article on "Robert Moffat." A sermon by W. L. Linfield on "The First Missionary Enterprise—God Seeking Adam," from Gen. iii, 9, closed the morning session.

E. L. Alford opened the afternoon session with religious exercises. The first paper called for was on "Our Duty as a Church and a People to the American Bible Society." This paper was prepared and read by P. D. Hardin, and discussed by the entire Conference. It was ordered published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. A sermon by J. H. Foreman on "Infant Baptism," from Mark x, 16, ended the session.

W. M. Sullivan preached a strong sermon at night on "The Mode and Meaning of Baptism," from Mark xvi, 16.

The Wednesday morning session of the Institute was opened with religious exercises conducted by W. P. Donnell, who made an interesting talk on his work among the Choctaws. The mission was shown to be in a prosperous condition. A paper on the "Origin of the Roman Catholic Church," by G. W. Hudleston, was called for, but Bro. Hudleston was absent, and as his paper had not been sent in, Bro. Mellen made a few remarks on the subject. T. J. O'Neal then read a paper on "The Origin and Distinctive Doctrines of the Lutheran Church." The paper by D. C. Langford on "The Origin of the Church of England" was discussed by T. L. Mellen. W. M. Sullivan next read a paper on "The Origin of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and the Romance of Their Fabulous Apostolical Succession." The morning session was closed with an instructive sermon by J. G. Galloway on "The Tithe Law Still Binding," from Mal. iii, 8.

J. L. Redd conducted the opening exercises of the afternoon session. The Divine Presence was most sensibly felt, and all entered upon the evening's work with a warmer feeling of brotherly love, and a spirit of deeper consecration to God. Rev. C. W. Bachman, colporteur of the two Mississippi Conferences, was introduced to the Institute.

The first regular work of the evening was the reading of a paper by W. L. Linfield on the "Origin of Presbyterian Churches in Switzerland and Scotland, and Their Divisions." J. G. Galloway followed him with a paper on "The Origin and Divisions of the Baptists." Both of these papers were extensively discussed. J. H. Foreman next read a paper on the "Origin and Divisions of the Methodists."

At 4 P. M. T. L. Mellen preached a powerful sermon on the "Depravity of Human Nature," his text being Rom. iii, 10-12.

W. W. Morse preached a strong sermon at night on sanctification, from Heb. vi, 21. This service closed the Institute, which was one of the most delightful and profitable ever held. The greatest harmony and unanimity prevailed throughout the meeting, and at its close the preachers all felt stronger and better for having attended it.

FROM THE WORK.

OLLA, LA.

Pollock and Olla, two stations on the Iron Mountain railroad, and Summerville, thirteen miles from Olla, are the three appointments which compose my work. I took charge of this work about the middle of January by the appointment of Bro. Harper, the presiding elder. As soon as I reached the work, I saw that the preacher could not live on the work without a parsonage, for the work would not support him if he had to rent a house or pay board; so I went to work, and with the assistance of one good sister, who deserves most of the credit for our success, we succeeded in building a nice four-room cottage, which, though not quite finished, is very nicely furnished.

We have encouraging and attentive congregations, and we are hoping for good results.

Last Sabbath, the twentieth instant, was Children's Day, and it will be a day long to be remembered, as it was the first ever observed in this section of the country. At least two hundred and fifty persons were present at the exercises. The ladies of Olla and vicinity deserve the thanks of all who were present for the splendid dinner they gave us.

VANCLEAVE CIRCUIT.

We are glad to report that our finances are about up to date. In addition to this, about $150 has been raised this year to furnish and complete our parsonage. Services at each appointment are well attended, and we think the spiritual state of the church is fairly good.

The first Sunday in May, and also Saturday before, our presiding elder was with us, and held our second quarterly meeting. The attendance on both days was remarkably large, and the services were delightful. Bro. Simmons is in high favor with the people of his charge, both as preacher and Christian gentleman.

On the twenty-third of May there was a very pleasant gathering at the parsonage. A number of ladies of Vancleave and vicinity, accompanied by Bro. Jeff. Havens and Mr. Wm. Westfall, dropped in, but they did not come empty-handed. They brought a number of useful presents, for which we feel very thankful. It was not the gifts alone that made the visit so pleasurable, but the manifestation of their sympathy and regard for the preacher and his family. We can say truthfully that we delight in serving a people who co-operate so fully with the pastor. We are praying and working for a revival all over the charge.

BATESVILLE, MISS.

In our protracted meeting, held in Batesville during the month of April, much good was accomplished. Though only three persons were brought into the church as the immediate result of the meeting, there were impressions made that will live in the minds of some persons down to their last hour. After the first week the preaching was done by Bro. Lagrone, P. E., for eight or nine days and nights. His preaching was spiritual and sensible, and highly appreciated by us all. Then Bro. Jaco came and preached five days, and most acceptably. I have not heard the gospel preached more purely and practically than these brethren preached it during this meeting; hence the abiding effect as stated above.

Since January we have received into the church in Batesville six persons by letter and four on profession of faith. Six have removed by letter, making the whole number of members in the charge now ninety-two. The whole amount apportioned to the charge for missions, etc., is two hundred and seventy-five dollars. Of this sum one hundred and sixty-two dollars has been subscribed, and ninety-two collected and forwarded, as follows: Foreign missions, fifty-seven; domestic missions, twelve; church extension, thirteen; Bishops' Fund, ten.

The second Sunday in this month we held our Twentieth Century Thank-offering service, and collected in cash and subscription fifty-five dollars. The services made a good impression, and more will be paid after awhile.

We are most pleasantly domiciled in a nice, new, and commodious parsonage, and we all are enjoying good health, and hope to make a respectable report at the Annual Conference.

PINE GROVE (LA.) CIRCUIT.

The itinerant wheel at last Conference rolled me back to Pine Grove circuit for my fourth year, and, by the help of God, I want to make it the best in every respect. The recent floods have interfered somewhat seriously with our plans.

We are trying to build a church at Independence, La., where we have but few members, but where there are many people who need to be converted and brought into the church. We are having a hard pull, but we are working and trusting that some way will open to us by which we can complete our church, or, at any rate, get it to where we can worship in it. We have arranged for a meeting at that place, to begin the fourth Sunday in June; Bro. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss., to assist me. I ask a special interest in the prayers of all for a sweeping revival.

We have just closed a good meeting at Pipkins Chapel. Bro. G. P. Waite, of St. Francisville, La., did the preaching, which resulted in five accessions on profession of faith and five by certificate. Several backsliders were reclaimed, and a general uplift was given the church.

We are trying to wake our people up to a sense of their duty on the Twentieth Century Thank-offering Movement.

Last Sunday was observed as the rally day for the Pine Grove circuit, at Pine Grove. Dr. I. W. Cooper and Rev. C. W. Crisler, of Jackson, La., were with us. Strong and able speeches were made by these brethren to a large and appreciative congregation, and $42 in cash and subscription was the result of the day; but we believe this is only a beginning, as the good seed sown on that day will yet bring forth fruit.

It is not only beautiful women who hang over the mirror in the morning. Anxious women who are watching the wasting of their beauty, stand before the mirror and note the increasing lines etched by pain about the mouth and eyes. Thousands of such women, wrecked in body and in disposition, haggard, nervous, irritable, cross, have by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription been entirely cured, and watched with delight the progress of the cure, marked by brightening eyes, reddening cheeks, and rounding form.

Woman's general health depends largely upon the local health of the organs distinctively feminine. Irregular periods in maidenhood, followed after marriage by debilitating drains, and the common consequences of motherhood, inflammation, ulceration, and displaced organs, ruin the general health. These conditions are entirely removed by "Favorite Prescription," the body blossoms in a new beauty, and the mind is entirely freed from gloom and despondency. "Favorite Prescription" is not a stimulant, containing no alcohol or whisky.

"In October 1889 I gave birth to a baby and the treatment I received at the hands of the midwife left me with female weakness," writes Mrs. Cordelia Henson, of Coalton, Boyd Co., Ky. "I had no health to speak of for three years. I had another baby which was the third child. My health began to fail and I had three miscarriages so I found myself completely worn out. I had so many pains and aches my life was a burden to me and also to all the family, for I was nervous and cross and I could not sleep. Just after my last miscarriage (in 1896) I was taken with a severe pain in left side. Had four doctors come to see me but at last I found I was slowly dying. The doctors said I had liver, lung and uterine trouble. I was in bed for months and when I did get up I looked like a corpse walking about. I commenced to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, 'Favorite Prescription,' and 'Pellets,' and ever since then I have been a well woman. At my monthly period now, I have no pain. My cheeks are red and my face is white, but before it was as yellow as saffron."

The Golden State is seriously considering the necessity of quarantining against consumptives. That fresh, juicy beef, ready for digestion, can be made into a delicious cordial is a marvel, but chemistry has accomplished it. Sick people at a distance from markets and needing the nourishment afforded by beef tea can procure Dicks' NUTRITIVE ELIXIR and find it the best liquid food and stimulant known. For loss of appetite, weak digestion, debility, typhoid fever, and consumption it is invaluable.

THE ARMY CANTEEN.

There is now pending before Congress a bill providing for the abolition of that deadly enemy to sobriety and good morals among military men—the army canteen. After duly considering the merits of the bill, the House Committee on Military Affairs, we are glad to say, reported favorably upon it, and if our Senators and Representatives in Congress have due regard for the wishes of the Christian people of our country, and for the well-being of our soldiery at home and abroad, they are in duty bound to pass this most wholesome measure.

As might be expected, the liquor men are bitterly opposing this proposed curtailment of their opportunity to feed and fatten by debauching American soldiery, and all sorts of thin and vapid arguments are being advanced in favor of the perpetuation of the canteen. The advocates of the iniquitous canteen, among them, astonishing to tell, being that doughty champion of reform, the New Orleans Times-Democrat, would have us believe that it is not only harmless (?), but even promotive of temperance and good discipline. Could anything be more ridiculous or contrary to fact? In support of this position, the editor of the Times-Democrat a few days ago quoted Gen. Brooke, Adjutant-Gen. Corbin and Secretary Root as favoring the retention of the canteen, because of their belief in its advantageousness, and alleged that the "almost unanimous sentiment of the army officers" is that the army canteen is an excellent institution, or words to that effect.

It is claimed that the army canteen sells only beer and light wines in limited quantities (not enough to make a soldier drunk; oh, no!), and that its presence in the camp prevents the establishment of disreputable dives and saloons around military camps and forts. All this sounds plausible indeed, but let us look at the other side of the question a little. Says the Chicago New Voice, in the issue of May 17:

"Representatives of The New Voice have seen soldiers drunk in the canteen in many places, for example, at Fort Hamilton, at Fort Sheridan, and at Montauk Point, not to mention almost wholesale drunkenness in the great military camps at Chickamauga, and at Camp Mead, near Harrisburg. This fact is also admitted in the recent report of the Secretary of War."

In answering the question whether anything stronger than beer is ever sold in the canteens, the writer just quoted states that he has "seen whisky sold in the very presence of the colonel commanding the regiment to which the canteen belonged." He further adds: "Liquor, both in bottles and by the keg, is frequently taken away from the canteen to be drunk in the tents or the barracks."

The claim that the canteen prevents the establishment of low dives, and keeps the soldiers from visiting them, will by no means hold water. At Fort Hamilton there are a number of saloons just across the street from the fort, and the proprietors of these groggeries acknowledge that a large part of their patronage comes from the soldiers. The same is true of nearly every other place where there is a military camp.

Can any man, after reading the following testimony from Mr. Geo. H. Hornby, of Valentine, Neb., doubt that the army canteen is an unmitigated curse? Writing to the New Voice, May 10, he says:

"For fifteen years I have lived near an army post, Fort Niobrara, Neb., and during that time I have never known of the canteen being closed on Sunday. And the soldiers not only drink beer until they are beastly drunk, but when they have drank until they can hold no more, they throw beer at each other, or vomit upon the floor. A very bad feature of the canteen is that officials allow soldiers to buy beer on credit to be kept out of the next month's pay. Many of them have nothing left, out of the month's pay, to even pay the poor woman who does their washing."

The assertion that army officers "almost universally" approve the canteen is a gross misrepresentation. While several hundred officers, many of whom are themselves drinking men, are opposed to its abolition, there are hundreds of others who look upon it as a powerful demoralizer, and are anxious for its removal. It is gratifying to note that Major-General Miles, commander-in-chief of the army; General Shafter, General Joe Wheeler, General Henry, Surgeon-General Sternberg, and many other leading officials, unqualifiedly disapprove of the army canteen. Colonel James C. Lee, lately assistant quartermaster general at Chickamauga, stated that "the admission of beer to the camp was more dangerous than sleeping on the ground."

Of course, the abolition of the canteen will not act as an absolute preventive of intemperance in the army, but it will unquestionably do much toward lessening the evil. The temptation to drink will not be half so obtrusive, and the army will no longer be engaged in the shameful business of debauching itself.

It is an incontrovertible fact—of which, however, the editors of some secular dailies seem to be either willfully or shamefully ignorant—that the soldier has no greater enemy than intoxicants, whether in the form of beer, rum, or whisky. Not many months ago Lord Wolseley, in a speech before the English Army Temperance Association, said that "drink kills more than all our newest weapons of warfare," and scouted the idea that the suppression of the canteen would increase intemperance in the army. The splendid victories of Lord Kitchener in the Soudan were accomplished by a tee-total army.

In no other country is one supposed to have greater freedom to drink what he pleases than in France. Yet General Donop, commander of the Tenth Army Corps, recognizing the enormity of the drink evil, has recently prohibited the sale of alcoholic stimulants in the army canteens, and it is probable that ere long the order will be made to apply to the whole French army. In London, on May 14, at the annual meeting of the Army Temperance Association, a letter was read from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 19, in which this distinguished military chieftain said:

"There never was a more temperate army than that which marched under my command from the Modder river to Bloemfontein. Nothing but good can result from so many soldiers being brought together in an arduous campaign when they see how splendidly our temperance men have borne up against the hardships and dangers they have had to face."

The honor of Congress, as well as of the nation, to say nothing further about the welfare of the army, demands that either a new anti-canteen bill shall be passed which neither Mr. Griggs or any other friend of the liquor interests shall be able to set aside, or that vigorous steps shall be taken to secure the enforcement of the present anti-canteen law, which has not been repealed, and which, it seems to us, nothing short of an adverse decision of the Supreme Court can really annul.

THE PASTORAL TIME LIMIT.

Although our brethren of the M. E. Church have recently abolished the time limit, it will require the lapse of a number of years to demonstrate the wisdom or unwisdom of the change. Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the New York Christian Advocate, in a speech against the entire removal of the time limit, predicted that if such were taken, in less than six months the General Conference which did it would be the most detested of any in the history of Methodism.

The change was made principally in the interest of the city churches, the claim being made that in the great centers of population Methodism has not been able to keep pace with the progress of other denominations, on account of the disadvantage of frequent changes in the pastorate. Even men of extraordinary ability, it was argued, hardly have time under a limited term to impress themselves to any great extent upon the public of a great city, and thus succeed in building up strong and influential churches.

The time limit has undoubtedly been of incalculable benefit to Methodism in the past, and while it has some drawbacks, we do not believe that Southern Methodists are yet ready for so radical and questionable an innovation in our itinerant system. As things are now in the M. E. Church, it will require tremendous courage on the part of a Bishop to move a popular pastor from a charge he has served three or four years to one where he may be more needed, especially if the pastor himself should desire to be returned. Under the limit system there can be no kicking when a man's term has expired.

It seems to us that the abolition of the time limit, whatever advantages it may have, renders the making of the appointments by the Bishops a much more difficult and delicate matter.

Says the editor of the Alabama Advocate anent the removal of the time limit:

"One effect will surprise many: pastors will be changed oftener hereafter than in the past. Frequently because the time is limited, and the people know the time of their pastor will, according to law, soon expire, they tolerate him. There is no great objection to him, and so the people say: 'Well, he can not stay more than one or two years more, anyway. We will, therefore, not ask for a change, but will let him serve his time.' So he stays his four years with us, or five years in the M. E. Church. But they will not be so considerate hereafter, lest he become a fixture for eight or ten years, or for life. They will now insist on a change. On the other hand, many preachers will now insist on a change of appointments, that they may not be compelled to stay for years where they are not satisfied."

In 1866 our own church came very near abolishing the time limit. The experiment which the M. E. Church is now engaged in will be watched by Southern Methodists with deep interest, and should they find ere long that a mistake has been made, we will know how to steer clear of it. It is well to remember, however, that in the early days of Methodism there was no time limit.

THE HORRORS OF THE INDIA FAMINE.

An associated press dispatch to the Times-Democrat from Bombay, dated June 3, says:

Louis Klopsch, the New York publisher of the Christian Herald, who arrived here May 14 and started at once on a tour of the famine-stricken districts, has returned, after traveling through the most severely-smitten portions of the Bombay Presidency, including Gujerat and Baroids. He makes the following statement regarding his observations:

"Everywhere I met the most shocking and revolting sights. The famine camps have been swept by cholera and small-pox. Fugitives are scattering in all directions, and, stricken in flight, were found dying in the fields and roadside ditches. The numbers at one relief station were increasing at the rate of 1000 per day.

"At Gothera there were 3000 deaths from cholera within ten days, and at Dohad 2500 in the same period. The hospital death rate at Gothera and Dohad was 90 per cent.

"The condition of the stricken districts beggars description.

"Air and water were impregnated with an intolerable stench of corpses. At Ahmedabad the death rate in the poor-house was 10 per cent. every day.

"The government is doing its best, but the native officials are helpless and heartless. Between the famine, plague and cholera, the condition of Bombay is worse than it has been at any previous period in the nineteenth century. Whole families have been blotted out, the spirit of the people is broken, and there may be something worse to come when the monsoon breaks."

The people of Christian lands have never heard more urgent and piteous calls for relief than are now going out from India. God forbid that any among us should be indifferent to this bitter cry of distress!

DR. LAMBUTH IN NEW ORLEANS.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth, one of our Missionary Secretaries from Nashville, spent last Sabbath in the city, and preached two magnificent and thrilling missionary sermons, the one at Rayne Memorial in the morning, and the other at Louisiana Avenue at night. Sunday afternoon the Doctor made a deeply impressive and inspiring talk to the members of the Rayne Memorial Young People's Missionary Society assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dicks. Dr. Lambuth also attended the Preachers' Meeting on Monday morning, and treated the brethren present to a wonderfully stirring and instructive address, in which he called attention to the marvelous change that has recently taken place in China and Japan in respect to missionaries and their efforts, and mentioned a number of facts and incidents connected with our work in China of the most encouraging nature. The Doctor's talks and sermons produced a profound impression, and enkindled in the hearts of all who heard him a high degree of enthusiasm in the great cause of missions. His visit here is certain to be productive of great good.

A NEW BOOK.

SCOTT'S QUENTIN DURWARD. Edited with an introduction by Mary Harriott Norris. Cloth, 12 mo, 332 pages. Price, 50 cents. American Book Company, New York, Cincinnati, and Chicago.

There is no novel in English fiction more useful than Quentin Durward in giving boys and girls a distinct and accurate impression of the age of chivalry when its principles still animated the court life of England and Europe, but had ceased to claim the blind reverence of the people. The scene of this "finely wrought story" is laid in Paris at the time of Louis XI., during the latter half of the fifteenth century, and portrays the French king as the first of his line to recognize political capacity when not allied to rank. It shows with admirable clearness the rising power of the people and the royal perception that they will prove the bulwark of the crown against the great feudal barons. For these reasons, as well as because it is one of the best and most attractive novels in English literature, the book is particularly adapted for school and supplementary reading.

Two persons have agreed to be one of five to give $5,000 each to Hendrix College, Conway, Ark.

The late General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church refused to consider the question of revision of the confession of faith.

***

Our beloved senior Bishop, John C. Keener, and his noble wife have gone to their Summer home at Ocean Springs, Miss., where they will spend the heated term.

The M. E. Church has abolished the office of Epworth League Secretary. All the duties hitherto devolving upon that officer will hereafter be discharged by the League Editor.

***

The General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church has ordered that hereafter all young men who enter the ministry of that church shall promise to abstain from the use of tobacco in any form.

Rev. R. A. Burroughs, the enterprising pastor at Greenwood, Miss., is meeting with gratifying success in his work, as the following note from him indicates: 'Our church is in a prosperous condition. We have had 39 additions to our membership since Conference. Dr. W. M. Leftwich was with us two weeks, and did some of the finest preaching I ever heard. We have paid $2,000 on church debt, and all the financial interests of the church are in good shape. This charge is destined to be one of the very best in the near future."

The General Conference of the M. E. Church took action providing for the establishment of episcopal residences in Zurich for Europe, and in Shanghai for Eastern Asia. The Bishops sent to those fields are expected to remain in them for an entire quadrennium.

Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, the vivacious and scholarly presiding elder of the Natchez district, has been sorely afflicted recently with carbuncles, and on account thereof had to miss one or two of his appointments. We are glad to learn that he has about recovered from his ailment.

***

The late General Conference of the M. E. Church provided for the immediate consolidation of the Omaha Christian Advocate with the Central Christian Advocate, and ordered the removal of the publishing plant and book depository of the Central Advocate from St. Louis to Kansas City.

If Congress took any action on the anti-canteen bill before its adjournment yesterday, we failed to see any notice of it. Though our National Assembly ignored this important bill, it is by no means a settled question. The Christian people of America are not going to rest until the army canteen has been put to rout.

***

Mrs. Ellen N. Parker, mother of Revs. F. N. and F. S. Parker, of the Louisiana Conference, was taken very seriously ill last week at Covington, La., where she had gone for the benefit of her health, and her sons were called at once to her bedside. We rejoice to learn that she is now out of danger, and we trust that she will soon be entirely restored.

On Wednesday evening, the thirteenth ultimo, a revival meeting was begun at Carrollton Avenue Church by Pastor George D. Parker, which was carried over Sunday, and will be continued all this week. We are glad to learn that these special services are being well attended, and that much good has already been done. There were two conversions last Sunday night.

The late General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church appointed a committee of fifteen to consider the whole matter of creed revision, and instructed it to report to the next Assembly what action, if any, should be taken by the church. Thirty-seven overtures bearing upon this subject were received by the Assembly during its session.

***

The annual report of the Board of Missions brings out the gratifying fact that the year just past is, perhaps, in every regard the most encouraging in our history. In addition to the cancellation of the missionary debt, there has been an increase in the regular collections over the preceding year of $9,732 10. Including the specials, the increase is upwards of $35,000.

The General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, at its recent session in Atlanta, inaugurated a new departure in respect to devotional exercises. Instead of the usual half hour of religious services at the beginning of each day's session, a brief moment was spent in prayer, and then before the noon recess an hour was devoted to public worship, including a sermon.

***

Rev. J. W. Chambers having resigned the presidency of Whitworth College, Rev. A. F. Watkins, of Vicksburg, Miss., has been elected president, and Rev. M. L. Burton, of Enterprise, vice-president. Bro. Watkins is one of the most prominent, untired, and successful pastors in the Mississippi Conference, and will, no doubt, make a capital college president. His colleague, Bro. Burton, is a man of action, earnest piety, and fine business judgment.

Our editorial in last week's issue, headed "The Art of Illustration," unfortunately was marred by several typographical errors. The word 'repellent' should not have been spelled with an "a." In the sentence, "With what telling effect some speakers employ an illustration drawn from nature, or an incident from life," the word "as" slipped in somehow instead of the conjunction "or." We meant to say that some sermons are "little more than a string of anecdotes," not, "a little more."

As we have an unusually large number of obituaries on hand, our brethren and friends will please not find fault with us for failing to publish memoirs promptly. We are printing them as rapidly as we are able.

On May 29 we had the pleasure of preaching the commencement sermon at Steen's Creek Academy to a large audience. Under the wise administration of President Guynes this institution is enjoying great prosperity. The enrollment during the session is 165. During our stay we enjoyed the generous hospitalities of Bro. G. M. Hull and his interesting family. Bro. Hull is in high favor with his flock, as well as with the general public.

The following brief note from Bro. S. B. Myers, our faithful pastor at Tupelo, Miss., will be read with profound sorrow by his many friends. He writes:

"After eight years of suffering my precious mother went to heaven Sunday last (May 27), at 5:20 P. M. As we pass under the darkest cloud that ever overshadowed us, the precious promise, 'My grace is sufficient,' comes in all its strength and sweetness. Brethren, pray for me."

For the first time the General Conference (M. E. Church) has assumed the duty of assigning the Bishops to their homes. Heretofore it has selected the places, and allowed the Bishops to choose in the order of seniority of election. But this plan has not worked satisfactorily, and now the Conference will appoint each Bishop to his place of residence. Very few changes will be made at this time, but the principle will be established.—Pittsburg Advocate.

***

The surprising fact was brought out during the late General Conference of the M. E. Church that of the eight or more Advocates published under the direct auspices of the church, only two, the New York and the Pittsburg Advocates, have paid expenses during the past quadrennium. The net loss on the papers published in Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and some other cities, was over $100,000. Heretofore these papers have been supported by large subsidies from the General Book Concern, but after this one or two of them are to be discontinued if not self-sustaining.

Rev. B. S. Rayner, the genial and stirring pastor at Lumberton, Miss., spent last Monday in the city, and made the ADVOCATE office a pleasant call. He was looking well, and reports that he is meeting with much encouragement in his work. He has had sixty-one accessions to the church since Conference: twenty-one of these on profession of faith. The finances of his charge are paid up in full to date. An elegant new church is being erected at Poplarville. In our opinion, one of the secrets of Bro. Rayner's remarkable success as a pastor is, that he always labors faithfully to put the ADVOCATE into the homes of his people.

On May 16, 1900, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. F. Roache, Rev. Wm. Henry Hatfield, of the Louisiana Conference, was united in marriage to Miss Laura Roache, of Franklin parish. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Henry, assisted by Revs. Wm. Sohnhle and A. S. J. Neill. Bro. Hatfield is serving the Floyd charge, and is a young man of promise. His bride is said to be a most estimable young lady, and it is predicted will make him a splendid helpmeet. They left for their home in Floyd the day after the wedding. We extend to them our heartiest congratulations, and wish them a sunny and prosperous voyage through life.

The boodlers and bossers, it seems, are bent upon having the civil service clause of the New Orleans municipal charter repealed by the Legislature, and are doing the utmost to carry out their purpose. The abrogation of this measure would indeed be a heavy calamity to the people of New Orleans, for it would once more place many important offices in the hands of mere spoilsmen, who care no more for the city's welfare than does a crow. What will corruptionists not attempt in order to get a chance at the public till? It is to be hoped that the Legislature will neither be bribed or cajoled into perpetrating the outrage of repealing so excellent a measure.

FOREST DISTRICT.

The Rev. G. R. Ellis, P. C., Walnut Grove circuit, Forest district, Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South, having left the work and notified me some weeks thereafter that he could not return, the Rev. Charles S. Embree, L. E., of East End Church, Meridian, has been appointed to supply that circuit till the meeting of the Annual Conference.

Thomas J. Miller, late a local elder in the bounds of the Hillsboro circuit, in this said district, has notified me in writing that he has withdrawn from the ministry and membership of the M. E. Church, South (pending charges of a serious nature), and that he would formally surrender his credentials had not his license and ordination papers been burned when the postoffice in Forest was destroyed by fire, May 21.

A Word or Two about the Condition of Bro. J. S. Oakley.

I think it very right, mete, and my bounden duty" to speak a word to our friends concerning our Bro. J. S. Oakley. Many have said that I ought occasionally to let the public know of his condition through the ADVOCATE. Really, I think so, too.

On his return from Memphis, some weeks ago, we all thought him much improved, but since he has had another stroke of paralysis, from which he is much weakened. It left him in worse state than he had ever been. At this writing he is up and able to be about the place, but is only able to rest and try to rebuild. Low finances causes him to be despondent and to want to engage in some kind of labor, which we all know to be impracticable.

If any wish to help me relieve the situation, and still enable him to remain resting till he has full benefit and until the helpless family can become self-supporting, they may still send funds to me at Chester, Miss.

REVIVAL AT COLUMBUS, MISS.

Our twelve days' revival meeting, which was suspended May 9, was successful in every way. The strong preaching by Rev. E. B. Ramsey, of the Memphis Conference, and the song and other services, conducted by Revs. J. A. Leech, of Okolona, Miss., and J. B. Mitchell, student in Millsaps College, brought blessings to our people that will abide. We witnessed many sound conversions, received 16 persons into the church, and have a class of 20 others to be received soon. The 3 Sunday-schools, 3 Epworth Leagues, 3 Missionary Societies, and 4 prayer meetings are all in prosperous condition. The 50-year-old class meeting continues to be a power for good.

In the past 18 months 220 members have been added to our church here. We are now in a good meeting in South Columbus. We are much encouraged by the prospects of a good work during the year. Please permit me to say that the Twentieth Century Movement and all other interests of the church are receiving constant and careful attention.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

As the Children's Day service is now being held throughout the Conference, we call the attention of the brethren to the fact that Rev. J. W. Crisler, of Woodville, is the treasurer of the Sunday-school Board. All money collected on Children's Day, or at any other time for the Board, will be forwarded to him. It is hoped that the brethren will make prompt remittances, as the Board is in need of money to carry on the work that we are expected to do. Let every Sunday-school in the Conference observe the day, and send in a better collection than last year.

Notice.

To the Preachers of the Baton Rouge District—

DEAR BRETHREN: Will you kindly at once send me the names of the delegates to attend the Baton Rouge District Conference, July 28? See each delegate (or have them write me) and find out if he intends to come; how he will come, and what day he will come.

Of course, brethren, you all will be on hand Tuesday, and will remain till Monday.

Brother preachers and delegates, come at the beginning and stay through the ending; come praying on this your first visit (in District Conference) to this place, to you and to the town and community.

TRAIN SCHEDULE.

We have two trains daily. Bayon Sara, New Orleans local passenger, leaves Bayon Sara for New Orleans, 5:10 A. M.; arrives Bayon Sara, 9:10 P. M.

Bayon Sara—freight and passenger—leaves Bayon Sara for Slaughter 11:10; arrives from Slaughter, 2:50, having made connection at Slaughter, with the North and South-bound trains on Y. and M. V. R. R.

"Julien Poydras," our daily mail boat, leaves Bayon Sara for Baton Rouge daily at 6 o'clock A. M.; arrives from Baton Rouge, 6 o'clock P. M.

You will all take due notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

Come to the Missionary Institute the third and fourth, Tuesday and Wednesday. Brethren, this is very important; don't miss it.

Yours in Christ,

G. P. WHITE.

Arcadia District Conference Notes.

The Conference convened on the morning of May 23, and closed on the morning of the twenty-fifth. The presiding elder was in the chair, and all the preachers present except Bros. Franklin and Thomassor, who were sick. Minden is a delightful place for such gatherings, and all the delegates enjoyed their stay to the fullest.

W. H. Leslie, of Arcadia, was elected secretary. One young man, Bro. M. H. Hannloutt, was licensed to preach. He is going at it in earnest, too.

There have been 224 conversions and 102 net additions since Conference. Of the conversions, 100 have been at Arcadia, 100 at Ruston, 23 at Minden, and one at Homer. The "revival season" is not on in the country yet, but all the preachers are planning for a revival at every point on their works.

There are about 500 League members in the district. These are bending every energy to bring the missionary assessments against the district up in full this year.

A resolution expressing regret that, according to our law, Bro. Crews' term as our presiding elder must end with this year's work was passed by a rising vote. He has been tireless and vigilant and successful in that office.

Bros. Sheppard, Henderson and Ledbetter preached, and Bro. Singleton delivered an address on the Twentieth Century Movement. The love-feast and Lord's Supper on Friday morning was one of the sweetest and most inspiring services the writer ever attended.

Bro. J. L. Wright, the sweet-spirited "senior" of our district, was present, and led some of the services, and increased, by his sunshine and religion, the pleasure of everyone present.

Free Scholarships for Young Preachers at Vanderbilt University.

There are about thirty free scholarships in the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University that are open to college graduates who desire to take a course of biblical and theological study at that university. These scholarships yield ten dollars per month, and cover the cost of board in Wesley Hall, where room-rent and tuition are free. During the past year graduates of the following colleges and universities have received the benefit of these scholarships in the Biblical Department: Emory College, Emory and Henry, Kentucky Wesleyan, Millsaps, Randolph-Macon, Southern University, Trinity, University of Georgia, University of Mississippi, University of North Carolina, Academic Department of Vanderbilt University, Centenary, Central of Missouri, and other institutions. There were eighty-one young ministers in attendance upon Vanderbilt University the past year, and these students represented twenty-seven different colleges and twenty-eight of the Annual Conferences of Southern Methodism. Young ministers who are desirous of taking a biblical and theological course of study at Vanderbilt University should write to Dr. W. E. Tillett, Nashville, Tenn., for catalogues and other information.

Attracting Wide and Favorable Attention.

In a recent issue of this paper we expressed strongly our appreciation of "Christus Auctor," the new book from the pen of Bishop Candler, which was published scarcely a month ago. We observe with satisfaction that the press generally agrees with our estimate of it. Dr. Godbey, the scholarly editor of the Arkansas Methodist, says he read it at one sitting. Dr. Ivey, of the Raleigh Christian Advocate, devotes an editorial to it, closing his examination of it in these words: "'Christus Auctor' is a good book for the library; it is good for the journey; it is good for the study; it is good for the closet. It is enlightening to the mind and stimulating to the heart." The venerable Dr. Anderson, of the Florida Christian Advocate, describes it in a word—"an inspiration."

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. THOS. H. DORSEY, Arcola, Miss., EDITOR.

The Epworth League stands for thorough consecration to the service of our Lord in the church.

We are glad to note that our sister church in the North, after mature deliberation, refused to make any concessions to worldlians by modifying their regulations concerning worldly amusements.

Notice is hereby given to pastors, and workers generally, that the last session of the State Christian Endeavor Convention formed plans to organize Endeavors at all places where the different churches are weak. They have a pushing secretary, who is looking after this matter. Wherever there is a Methodist Church, there should be an Epworth League. If we do not organize a League, some one will organize an Endeavor. We are glad to see our Presbyterian brethren push their young people's society, and wish them much success, but Methodism needs no one beside herself to organize her young people and give them a place to work. Let every pastor have one, or more, Leagues; then, if we fail to organize our young people and use them, we must not complain when Presbyterians or others do it.

Let every Christian who may read these lines begin now to make earnest prayer that our Prohibition friends of Coahoma county may succeed in their effort to thwart the plan of whisky men to force upon them again the open saloon. The election is to be held on the twelfth of the present month. Let us call upon God for deliverance from the hands of our enemies, the foe of our Zion.

"God makes men work, not on account of what they make, but for what the work makes of them."

There are a great many people in the church who claim the honor of being workers when the extent of their ability to do something for the church is to "get up" a church supper, or something on that order. If we had the right of choice between workers of this class and no workers, we should certainly choose the latter. May the day soon come when all the churches shall be supported by methods that honor God and develop the grace of systematic Christian giving among God's people!

No League can afford to ignore any department of the work. If you neglect the Literary Department, you soon find that your League is lacking something. The same is true with reference to the Devotional and Charity and Help Departments. Be sure that you have a whole League.

The last issue of the Epworth Era is a jewel. Let every Leaguer take it. You don't know what you are missing each week.

Let us hear from the workers everywhere.

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON, Ruston, La. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

CARROLLTON AVENUE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

On Friday evening, Jan. 14, 1894, the young people of the Carrollton Avenue M. E. Church, South, were called together by Rev. J. M. Henry, pastor in charge, for the purpose of organizing an Epworth League. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, led by Mr. J. R. Westerfield. After a talk by Mr. Henry on the origin and work of the Epworth League, and the reading of the Constitution and By-laws, a League consisting of fifteen members was organized. Officers elected were: Mr. J. R. Westerfield, president; Mr. A. H. Ahten, first vice-president; Mrs. J. Cohen, second vice-president; Miss Mary Wilkinson, third vice-president; Miss Fanny B. Patterson, secretary and treasurer.

The following month, at our February meeting, the resignation of our president was received, and Rev. J. M. Henry was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. At this meeting six new members were received, bringing the roll up to twenty-one. In all respects it seemed a live, flourishing League. Some mission work was done, the poor were given assistance, prayer meetings held, new hymn books purchased, and a class formed to study our church history.

This, however, lasted only for a season. At the end of six months this League that had once seemed so promising, with a membership roll now numbering twenty-four, became inert, and fell into a deep, peaceful slumber.

About a year after, under the ministry of Rev. Lewis A. Reed, the Carrollton Avenue League was aroused from its slumber, apparently much refreshed. At this meeting fourteen met and reorganized into a chartered League, for up to this time no charter had been applied for. Much enthusiasm was shown: all were thoroughly in earnest.

One great improvement or advancement made by this little band was the manner in which its Sunday evening prayer meetings were conducted. Heretofore all had been left to pastor; now members conducted these meetings.

From its reorganization up to the present time—almost five years—the League has been unwavering in the work assigned it. While there has been but little growth in membership, there has been a steady increase in spirituality, good works, and the missionary spirit. A full missionary library of thirty-six volumns has been purchased, from which a book is reviewed at each monthly business meeting.

During the past year twenty-seven dollars and twenty cents was collected for foreign missions—an increase of seventeen dollars and twenty cents above the year before, showing marked improvement in the missionary spirit. In the meantime home missions are not neglected.

Our present officers are: Rev. Geo. D. Parker, president; Mrs. J. Cohen, first vice-president; Miss Mena Ahten, second vice-president; Mr. David Goodrich, third vice-president; Miss Eddie Bentley, secretary; Miss Amelia Goodrich, treasurer.

Our Leaguers work in Epworth Mission Sunday-school, and visit among the aged, sick, and neglected. Open-air meetings, cottage prayer meetings, missionary prayer meetings and socials are held with great success.

A very helpful feature of the work is a Bible class for systematic study of Scriptures, which meets each week.

FANNY B. PATTERSON.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. Matthew Henry's Commentary on the entire Bible, with all original illustrations and foot notes.

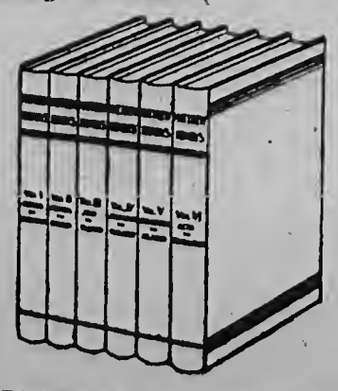
Doddredge: He is, perhaps, the only commentator so large that deserves to be entirely and attentively read through.

Whitfield: When asked where he studied theology, he replied: "On my knees, reading my Bible, and 'Henry's Commentary.'" Whitfield read it continually throngh four times.



Bickersteth: No snbsequent commentary has rendered it less valuable or less disirable in every Christian library.

Home Circle.

HOME.

Home's not merely four square walls,
Tho' with pictures hung and gilded;
Home is where affection calls,
Filled with shrines the heart has builded.
Home! Go watch the faithful dove
Sailing 'neath the heaven above us;
Home is where there's one to love!
Home is where there's one to love us!
Home's not merely roof and room—
It needs something to endear it!
Home is where the heart can bloom,
Where there's some kind lip to cheer it!
What is home with none to meet,
None to welcome, none to greet us!
Home is sweet and only sweet
Where there's one we love to meet us.

THE HAPPY MARRIAGE.

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

We hear much of unhappy marriages, bnt little of the happy ones. The latter bear their fruits as quietly as does the apple tree, while the former are attended by all the noise of a tree crashing to the grounnd. It is becanse happiness in marriage is quiet and self-contained, and matrimonial infelicity is too often lond-spoken, that inexperienced or snperficial persons are apt to acquire a distorted idea of the whole institution of marriage. A little horn-blowing from the army of husbands and wives who are happy in their married lives would be useful in keeping false impressions of matrimony from the minds of the youthful, and I am glad of an opportunity to sound a little blast myself.

My own happy marriage and close observatiou of the lives of others has made me feel well qualified to speak on this subject. I am convinced that there is a mnch greater volnme of happiness in marriage than those whose matrimonial knowledge is obtained chiefly from the newspapers and gossips would snppose. As a matter of fact, there are more successes than failures in this vital relationship of life. The nnmber of failnres is small compared to the immense nnmber of marriages. But it would be very mnch smaller than it is, if men and women were less selfish. The married condition in its essence is one of mutual advantage and mntnal snrrender, and is thrown completely ont of balance by attempts on either side to enjoy the benefits without yielding eqnal ones to the other.

To the yonng couple beginning married life, I can not say more, in a general way, than this: Be nnselfish in yonr relations with one another. Consider not merely the physical comfort and well-being, but also the feelings of the other half of the family. Give individual prejudices or even pecnliarities a little room, remembering that you have them yonrself, althongh yours do not, of course, seem like peculiarities to yon. Yonr husband has his own sphere—that of bnsiness. Do not entirely surrender yonr own sphere to him, except where the common good of both demands it. Retain your individnality of thonght and action; he will respect and admire you the more for it. There is such a thing as a husband and wife seeing too much of one another.

I think there is more danger of disaster in early marriages than in those contracted at full maturity. The youthful choice is apt to be nuwise. The man whom a girl thinks she loves at seventeen would rarely appeal to her so strongly if she were twenty-five, and the girl whom a young man of twenty-one believes he wonld like to marry wonld probably not be his selection if he were thirty. A knowledge of the world before marriage is conducive to contentment afterwards. The most nnfortunate nnions I have known were formed while the husband and wife were still in early youth. The man, when he assumes the responsibility of matrimony before he has reached matnrity, has had little or no experience in the typical bachelor life, and its attractions are likely to seem much greater to him than if he has already tested them. The wife who was married very early also feels the temptation to taste of life beyond the prosaic domestic circle, althongh usually in less degree than the man. She has not experienced enough of ball-room and Summer-resort flattery to have wearied of it and to have become cognizant of its emptiness. There seems to her to be gayety in life which she whose youth has been devoted to home dnties has never known, with the resnlt that she, as well as her husband, becomes restless. Unless there are strong ties and will power to keep a husband and wife who are in this mental condition to the road which leads away from this temporary unrest, they may stray into bypaths which lead to dissatisfaction and ultimate misery.—Success.

A FEARFUL PENALTY.

"A glass of beer can't hurt anybody! Why, I know a person—yonder he is now—a specimen of manly beanty, a portly six-footer; he has the bearing of a prince. He is one of our merchant princes. His face wears the hue of youth; and now, at the age of fifty-odd, he has the quick, elastic step of our young men of twenty-five, and none more full of wit and mirth than he; and I know he never dines without brandy and water, and never goes to bed without a terrapin or oyster supper, with plenty of champagne; and more than that, he was never known to be drunk. So here is a living exemplar and disproof of the temperance twaddle about the dangerous nature of an occasional glass and the destructive effects of a temperate use of good liquors."

Now, it so happened that this specimen of safe brandy drinking was a relation of ours. He died in a year or two after that with chronic diarrhœa, a common end of those who are never drunk, but never out of liquor. He left his widow a splendid mansion uptown, and a clear five thousand a year, besides a large fortune to each of his children, for he had ships on every sea, and credit at every counter, but which he never had occasion to nse.

For months before he died—he was a year dying—he could eat nothing without distress; in the midst of his millions he died of inanition.

That is not the half, reader. He had been a steady drinker, a daily drinker for twenty-eight years. He left a legacy to his children which he did not mention. Scrofula has been eating up one daughter for fifteen years; another is in the mad-house; the third and fourth were of unearthly beauty; there was a kind of grandeur in that beauty—but they were blighted, and they paled and faded into heaven, we trust, in their sweetest teens; another is tottering on the verge of the grave, and only to one of them is left all the senses.—Hall's Journal of Health.

In England more people die every year of alcoholism than of diphtheria and typhoid fever. —Selected.
